During March, the shop's last month here, 191 completed 189 major jobs on vehicles, exploiting the opportunity afforded by the brigade's February-March period in reserve. An inspection team headed by Capt. Bud Campbell of Barrie, Ont., checked every vehicle in the brigade, while another under WO2. George Maguire of Ottawa went over all the weapons.

Brig. M. P. Bogert, introducing his successor as brigade commander, Brig. Jean Allard, to the unit when Allard arrived to assume command of the brigade, said:

"I am very fond of this unit. It has done such fine work, and maintained such a wonderful atmosphere. I have never had to worry about administration or discipline here. They've kept the show on the road."

Just 16 years ago, on May 12, 1937, Princess Elizabeth, as heir-presumptive, watched her father's coronation as King George VI of England. She and her sister, Princess Margaret Rose, wore crowns made especially for the occasion. On June 2, this year, she will be crowned with the traditional St. Edward's Crown her father wore. It is so heavy that it is exchanged in a few minutes for the lighter Imperial Crown.

I

My story starts on the evening of Nov. 14, 1948, a Sunday. My husband, whose name is George, and I were awaiting an important announcement while listening to the radio at our home in Nottingham Cottage, Kensington.

Suddenly the telephone rang. Before I picked up the receiver, I had an idea what the news would be. I told George to turn down the music on the radio.

Mr. Baker, the Buckingham Palace telephone operator, was on the line and in a clear, cultured voice, he said: "Madame, Sir Dermot Kavanagh would like to speak to you."

A moment later I heard the voice of Sir Dermot, who is the Royal Equerry, in charge of all the Royal horses and motor cars. Unlike Mr. Baker, he did not speak in an evenly modulated voice. He was exuberant:

"Crawfie, I wanted you to be the first outside the palace to know. It's a boy!"

This was about 20 minutes past nine. Soon a bulletin would be winging around the world, but for the moment George and I shared the privilege of being among the first to know.

"You're relieved?" my husband asked. He was always quick to sense my mood.

"Don't be absurd," I said. "I always knew that Princess Elizabeth would do everything perfectly. I have never known her to fail at anything important."

I think I spoke with authority. For some 17 years I had been governess to the two little princesses, Elizabeth and Margaret Rose. I have a box full of remembrances—letters, Christmas cards, little keepsakes of all kinds. Princess Elizabeth called it my "treasure chest."

I cannot think of any more apt description for what it now contains.

It moved with me from 145 Picadilly on that fateful day when the two little Princesses and I followed in the wake of the Crystal Coach, which was taking the King and Queen to their new home in Buckingham Palace.

There my box stood on the window sill of my room, in plain view, outlined against the net curtain, of passersby on Constitution Hill.

And finally the box moved with me from my little Grace and Favour house in Kensington Palace, granted to me for life by His Majesty King George VI when I married and retired from the Royal Service, to this calm house where I now live and find some of the tranquility denied me in the turmoil of Royal life in London.

This box, now at the end of its journey, tells me what I told George: Queen Elizabeth will never fail at anything important.

Just as I was one of the first to hear the actual news of the birth of Prince Charles, I was among the first to know months before that a Royal baby was on its way.

One afternoon I was sitting down to tea in my rooms in Buckingham Palace when there came a gentle knock at the door and Princess Elizabeth put her head in.

Princess Elizabeth's visits were seldom a surprise to me. Long before her knock came at the door, I would hear her familiar footsteps outside.

In my many years at the Palace I had become an experienced mood-gauger. Usually a certain un-Royal thump-thump of feet down the passage would warn me that the Princess had some good news to pass on. For example, my door would burst open and a very flushed and excited Princess would sweep in.

"Oh, Crawfie," she would say, "Guess what? Papa's horse won again today." Or a similar bit of news.

But this day, despite her quietness, I knew that she had bigger news than horse racing. While I waited for it I invited her to have some tea.

"No, thank you, Crawfie," she said in the odd little voice that meant she was nervous or excited.

She crossed the room quietly and gazed out of the window. There was something about her stillness which spoke more than words. I looked thoughtfully at her back.

"I've just come to tell you something, Crawfie," she said after a pause.

She chose her words carefully, still not looking at me. "I'm having the old pram brought out."

I went to her side quickly and put my arms around her. "I'm so happy for you, darling," I said. Then we kissed and wept a little. It seemed hard for me to believe what she was telling me.

The birth of a Royal baby, especially when he is in direct line to the Throne, is an affair of state; but, of course, it is also very much of a private affair. When the child is "expected," the waiting world must be told.

From that moment, months before the birth, the baby is news, and he will be news all his life. The fierce light of publicity will be a burden hard to bear, as no one knows better than his mother, who must share her own joy with all the world.

For Princess Elizabeth there was only a little time—a few precious weeks—when she could nurse and enjoy her secret. We who were close to her knew, of course, before the first speculative hints appeared in the newspapers.

Hear Applicants For Eight New TV Stations

OTTAWA (CP)—The CBC board of governors today announced it will hear representations May 28 on applications for eight new television stations and five new radio stations.

Television applications include three from Edmonton, one each from Kitchener, Ont., Calgary, Saskatoon, Regina, and Rimouski, Que.

Applications have been made for new radio stations at Chicoutimi, Que., Montreal, and St. Joseph d'Alma, Que.

The board also will consider applications for a number of share transfers from existing radio stations, for increases of power and for changes of frequency.

Seven privately-owned television stations have been licensed in Hamilton, London, Sudbury and Windsor, Ont., Quebec City, Saint John, N. B., and Sydney, N. S.

The CBC now operates television stations in Montreal and Toronto and plans to open further stations in Vancouver, Winnipeg, Ottawa and Halifax—areas which have been reserved to them under government policy.

The applicants for the Kitchener station, Central Ontario Television Ltd., seek a station on Channel 6. The group includes Famous Players Canadian Corporation, industrialist Carl A. Pollock and Gilbert Liddle, one of the owners of radio station CKCR.

The group unsuccessfully sought a licence for a station on the same channel in Kitchener at the last meeting of the CBC board of governors in March. The board recommended that the government deny the application because the station would use a channel assigned to Toronto.

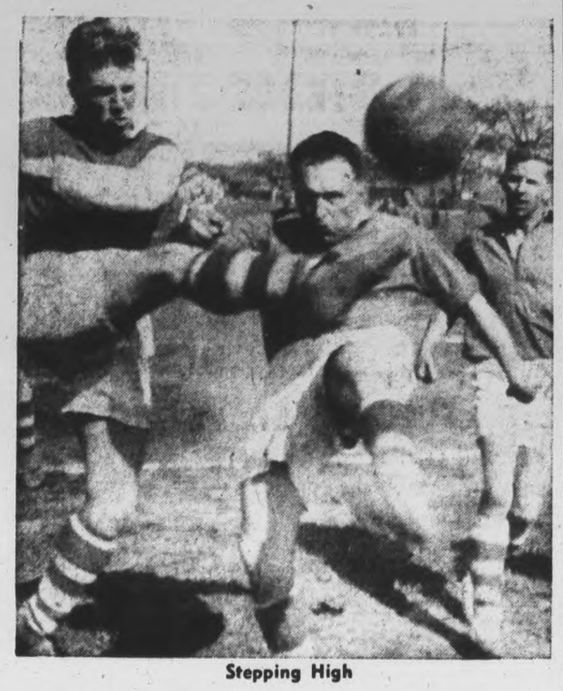
GRANT'S SPORT CORNER

By DON GRANT



They're kicking again. I mean the soccer teams have started the 1953 season which promises to be the best in some time for Eastern Ontario and city leagues.

Soccer has had its up and downs in Peterborough through the years. Back in 1915 and 1916, the enthusiasts really had soccer to the fore with six senior, five junior and four juvenile clubs, playing before crowds of 2,000 at the Oval.

For short periods in the twenties and thirties, soccer boomed again, but fell away prior to the Second World War. Since then the clubs have been struggling along.

Arrivals from England, Scotland and Wales during the past five years have given soccer that extra needed to get back on a sound working footing. More experienced than home brews, these new Canadians have banded together and helped form new leagues and new teams.

The Eastern Ontario Football league is a good example of the newcomers' effect on soccer in Ontario. This group will have eight teams forming a league this year.

Stepping High

Working in with the Canadian lads, the former old country players have revived soccer in Belleville, Trenton and Picton. They've also formed two teams, Uniteds and Concordia, in Kingston, besides Peterborough's UEW club and the new Merchants. In Batawa, they have come up with a strong club.

Peterborough will have a city league, with clubs from Canadian-Scottish club, UEW, Merchants and Port Hope.

The power in the Eastern Ontario league appears once more to be the UEW club which won Ontario intermediate honors last season. Built entirely of Scottish and English lads with professional and amateur experience in the old country, the club is solid defensively and offensively.

Actually the only former pro on the club is Jock Murray who played with Falkirk during the war years. But the others, Jack Ryan, John Holt, Bob Strong, Fred Munday, George Smith, Bob Croll, Ray Titshall, Glen Davies and Bill Holroyd have all had a good deal of experience in Scottish and English amateur leagues.

Newcomers to the UEW club this year include inside forward, Brian Hoyle, goalie, John Kynston, and another inside forward, Tony Byron. These lads saw action in the Bradford, Manchester and central amateur leagues and will give the club better depth than in past seasons.

Working the team into shape is trainer Don Kates, a track runner with General Electric in Birmingham and former member of the Midland AAA. Governing the team's actions on the field is manager coach Bill Garbutt, another former Bradford amateur.

The only near Canadian on the club is Bill Allan, the club secretary, who is now in his third year with the teams. Bill was born in bonnie Scotland and came to Canada when 11 years old. He played up north with the McIntyre gold mines.

The public school soccer league is indirectly responsible for Peterborough's second entry in the Eastern Ontario league. The Merchants almost entirely were taught the game in the city schools' play, especially at King Edward and Central, gaining more experience in the off and on teams during the past five years.

With hopes of a few more years of action, these lads went out to city merchants early this year seeking sponsors. Their enthusiasm wasn't denied and within a couple of weeks the club was financially strong enough to enter a team.

Coach Jim Buchan said what the boys lack in experience they will make up with their youth. He expects a fast squad.

A first glance at the lineup brings to mind the Downer family which fielded a soccer team of 16, all brother ans cousins. From that group there's George, Al, Dalton, Ken, Art and Bill Downer. Other are Eddie Lane, Harold and Larry Payne, Marvin Buchan, Tom Foster, Jack Hutchison, Jack Chambers and Alex Hodgson.

The Downer team still in mind, that family club of several years ago was the only team in Canada from one family.

While on the subject of soccer, it may be pointed out that Peterborough may hold a world record in that sport. Back in the thirties Central and King Edward schools played six games, all ending in ties, for the city school championship. They finally agreed to share the honors and cup.

Stroyan Leith wrote the soccer association in the old country about the series and it definitely considered that string of games a record.

Not Planning Ring Comeback

COLUMBUS, O. (AP)—Sugar Ray Robinson, retired middleweight champion, said today he would go back into the ring if the crown left the United States.

"I'm not planning to go back to boxing, you understand," Robinson told a reporter, "but I would if my friends wanted me to and especially if the crown left the country."

But he denied reports he is planning a ring comeback.

"I'm doing enough fighting here on the stage," he said. Robinson gave up boxing to become an entertainer. He is appearing in a Columbus night club.

Jim Norris, president of the International Boxing Club, brought speculation on Robinson's comeback into focus with the statement he had a "hunch" Robinson would fight again.

Baseball Club Shaping Up At Practises

Manager Shockey Mein and Coach Howie Dalton are beginning to carve a ball club out of a large crowd of young prospects these evenings in Riverside Park, while interested fans look on. The club brass of the Peterborough Liflocs—a junior "A" entry in the intermediate Lakeshore Baseball League—expect to have their team picked by the end of this week. The team opens play the following Saturday here. Booster tickets go on sale this week.

The pitching prospects include Jerry Frizzelle and Leo Sullivan of last year's local crew, Roger Lee an.. Carl Lenahan from Port Hope and possible Roger Junkin of Fenelon Falls. Doug Ash is available for utility outfield or pitching, if needed. Don Bigford and Ken Pammett are the catchers.

THE INFIELD

Stu Lingard of Cobourg is likely to hold down first base this season, while Gary Kearns is a cinch for second, though he's out at present with an injured hand. Jack Mason looks good at shortstop, being a former Peterborough boy, who moved to Toronto years ago and has lately returned to this city. Murray Byrne is a good bet at third at the moment, while Clare Ferguson is an utility infielder.

Among prospects for the outfield are Larry Foley, Byron Young, Bill Twist and John Cupoli. These positions on the club aren't definite yet, but that is how the team is shaping up in the final week of open workouts. They go nightly at 6:30 until Saturday, when an afternoon drill will be held.

Nearula 11-4 Favorite To Take Epsom Derby

LONDON (AP) — W. Humble's Nearula was made a firm 11 to 4 favorite for the 1953 Epsom Derby at an odds call-over by bookmakers Tuesday.

Aureole, owned by Queen Elizabeth, and Premonition, entered by Brig. W. P. Wyatt, are the 100 to 9 second choices.

Nearula easily won the one-mile Two Thousand Guineas, first of the season's classic races for three-year-olds, at Newmarket last Wednesday. Aureole was a fast-closing fifth and showed promise of running well over a longer route. The Derby is run at a mile and a half.

The 175th running of the Derby will be June 6.

Poor Ball Attendance Worrying Officials

NEW YORK (AP)—Major league magnates have been bemoaning the drop in attendance this season, and they've good reason.

Whether due to television, poor weather or a combination of both, the big league ball fan just isn't showing up as often as he used to.

An Associated Press survey disclosed today that attendance at major league parks is 24 per cent under last season's total in a comparable number of home dates for each club.

Paid admissions for 1953, including Tuesday night's games, totalled 1,373,984. Last year it was 1,802,729. That's a drop of 428,745.

King Edward Wins

King Edward intermediates yanked out a 10-9 school softball win over Prince of Wales "B" team as they scored twice in the fourth inning, tallying three in the first, one next time up and four in the third. The losers were good for five first time to bat, one each in the third and fifth, and two in the fourth. Outram and Frost hit homers. An unassisted double-play at second by Finney ended the classy contest. Teams:

P of W: Donaldson, Scholey, Billingsley, Downer, Frost, Wells, Conners, Burns, Marshall.

King Edward: Rogers, Lumbard, Elmsley, Finney, Outram, Steven, Jenkins, Weese, Curtis.

Jr. OLA Drill

Coach Doug Miller Jr. of the Peterborough OLA junior "A" entry is calling an open practise for 8:30 tonight in Miller Bowl. There will also be a workout of the squad there at 6:30 on Friday evening. The team for 1953 will be picked this week, and the definite provincial grouping announced by the end of the week. The schedule is expected to be drawn shortly.

Red Wings Clip Springfield In 5-3 Victory

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Rochester Red Wings Thursday night vaulted into second place in the International Baseball League and they can thank hurler Cot Deal and some sharp infielding, spearheaded by Mexican shortstop Chico Mayer.

Deal, a hold-over right-hander, tossed a six-hitter as the Wings turned back the tail-end Springfield Cubs 5-3 before a jubilant hometown crowd.

This gave Deal his first victory of the young season and Rochester a slight percentage lead over Montreal Royals. Each club is a game behind the leading Toronto Maple Leafs.

LEADOFF TRIPLE

A leadoff triple by outfielder Wally Moon and a two-run homer by infielder Lou Ortiz in the first inning got Springfield starter Jim Brosnan away to a bad start and he suffered his second straight defeat. Darius Hillman took over in the sixth.

In the only other scheduled contest, the fourth-place Buffalo Bisons rapped two Ottawa pitchers for 15 hits to rout the Athletics 5-1 under the lights at Buffalo.

Frank Lary allowed nine hits in winning his second game against one loss. It was a scoreless pitching battle between him and Ottawa's Bob Trice until the sixth inning when first baseman Keith Little rammed a grand-slam round-tripper for the winners.

16 Teams In Minor Baseball In Juvenile, Bantam, Peewee

On a basis of 15 boys to a team, the Peterborough Minor Baseball Association will likely have about 16 teams this year. After tabulating last week's registrations, Alex Sinclair, recreation director, said the association this year may have three juvenile teams, six bantam teams and seven peewee teams. There will be no midget teams this season and therefore all midget-age players will be allowed to play juvenile.

Mr. Sinclair said that some teams are already being formed. These teams in all three age sections are mostly in the northern, eastern and western districts of the city.

At the same time Mr. Sinclair said there is a great need for coaches and trainers for teams in all sections. A number of men have taken over some coaching duties, but the large number of boys, resulting in so many teams, has increased the coach and manager requirements.

Besides the regular team practices, the association will conduct a baseball clinic to provide the boys with basic fundamentals before the season commences in a few weeks. This school will begin Saturday morning at Riverside Park at 8:30 a.m. and will continue for three weeks.

There the boys will be grouped and sent to various classes in batting, throwing, running, and catching. Pat Calladine, Jack Billingsley, Joe Gatsfield, Wimpy Borland, Fred Garvey, Jack Bacon, and Mr. Sinclair will be instructing.

Batawa Soccer Club Leading The League

Batawa presently leads the Eastern Ontario Soccer League with four points for two wins in as many starts. UEW and Concordia each played and won a game. The local Merchants and Trenton have a point each after a draw, while Picton, Northern Electric and Kingson have played and lost a game each so far.

Club secretaries are responsible for wiring or phoning results of home games immediately to the league president, Les Digby, 371 Bridge St., E., Belleville.

May Shuffle Weights For Fighters

WASHINGTON (AP)—The National Boxing Association said Tuesday it may shuffle its weight alignments to give more fighters a chance at the in-between weight championships.

Col. Harvey L. Miller, the NBA's executive secretary, said this will be one of the top items up for discussion at the association's executive committee meeting in Milwaukee May 16 and 17.

Miller said the NBA has not reorganized its weight classifications, despite a government report showing the average American of draft age is 10 pounds heavier than the average man who fought in the First World War.

The boxer weighing between 147 and 150 pounds is "tops in athletic prowess, pound for pound, over any other weight," Miller continued.

Under the present NBA setup, a fighter between 147 and 150 must train himself down under 147 to make the welterweight limit or must fight men 10 pounds heavier in the middleweight division, which goes up to 160 pounds.

"The idea," Miller said, "is to reorganize these weights and add a new division, say 155 pounds. Welters would be at 145 and middleweights at 165."

Confeds Triumph

Confederation took an 8-7 intermediate school softball victory yesterday over Central "A" on the former's diamond, a neat number. The winners got three runs in the initial inning, two each in the third and fourth, adding one more in the fifth to win out. The losers counted two runs each in the first, fourth and fifth, with one in the third. Parry fanned four. Outwater hit a homer and triple. Teams:

Central: Lang, Mann, Sorrie, Vilneff, Dixon, Menzies, Foster, Sarginson, Knox, Gunn, Rowe, Sargent.

Confed.: Stevenson, Manford, Parry, Carl, Ruttan, Outwater, Kimball, Nichols, McArthur, Pulkinghorn, Kinniburgh, Henwood.

Trade Rumors Pop Up In Major League

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP)—Trade rumors were popping up again Tuesday as the major league managers started pruning their rosters in an attempt to meet the 25-player limit by midnight of May 14.

The most persistent of the rumors has the world champion New York Yankees seeking to wrest a righthanded pitcher from Detroit Tigers. Specifically, the Yankees are supposed to have offered outfielder Irv Noren for Art Houtteman.

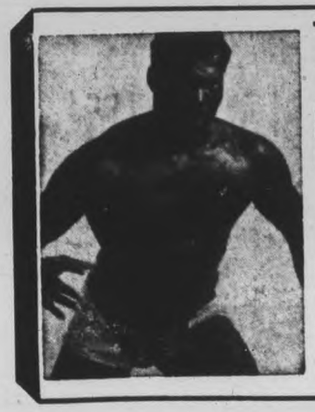
Negotiations between the two clubs actually began in Florida last March. They were reported resumed during the Yankees' recent two-day visit to Detroit. The Yankees also are interested in veteran infielder Johnny Pesky for utility purposes.

SEEK OUTFIELDER

Brooklyn Dodgers are seeking a lefthanded hitting outfielder. When Cincinnati was in Brooklyn, Dodger manager Charlie Dressen had Rogers Hornsby, Redleg skipper, closeted for an hour trying to pry Gus Bell loose from Cincinnati. Hornsby turned down the offer because it consisted of a couple of Dodger farmhands plus a third-rate pitcher.

Hornsby, in dire need of starting pitchers, also conferred with Leo Durocher, manager of New York Giants, when the Redlegs were at the Polo Grounds. It could not be learned what players, if any, were discussed.

The Giants, off to a start almost as miserable as the one in 1951 when they dropped 11 straight in April, may make a major deal before the trade deadline on June 14. Durocher is unhappy about his infield and his catching situation.



'No Accident' Jockey Declares

NEW YORK (AP)—Eric Guerin, who rode Native Dancer in the Kentucky Derby, said Tuesday it was "no accident" when his mount was bumped on the first turn in the turf classic last Saturday.

Native Dancer, who finished second to Dark Star, was hit on the first turn by Money Broker, ridden by Al Popara.

The Journal-American, in a front page story by racing writer Pat Lynch, quoted Guerin as saying: "I could see what was in that boy's mind and it didn't look like an accident to me. I could see it coming and he hit me. What was I supposed to do?"

Guerin has been criticized for not making his bid with the Dancer sooner. It was the horse's first defeat after 11 straight victories.

Yankees Hand Cleveland Worst Beating With Tough 11-1 Triumph

By BEN PHLEGAR, Associated Press Sports Writer

The world champion New York Yankees are back in their accustomed spot at the top of the American League after drawing first blood against the No. 1 contender, Cleveland Indians. In their first meeting of the young season, the Yankees handed the Indians their worst beating of the season Tuesday night 11-1. Bob Lemon, Cleveland's best, duelled Whitey Ford on even terms for three innings before the roof fell in. Thirteen Yankees went to bat in the fourth. Seven of them singled, two walked, one got hit and eight scored.

The Indians, who went into the game in a percentage tie with the Yankees, came out trailing by a big 1½ games—the Yanks have played and won three more games—and with onrushing Boston Red Sox only a half game back in third place.

TAKE OVER THIRD

Boston took over third by whipping Chicago White Sox 5-1 while Philadelphia Athletics bowed to Virgil Trucks and St. Louis Browns 2-1 in other night games in the American League. The Athletics, who had been third, slipped to fourth.

Washington blasted Detroit 14-4

Rain washed out the entire National League program. This brought the total major league postponements this season because of weather to 40 with 26 of them in the National League.

Bob Porterfield of the Senators slammed his first major league home run with the bases loaded. The blow was the big one although the Senators got 15 other hits off Bill Wight and four other Tiger hurlers. Porterfield, himself, gave up 16, about his usual quota for two full games.

WINS 4TH STRAIGHT

Mel Parnell of the Red Sox won his fourth straight without a loss, the best record in either league, as he scattered five Chicago hits. The White Sox scored only in the ninth when Jim Rivera singled home Sam Mele who had tripled.

Vic Wertz of the Browns took over the home run lead in the American League as he hit his fifth of the year with one man on base. The two runs were all Trucks needed to post his third victory against one loss as he bested young Harry Byrd.

Trucks, who struck out six, now is within two games of equalling his total 1952 victories. Last year, despite two no-hitters and a one hitter, he won only five games and lost 19. He came to the Browns during the winter in a deal with Detroit.

Odds 8 To 5 Dutchmen To Take Series

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP)—Take it from the fans: Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen are going to wind up the Allan Cup final tonight. The odds are 8 to 5 that they do

The Dutchmen, leading the best-of-seven Canadian senior hockey final 3-1, need victory in only one more game over Penticton Vs to give Kitchener its first senior title since 1918.

Coach Bob Rafferty has an open mind on the subject.

The Dutchies seemed assured of victory after taking the first two games, but they had the wind knocked out of them in the third. Bobby Gillson, netminder for Owen Sound Mercurys of the Ontario Hockey Association senior A series, was taken on by the Vs to replace the injured Ivan McClellana and the Owen Sounder made it a one-man victory when the Vs won 2-1.

CHARGE IT'S UNFAIR

The Dutchmen protested to the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, claiming it was unfair to be forced to compete with a goalkeeper from their own league. An airmail vote was to be taken by the CAHA, but the outcome has not been announced as yet.

Bill Carse, Penticton coach, had little to say about the outcome, but his team appeared grimly determined and reasonably confident it can win at least one more game. Kitchener took the fourth game Monday night.

No major line-up changes are expected tonight. Kitchener's left-winger Maurice Leveque, out with an injured shoulder at the start of the series, will play with a special harness.

Another sell-out crowd is assured. Tickets which went on sale at 2 p.m. Tuesday were sold in less than two hours. The series appears to be the most successful financially in years, with 28,816 admissions recorded in the first four games.

Remember When

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hank Greenberg in his last game with Detroit Tigers before induction into the U.S. Army 12 years ago today gave the fans something to remember by hitting two home runs against the Yankees. Greenberg returned to the line-up later and repeated the trick against Chicago Cubs in the second 1945 World Series game. Detroit won that series by four games to three

Yesterday's Stars

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Batting: Bob Porterfield, Washington, helped win his own game with his first major league home run, with the bases full, against Detroit. The Senators won 14-4.

Pitching: Mel Parnell, Boston Red Sox, scattered five Chicago hits in winning his fourth game without a loss 5-1, the best record in either league.

Interested Spectators At Horse Trials

MEMBERS OF THE ROYAL PARTY recline on the grass at Badminton, Gloucestershire, during a break in the recent Olympic Horse Trials. Queen Elizabeth peers into her camera, with her sister, Princess Margaret, sitting directly behind the Queen. Next to the Princess (bow on hat) is the Princess Royal, and next to her the Duke of Gloucester. The Duchess of Gloucester, back to camera, rests with her young son, Richard, nine. Others are unidentified.

IT'S A TENSE MOMENT and all eyes are on the jumpers as the Duke of Edinburgh takes moving pictures from the Royal stand. At left rear is the Duke of Beaufort, who, with his wife, entertained the Royal party at Badminton Hall. The very interested spectator standing at right is unidentified.

FOR TOP PERFORMANCE and a job well done, this sleek entry receives a rewarding pat from Queen Elizabeth, herself an accomplished horsewoman.

Stylish Negro Boxer Only One To Score Full-Count Knockout

By W. R. WHEATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP)—Lloyd Lawrence, stylish Negro boxer with a deadly right, not only remains Toronto's final hope today in the Canadian amateur boxing championships but he's the only fighter who has scored a full-count knockout in 28 bouts eading to the finals.

Lawrence polished off Ralph Hozak of Bar Head, Alta., in a 156-pound class semi-final Tuesday night in business-like fashion. Steadily wearing down the Alberta boy, Lawrence threw a powerful right to the jaw that sent Hozak down for an eight count in the second round. A short stinging right to the same place stretched Hozak out for the 10-count at 2:13.

Four other bouts—three of them Tuesday night—have ended in technical knockouts.

Lawrence tonight meets Paul Chyzy of Winnipeg, who had power and stamina in slugging his way to a decision over Gary Williams of Hamilton.

ONE OF THREE

Chyzy is one of three Winnipeg fighters going into tonight's finals in which 10 champions will be declared in the various weight divisions.

Mountainous Jimmy Saunders, national heavyweight champion from Winnipeg, made good use of his 225 pounds in whaling out a decision over Calvin Brown, Korean veteran and navy man from Montreal. Brown entered the ring at only 178 pounds. His cracking left couldn't compete in a slugging match with big Jim. saunders goes into the final against Lee Donnison of Regina, who hasn't yet appeared because of byes.

Pete Kawulia, 125-pounder from Winnipeg, sent Gale Kerwin of Ottawa to the canvas for an eight count in the third round and took the decision tonight he meets Fernand Paradis of Montreal, who won an unpopular decision over Eddie Beattie of Hamilton. Each fighter scored a knockdown.

Des Archer of Vancouver had too much ring savvy and straight punching for Laurie Webb of Winnipeg, winning his 147-pound semi-final by a technical knockout. In tonight's final Archer meets Danny Saunders, Hamilton negro, who had Roman Moraresh of Montreal in distress all through the third round.

WINS EASILY

Archer's teammate, Gerry Boucher, won easily over Montreal's Raymond Gregoire in the 112-pound class. His opponent in the final is Pat Supple, Montreal, who swarmed all over Woodie Reid of Toronto. The bout was stopped at 2:31 of the opening round.

Trenton Ketcheson of Halifax took a decision over Gordon Riddell of Edmonton who would have preferred Ketcheson try to slug it out with him. Ketcheson meets Elmer Gelzins of Hamilton for the 165-pound title. Gelzins won by default Tuesday night.

Freddie Deegan, another clean puncher from Halifax, used right uppercuts to advantage in gaining a decision over Sammy Fortuno of Montreal and will meet another Montrealer, Maxie Shears, for the title in the 132-pound class. Shears won by decision over Eddie Gilmartin, Montreal.

MPs Murder Reporters In Yearly Ball Game 23-3

OTTAWA (CP)—Take it from a butchered bunch of reporters, too many former athletes have been elected to Parliament.

The athletes turned politicians Tuesday night committed their annual atrocities against the Parliamentary Press Gallery in a reputed softball match that drew more than 2,000 fans to Parliament Hill and brought more than $200 for European flood relief.

The score: 23-3. And it was just about that bad.

CONACHER CLICKS

Conacher got two home runs, one on an infield hit that was so badly muffed that three other runners scored ahead of him. The other four mentioned were limited to one homer apiece.

But Young John Cote, a pitching ringer from the House of Commons staff, struck Conacher out twice while photographers gleefully caught shots of the greatest athlete of the half-century flat on his stomach after a lusty swing.

George Cruickshank (L — Fraser Valley) was general superintendent of proceedings, bedecked in a flowing golden cape and a cocked hat befitting his stature as mock mayor of Parliament Hill. And, as for many years, the effervescent force behind it all was an 80-year-old youngster named the Rev. Dan McIvor, Liberal member for Fort William.

Jimmy McHale Gets Record-Shattering 62

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Jimmy McHale, now preparing for the British amateur golf championship shot a record-shattering 62 at the Philadelphia Country Club's Spring Mill course Tuesday.

McHale bettered the previous non-competitive course mark of 63 set by Woody Platt. The competitive course record was a 66 shot by Clayton Heafner in the 1939 U.S. Open championship.

McHale had two eagles and seven birdies in his round.

Softball Practice

The T.P.T. Petes are holding a softball workout at East City Bowl Wednesday evening at 6.30. Everyone welcome.

Hot St. Boniface Dumps Barrie 7-4

WINNIPEG (CP)—St. Boniface Canadiens were hot Monday as they beat Barrie Flyers 7-4 for their first win in four Memorial Cup starts, but it was coach Hap Emms of the Flyers who was burned up.

After three straight Barrie victories, the unpredictable Canadiens suddenly clicked and far outplayed the Flyers for the first time.

Emms made more noise after the game, however, than any five cheering western fans. He yelped with horror at the refereeing, terming it the worst he had ever seen, said the ice surface was a pool of water and called the Winnipeg Amphitheatre a barn.

Win, lose or draw tonight, the Canadian junior hockey final leaves Winnipeg and if necessary will finish in Brandon. The Wheat City was promised the sixth game of the best-of-seven series in any case and a circus moving into Winnipeg will make it necessary to play the seventh game there also.

The odds-makers have pulled a reverse for the fifth game. After Barrie took the first three games 6-4, 6-3 and 7-5, they would quote would capture the series four straight. Tuesday you could pick up 5 to 2 odds that the Flyers will win the fifth, but no odds were quoted on the series outcome.

Barrie was not over-confident Monday but just soundly outplayed. Speedy little Tony Poeta saw little action for the easterners and wasn't off the bench during the third period. He suffered a severe knee injury Friday and may not be back tonight.

Soft ice hampered the workouts by both teams Tuesday. The visitors took the rink in the afternoon followed by the Habs in the evening, but little was accomplished as outside temperatures climbed close odds only on whether the Flyers to the 80 mark.

The Canadiens received a wire of encouragement from Frank Selke, manager of Montreal Canadiens, before Monday's game, urging the Hab farm club to "go out and win." Coach Dick Irvin of the Canadiens, after watching St. Boniface in action, remarked that the club has lots of weight but isn't using it.

Selke added that if St. Boniface loses it must start building for 1954 in an attempt to bring the Memorial Cup back to the west.

Their original best-of-seven final ended in a 3-3 deadlock, with one game tied. The special series was ordered to decide the winner.

The first game of the home-and-home, total-points special series, played Saturday in Weston, ended in a 3-3 tie.

Cricket Match Ends In Tie

LONDON (Reuters)—Middlesex and Northamptonshire ended their match Tuesday in an exact tie—only the 14th tie in first class cricket during the 35 years since the First World War.

With two wickets to fall, Northamptonshire required only two runs to win and the drama heightened when the last man came in with the scores even. Ken Fiddling survived the three last balls of the over and everything was in Northamptonshire's favor when Desmond Barrick, who had brought his side to the brink of victory with an 80, prepared to face the next from Bull Edrich.

Barrick played defensively throughout a maiden over, leaving Fiddling to face Jack Young, slow left arm bowler, again. Young ended the tension by clean bowling him on the first delivery.

Discuss Plans For Getting Canadian Gas

WASHINGTON (AP)—Top Eisenhower administration officials will be asked to discuss plans for obtaining Canadian natural gas for Michigan and Wisconsin.

Representative John Bennett (Rep. Mich.) said today State Secretary John Foster Dulles and Interior Secretary George McKay will be invited to confer on the problem with Governors Walter Kohler of Wisconsin, G. Mennen Williams of Michigan and members of Congress from the two states.

Bennett, who is arranging the conference, said in a statement that it will be held soon although no date has been set.

Bennett discussed the matter Tuesday with J. Edward Brantly, deputy administrator of foreign petroleum operations for the interior department, and Constant Southworth, a state department official.

He said they agreed with him that Canada would find it more economical to pipe gas from Alberta to Eastern Canada through upper Michigan and northern Wisconsin instead of over an all-Canadian route north of Lake Superior.

COST LESS

"The construction and maintenance costs would be substantially less," Bennett said. "A large market in this country would be provided for fuel which wouldtend to reduce the cost of gas to the consumers in Eastern Canada."

Bennett noted the Canadian government last week issued the Westcoast Transmission Company a 22-year permit to export gas to the Pacific northwest arae.

He said this indicates Canada might be willing to export additional gas.

Brantley, he added, told him "there is no question as to the adequacy of Canadian reserves of natural gas or the availability of gas for export if Canada is willing to expand its market for the fuel."

The purpose of the meeting with Dulles and McKay, Bennett said, would be "to establish procedures by which this problem can be put before the Canadian government for its consideration."

Music Transports

lighter mood of Vienna. Franz Lehar's "The Merry Widow". Here too was a vaster orchestra and every member paying close heed to the conductor although they must have played that music several thousand of times before. Here again the soloists sang as though impassioned for the first time, and the settings and costumes had a freshness and liveliness that not all Broadway's money manages to match.

They have fun at the People's Opera. New twists are given to the lines and the orchestra members veer around in their chairs to listen and revel in the whole thing. Mossadegh, Vishinsky, Malenkov—anyone is likely to find himself in the script. And speaking of the Russians I guess it was the "no smoking" sign on the wall of the theatre lounge that gave me my first direction in Russian. (All directions appear in the four languages of the great powers in this Allied-occupied city.)

Here as in the Opera House the visitor from "America" gets the feeling the opera in Vienna is a co-operative enterprise; orchestra, singers and audience, all under the conductor. It is a knowing audience, and when six or eight violins sang their gentle melody from a second gallery box, to be answered by the vast pit and chorus, the listener from abroad thrilled to a rare experience.

At home the music of "The Merry Widow" can grind pretty stale. Here, where it has been played since 1905, audience and singers and orchestra all gently blend together and feel and create it again and anew. The waltz itself or the song Velia—have they always been this beautiful?

But I am obviously no person to write about music. Let me take you out into Vienna's streets again, where dogs run loose only if they have small wire waste-baskets tied to their heads as muzzles; where the City Hall, begun in 1700, has two fine old panelled restaurants in its basement somewhat like the English chop-house; where advertisements and magazines don't sell everything by means of a sweater-girl but by good design and color; where almost everywhere you look you will see flags flying, the big ones from the important mast-heads being British, French, American or Russian, but the more numerous ones from anywhere at all being the clean Red and White stripe of Austria proudly unfurled to answer the intruder.

Or let me tell you about the Austrian sense of the pleasant which asserts itself on the phone exchange whereby you may dial (as we would for long distance) a certain number for the weather, another for the day's recipe, another for the football betting odds, another for the time, another for general information if you are doing a crossword puzzle or having a quiz party, another for theatre tickets and still another where you can tune your children in on a bedtime story.

That's the kind of thing that goes on in Vienna. The city is terribly scarred with bomb and shell damage, there is unemployment, there are four victorious enemies in the city's midst—but they waltz on. Observers say that in Germany Germans say things are serious but not desperate; in Austria on the other hand the conception is that things are desperate but not serious.

I used the word "waltz" and that reminds me that they do indeed waltz in Vienna. High society does it on the lavish scale, and the social calendar includes many fancy dress balls which are said to be wondrous altogether. But the people of Vienna also waltz. They do it more gaily and less pretentiously in their little beerhouses and gardens and sometimes on the streets.

Just now is a bit ahead of the outdoor dancing season, but we did succeed in our request to spend a Saturday night as the Viennese people spend it.

Just outside the city is a vineyard area. Spotted over the suburbs of the city are the houses of the wine-owners who sell their own produce as soon as it has been drawn off the grape, unmatured. You head for the suburbs in a tram and at the end of the line is a list of the names of those houses which that night have some wine for sale. If you go by automobile you identify the vintner who is selling that night by the fact that he has tied a bunch of pine branches out over his door.

In the house and its garden are several small areas of chairs and tables where you drink the wine and eat the food you have brought yourself a la picnic. Meanwhile wandering through the tables and chairs are four musicians, singer, violin, guitar and accordion. They sing whatever you ask them and that always reminds them of another of their own, and there is no closing time other than that the Viennese start work at 8.00 in the morning.

Such a pace is called a "Heurigen" wine tavern, and it was the happiest, laughingest, easiest, pleasantest such place as you have ever seen. Everybody sings but nobody bellows. You can smile at the most beautiful girl in the house and get a great big one right back—whether you know her or not—but somehow you just don't imagine anyone getting objectionable. You'd have to drink a barrel before you could spend the equivalent of $2.00 but in the meantime you've listened to Vienna, to what Schubert and Liszt and Beethoven listened to and to what roused the spirit that made one of the world's greatest empires and to what still gives spirit though that empire has gone the way of all vanity and left its defeated people a legacy of toil and trial—though not tears.

Vienna stands for a lot in history we need not envy or admire, but there is much we should learn and borrow from them that would civilize our lives, lift our spirits and lighten our dullness.

Suggest Freer Trade Policy

OTTAWA (CP)—Promotion of a freer world trade policy was urged upon the government today in a brief submitted to the Senate committee on Canadian trade relations by the Canadian Importers and traders Association.

The association, representing some 400 Canadian importing firms said in its brief that Canada should take the lead in submitting a plan for a scientific international tariff to North Atlantic Treaty Organization countries.

In addition to a low tariff based on comparative wage rates, the association favored an increase in the price of gold, reduction of internal excise taxes and removal of restrictive quotas on import trade.

"This association believes that the greatest possible degree of accessibility to world markets and the least possible restriction on trade will produce the best results," the brief noted. "As our whole economic and political structure rests n our trade, both national and international, we are of the opinion that this consideration, more than any other, deserves our greatest attention."

Man Not Guilty Of Murder

WELLINGTON, N. Z. (Reuters)—A man who killed his deformed child 12 hours after its birth today was found not guilty of murder on grounds of insanity.

Horticulturist Leslie Ernest Jones, 40-year-old father of three normal children, was committed to prison until the justice ministry determines whether he should be confined to an asylum for the criminally insane.

In returning a verdict, the jury of the Napier Supreme Court recommended that hospital authorities should be empowered to withhold deformed babies from their parents' view for an appropriate length of time.

COMPLETELY UNBALANCED

Defence lawyer W. E. Bate said Jones became "completely unbalanced and unhinged" upon his first look at the child's "horrifying" deformity. He said that the horticulturist who lived close to nature felt that nature had played a ghastly trick on him.

The prosecution emphasized "mercy killings" were against the law. Unless Jones was punished other parents of deformed children might take the same action, he said.

Jones pushed past nurses in a maternity home March 17 and stabbed his new-born child in the head.

See Soviet Union Trying To Wreck U.S. Economy

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—A Wall street survey, made public Tuesday, says the Soviet Union, aiming at world economic domination, is seeking to enfeeble and wreck the U.S. economy.

This survey has been delivered to ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., chief American UN delegate, and recently was brought to the attention of high authorities of the Eisenhower administration and of the Senate foreign relations committee. It strongly urges "a drastic reorientation of the economic and social phases of our defence strategy" in the economic and social fields.

The report urges use of personnel with "a working knowledge of Marxism-Leninism-Stalinism" on the firing line against Soviet propaganda, contending that "the initiative should be seized and held" in this phase of the cold war.

The document was prepared by Robert S. Byfield and W. W Cumberland, New York stock exchange representatives on the non-government observer group attached to the U.S. delegation.

The report says the Soviet drive is attempting to cut off the U.S. from raw materials and strategic items abroad, destroy markets for U.S. manufactured goods, cause Americans to lose control of assets through propaganda for nationalization, socialization, confiscatory taxation and the like.

The report recommends:

1. High-level formulation of basic policies in the economic and social phases of U.S. defence strategy.

2. Effective co-operation between the U.S. mission and higher authorities in the state department having jurisdiction over U N. affairs.

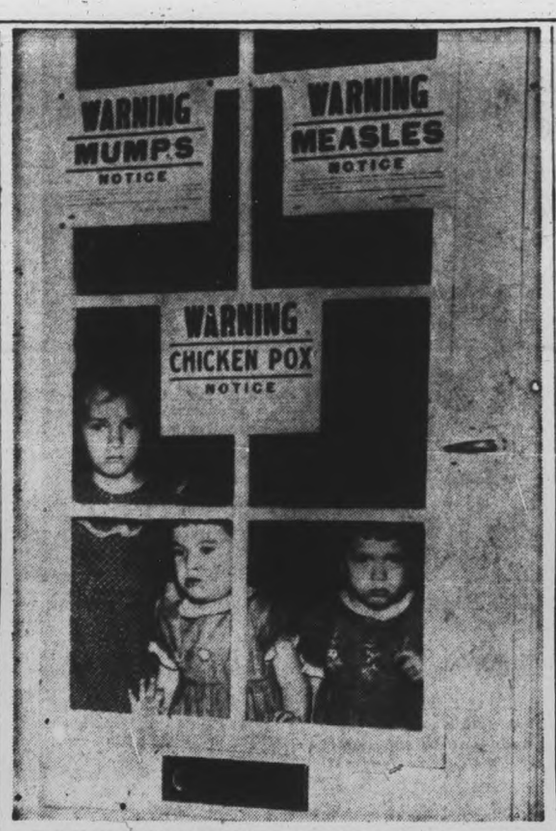
3. Close liaison of the UN mission with the central agency in Washington in planning and carrying out "psychological strategy."

Senate Passes State Ownership Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate ended its longest debate in 15 years Tuesday by passing the Eisenhower-backed bill to establish state ownership of the oil riches lying under coastal waters. The roll call vote was 56 to 35.

Before approving the bitterly-fought legislation, the Senate rejected a dozen last-ditch amendments aimed at cancelling or limiting what the opposition called a gigantic "giveaway" of federal property worth billions.

The bill now goes to the House of Representatives which passed its own version of the legislation five weeks ago. A conference committee may have to be appointed to iron out differences in the measures.



COMMEND VOTE

Administration leaders commended the vote as "just and equitable" recognition of 150-year-old claims the states have made to valuable submerged lands lying off their coastlines.

But senators who fought the bill through 27 days of acrimonious debate said the battle would be carried on in the courts and into the election campaign of 1954.

Assault Case Remand

KITCHENER (CP) — Henry Paepcke and his wife of Elmira were remanded Tuesday until June 1 on a charge of assault arising out of the death of their three-year-old daughter last Jan. 27. Paepcke and his wife Sheila were arrested and charged with murder after police found their daughter, Gelnis, beaten to death. They were acquitted of the murder charge in March and the assault charge was laid then.

Faces 8 Charges Of Robbery

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario provincial police said Tuesday Harry Hedderson of Toronto, once on the RCMP's list of 10 most-wanted criminals, will be taken from Buffalo to San Francisco this week to face eight charges of armed robbery in California.

Hedderson, 46, was arrested in Buffalo last month on a charge of car theft.

He is wanted in Sudbury in connection with the $90,000 gold bullion robbery at a railway station there last May and for an armed robbery in Bronte, Ont., last December.

Provincial police said they did not know when Hedderson will go on trial in San Francisco.

Picked up with Hedderson in Buffalo was Rita Giroux, 22, a native of Arnprior, 35 miles northwest of Ottawa. She has been returned to Canada and released, police said.

Lindsay Sets Up Town Planning Board

LINDSAY —(ENS)—The town planning board was set up formally according to the terms the various members will serve. Two-year terms —Wm. McCrae and A. O'Neill and three-years terms, Miss Ada Greaves and E. Wright. Council members of the board are Aldermen Maidens and McQuarrie.

No action was taken on a request by Chief of Police Hunter that the licence fee for female dogs be raised to $10 in coming years. This he said would cause a decrease in the female dog population, and would also curb much of the trouble caused by dogs in the town's gardens.

Mayor Lamb defended the dogs as a ten-day menace in the spring and commented that he would rather have the dogs "scratching up a few gardens than howling all night tied up."

Hotel Association Meets In Kingston

KINGSTON (CP)—The hotel association of Ontario concluded its two-day meeting Tuesday with a joint session of the presidents and secretaries of the 32 local associations and directors of the parent Ontario Association.

The meeting decided to study the question of non-unionized hotels in St. Catharines and Guelph, where it was reported there had been some agitation for formation of affiliated unions.

The directors asked the association to take action to curb what they termed the prevailing abuse of banquet permits issued by the liquor licence board of Ontario.

SERVE CANADA

Trained to strike hard at any threats to our freedom . . . soldiers like those of the airborne infantry are helping to guard Canada, ready to drop into action wherever danger threatens. The young man who joins the Army and has completed his Infantry training may then volunteer to start training for the proud wings of Canada's "Soldiers of the Sky."

AND YOURSELF

How does a man choose a job? He examines the pay; the working conditions; the opportunities for advancement; the financial security. From every one of these aspects an Army career is excellent. And more — no monotony of being stuck for years in one place; pension plans after 20 years service; medical and dental care whenever needed — without regard for cost or time. Opportunities for training and advancement in the Army today are truly outstanding. For the bright young man who is interested in his future — as well as Canada's — the Canadian Army Active Force has much to offer.

IN THE ARMY

Soldiering is a man's life! There are challenges and dangers. Overseas duty carries with it the excitement of new places and strange customs in distant lands. But wherever you go, in the Army, you know you can rely on your comrades, trained fighting men who share with you the action of military life. If you think an Army career is for you, enquire about the opportunities for service with the Infantry — the most important men in the Canadian Army.

You are eligible to join the Army if you are 17 to 40 years of age and able to meet Army test requirements. Applicants should bring birth certificates or other proof of age when reporting for interview.

Doctors Refused Permission To Treat Prisoners

(Seventh in a Series)

By PHILIP DEANE,
Correspondent of Observer, London

LONDON—Lessons in American history were given. The annihilation of the Red Indians by the settlers was stressed. Coloured and Filipino boys were challenged about racial discrimination, about "Jim Crow" segregation and lynching. Instances of brutality towards the coloured people were stressed. Mark Twain's caustic comments on American Army behaviour in the Philippines had obviously been incorporated in the indoctrinator's notebook. Charles Dickens was quoted as an authority on living conditions in Britain. The conditions described by Dickens, according to the indoctrinator, still prevailed, "altered somewhat in form but not in essence."

"You came to attack us," he told the Americans. "We never attacked America. It was your President Theodore Roosevelt who made possible the Japanese conquest of our country. Before that, one of your admirals bombarded our country to make us trade with the West. We did not want to have anything to do with you and yet you forced yourselves upon us. And now you come again. In spite of it all we do not hate you. We want to treat you well, if you will let us. You are having a bad time, but so are we. The whole country is ruined by your planes. There is nothing left. We give you all we can."

He tried to show the G.I.'s that before the Korean war the Communists were rebuilding North Korea while the Americans were exploiting the South. "Some of you are peasants. You know what it means to have your own land. We gave land to the farmers who before had worked for others. We made all our factories work and built new ones. Some of you were in Seoul before this war started. You saw the coolies waiting for jobs, the factories that were closed. Perhaps some of you have known unemployment. You know what it feels like. Some of you remember the Depression. Tell the others after I have gone what it was like.

"Before this war we did not have your skyscrapers, your automobiles but we did not have unemployed. Anyone who wanted to work honestly could do so, and support himself. Some did not go hungry while others had too much. Everyone had an equal chance, and we were building fast, much faster relatively than in your countries, where vested interests bury important inventions to keep their profits high, to keep on exploiting you, and to make you pay many times more than you need for the daily necessities of life."

The indoctrinator came to visit the special group of journalists and diplomats to announce that on the next day he would begin teaching us "Marxism-Leninism." This was a preliminary breaking of the ground. He was very pleasant, and offered cigarettes—the first we had seen for three months, though we had been given some tobacco. The French diplomats—George Perruche and Jean Meadmore — and Captain Vyvyan Holt (the British Minister), who, weakened by illness, was only just able to speak, capped all the indoctrinator's quotations.

"Lenin," said the indoctrinator, "wrote in 'Left Communism, an Infantile Disorder,' that . . . . "

"Aha!" answered Mr. Holt, "but you must not forget that Stalin, in his interview with the first American workers who visited the Soviet Union in 1926, said . . . "

"And"—this from Meadmore — "Marx, in 'Misere de la Philosophie, Reponse a la Philosophie de la Misere de M. Proudhon, states "

After half an hour of this the baby-faced indoctrinator left. He never returned to begin the lessons he had promised us. Instead, he continued with the G.I.s. But the odds were against him. Everyone was very cold. The school in which most of the G.I.s. were housed was heated by a barrel stove, which smoked so much that it was, literally a case of choosing between suffocation and freezing. There was not enough food. Dr. Ernest Kisch calculated its caloric value at approximately 700. (approximately 1,500 calories is generally accepted as the minimum subsistence level). The type of food, according to Dr. Kisch, was directly harmful to those suffering from dysentery — that meant almost all of us.

There were "hospitals" in the camp, houses that had been set apart, and to which the dying were carried. There was so little space that none could lie flat: they died in a sitting position. They died of pneumonia, of meningitis, of dysentery—sometimes of all three together. They were cared for by a man who claimed he was a second year medical student of Pyongyang University. This man would not allow the two qualified doctors interned in the camp to diagnose or treat the patients. The American Army doctor was made to carry the Korean medical student's tray of instruments but was not allowed to enter the patients' rooms.

Captain Vyvyan Holt and Norman Owen, the British Proconsul, had fallen seriously ill with pneumona and dysentery. Their temperatures rose to 106.7 degrees. The Tiger was alarmed. The medical student left on a five-day trek to bring back three penicillin injections for Captain Holt and 12 sulphapyridine tablets for Owen. This helped, but the temperatures did not drop. Then they both had a relapse. Somewhere in the fields near the house we had found a broken metal vessel which we used as a chamber pot. According to Dr. Kisch, one of the reasons the GIs were dying so rapidly was that, while suffering from pneumonia, they had to go out to the toilet in their summer clothes in 70 degrees of frost. The house of the "special group" had the immense privilege of owning a broken vessel. Perhaps that is why Holt and Owen lived. Yet, when they had their relapse, I, who had been nursing them, felt defeated. Then they recovered. In times like those one seeks the comforts of symbolism. That recovery seemed to carry a message of hope.

Bishop Patrick Burns, the Apostolic Delegate, whose diplomatic status the Koreans had persistently refused to recognize, died in one of the hospital. Monseigneur Thomas Quinlan, having miraculously blarneyed his way past the guards, stripped off his soutane with the red piping, dressed the dead Bishop in it and carried him to his grave. The guards did not like long funerals, but no threats of theirs could move the tall, blue-eyed priest who, bareheaded in the fearsome cold, recited by heart the burial service.

Had they let him, the Monseigneur would have gladly rendered this service to all the dead. But funerals were summary affairs. Six times a day, sometimes seven, some GIs would pass with a corpse carried bent double over a pole. The carriers often slipped and fell. Once, one of the carriers never got up again. He had died on his way to bury the dead.

Some caught pneumonia because they were made to kneel in the snow. From our house we could see G.I.s on their knees outside their billets. The guard walking up and down, frequently kicked the kneeling ment. We wondered why this was done. We were soon to find out for ourselves that it could be done. . . on the flimsiest pretext. On December 5, 1950, an interned South Korean politician asked George Blake and me, who were on water-carrying duty, to fetch four twenty-five-gallon drums of water instead of three, because, he said, he wanted to do some laundry. We answered that we were too exhausted. The South Korean politician complained to the guard, saying that we "looked down on the Korean people." The guard ordered George Blake and me to kneel down in the snow. He accused us of insulting the Koreans, and of not carrying the amount of water laid down in regulations. We replied that this was not so. The guard said he would teach us not to lie, and he beat us with the butt of his rifle, kicked us and slapped us. George Blake, who got the worst of it, smiled throughout the ordeal, his left eyebrow cocked ironically at the guard, his Elizabethan beard aggressively thrust forward. The guard walked away, and some time later—I do not know how much later—he came and told us that if we admitted we had lied he would let us go. We admitted we had lied. The temperature was forty degrees below. The next day, the Tiger said we should not have lied to the guard, and indicated that the guard had been punished for hitting us. When next he was on duty, that guard tried to apologise.

Would Promote Foreign Trade

WASHINGTON (AP)—Commerce Secretary Sinclair Weeks said Tuesday the United States must promote the greatest amount of foreign trade possible without damaging U.S. industry.

The best way to do this, he told the House of Representatives ways and means committee, is to approve President Eisenhower's request for a one-year extension of the present Reciprocal Trade Act, while a commission yet to be established studies the many problems involved.

The present act, under which the President may negotiate tariff agreements to improve international trade, is due to expire June 12.

Weeks joined the parade of administration witnesses opposing a bill by Representative Richard Simpson (Rep. Pa.) which would extend the trade act but would impose stringent new restrictions designed to protect all domestic industries.

Claim Bomb Big Firecracker

BOMBAY, India (AP)—A police spokesman said Tuesday that an explosive grabbed from a railway track just ahead of Prime Minister Nehru's train turned out to be four giant firecrackers.

Reports Monday from Kalyan railway hub, 35 miles from Bombay, said a policeman there removed a live bomb from a track just a few minutes before the Amritsar express thundered through, carrying Nehru from Jalna to Bombay.

These reports said the policeman, patrolling the track, fired on an unidentified man believed to have placed the explosive on the track. The bullets missed their mark and the man escaped.

Indians expressing oubt over the explanation pointed out that the government played down the story of an attempt to assassinate Mohandas K. Gandhi with a bomb, but the would-be killer was sentenced later for the attempt.

DETERMINED SCHOLAR

TRENTON (CP)—Six-year-old Bobby Downs didn't want to miss school. Part of his left foot was crushed by a train Monday, but he was determined to hobble home and have lunch so he could get back to school on time. An operation saved part of the injured limb.

43 Canadian Casualties When Chinese Storm Sector

OTTAWA (CP) — Two Korean casualty lists Tuesday showed that Canadian troops suffered at least 43 casualties in the heavy fighting May 3 when Chinese Communists stormed their sector.

The two lists included one officer and 14 men killed in action, 21 men wounded and one officer and six men missing, believed prisoners-of-war.

The two lists reported 35 casualties in the 3rd battalion, Royal Canadian Regiment, which dispatches from Korea say bore the brunt of the attack. These included 13 killed, 15 wounded, and seven missing, believed captured.

In addition, four members of the 3rd battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, were reported wounded, and four members of the Royal Canadian Artillery—two from the 81st Field Regiment and two with Lord Strathcona's Horse—also were wounded.

HEAVIEST SINCE OCTOBER

Tuesday's lists were the heaviest since those following the "Little Gibraltar" action last Oct. 23. In one list issued on Oct. 28 following that action 66 casualties were reported.

News dispatches have said the action occurred when 750 to 1,000 Chinese made a "whirlwind" assault on Canadian positions late Saturday night and early Sunday.

The action was said to be accompanied by the heaviest Red bombardment of Canadian troops in the Korean war. It raged for 2½ hours inside Allied lines on the western sector of the Korean front and the Reds were driven back by the Canadians only after "intense hand-to-hand combat."

Tuesday's lists brought to 1,365 total casualties so far suffered by Canadian troops in Korea, including 265 dead, 980 wounded, 87 injured, 17 missing and 16 captured.

The navy has reported three dead and three injured in action and the air force has reported one missing.

What is this Thing Called Shine on Furniture?

Now you can give your furniture the amazing O-Cedar Dri-Glo beauty treatment — a smear-free shine that requires no hard rubbing and lasts for weeks and weeks — so hard, so dry, spills and fingermarks wipe off easily.

In polishing furniture and woodwork there are several kinds of shines—greasy shines that smear—shines that are here today and gone tomorow — shines that require a lot of rubbing — oily, moist shines that attract dust.

Now with O-Cedar Dri-Glo you get a shine that has none of these faults. Entirely different, O-Cedar Dri-Glo contains magic, non-oily silicone.

Just wipe O-Cedar Dri-Glo on—let it dry—wipe it off! Thrill to the appearance of the loveliest shine you've ever seen. A mirror-like finish that lasts for weeks and weeks. A smear-free finish so hard and dry that dust cannot cling to it as it does with any ordinary polish.

Enhancing the natural beauty of your furniture, O-Cedar Dri-Glo Silicone Furniture Polish also preserves and protects it. Thrifty Dri-Glo will last you a long, long time because you won't have to polish nearly so often. At grocery, department and hardware stores. D-553

House Finishes Debate On Resources

OTTAWA (CP)—The House of Commons Tuesday dompleted a debate on Canada's vast natural resoures by defeating a Progressive Conservative motion urging immediate consideration of a national policy.

The debate developed into arguments among spokesmen for three parties as to the merits of free enterprise and state control. CCF and Liberal spokesmen accused Social Crediters of trying to play it both ways at once.

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, launched the discussion Monday night by moving an amendment to the government's motion to go into committee to study estimates.

The motion asked consideration of a national policy under a free enterprise system in collaboration with the provinces to promote and develop resources, to protect and conserve them and to expand their use for industrial production.

GIVEN SUPPORT

In the vote the Liberals received the support of the CCF and J. L. Gibson (Ind—Comix-Alberni) in defeating the move. The Social Credit party voted with the Progressive Conservatives although Monday night they voted with the CCF to remove "free enterprise" from the opposition motion.

The CCF sub-amendment was defeated 118 to 17 in Monday night's vothe and the main Progressive Conservative motion was defeated 133 to 43.

John Diefenbaker (PC — Lake Centre) and M. J. Coldwell, CCF leader, injected Canadian-U. S. trade into the discussion. Both said Prime Minister St. Laurent should speak plainly about U.S. restrictions on Canadian trade when he goes to Washington Thursday.

John Blackmore (SC — Lethbridge) said Canada should solve her trade problems by working them out with the Commonwealth.

Last Group Of PoWs Land At Hawaii

HONOLULU (CP)—A military transport plane Tuesday night brought to Hawaii the last group of sick and wounded soldiers going home from the bleak prison camps of North Korea.

Aboard the plane were two Canadians, 12 Americans and six Colombians.

The first Canadian off the plane, L. Cpl. Paul Dugal of Quebec City, walked stiffly and slowly with a painful limp. He was supported by two husky medics. Dugal is semi-paralyzed from mortar wounds.

The second canadian, pte. J. Baker of Montreal, strode jauntily aboard the waiting ambulance with two large parcels, which looked like presents, tucked under his arms.

They were taken to Tripler General Hospital.

The men probably will continue homeward sometime Thursday.

Need To Be Tougher On Seaway–Graydon

OTTAWA (CP)—Gordon Graydon (PC—Peel) said Tuesday he did not think Canada has "taken the gloves off quite enough" in making her position clear to the United States about American delay on the St. Lawrence seaway plan.

Speaking during a Commons external affairs debate, the opposition spokesman said the U.S. Congress "ought to be told that this delay is not looked on with favor by the majority of the Canadian people."

He said there had been "lobbying" in Washington by interests opposed to the seaway and he is not satisfied the end of the delays has yet been reached.

Anglican Contributions Said On Increase

HAMILTON (CP)—Members of the Church of England are contributing more to the church and by so doing they may eliminate financial appeals for church construction and extension work, Rt. Rev. W. E. Bagnall told the 79th synod of the Anglican diocese of Niagara Tuesday.

He said there is a true sense of stewardship in the church and this accounted for the tremendous improvement of Anglican contributions.

The synod meeting at Christ Church Cathedral approved a recommendation to use over-payments of the apportionment to missionary work for construction and extension work.

The bishop stressed the need for church accommodation in various districts. He mentioned the Church road district of St. Catharines between Genevar and Niagara streets and the whole area between Oakville and Hamilton.

Mine workers are still seeking the body of Leon Wojechowski, 39, working with Murray when they were trapped.

Table Protests From Papers

OTTAWA (CP)—Dr. Pierre Gauthier (L—Portneuf), acting chairman of the House of Commons broadcasting committee, and R. R. Knight (CCF—Saskatoon) tabled in the committee Tuesday a number of protests from weekly newspapers concerning a brief recently presented the committee by the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association.

The brief had urged that the CBC confine its activities to regulating broadcasting in Canada and possibly to producing a few educational programs.

The Red Deer, Alta., Advocate and the Durham, Ont., Chronicle informed the committee they do not subscribe to the CWNA brief.

ART EXHIBIT

The Peterborough Group of Painters' art exhibit which is on display at the Public Library will remain up until Saturday.

MARCH BIRTHS 188

There were 188 births in Peterborough during March as against 127 in March last year; also fewer deaths, 137 as against 148 in March 1952. Of the births 100 were to city residents.

GIVE BIRTHDAY CAKE

A multi-deck birthday cake with 25 candles on it was presented to C. B. Neal, president and director of the Outboard Marine and Manufacturing Co., at the 25th anniversary dinner sponsored Tuesday night by the officers and directors of the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce. The cake, with the candles alight, was presented by James Fraser, manager of the Chamber of Commerce, who did most of the behind-the-scenes arranging for the dinner. Wilson Gemmell, past president of the Chamber, was chairman for the evening. The company was started in Peterborough in 1928 with 17 employees and there are now some 800, and an annual payroll exceeding $3,000,000.

Labor Council 1st Anniversary

Max Swerdlow, director of organization and education for the Trades and Labor Congress, will be the principal speaker at the dinner here tonight given by the Peterborough Trades and Labor Council (TLC). The event will mark the first anniversary of the labor council.

Dinner will be in the Empress Hotel, 6:30 p.m., and some 150 trade unionists and their friends are expected.

Originally it was hoped to have Percy Bengough, president of the TLC, and Gordon Cushing, secretary-treasurer of the TLC, present for the anniversary dinner but they were unable to come.

Other TLC notables who will attend are George P. Schollie, general vice-president of the International Association of Machinists; Dan Dean, IAM staff representative; A. F. McArthur, president of the Ontario Provincial Federation of Labor; Jack Kellythorne, TLC representative for Central Ontario; and Bob Brown, dominion representative of the Printing, Paper and Specialties Union.

William Beggs, staff representative of the UPWA (CIO-CCL) for Eastern Ontario, will propose the toast to the trade union movement.

At present the Peterborough Trades and Labor Council have 16 affiliated locals, most of them AFL craft-type, with a total membership of 1,000.

Rambling Reporter

BEHIND THE NEWS

G. K. Fraser (PC—Peterborough West) found himself a bit behind the news. He asked in the Commons today if the government is going to declare Coronation Day, June 2, a legal holiday in Canada.

Prime Minister St. Laurent replied that that had been announced months ago.

Mr. Fraser said if it is to be a holiday, a lot of people in Canada don't know it.

The prime minister said he would dig up the announcement and make a formal reply in the House later so everyone's memory would be refreshed.

Announcement of the legal holiday for Tuesday, June 2, was made Jan. 22. It will be binding on banks and government offices. Courts, educational and business institutions are expected to observe it.

Separate Schools To Join Health Services

It is planned to have the city's Board of Health take over health services in the city's separate schools along the lines now being considered by the Board of Education.

The proposal was made to the Peterborough Separate School Board Tuesday night by the Medical Officer of Health Dr. J. P. Wells who described the services provided in the proposed agreement as "more ambitious than any services offered by any board of health in the country."

The MOH was requested by the board to confer with the city solicitor W. F. Huycke in order to draw up an agreement similar to that which has already been approved by the Board of Education's health committee, to differ only insofar as one of the parties would be the Separate School Board rather than the Board of Education.

The proposed agreement with the Board of Education calls for the assumption of medical inspection, excluding dental inspection which is already provided in both the public and separate schools, of all elementary and secondary school pupils in the city by the Board of Health under the direction and control of the MOH. If approved, it will take effect July 1.

Dr. Wells explained that the school board would be required to supply and maintain suitable accommodation and provide equipment and furniture such as vision charts and scales which are already available in the schools.

The Board of Health would engage all persons required for the services and supply all necessary medical supplies, record forms and other stationery.

HIGHER STANDARDS

The health services provided by the Board of Health would be in keeping with the standards set by the provincial Department of Health with extra services

City Traffic Too Heavy For Sweeping

The volume of Saturday afternoon traffic on George St. has squelched the ambition of the Jaycees personally to sweep the entire block between Simcoe and Charlotte Streets as a means of focussing attention on their propaganda for Clean-Up Week.

Doug Landry, chairman of the committe of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, repudiated today the mild suggestion that the Jaycees proposed their demonstration of realistic cleaning-up in the certainty that Chief Constable John Thompson would turn down his official thumb on that stunt.

"We were quite sincere in asking the approval of the council because Peterborough has a reputation of being a tidy city, and we were prepared to sweep the George St. block just as a reminder to the spirit of Peterborough that another spring is beginning," Mr. Landry said.

RULED OUT

"We asked Chief Thompson about it, as directed by the council. His decision ruled out the broom job, but he said we could go ahead with a parade at 4 p.m., 'but keep it moving.' Certainly, Jaycees do not intend to clog traffic, but we thinks it is a timely idea.

"We have written a lot of the industries to post our idea on their bulletin boards, and we have also suggested to merchants that they can help by slanting their seasonal advertising on 'Clean Up Week,' May 9 to 16."

3 Marines Killed

HONOLULU (AP)—Three United States marines were crushed to death and a fourth was injured at sea Tuesday when armored tanks shifted aboard a landing craft. The boat was part of a naval force preparing for field exercises off Hawaii island the latter part of this month.

Reserve Units Should Be Twice Present Size—Dunn

Brig. Michael S. Dunn, commander of the Eastern Ontario area, complimented the 50th HAA Regiment and the 28th Technical Squadron on their steadfastness on parade during the annual inspection Tuesday night. He pointed out steadiness on parade is "one of our yardsticks for measuring training."

At the same time Brig. Dunn expressed disappointment at the strength of both reserve force units.

"I'd like very much to see double that many on parade," he said, adding, "It's amazing that a city, the size of Peterborough, wouldn't have more; I wonder if youth realizes the opportunities that exist in the two reserve force units."

PLEASING PERFORMANCE

Brig. Dunn was pleased with the turnout and performance of the 28th Technical Squadron, which he described as "exceptionally good".

"You usually don't look for such a good turnout in those squadrons," he pointed out. "They were very neat and tidy."

Brig. Dunn was accompanied on his official inspection by Brig. H. T. Airey, commander of No. 1, AGRA, Central Command, Toronto, Major W. H. C. Stethem, Major F. M. Pope, Major W. B. Armstrong and Major A. N. P. Roberts, all of Kingston.

After inspecting the two units, Brig. Dunn along with the other inspecting officers, took the salute as the troops passed by first in close column of batteries and then in column of route. After the advance in review order, the general salute was played by the 50th Regiment's trumpet band.

The ceremonial drill completed, the band under Band Sgt. Cec Gallagher performed on the parade square before the inspecting party. At the same time both units were preparing for displays of training such as radar, gun drill, light machine gun drill, work in the shops and on the trucks.

THOROUGH CHECK

After the band performance Brig. Dunn visited each training display and inspected building. His assisting officers checked the administration offices of both the 50th Regiment and the 28th Squadron.

Brig Dunn officially presented Canon Walter Gilling of St. Luke's Anglican Church, padre of the 50th Regiment, with the Canadian Forces Decoration. The medal is for 12 years continuous service in the army, either active or reserve.

A second presentation was made to Bdr. J. B. Bolderson, also of the 50th Regiment. As best marksman this year in the regiment, Bdr. Bolderson won the Somme Challenge Cup which was presented to the Peterborough Rangers for competitive shooting by Col. Frank L. Bradburn "to commemorate the British Forces at the Battle of the Somme in 1916."

Attack Victim 'Much Improved'

Charles Smith, 79-year-old pensioner who was beaten and robbed Friday at a Lakefield store, has improved considerably, Civic Hospital officials said today.

Mr. Smith, who worked in the A. J. Hudson store in Lakefield, was struck six times over the head Friday with a claw hammer or a heavy spike. His condition when he was taken to hospital was considered critical. He had suffered a fractured skull and head lacerations.

Lakefield police chief Price Morris said today no new leads have developed in the case, and investigation is continuing.

Local Student To Sing On Radio Hook-up

Of interest to the friends of John Finn, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Finn, 647 George St. N., is the information from St. Francis Xavier University that he will be heard in tenor solo numbers on CBC program Thursday at 9:30 p.m.

Mr. Finn will be associated in this program with a group of Gaelic Singers of the University. A representative of CBC heard him in a concert on the coast, and was so favorably impressed that he arranged for the radio engagement. In his first year at St. F. X., Mr. Finn was "discovered" by the dramatics and music director, and since then has sung top assignments in the University's operettas beginning with The Mikado, followed by Brigadoon, Naughty Marietta and this season's musical feature of St. Francis Xavier, Victor Herbert's "Eileen." He has become quite well known on the Maritime coast not only in Nova Scotia but also in Prince Edward Island where he has sung in Charlottetown concerts.

Ready for Work

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (AP)—Harry Truman and Mrs. Truman arrived home Tuesday night after a month's vacation in Hawaii and the former president said he's all ready to go to work again. "All I did was rest and get plenty of sun," he said. "Everything's ok now. I'm ready to go back to work."

April Cold, Dry Records Show

Statistics compiled by Peterborough's official weather recorder, James Harrison, show that April was a cold month. More than 10 degrees colder than April, 1952.

On the other hand it was much drier.

Here are a few comparable figures for the corresponding months of 1952 and 1953:

Average temperature 42.1 and 52.8 degrees for 1953 and 1952, respectively. Maximums—59 on the 8th; 76 on the 27th. Minimums 23 on the 18th; 33 on the 3rd. Rain 2.48 inches (and .5 inches of snow), and 4.42 inches.

Cancer Society Raises $6,400 In Annual Drive

The Peterborough Cancer Society has so far collected $6,400 in its campaign to raise $8,000 for education, research, welfare and fund raising expenses.

The Peterborough campaign officially opened on April 15 and was supposed to close April 30, but was extended to this Saturday. The national campaign started its drive on April 1 and ended on April 30. Its quota for this year was $370,000.

The Peterborough unit was organized in 1947-1948 under the guidance of James Hamilton, a former Mayor of Peterborough.

HOUSE-TO-HOUSE CANVASS

This year the campaign has been conducted in a house-to-house canvass, instead of sending literature by mail, and asking for donations.

Fifty per cent of the funds raised in the campaign are used for welfare and research work, which consists of transportation of people to hospitals, who can't afford it, and free bandages to everyone.

Fifteen groups in Peterborough are constantly making dressings and bandages under the direction of Mrs. John A. Bradshaw.

A new office on Water Street has been open since the first of April and has been furnished by donations. The front door has been painted red, the official symbol of the cancer information centres.

It is the hope of the executive to keep the office open one day a week and have it staffed by a volunter registered nurse for the aid of all.

The main object of the society is to educate the people to recognize the danger signs of cancer and have it treated in time to stop the growth of the disease.

Since the office on Water Street has been open there has been a wide response from the citizens of Peterborough and there have been several new patients taken under the care of the society.

According to statistics, one out of eight persons today is afflicted by cancer, believed the second greatest killer of mankind.

Employment Conditions Better In April; Claimants Drop To 1,176

Employment Office Records Third Straight Decrease In Unemployment; Open Winter Speeds Start On Construction

Better employment conditions in Peterborough factories and in city outside work during April left only 1,176 men and women on unemployment insurance, James Sharp, national employment office manager, said today. This is the third straight month that the office has recorded a decrease in the number of unemployed drawing funds in Peterborough and district. In previous years the unemployed peak was usually reached in March, but this year the peak was in January with a total of 1,916. Since then the number on claims has decreased monthly, with 1,842 in February and 1,715 in March.

Mr. Sharp said work has been "more steady" this year in Peterborough. Some companies which were slack during the winter and spring months last year were now working on a full-time basis. The open winter and early spring has also helped by allowing outside work to commence earlier than usual.

City employment caused the large decrease in unemployed during April. Mr. Sharp pointed out there were 540 men and women drawing funds at the end of April as compared with 942 last year and 785 in March.

WHOLE AREA BETTER

At the same time the district employment situation remained much the same in April as a year ago, but it too was better than in March of this year. Mr. Sharp said 636 people were on claims in April from the district and compared this figure with 669 last year and 930 last month.

Mr. Sharp pointed out that the summer tourist season will be starting shortly and already a number of resorts are looking for summer help. The jobs include cooks, cook's helpers, laundry workers, maids, and other resort work besides openings for couples (wife for cook and husband for handyman).

The manager quoted wages for cooks at $150 to $200 a month, plus room and board, while cook's helpers will receive $7 to $15 a month, plus room and board. Laundry workers will receive wages varying from $50 to $65 a month, plus room and board and chambermaids, $40 to $65, also including room and board.

Some of these openings, especially for cooks, are available immediately but most of them will be available around June 15.

Senator Davies Condemns Book Censorship

OTTAWA (CP)—Senator W. Rupert Davies (L—Ontario) Tuesday condemned any censorship of books published in Canada.

Speaking in the Senate, he also said Parliament has no business legislating on what Canadians may read.

The senator was discussing a report made last week by the upper chamber's committee on salacious and indecent literature, which did not recommend general censorship but suggested the revenue department's facilities for passing upon imported literature be expanded.

Senator Davies said he approves the committee report. He said the censorship of imports of seditious and other questionable literature is in good hands. But he would not go beyond that.

GROWING UP

"I will oppose the censorship of books produced in Canada to my utmost," he said.

Canada was growing up and taking her place in the world of literature. Her young persons could not get a broad university education if they were to be told that they could not read one book or another.

Censorship, Senator Davies said, would put into the hands of the government of the day a powerful weapon. It soon would want to pass from salacious literature to religious and scientific literature. From that to political books would be a short step. It might then pass to magazines and newspapers.

Fate Intervenes, Prevents Visit To Paricutin Volcano

By JEAN E. STENTON

URUAPAN—For months before I went to Mexico I had been planning to visit the flaming volcano Paricutin which erupted first in 1943 and I have also been taking lessons on how to stay on a donkey's back. But the gods were against the undertaking and I neither saw the volcano nor rode the donkey, in spite of all my efforts.

My Mexican friends told me: "It just isn't meant to be."

Over a long period I got instruction from my father, an old artilleryman, on the correct method of getting aboard and staying on a donkey. One of the men at the office, who did some donkey riding in Egypt, had also been giving me demonstrations on handling such a mount.

However when I mentioned in Patzcuaro my desire to ride a donkey to the volcano, my Mexican friends hesitated and finally escorted me over to a group of donkeys and said pointedly:

"Now senorita, you would be much more comfortable to go by car. Just look at those poor, tired little burros. Your legs are so long you'd never get them off the ground and think of the extra work this little donkey would have to do. A car will be much, much better." So under such pressure I had to give in gracefully.

MISSED TRAIN

The first morning my friend Tony Torres planned to take me to Uruapan, we missed the train. We were half way to the station when he pointed to some smoke on the horizon and announced "I think we have just missed the train." Sure enough we had.

"You see," he apologized, "this train is always half an hour late so I knew we didn't have to hurry."

For the first morning in months the train happened to be on time. When we were there bright and early the following morning, it was half an hour late again.

By this time I had become manana—conscious, so tomorrow was as good as today. Why get excited about missing a mere train? That day instead of going to the volcano I ended up in Tacambaro in the tropics instead.

BEAUTIFUL SCENERY

The next day we travelled through lovely mountain scenery to Uruapan which is a thriving commercial city of 50,000 people and 2,000 feet lower than Patzcuaro and much warmer. It too is at the Mouth of the Hot Country, and here they handle all the coffee, bananas, etc., exported from the big plantations. It also is noted for its lacquer work and until the last year —the volcano. That was another problem. It wasn't until I got to Mexico City that I learned the horrible truth—the volcano is no longer active. It stopped vomiting flame and lava about nine months ago.

We took a car from Uruapan and headed for Paricutin along the road made desolate by grey volcanic ash Ten years ago this was among some of the best farming land in Mexico. Once the lava boiled from Paricutin, it became a grim wasteland. The ashes which destroyed the farm land and caused many families to be moved miles away, also carried as far as Uruapan itself and littered the streets for years. The closer we got to the volcano, the thicker the grey layers of fine dirt and swirling dust clouds.

My companion recalled walking from Patzcuaro to the volcano three days after it erupted and there was no road to travel on then. They had to make their way through thick fields of grain and cross big fissures. But the spectacular fireworks they saw made it worthwhile.

BRIDGE COLLAPSES

We travelled three-quarters of the way to Paricutin when fate intervened again. There are several narrow bridges across deep chasms and just before our arrival a truck passed over one and it had collapsed. These bridges consist of three planks laid across the gulleys with a single narrow pole on each side. Two other cars which swung into the lava dust to go around the broken bridge were stuck fast in about a foot of loose dirt.

As soon as the bridge went out, Tarascans from a village up ahead came back and began the tedious business of repairing it. It was important to them because the tourist trade has fallen off and they can't afford to lose any visitors who might come their way.

They had to tackle the job in primitive fashion, having no road equipment. First they cut down a big tree growing nearby and then the 15 men, by using rough levers and lots of muscle, would roll the big log a few feet up or down a hill. Before each new heave they would rest a little, joke a little and perhaps sing. I sat there an hour—hopefully—before they got this first big log into a supporting position and then realized it too would be ready—by tomorrow.

One of the other cars stuck in the lava had run out of gas so our driver siphoned some gas out of his tank with his mouth till he had enough for the other driver. On the way back he lit a cigarette and I feared for a moment we might go sky high. But nothing happened.

CAN'T GET BY

Having resigned myself to the inevitable, I abandoned the volcano and headed back to Uruapan for the rest of the day. But the gods were not finished yet. We had only gone half way back when we approached another of these bridges and there was a taxi stalled right in the middle. The driver was out fiddling with the engine while his 10 passengers, jammed in like sardines, were catching 40 winks till help arrived. So we sat another half hour till our driver decided it was a matter of a new coil, which fortunately he happened to have. Then the other passengers came tumbling out and pushed their vehicle off the bridge and we managed to proceed to Uruapan once more.

So though I didn't see the volcano and I didn't ride my burro, I spent an interesting time exploring Uruapan and there is always manana (tomorrow). To make up for my disappointment Tony promised that when I return to Patzcuaro, he will personally pick out the strongest donkey he can find and let me ride him and will also arrange a picnic where I can munch on his favorite delicacy—tacos. So it was a profitable trip after all.

Regina Actors Praised By Adjudicator

VICTORIA (CP)—The Regina Little Theatre Society Tuesday night at the Dominion Drama Festival was credited with giving an "arresting and sincere" performance of a play the adjudicator said "didn't actually belong to the stage."

Adjudicator Pierre Lefevre said he would have "hated" the play, John Steinbeck's "Burning Bright," had it not been for the performance of the four-member cast. The play was "strange to analyze and difficult to act."

The presentation was the second of the festival. Six more regional award winners will present their plays during the week.

The adjudicator took time out to reply to "rumors which have come to my ear" about his criticism of the Edmonton Studio Theatre's production of "Othello."

TOO HARSH?

He said he had heard some persons thought his criticism unfairly harsh.

"Let me make it quite clear," he said, "that I'm critical because I must be critical in order to classify the plays and give myself reasons on which to judge them."

Mr. Lefevre said the Regina group's play, which is a semi-fantasy with each act in a different situation although the characters are the same, "puzzled me."

He said the play was "an intellectual concept rather than a dramatic concept" and that there wasn't "much excuse for the device" of three separate situations.

UNDER HANDICAP

"The actors were under a handicap before they started."

Mr. Lefevre praised the teamwork and sincerity of the cast as well as the decor, lighting and sets "which created a strong visual effect."

Les Crossman's performance of "Friend Ed" was the best of the four because of his "recognizable simplicity."

Vern Agopsowicz's performance of "Joe Saul" had good sense of character but was "somewhat inarticulate."

He said Steinbeck's Saul was a man of overwhelming self - pity "which I found a bit thick."

Two plays will be presented today. The first two French language plays, "Le Bourgeois Gentilhomme" by Les Etudiants De l'Universite de Saint-Joseph of St. Joseph, N. B., will be presented in the afternoon and the University of Toronto Alumnae Dramatic Club will play T. S. Eliot's "The Family Reunion" at night.

APPRECIATE SERVICES—As a token of appreciation, a cheque was presented by the Canadian Pacific Railway Tuesday to Harold Burrows, CPR freight shed foreman, for conducting classes in first aid for section and shed men. Find Trade Fair Brings Good Returns

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

The Canadian International Trade Fair, to be held in Toronto June 1-12, is getting an increasing amount of attention in news releases from various sources.

From the Canadian Retail Federation:

"The trade fair is for retailers, too. By attending the trade fair, you make new contacts, obtain new inspirations and perhaps conclude new business deals, within a short period of time and with a minimum of expense. There is no easier nor more economical way to preview the latest goods that Canada and the world has to offer."

From The Netherlands embassy at Ottawa:

"Netherlands exhibits will include the 'ruton rabat," a small, portable machine, capable of vacuum cleaning, floor polishing, cocktail mixing, hair drying, coffee grinding"—adjusted to these various uses with a small attachment. It has received "the unqualified approval" of the Netherlands Association of Housewifes.

From the United Kingdom information office, Ottawa:

"The biggest variety of United Kingdom manufactures ever displayed in Canada will be on show. Biggest display will be that of machinery and machine and hand tools."

From the German trade promotion office, Toronto:

"In 1952 Germany bought more than $125,000,000 worth of Canadian products, while Canada bought from Germany only $24,000,000 worth. More than 200 German firms will be at the fair."

Foreign Trade, published by the department of trade and commerce, which sponsors the fair, gave a 64-page preview of exhibits and exhibitors in its April 25 issue. Reciting experiences of past fairs, it said:

"A Swedish furniture exhibitor found Mexican customers; an Italian manufacturer sold two dyeing machines to Canadian mills; an English company opened 30 new wholesale accounts with Canadian firms; a German jewelery exporter received orders for 60 per cent of the goods he displayed.

"Canadian exhibitors tell the same story, and this year Canadian companies have reserved more than half the space—more than 140,000 square feet. In those 12 days of June, Canadian exhibitors will do business with buyers from 60 different countries. Even more will be booking orders from fellow Canadians."

Green Canadian Troops Given Credit For Winning Battle Against Chinese

By BILL BOSS

IN KOREA (CP)—Cool analysis, now that the fog of battle has lifted, credits Canadian gunners with another great victory over Chinese troops attacking in strength.

The enemy's attempt, in two-battalion strength, to seize vital United Nations territory was frustrated last Saturday night. Today, participants in the battle still were debating what has become this war theatre's classic question:

Did the Chinese come in through their own barrage or behind it?

Some witnesses, among them Lieut. Laurie Cote of Winnipeg and Aylmer, Que., signals subaltern of the Royal Canadian Regiment's 3rd battalion, assert that the Chinese came in before their bombardment began.

In everything except the build-up, the confused, bitter battle recalled the fight last Oct. 23 for a spur on Little Gibraltar when the 1st battalions of the RCR and the Royal Canadian Horse artillery combined to forge victory.

Saturday's battle, however, was won by relative greenhorns in Korea—the 81st field regiment of the Royal Canadian Artillery and the 3rd RCRs. They had been in the line only 13 days.

MAJOR OBJECTIVE

The major Chinese objective was a hambone-like ridge 300 feet high held by a company under Capt. M. J. Mullin of Charlottetown, P. E. I. Their specific objective was a position held by a platoon under 2nd Lieut. Edgar Hollyer of Toronto. The position was the "knuckle" on the hambone.

The Red bombardment accompanying the attack was the heaviest Canadians in the Korean war had experienced. Mullin said: "I have never experienced shell fire such as this."

A diversionary probe was launched toward the 3rd battalion of the Princess Patricias and the 1st Royal Fusiliers of the British forces. But although this area was heavily mortared and shelled battle never was joined.

However, one Chinese patrol—considered reconnaissance for the second phase of the major attack that was beaten off—penetrated 1½ miles into the Canadians' main line.

Two factors contributed to the enemy defeat:

1. The enemy's intended silent attack was foiled when a Canadian raiding party bumped into his assembly area;

2. Hollyer's presence of mind in calling artillery fire on to his own position when it was overrun, causing the gunners to box in the battlefield and preventing enemy reinforcements from moving in.

DEMANDED HELP

Lieutenant leading the Canadian raiding arty, missing in action and believed killed, demanded help when Chinese milled around in clusters on all sides of the raiding party.

Lt.-Col. Ken Campbell of Ottawa and Petawawa, Ont., battalion commander, dispatched a second patrol under Lieut. Doug Banton of Ottawa.

(Banton was reported in an army casualty list Tuesday as killed in action.)

Cpl. J. C. McNeil of Reserve Mine, N.S., assumed command of the first patrol when its officer was wounded and beat a co-ordinated withdrawal through a mine field and uphill back toward the RCR's main positions, Banton covering the withdrawal.

TAILOR-MADE AMBUSH

But the Chinese assembly area on the valley floor and the hillside offered a tailor-made ambush. Banton was killed. Most of his patrol is missing.

Stragglers from other parties ultimately regained the top.

Actually, the engagement was considered only a large-scale ambush until then—when Brig. Jean Victor Allard, 25th brigade commander, returned from a dinner engagement in Seoul with Lt.-Gen. Maxwell Taylor, 8th army commander.

Allard told The Canadian Press: "I got hot feet about 10:30. I had an uneasy feeling and cut the evening short."

Allard appraised the situation thus: "This is the battle."

Sure enough, minutes later Hollyer radioed that he was under attack.

His position was overrun before the defenders were aware of it.

That was when the main Chinese force came in and gave rise to the post-battle question: Did they come in through their own artillery fire?

Cote said:

"When a runner named Diehl came to the command post and said the Chinese were over the wall and in the trenches, I shot outside . . . Diehl led and minutes later was killed.

CHINESE ALL OVER

"In the communication trench between two bren-gun pits we saw them. There were Chinese in the trench with me and more along the parapet. There were more up top and in the centre of the position, throwing grenades into the trenches, while a party worked towards me throwing grenades into weapon pits.

"Then the bombardment started and forced me to lie in the trench. I presume the Chinese also took shelter though some crawled along the parapet in the shelling.

"One was killed and fell on top of me, affording me that much more cover. That must have been when Hollyer called artillery on to his position."

(In Tuesday's casualty list, Pte. Frank Alfred Diehl of Stratford, Ont., was listed as killed in action.)

BLOCKING POSITION

Allard, meanwhile, ordered the 3rd battalion of the Royal 22nd Regiment into a blocking position and signalled for almost the exact number of reinforcements the RCRs later found they needed.

"Other Chinese soldiers were picking them up and rolling them over the parapet and down to the wire at the bottom. I assume that stretcher-bearers waited there for certainly the bodies weren't there later."

The position was pulverized by then and Hollyer's survey indicated it was held only by him and Cpl. Ronald Brayton of Halifax, a medical assistant, and Pte. V. E. Colyer, Meldrum Creek, B.C., his signaller.

HELD FORWARD CORNER

Only next morning was it discovered that Pte. George Julien of Halifax had rounded up eight men, including wounded, posted them defensively and continued to hold a forward corner.

There were several documented instances of Chinese medical orderlies dressing the wounds of Canadian soldiers and giving them water before leaving them.

Campbell said:

"Our jeep ambulance drivers went in plain sight of the enemy to evacuate the wounded. The enemy was most good about it—didn't shell the trail at all after first light although traffic was just like Fifth Avenue."

"No counter-attack was necessary in the morning to retake the position. The enemy had had enough and it was a routine reoccupation."

The guns were directed by Maj. J. S. Stewart and Lt.-Col. Harry Stern, both of Vancouver.

Can Adjust 3D For Comfortable Movie Watching

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Why does 3-D give some people headaches? Which system will win out—3-D or wide-screen? Is 3-D possible without glasses?

Movie goers and film workers themselves want to learn the answers to these and other questions concerning new dimensional pictures. I sought some background on these issues from Cliff Stine, veteran cameraman.

Q. Why do some people get headaches from watching 3-D?

A. There can be many reasons. The two films in the projector may not be lined up correctly. There may have been improper adjustment by the cameraman or the projectionist. Or the viewer may not be able to focus his eyes at the point where the two lenses are converging.

PROPER GLASSES HELP

Q. Are people who wear glasses normally more prone to headaches from 3-D?

A. Not if their glasses correct their eyes to normal vision.

Q. Can 3-D be perfected so it won't cause headaches?

A. Yes, we can eventually reach that stage—if the cameraman and projectionist adhere to the proper formulas.

Q. Which system do you think will triumph?

A. I think most pictures will be in wide-screen. It gives more scope to the screen and is excellent for outdoor scenes. I believe the novelty of 3-D will wear off in a year or so. Its main asset is that it adds somewhat to reality.

Q. What is the main problem of filming 3-D?

A. To keep the action focussed at the line of convergence—that is, the line where the two camera lenses (simulating your eyes) converge. If that line is not maintained, eyestrain results. Also, if the actor gestures over the line, his hand will appear to be in the audience.

Canada Spends Nearly 2 Billion On Health Plan

MONTREAL (CP)—Health Minister Martin estimated Tuesday night that Canada in 1953 will spend almost $1,500,000,000 on health and social security.

But no one need fear, he said, "that to spend one dollar in twenty of our gross national income for such purposes is either beyond this country's capacity or beyond our people's needs."

"What we are doing in Canada, within the limits of our resources, to care for social need, is one of the surest ways I know to avoid the curse of communism," he said in a speech prepared for the annual dinner of the former students of Montreal University's school of social service.

"Communism can happen to any country that neglects social need —or that neglects its defence against aggression. . . That is why I believe it is of such vital importance to continue each line of social progress side by side with our military preparations."

Women Being Encouraged To Study Engineering

TORONTO (CP)—Women are being encouraged to go in for engineering—a profession long regarded as a field for men only.

At least a dozen women engineers are registered in Ontario alone and executives of the Association of Professional Engineers of Ontario, representing 11,000 members, seem pleased about it.

Thomas M. Medland, executive director, said if women can help alleviate the shortage of engineers they will be only too welcome in the association.

Several women have contributed much to industry. Among them is Elizabeth MacGill, consultant in aeronautical engineering. More women should take engineering at university, she said, because "I'm sure many do not realize just how interesting a field it really is."

She added that in her 26 years as an engineer she has always been treated as an equal by her male colleagues.

Kathleen Hill, 25, of Kirkland Lake, has a different view. "I have found that most employers are prejudiced against women engineers and this makes it difficult for us to find jobs in a strictly engineering capacity."

Miss Hill is in charge of a laboratory at a flow meter company in Toronto. She was graduated in 1948 from the University of Toronto and during her summer holidays worked in Haileybury with an assaying company and with the federal bureau of mines.

Marion Currie, 24, is a junior engineer in the illuminating department of the Ontario hydro electric power commission. A 1950 graduate from the University of Toronto, Miss Currie hopes to specialize in designing lighting schemes, particularly in residential areas.

Mrs. Edna McLean, who was graduated from the University of British Columbia in 1944, works at Canadian Westinghouse Company in Hamilton. Working in the appliance-electronics division, she said: "Anyone who says engineering is strictly for men is either out of date or completely biased."

DOROTHY DIX:

Adolescents Need Affectionate Guidance

So much is being written and said about the problems of youngsters as "problem children," adolescence, that people on the whole have come to regard this period of growth as a psychological pitfall. Teen-agers, their parents, certainly have their problems, but they are rarely stupid, and, with a variety of other unpleasant adjectives. Recently I stood next to a couple of elderly women watching the ROTC units of a large university. One of the women, mistaking the boys for regular Army inductees, remarked, "Well, they seem very young to be soldiers, but at least they're kept off the streets at night." Her assumption that all these boys would have been loafers if Uncle Sam had not taken them in tow was certainly an unfair conclusion. But it is typical.

Today's teen-agers are generally a mighty fine bunch of youngsters, quite capable of taking on the military and social problems that will be theirs in a few years—problems, incidentally, that might have floor their pioneering ancestors.

Some adults, particularly those who have had little or no intimate association with children, seem to take a peculiar delight in denouncing teen-agers as delinquent, ill-mannered, lazy,

NEED AFFECTIONATE CONTROL

Adolescents have their difficulties, but these are no more than the adjustments between two periods of life—childhood and adulthood. Affectionate steering by parents and teachers is all that's required to bring the vast majority of teensters through their difficult years. Parental discipline must, of course, still be exercised, but now it should be understanding guidance. Mom and Dad are no longer the axis around which the child's life revolves — they are much more likely to be adjuncts to the "gang." Parents suddenly face unexpected qualities and emotions in their teen-agers. Adolescents are strongly emotional, but, just to make things confusing, are very unstable in their likes and dislikes. Their movie idols can run the gamut in a week from cowboy to romantic lead.

Quite often it is difficult for parents — who are themselves sometimes going through a physical change — to make the quick adjustments of daily life with a teen-ager. These adjustments will be easier on them if they have done a good job of training their offspring up to the period of adolescence.

INVALUABLE INSTRUCTION

The young child who has learned to get along with other people, has been coached in making his own decisions and instructed in sex education as questions arose, should be self-reliant, and thus have much less difficulty in hurdling the teen years than will a cloistered or overprotected youngster.

Parents will be much less apprehensive with adolescents if they'll just think back to their own teens. Any difference between the teen-agers of the 20's and 30's, and the teen-agers of today is overwhelmingly in favor of the current crop.

Those who are guilty of maligning our teen-agers, might do well to ponder over their own adolescent stage and substitute understanding instead of adverse criticism of the lads and lassies.

Whitney Family Holds Reunion

HAVELOCK (ENS). — The home of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Whitney was the scene of a family re-union on Saturday. The event took the form of a turkey dinner and was a joint celebration of Mrs. Whitney's birthday and that of her nephew Dalton Bannon of Smiths Falls.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Hector Bannon and daughter Linda, Mr. and Mrs. Dalton Bannon and son Bobby of Smiths Falls, Mr. and Mrs. Archie Bannon and daughters Dorothy and Joyce, Mrs. Elton Bannon and daughters Sharon and Sheila of Peterborough, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Green, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Bannon, Mr. and Mrs. William Bannon, Mr. Gerald Whitney, Misses Doreen and Marla Whitney, Mrs. Thomas Bannon of Havelock.

EGG HINTS

Eggs must be cooked at low temperatures, if not, they become tough and leathery. The wise homemaker remembers this when she is frying eggs, cooking them in water or baking them in the oven.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Minted New Potatoes Special Menu

MAY DINNER FOR GUESTS

Broiled Lamb Chops
Minted New Potatoes
Fresh Green Peas
Shredded Cabbage, Green Pepper and Radish Salad
Spanish Cream with Sliced Strawberries
Homemade Lady Fingers
Coffee

NOTE: You are all so polite that you very seldom send any notes of criticism on the menus I usually give you at this time of the week.

I would like to preface every dinner menu with juice or fruit cocktail or soup, but so few households have help that courses to be removed and dishes to be washed are always taken into account when these menus are made up. 'Nuff said on that subject—I know who does the impulsive running, in spite of the training you have given your daughters and sons in waiting on table and cleaning up afterwards.

BROILED LAMB CHOPS

Lamb chops are always best broiled. If you do not have a broiling oven I will tell you how to pan broil them too. The fat on lamb chops must be well browned to be attractive so high heat is essential. Brush chops sparingly with cooking oil or melted butter, sprinkle very lightly with salt and pepper, place on cold greased broiler rack and place 1 inch from electric broiler or 2½ inches below flame if broiler is gas. Sear them on both sides until deep gold, then lower broiler rack so heat is not so intense to finish cooking, turning chops about 4 times in all. Cooking time cannot be given for thickness of chops varies. Allow 2 thin chops or 1 very thick chop per serving. For special occasions put paper frill over end of bone on chop. These may be purchased in large stationery stores.

To pan broil lamb chops lay the chops in a heavy sizzling-hot frying-pan, sear quickly on both sides, and also turn thick chops on their fat edge so as to brown the wide portion of the fat. Reduce heat, turn the chops frequently, and finish cooking at low temperature, adding salt and pepper during last few minutes. Do not add water or cover pan, but from time to time pour off the excess fat to prevent chops frying. If you have very thick chops (which are best for they are moister at centre when finished) after searing them, slip a rack under them in the frying-pan and finish cooking in a moderately hot oven of 400 deg. Fahr. For a pretty effect and delightful flavor place a slice of orange on each chop after last turning.

SPANISH CREAM

One and one-half tablespoons gelatin, ½ cup cold milk, 3 egg yolks, 3 egg whites, ½ cup sugar (reducers could use 8 sucaryl tablets instead of sugar), ⅛ teaspoon salt, 1½ cups scalded milk, 1 teaspoon vanilla. Soak the gelatin in the cold milk for 5 minutes. Beat the egg yolks with the sugar and

Diplomacy Gone

LONDON (Reuters) — Rene Massigli, French ambassador to Britain, complains that diplomacy has been replaced by "loudspeaker negotiation." He told a banquet Tuesday night: "Diplomacy is no longer secret; it is perhaps no longer diplomacy. In any case, it is by no means certain the world has gained anything by the change."

Strike Front Quiet

The strike at the Quaker Oats Co. plants in Peterborough and Saskatoon, involving 565 production employees, today began its second week with the union and the company still deadlocked. Officials of the United Packinghouse Workers (CIO-CCL) have predicted a long strike. Peaceful picketing continues in Peterborough at three approaches to company property: main entrance on Hunter St., entrance to the power plant on London St., and the road leading in from Simcoe St.

Man Convicted Of Bootlegging

Ted Rosebush of RR 1, Coe Hill, was found guilty today on a charge of keeping liquor for sale and sentenced to two months in jail by Magistrate W. R. Philp. In addition his home was declared a public place.

Defence counsel W. J. A. Fair, QC, said he will appeal the decision. "I've sat in many cases and in my experience this is the most unusual," the lawyer commented.

Under the Liquor Control Act, the onus is on the accused to prove himself not guilty on charges once the crown has established a prima facie case. In the opinion of the magistrate the crown did establish such a case.

"Having regard to the onus and the evidence . . . which doesn't prove in itself a direct sale . . . it nevertheless raises more than a mere suspicion . . . of the accused's guilt," the magistrate said in declaring Rosebush guilty.

Crown evidence was submitted two weeks ago while the defence consisted of denial of the charges.

Two more charges of illegal possession still face the defendant. They will be dealt with this afternoon.

Magistrate's Motor Stolen, Three Jailed

NORTH BAY (CP)—Three men were sentenced Tuesday to a month in jail for stealing six outboard motors, including one owned by the presiding magistrate.

Magistrate M. G. Gould sentenced two of the men before he learned that one of the stolen motors belonged to him. He called in Magistrate Sigfried Atkinson of Haileybury who handed out the third sentence. The men had pleaded guilty.

The motors were stolen from a government dock here last month. Police said they picked up Joseph Barbe, 34, and William Ogden, 38, both of North Bay, and Henri Poirer, 23, of Glace Bay, N. S., the same day.

Senator Davies

Senator Davies, president of the Kingston Whig-Standard, said another great objection was the question of who would constitute a board of censors. No two persons could agree on what was good or bad.

FREE COUNTRY

"If you set up a board of censors," he asked, "what are you going to censor and where are you going to stop?

"For my part," he said, "I do not believe this Senate has any business at all legislating what I or anyone else should read. . . This is a free country, and we are not keepers of our brothers' consciences to that extent. It would be going too far to try to tell adult Canadians what they should read."

Senator Davies took exception to the evidence of some witnesses who had called for tighter restrictions on books before the committee. Some of them had been critical only in generalizations.

Speaking more particularly of pocket books, he said that for the most part they are quite harmless morally.

There had been some criticism of covers showing half-naked females. But in these days of Bikini bathing suits, the public was used to seeing more of the feminine form than 25 years ago.

"My main objection to the cover pictures," he said, "is that in most cases they have no relation to the contents."

IMPORTANT BUSINESS

However, he did think the publishers might play down sexy covers and have them bear more relation to the story.

From the business standpoint, Senator Davies said, book and magazine publishing was important, giving employment to thousands. It was a serious thing to interfere with that business, even though some people thought it had features of doubtful value.

Senator Davies, who confessed that he is a "whodunit" fan himself, said he disagrees with those who say the news-stands are filled with Western and sex stories. He listed a series of good books he had found recently on one Ottawa stand.

HAVE CONFIDENCE

He said it appeared that an object of the committee had been to protect young people against certain books and magazines. He agreed with James Cardinal McGuigan, Roman Catholic archbishop of Toronto, who had written recently that some way might be found to keep undesirable books from the young.

However, Senator Davies said, there is no indication that juvenile delinquency is up to any great extent, as it might have been if the damage to juvenile minds was as great as had been pictured by some witnesses before the committee.

"I think we should have confidence in the rising generation and not to try to protect them too much."

Soldier Charged With Supplying Liquor To Girl

LINDSAY — (ENS)—A 21 year-old Camp Borden soldier was arrested in magistrate's court here today on a charge of supplying liquor to a 16-year-old girl.

Pte. Ronald Smith, sought on Saturday night by town police, walked into court this morning while a similar charge was being heard against Merle Hughes of Lindsay. Both men were charged in connection with the same incident.

Hughes was convicted and remanded until Monday for judgment by Magistrate E. A. Gee. Smith pleaded not guilty and will appear Monday.

Charges arose out of an incident Saturday evening when Smith and Hughes allegedly picked up a 16-year-old girl and gave her wine during an evening of roaming Lindsay streets.

The girl testified that the two men drove her around town after picking her up at her home. She said they stopped at several places to give her drinks from the bottles of wine they had.

A tourist cabin operator told court the three had attempted to get a cabin for three hours and that he had refused them.

Hughes was arrested by police that evening in a Lindsay restaurant and charged with being drunk and having liquor illegally—he had four bottles of wine with him.

In the meantime, the girl had left them to go to Peterborough with several boys. Her father had missed her and asked police to issue a general alarm for her. Police said she returned about 2 a.m. Sunday.

Threatened Wife Man Convicted

LINDSAY (ENS) — Charged with threatening his wife with a hunting knife, Charles Graham, 21, of Lindsay, was today convicted and given a year's suspended sentence. He was also put on bond to get out of town by the week's end.

Chief Constable John Hunter said that Graham had worked only four of the 17 months he and his 17-year-old wife had been wed. The wife had been working regularly and paid the rent on their two-room flat.

Mrs. Graham told court Graham tried to persuade her to leave town with him and work elsewhere. She refused and he threatened her with a hunting knife, she declared. That was on Sunday, and on Monday he again threatened her when she again refused his request.

Magistrate E. A. Gee convicted Graham and told him to get out of town and find a job, and not to return until he was regularly employed.

Graham said he didn't think there were enough job opportunities for him in Lindsay since he is handicapped by a partly-crippled right hand. He denied threatening his wife, and said she had not paid all the rent on their flat.

Trial Date June 1 In Gold Theft Case

SARNIA (CP)—Date for the trial of Jack Pearl and Eugene Volpe, both of Toronto, charged with the illegal possession of $10,788 worth of gold, was set today for June 1.

Evidence revealed that the two men were arrested by United States customs officers at Detroit when they tried to sell 350 ounces of gold at $45 an ounce.

Separate School

added, as outlined in the proposed agreement with the Board of Education. For example, Dr. Wells illustrated, the Department of Health requires only one medical examination but the city Board of Health would provide three if recommended.

The agreement calls for a three-year trial period, Dr. Wells said, and after that could be terminated by either party on six months' notice. But the school board would still be in a position to make recommendations or to suggest changes.

Dr. Wells said the city council considered the arrangement would save the taxpayers money and it was the opinion of the Board of Health that the integration of school health services would be an advantage from the health standpoint.

If the plan was adopted in all the schools, the city would be divided into areas for purposes of school health services with about 5,000 people in each area depending on the number of children in each. Thus, the same school nurse would be in charge of both public and separate schools in a given area.

"The chief concern of the Board of Health is with communicable diseases and the ability of the children to do physical exercises," Dr. Wells said.

Dr. Wells stressed the importance of the parents being present during physical examinations if possible. The examination could be done by a family physician or pediatrician if desired by the parents but, in any case, written consent of the parents for the examination would be required.

Lindsay Firemen Name Lawyer For Arbitration

LINDSAY (ENS) — Lindsay Council heard more from the Fire Fighters Association at Monday night's meeting, held in the town hall, and have finally agreed that they can do nothing but appoint their solicitor A. M. Fulton to work in the arbitration proceedings for them. A letter from fireman Tom Madill, of the Association, notified the council that C. L. Dubin, of Toronto had been retained as the legal counsel for the firefighters in the arbitration.

The council at first wondered whether they were forced to deal with the association, since their bargaining agreement has not been signed.

But the council decided to use the services of its scolicitor in deciding the rightness of the firefighter's notification.

The council discussed the issue for some time, and there was some support for the idea of cutting the staff of firemen to balance whatever increases in pay might have to be granted. When the discussion concerning summer uniforms for the firemen came up, the council decided to decide later on them and on new uniforms for the police department, and call for tenders, since "we don't know how many firemen we may have in a few months."

The same problem arose for the final time when Chief Alex Wylie asked that fireman Watson, a new man on the force, be sent to training school in Peterborough for one week.

Mayor Lamb questioned the wisdom of such a move since Watson, as a recent acquisition, might not survive any staff-cutting plans of the council. Other members of the group pointed out however that if agreement with the association were ratified, the council would be entitled to hire only first-class men, and this way would probably leave Watson on the force.

Kent Street traffic came in for some discussion, and Ald. Bruce Maidens suggested a stop light be installed at the corner of Kent St. W. and Albert St. at the intersection closes to the Central School and Lindsay Collegiate Institute.

When questioned about the cost of the light, Ald. Maidens told council it would cost some $1,200. Reeve Butler commented that permission would be necessary to install the light, and Ald. Maidens replied that he obtained that permission.

When Reeve Butler, chairman of the police committee heard this, he offered to turn his job over to Ald. Maidens. But it was found that Ald. Maidens had the approval of the traffic engineer of the Dept. of Highways in Port Hope, Reeve Butler commented that this was not the permission required to put the motion through.

THE FINAL DEFIANCE—A Communist PoW, returned to the Reds at Panmunjim, savagely begins to tear off his UN-supplied clothes. According to an eye-witness, about 20 fanatical returnees stripped and shouted "down with Americans," while they waved their fists. A UN control officer said they probably staged their demonstration for the benefit of their own photographers.

salt until light, then stir the scalded milk into them. Cook in double boiler over hot water, stirring, until mixture coats spoon. Remove from heat and stir gelatin into hot mixture until dissolved. Stand in pan of cold water and stir until it begins to thicken. Beat the egg whites until stiff, then fold them into the slightly thickened mixture, with the vanilla. Turn into mould dipped in cold water and chill until set. This may be moulded in individual moulds or stemmed glasses.

HOMEMADE LADY FINGERS

In a mixing bowl whip 2 egg whites until very stiff then beat in ¼ cup powdered sugar. In another small bowl beat 2 egg yolks with ¼ teaspoon lemon extract until very thick. Fold these carefully into the beaten whites. Sift over 1-3 cup flour and ⅛ teaspoon salt, and lightly fold this in until barely mixed. Lady fingers are usually shaped with pastry bag and tube 1 inch wide by 4½ inches long, making finger slightly thick at both ends. But this shape can be approximated if you work carefully from a large spoon using knife to straighten sides of finger. They should be baked on sheets of plain paper at 350 deg. Fahr. for about 12 minutes. They are sprinkled with powdered sugar just before baking. These are the lady fingers you would use for charlotte russe and other cream-gelatin dessert moulds.

Father Jimmy Co-Op Founder Dies In N.S.

ANTIGONISH, N.S. (CP)—Dr. J. J. Tompkins, the frail little priest who sparked the famed Antigonish co-operative movement to life more than 30 years ago, died in hospital Tuesday. He was 82.

Known throughout the Maritimes as Father Jimmy, he was a professor and vice-president of St. Francis Xavier University here for 21 years.

It was during this time that he set up his study groups for adult education, later to blossom into the world-famed extension department of the university.

A Cape Bretoner by birth, Father Tompkins became an early supporter of the co-op idea.

As a parish priest he organized a lobster cannery, people's library and a co-operative housing development, named Tompkinsville in his honor.

NO RELIGIOUS GROUNDS

For Father Tompkins, there were no religious grounds. "There is," he said, "no Methodist or Catholic way to cut coal or catch a fish."

While serving as a parish priest at Canso, he precipitated a royal commission probe of Canada's eastern fisheries from which sprung the United Maritime Fishermen, organized with government sponsorship.

The golden jubilee of his ordination was celebrated quietly last year. Pope Pius called him a "well-deserving apostle of social movement and a zealous pastor."

List 7 Killed, 19 Wounded In Fighting

OTTAWA (CP)—A Korean casualty list Tuesday included one officer and six men killed in action and 19 men wounded in action—all stemming from heavy fighting May 3 in which Canadian troops fought off a heavy Chinese Communist attack.

The last list was issued April 29. Today's was the heaviest list since those following the "Little Gibraltar" action last Oct. 23.

The list today included as killed five members of the Royal Canadian Regiment and two of the 81st Field Regiment, Royal Canadian Artillery. Wounded included 15 members of the RCR, two members of the Princess Patricia's Light Infantry, and two of Lord Strathcona Horse.

OFFICER KILLED

The officer killed was Lieut. Douglas Wakelin Banton of Ottawa. While it could not be immediately confirmed, army officers said they believe it was Lieut. Banton who was referred to in a dispatch from Seoul Sunday.

The dispatch quoted a Canadian soldier as saying his lieutenant was killed by a machine gun burst while on patrol.

The soldier quoted was Pte. John Junkins of Ottawa, who was captured by the Chinese but then released. Pte. Junkins was mentioned in today's list as wounded in action.

The action was described as a whirlwind Chinese attack that raged for 2½ hours inside Allied lines on the western sector of the Korean front, late Saturday night and early Sunday.

Pte. John Raymond Grennan of Montreal, who was reported today as killed in action, was previously wounded.

The army list brought to 1,348 total casualties so far suffered by Canadian troops in Korea, including 257 dead, 978 wounded, 87 injured, 10 missing and 18 captured.

In addition, the navy has reported three dead and three injured in action and the air force has reported one missing.

NATO Looks to US For Leadership, Says St. Laurent

WASHINGTON (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent said today the North Atlantic countries look to President Eisenhower for leadership in providing economic "staying power" to deter aggression. He made a brief speech at Washington military airport after arriving for a 48-hour state visit which will include talks with U.S. leaders on trade and presumably the St. Lawrence seaway. He was welcomed at the airport by Vice-President Nixon and State Secretary Dulles.

The prime minister was reported particularly concerned about the growth of protectionism in the U. S. and the possibility of new tariff hoists now under study by congress.

Just before the prime minister arrived, however, Vice-President Nixon told a group of reporters that the main tariff-increasing bill, the so-called Simpson bill, will be killed by Congress and that President Eisenhower will get the one-year extension he wanted to the U. S. Reciprocal Trade Agreement Act.

Under this act the president has power to make tariff negotiations with other countries.

From the airport St. Laurent and Pearson were to hurry to the White House for a 2½-hour conference with Eisenhower. Talks between the President and the prime minister will continue Friday.

FIRST CONFERENCE

It will be St. Laurent's first conference with the president since he met the U.S. leader when he was commander of North Atlantic armies in 1951.

At that time the atmosphere was congenial. Canadian officials expect that atmosphere will continue to prevail, but Canada is seriously concerned with U.S. trade restrictions and the threat of these curbs on the health and welfare of the North Atlantic community.

St. Laurent comes armed with a strong weapon—a resolution passed by the House of Commons urging that the Canadian government express indignant objection to the U.S. curbs which hit at Canadian dairy exports, and threatens to extend into exports of feed grains, metals and other commodities.

FEAR SIMPSON BILL

Deepest concern in Canada is felt over the Simpson bill, now under study by a Congress committee, which would tend to encourage the rising tide of protectionism which appears to be sweeping over the U.S.

This bill, sponsored by Representative Richard Simpson (Rep. Pa.), would boost American tariffs whenever local industry appeared to be threatened by imports. It would cut the president's powers to undertake new tariff negotiations and virtually shatter the spirit of the General Agreement on Tariffs

Blast, Fire Raze $1,000,000 Windsor Building

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—An early-morning explosion and fire today destroyed the main building of the Standard Paint and Varnish Company in downtown Windsor. Firemen estimated damage at $1,000,000.

Adjoining buildings which housed 10,000 gallons of oils and volatile paint ingredients were threatened for a time.

Two men, night watchmen at the plant, were injured in the blast. Hospital officials said they suffered burns and severe shock. The men, James Buchanan, 57, and Edward Walsh were knocked unconscious by the explosion as they ran from the building.

GONE IN MINUTES

The explosion and fire levelled the 50-year-old building within minutes of the blast shortly after 2:30 a. m.

Firemen made no effort to save the main building and concentrated on keeping the fire from spreading to adjoining buildings filled with oils and paint. For several hours after the paint explosion the fire burned out of control.

The explosion, heard over most of the city, brought hundreds of residents to witness the blaze which at times sent flames shooting hundreds of feet in the air.

ALL FIREMEN OUT

The entire Windsor fire department was called out to fight the fire. They were hampered by intense heat generated by burning oils.

Witnesses said the explosion shattered windows over a four-block area. No persons were reported injured by the flying glass. Witnesses said the whole of the main building was a mass of flames within seconds of the blast. Several smaller explosions followed the first blast.

Cause of the explosion is not known.

Alta. Rockburst Traps 2 Miners, Hope Small

COLEMAN, Alta. (CP)—A rockburst trapped two miners Wednesday in the McGillivray coal mine here and little hope was held they would be found alive.

The pair, John Powlik, 34, and William Kaklin, 32, both of Coleman, were buried under 10 feet of rock. Fellow miners, some of them called from their homes, worked into the night to clear away rubble.

The rockburst occurred about a mile from the mine entrance. An official said the two men might have been able to get inside the fall. Other workers escaped

Auctions For City

AUBURN, N.Y. (AP)—The city is making money on Mayor Robert A. Nelson. He auctioneered at a sale of used city equipment and vehicles and made more money for the city in one hour than he is paid in two years. Nelson coaxed $1,511 from used-car and scrap dealers. His salary is $750 a year.

Five Out Of 500 Lose Lives In Ship Collision

HARWICH, England (AP)—Five persons lost their lives Wednesday in a North Sea collision that sliced the bow off the British steamer Duke of York. Four bodies remained unidentified today.

Twelve passengers were injured, but approximately 500 passengers and crew members were rescued from the 4,190-ton British ship after the collision with the 7,607-ton American freighter Haiti Victory 40 miles east of this port city.

Workers cut their way into the mangled hull of the Duke of York after tugs nudged the ship into a berth. The workers removed the bodies of two women and a man. A spokesman for British railways, owner of the ship, said the body of another woman was discovered pinned in the wreckage.

Police found the passports of three American women in the wreckage of the ship.

ONE IDENTIFIED

The only victim identified thus far is Mrs. Argo Ansdell, 54, an Englishwoman who died in a hospital Wednesday night.

The British railways said 437 passengers and 72 crew members were aboard the Duke of York—a total of 509. Britons made up the bulk of the passenger list but there also were many Americans and Europeans among those saved.

A tug towed the Duke of York stern first into Harwich harbor just before midnight, more than 19 hours after the collision. The Haiti Victory, with only a gash in her bow, had brought most of the ferry's survivors here hours earlier.

Italian Runs Amok, Slays Three In Church

LATINA, Italy (CP)—Mario Costanzo, 30, went berserk in the sacristy of a Roman Catholic Church Wednesday night and shot to death three persons including the pastor before taking his own life.

Constanzo killed Onofrio Fusco, a merchant, and then shot Rev. Antonio Gaspano, pastor of Spigno Saturnia Church, and Miss Vincenzina Zanfrillo, 28. He then shot himself, falling dead near the body of the woman.

Police said the shootings were the result of Fusco's jealousy over Miss Zanfrillo, to whom he was engaged.

Agree To Up U.S. Aid For S. Asia

Give Little Support To Suggestion Armed Forces Sent

WASHINGTON (AP)— Key members of Congress agreed today that the United States should extend new aid to threatened Southeast Asia but gave little support to a suggestion that military forces as well as equipment be sent.

The Communist-led drive through Laos kingdom in French Indo-China dominated congressional consideration of President Eisenhower's proposed $5,828,000,000 foreign aid program for next year.

Gen. Omar Bradley, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, and Defence Secretary Charles E. Wilson give further details of the global military situation today in private sessions before the House of Representatives foreign affairs and Senate foreign relations committees.

TAKE IT TO UN

State Secretary John Foster Dulles told both groups Wednesday the government is discussing with interested governments the question of taking the new Red attacks to the United Nations.

At the UN in New York City, some Asians said the situation might be brought up under article 34 of the UN charter. This provides that the security council may investigate any situation of this sort to see if it imperils world peace.

A House sub-committee simultaneously recommended that the French Indo-China war be placed under UN jurisdiction. The report was prepared by four congressmen who were in Indo-China when the Communists struck at Laos, gateway to Thailand and the rest of rich Southeast Asia.

Dulles said the U. S. has no plans to send American troops to the new trouble theatre.

Representative Overton Brooks of Louisiana, a ranking Democrat on the House armed services committee, said in an interview: "We should send equipment at once to Laos, Indo - China and perhaps Burma — but no troops. We might have a certain use of seapower for blockade.

The armed services committee chairman, Representative Dewey Short (Rep. Mo.), is in favor of using American military power, if necessary, to save Southeast Asia.

Representative John Vorys (Rep. O.) and Clement Zablocki (Rep. Wis.), members of the House foreign affairs group, opposed sending troops but favored other aid.

8-Point Proposal Accepts UN Demand On PoWs

PANMUNJOM (AP)—The Communists today unveiled a new compromise plan to break the Korean truce deadlock and the Allies immediately asked time for top echelon study. The eight-point proposal accepts one insistent Allied demand —that 48,500 Communist prisoners who refuse to go home be left in Korea after an armistice rather than sent to a neutral country. It offers other concessions. Even though the Reds made it clear the Allies must accept all or nothing, this appeared to be the first major break since the truce talks reopened April 26 in an effort to agree on exchange of prisoners, last major barrier to an armistice.

Lt.-Gen. William K. Harrison, chief Allied delegate, said:

"This is an important proposal . . . that merits careful and considerable thought.

"Our major decisions must be made by the governments themselves."

The next meeting is scheduled for Saturday morning.

Harrison gave no clue as to official UN reaction. He said any comment he might make would be premature.

The Red plan contains two concessions to Allied demands:

1. A five-country neutral repatriation commission to take custody in Korea—of the Reds who won't go home. The Reds suggested Sweden, Switzerland, Poland, India and Czechoslovakia.

ALTER TIME LIMIT

2. A total of four or six months rather than nine for those prisoners to hear Red explanations and perhaps decide to go home. At the end of that time, the future of those remaining would be decided by a political conference of warring countries, as the Reds have demanded.

Should the Allies accept the Red proposal, they would drop their previous nomination of Pakistan as a single neutral custodian They first proposed Switzerland and Sweden. The Reds turned down both, but included them in the five-country commission proposed today.

If the five-member commission plan were adopted, India would play a key role. Poland and Czechoslovakia were nominated by the Communists to a separate neutral-state armistice supervisory commission and Sweden and Switzerland were the Allied choices to the same commission.

The Communist offer on the time for processing prisoners provided that those wanting to go home would be sent back within two months and disposition of the others would be settled in four months.

Ex-Red Reveals Campaign To Gather Arms

NEW YORK (AP)—Congressional investigators have turned up testimony that the Communist party once had a military specialist lined up for the job of defence secretary in event of Red revolution in the United States.

Robert Gladnick, an ex-Communist and now an AFL organizer, said Wednesday he was part of a pre-war Red campaign to build up the party's military resources.

He told the House of Representatives committee on un-American activities that Irving Charles Velson, a New York iron worker, headed the party's military program, and "was to become secretary of defence, come the revolution."

Velson took the stand later and called Gladnick's story "kind of fantastic." Velson wouldn't answer questions about any Communist connections, past or present.

Gladnick, organizer for the International Ladies Garment Workers Union (AFL), said Communists in the 1930s were encouraged to enter the U. S. armed forces to learn to handle weapons in anticipation of revolt.

His own job, Gladnick said, was to distribute Communist literature among men and officers of U. S. Navy. He said pretty girls were used on both coasts to hand out material when the fleet was in.

Members of the Young Communist League, he said, infiltrated the prewar citizens military training corps to prepare for eventual entry into the National Guard or the U. S. armed forces.

The House committee came out of its third day of New York hearings with an armload of names given by co-operative ex-Communists as people they had known in the party.

Vietminh Reds' Withdrawal May Mean End To Invasion Of Tiny Laos

HANOI, Indo-China (AP)—Sizable Communist-led Vietminh units were reported withdrawing today from the heart of Laos after over-running more than one-third of the Indo-Chinese kingdom. The move may—or may not—mean an end of the 25-day Red invasion of the peaceful little French-associated state at the back door of Thailand and Burma. French spokesmen cautiously declined to estimate the scope of the withdrawal but said the number of rebel troops involved was impressive. The Vietminh units were pulling out of areas around the royal residence city of Luangprabang, the French-fortified Plaine des Jarres and Xiengkhouang to the south.

Two reasons were advanced here for the Communist pullback:

The Reds apparently had overstretched their supply lines in their 200-mile dash south and west from Viet Nam, another of the three Indo-Chinese states.

They also had lost their race to overrun Laos before the seasonal monsoon rains. These are now beginning.

THREAT LESSENS

Whether or not the enemy movement northward develops into a general withdrawal, the threat to Laos had lessened and possibly even ended for the present.

French Army spokesmen, however, did not exclude the possibility that the Vietminh may yet stage a do-or-die assault on Luangprabang, 275 miles southwest of Hanoi, or on the strongly fortified Plaine des Jarres.

Some rebel forces still were encamped around the residence town of King Sisavang Vong and the

Cuba Won't Ship Sugar To Canada

OTTAWA (CP)—Cuba has decided not to ship refined sugar to Canada for the remainder of 1953, Trade Minister Howe announced today in the Commons.

The restriction extends a one-month bar on Cuban refined exports that followed consultations with Canadian authorities concerned about the effect of imports from that country on the Canadian sugar industry.

Mr. Howe and members of a Canadian trade delegation to Latin America discussed the matter with Cuban authorities last January.

Troops' Tribute

SEOUL, Korea (Reuters)—Commonwealth troops will fire red, white and blue smoke bombs and set off a fireworks display at the 38th parallel to celebrate the Coronation June 2, a Commonwealth division spokesman said here today.

A ceremonial parade and an artillery salute will be held. Troops will shout "God Save the Queen" at the appointed moment.

Four Ontarians Share $750,000

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (CP)—Four Ontario residents will share some $750,000 of the estate of the late Mrs. Alma D. Skinner, widow of a Detroit automobile company executive.

Mrs. Skinner, widow of Frederick G. Skinner who was associated with the Olds motor works, died Jan. 5. Probate of her will Wednesday disclosed she had left bequests totalling more than $1,000,000 to 52 individuals and a number of charities.

The largest bequest, about $375,000, goes to Mrs. Minnie Nelson of St. Thomas, Ont., described as a distant relative of the Skinners.

Another $375,000 is to be divided among other relatives: Harold H. Leather of Hamilton, Ont.; E Russel Leather of Burlington, Ont.; Mabel Leather Wright of Ancaster, Ont.; Frances Skinner of San Antonio, Tex.; and Helen Skinner Harmon of Colorado Springs Colo.

Say Red Spies Told Of Troop Movements

SEOUL (AP)—A U. S. division staff officer today expressed the opinion that Communist spies are obtaining information on Allied troop movements in Korea "either in Washington or Japan."

"One night on the front the Reds broadcast across no-man's land that our outfit was going to be pulled out of the line," the officer said. "We didn't even have the word at division yet. In fact, it was several days before we got the word.

"They must have got the dope either in Washington or Japan."

The Communists, since the war was stabilized along a defipite line, frequently broadcast to United Nation troops. It is not uncommon for the Reds to identify units, even down to company size level.

Royal Pair See Coronation Play

LONDON (CP)—The Coronation season was off to a flying start theatrically speaking today after a gala performance of "King Henry VIII" attended by the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh.

Shakespeare's play, with its topical references to a previous coronation, is the Old Vic's most lavish production since the theatre was reopened in 1950. A company of 60, including Canada's Alexander Knox, wear 200 glittering costumes.

At Wednesday night's gala opening, the Queen was dressed in black and white, with a flash of diamonds and extremely long earrings. It was the first time a reigning sovereign had attended a first-night performance since George II went to Drury Lane in 1755 for "the Chinese festival."

Writers had special praise for Knox, the 45-year-old actor from Strathroy and London, Ont., who plays Cardinal Wolsey.

"King Henry VIII" was produced by Tyrone Guthrie and sets are by Tanya Moiseiwitsch, both of whom will be in Canada shortly for the forthcoming Shakespearian festival at Stratford, Ont.

Leaves Husband, Child

Triple Personality, Violent Headaches Bedevil Pretty Young U.S. Housewife

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A pretty brunette who turned into a devilish, irresponsible creature in front of her doctor and later into a bright agreeable, conscientious girl, was described today to psychiatrists.

This girl now has three different personalities, changeable at will. She is married and has a small child, but she denies her husband and child whenever she turns into anything except the shy, young housewife who first sought medical attention two years ago for terrific headaches.

The unusual case was reported to the American Psychiatric Association in a medical report as well as in color movies, by Dr. Corbett H. Thigpen and Dr. Hervey M Cleckley of Augusta, Ga.

The case is not unique. About 100 such instances of multiple personalities in single individuals have been reported. But Dr. Thigpen's presentation was medically interesting because of the provocative personal relationships involved.

The young woman identified only as Eve White, an alias, changed suddenly about a year ago. She said she had been hearing voices. She asked if she might be going insane. A queer look spread over her face and in a couple of seconds she changed into a coquettish character who winked and said: "Hi doc."

Dr. Thigpen named the personality involved in this change Eve Black. Eve Black goes to parties, drinks too much sometimes, and occasionally turns back into Eve White and seems horrified at finding herself in the middle of drunken gaiety.

Eight months after Eve Black's dramatic appearance, the girl blossomed out with a third personality, Dr. Thigpen said, which was something more than a blend of the other two.

Eve Black went out with men casually, got a job as a night club entertainer, bought and charged expensive clothes. The third personality, called Jane, took the clothes back to the stores. Later Eve Black bought more clothes and had them altered so Jane couldn't take them back.

Eve Black and Jane don't recognize Eve White's husband or child as their own. Eve Black admits having been married, but not to Eve White's husband. Jane says she never was married.

The patient left her husband when she realized that there was something wrong and said she was going to stay away until she was well.

Jane is aware of the two Eves but hasn't all their knowledge and their memories, Dr. Thigpen said. Eve White knows only hazily about Eve Black and Jane, and has a feeling that she is fading out of the picture.

There is no sign of mental abnormality in Eve White or in Jane, but Eve Black's brain waves show slight indication of a pattern that sometimes is associated with schizophrenia, a common form of insanity.

Jane is slowly becoming the dominant personality, Dr. Thigpen said. He has hopes that the two Eves will fade out entirely.

Diefenbaker Flays Liberals For Waste, Extravagance

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—George Drew, national leader of the Progressive Conservative party, said Wednesday night his party's first move, if elected this year, would be to try to regain overseas markets for farm products. He addressed the annual meeting of the Western Ontario Progressive Conservative Association which re-elected Exeter lawyer Elmer Bell president for the fourth term.

Mr. Drew said that for nearly four years the Conservative opposition has been trying to persuade the government to press for overseas markets. The Liberals' reply had been that it was nonsense to worry, yet the traditional United Kingdom market had slipped away.

"Our very first move—if not within days, certainly within weeks —after taking office will be to open negotiations with Britain and the other members of the Commonwealth to reopen these markets."

Agricultural markets and taxes are among the "practical issues" of the day, he said.

ALL OVERTAXED

"I doubt if there is a single Canadian who doesn't know he or she is overtaxed."

John Diefenbaker, member for Lake Centre in Saskatchewan, accused the government of waste and extravagance. He said the government spent $25,000 to put "bounce" into a dance floor in a federal building in Montreal.

"Naval officers in Halifax wanted a road constructed to their headquarters. The government agreed and it cost the people of Canada $111,454 to placate a few of the top hats. . . The officers' mess at Kingston was renovated at a cost of $340,000, yet it was good enough for two world wars. Some other officers in Halifax needed a garage so the government built one costing $23,000."

Mr. Diefenbaker said many Liberal members wanted to vote against government policies but were afraid to do so because of the threat of losing patronage in their ridings.

LIBERALS "RECKLESS"

Hon. W. Earl Rowe, member for Dufferin-Simcoe, also accused the government of "reckless extravagance," as well as overspending and neglecting to encourage private enterprise to launch a program of national development.

He called the Liberals "tired old gentlemen, bewitched, bothered and bewildered and wondering where they're going now."

J. W. Murphy, member for Lambton West, in an address to the 1,000 party members, predicted "a hot federal election in the hot month of August," apparently a reference to newspaper reports this week the election date may be Aug. 10 or 17.

Mr. Murphy said an August election is "on the books." He said the Liberal government is not partial to a long campaign and he added:

"Just as soon as the Liberal bigwigs return from the Coronation, the people of Canada will find themselves in an election campaign."

Pennants Fly, Pipes Shrill

Canadian Coronation Squadron Sets Sail For Commonwealth Review At Spithead

HALIFAX (CP) — Pennants flying, pipes shrilling, Canada's Coronation squadron slipped anchorage at ebb tide today and made for the open sea and its date with the Commonwealth naval review off Spithead, England, June 15.

It was the biggest concentration of naval strength in Canada's history as tonnage and firepower goes, though many times during the Second World War there were more warships berthed in the sheltering reaches of this old North Atlantic citadel.

The largest single Canadian flotilla, in peace or war, comprised the 17,700-ton carrier Magnificent, the 8,000-ton cruisers Quebec and Ontario, and the 2,600-ton destroyer Sioux, which served in the Korean war as early as July, 1950.

The 1,800-ton frigates Swansea and LaHulloise will also participate in the Spithead review, but their sailing date has been delayed to May 18 to take aboard university naval cadets.

It'll be more than simply spit and polish for the 3,000 sailors manning the flotilla.

The Magnificent, her flightdeck stuffed with Sea Fury fighters and anti-submarine Avengers—the 30th carrier air group—steamed past a cheering waterfront for immediate exercises off the coast with RCAF planes.

At the same time, the cruisers were to play tag with each other in their first drills together since they became two of the navy's heaviest sluggers.

Before the flotilla reaches Portsmouth May 15, it will also take on Royal Navy planes in strike exercises and later, before the review by the Queen in the yacht Surprise, hold drills off the south coast of England.

Heading the line-astern procession out of the sunlit harbor was the Quebec, flagship of Rear Admiral Roger Bidwell, flag officer Atlantic Coast and commander of the Coronation squadron.

Police Continue Country-Wide Search For Boys

TORONTO (CP)—Three boys with seven cents among them set out for a candy store last Friday noon and haven't returned home since.

Police, who think Henry Quigley, 10, and his brothers Howard, 7, and Paul 5, may have climbed into a railway boxcar and could be starving in the locked car on a country siding, have put out a Canada-wide alarm.

Their missing persons bulletin turned a routine case for Toronto's east-end No. 4 police station into a cross-country hunt.

Police with flashlights poked Wednesday into every one of the hundreds of cubbyholes in Toronto's nearly-completed subway without finding any trace of the boys. Watchmen who patrol the subway nightly were asked to be on the lookout.

One theory is that someone is holding the boys prisoner.

MOTHER WAITS

Their mother, Mrs. Veronica Quigley, holds the view that some person took a liking to the lads and decided to keep them for awhile. She waits at home while her husband accompanies police on searches through the city and suburbs.

Henry, the eldest, has always liked to play at being a business man, she said. When he was given a toy telephone last Christmas, he liked to pretend to make long-distance calls on big deals.

There was nothing adventurous about Henry, Mrs. Quigley said. He played on the streets because there was nowhere else in his neighborhood for him to play.

Howard was a nervous boy. He loved his younger brother Paul dearly and liked to look after him.

Paul, a shy five-year-old, was hardly the sort of lad to run away just for the sake of adventure.

The mother said she supposes by now they will all be pretty hungry.

Leading UK Musician Heads Conservatory

TORONTO (CP)—Boyd Neel, one of Britain's leading conductors and musicians, has been appointed dean of the Royal Conservatory of Music of Toronto.

The appointment was announced Wednesday by Sidney Smith, president of the University of Toronto. Mr. Neel, to assume his duties Sept. 1, succeeds Sir Ernest MacMillan, who retired in 1952 after the conservatory began reorganizing the music school.

Also on St. Laurent's mind was what approach joint Canada-U.S. defence should take in view of international developments such as the Russian "peace" offensive.

Canada has a terrific stake in the American market. Her exports to the U.S. last year amounted to $2,300,000,000—more than half of her total exports of $4,300,000,000 to all countries.

On the subject of the seaway, Canadian officials here now feel more heartened about the future of the project with the recent declaration of the president that he is in favor of the seaway's construction and indications that the U. S. federal power commission may, within a few weeks, hand down a decision designating the American authority to co-operate with Ontario in construction of the power aspect of the multi-million-dollar undertaking.

However, even that decision may mean a further delay. Opponents of the seaway and power project can appeal a government decision to the U. S. Supreme Court

While St. Laurent's visit here is mainly concerned with the president, he likely will concentrate hard at various social gatherings of congressional leaders, who appear to be sufficiently strong to influence U. S. trade policy

Six Die, 26 Injured In Santiago 'Quake

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP)—The government announced today that six persons were killed and 26 others were injured in the violent earthquake that shook the country Wednesday. Thousands of families were made homeless.

The death toll was lower than had been feared. Unofficial reports Wednesday night said at least 17 had died.

Government officials estimated that property damage would exceed 400,000,000 pesos ($32,000,000). Heaviest hit by the quake were the cities of Concepcion, Chillan Talchuahuano and Los Angeles. Railway communications were disrupted in some localities and many communities were without electricity and water.

Say African Girl Bears Septuplets

LISBON (Reuters)—The Portuguese news agency ANI reported here Wednesday that an 18-year-old girl had given birth to septuplets in Bissau, Portuguese Guinea.

All seven babies were born dead and the girl died the next day, the agency said.

(Similar multiple birth stories from remote parts of the world have proved to be either frauds or the result of exaggeration and misunderstanding).

Killer Of Five Adjudged Sane

CANANDAIGUA, N. Y. (AP)—Fred E. McManus, who admitted killing five persons on a cross-country trip, was adjudged sane today and ordered to stand trial on a first-degree murder charge for the slaying of his first victim, a college student.

"There is not the slightest doubt that McManus is sane," district-attorney Thomas Croucher said of the 18-year-old Marine from Valley Stream, L. I.

Croucher said McManus will be arraigned tomorrow.

A grand jury returned a murder indictment today against McManus in the death of William A. Braverman, a Hobart College freshman, was the first of five persons he shot to death. He took Braverman's auto and killed the others to get money so that he and Diane Weggeland of Marion, Rochester suburb, could be married, he said.

Diane, who said she knew about some of the slayings but loved McManus just the same, has been committed to Westfield state farm at Bedford Hills.

plain, 70 miles to the west. Thus far, however, they have steered clear of an attack on either place. French-Laotian patrols, penetrating as much as 15 miles into areas where the rebels supposedly were concentrated, returned without firing a shot.

STALLED IN SOUTH

The Vietminh also appeared to be stalled in the area south of Xiengkhouang, 90 miles south of Luangprabang. Advance units of the rebel forces in that sector stabbed two days ago to within 35 miles of Laos' Mekong river border with Thailand.

The Vietminh drive brought speedy reaction from the Thai government. Reports received here said Bangkok officials were reinforcing police posts along the northern border and increasing the nation's Mekong river patrols.

The Thai government also has been moving some 50,000 to 60,000 Indo-Chinese refugees from its northern borders and relocating them deep in west and northwest Thailand. Many of these refugees are Vietminh sympathizers. Most of them fled into Thailand from Laos when the French resumed control of the Indo-China government after the Japanese occupation.

The French and Laotian defenders received a big American assist in their supply problem. Six U. S. C-119 Flying Boxcars, the first of possibly two or three dozen to be sent to Indo-China under an increased American aid program, took off from Hanoi with war cargos for Laos. The big cargo planes have been loaned to France for the emergency.

OPPOSE U.S. VIEW

PARIS (AP)—France has informed the United States that she is firmly opposed to bringing the Communist-led Vietminh invasion of Laos, Indo-China, before the United Nations.

State Secretary Dulles of the United States Wednesday told a congressional committee he is exchanging views on a possible UN airing of the Laos invasion with the governments of France, Laos Viet Nam and Thailand. He had already been advised of the French views.

These governments are directly affected by the powerful assault on the independent Laotian kingdom.

French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault called U. S. Ambassador Douglas Dillon to the foreign office Sunday night and handed him a memorandum outlining France's opposition to the move.

The note was understood to point out that such a step would give Communist Vietminh leader Ho Chi Minh the status of an international belligerent, dignifying his case before the world.

Poor Weather Forces A-Blast Postponement

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Unfavorable weather has caused a 24-hour postponement of an atomic blast scheduled for this morning at the Nevada proving ground.

The atomic energy commission announced Wednesday night atmospheric conditions were such that desired data could not be obtained. It was the first weather-caused postponement of the spring series.

The shot, eighth of the series, is now set for about 8:30 a. m. PDT (11:30 a. m. EDT) Friday, weather permitting.

8-Point Proposal

CLING TO DEMAND

The Communists clung to their demand to send representatives to the unwilling prisoners to make "explanations" and "eliminate apprehensions" about return.

North Korean Gen. Nam Il also reserved a right to go back to the Communists' earlier proposal if the Allies do not accept the new one. This called for sending balky PoWs to a neutral state.

Despite the reservation and some provisions, the new plan appeared at first reading to approach the Allied views more closely than previous Communist proposals.

The Communist plan provided:

1. Within two months after a truce, both sides will exchange prisoners willing to go home.

2. The creation of a neutral repatriation commission made up of the four countries on the armistice supervisory commission and India.

3. Prisoners unwilling to go home shall be released from military control at "the original places of detention and he handed over to the neutral nations repatriation commission" for custody.

4. The neutral commission shall permit nations to which prisoners belong to send representatives to talk to the prisoners, "so as to eliminate their apprehensions and inform them of all matters relating to their return . . ." A four-month limit was set on such talks

5. During those four months, the neutral commission shall facilitate the "speedy return to their fatherlands" of those prisoners who request repatriation after the explanations.

6. Disposition of prisoners still unwilling to return home after the four-month period shall be submitted to the political conference proposed to follow an armistice

7. All expenses of prisoners during the period of custody by the neutral commission and travelling expenses to their homelands shall be paid by the countries to which they belong.

8. Terms of the proposal and arrangements developing from it shall be explained to all prisoners.

Meeting In Lindsay Favors Continuing Trust Hospital

LINDSAY (ENS)—The new enlargement committee of the Ross Memorial Hospital met Wednesday night with the board of governors of the hospital for the first time, to begin organization at work towards the enlargement of the building and the solution of financial problems now facing the institution.

Some 16 representatives of organizations in Victoria and Ontario county were present for the meeting H. S. Johnston, chairman of the hospital board of governors was in the chair.

In opening the meeting Mr. Johnston expressed his belief that the committee was the most important now working in Victoria and Haliburton counties. He pointed out that the committee was in charge of the "serious work" of devising ways and means of solving the needs of the Ross Memorial Hospital.

BOARD MEMBERS

He then introduced three members of the board, who spoke on various aspects of the problems facing the committee. F. L. Weldon, secretary of the board first spoke on the difference between municipal and trust hospitals. He pointed out a civic hospital, operated by the community, would be provided for financially by the tax rate of the community. The board of governors would be appointed by representatives of the taxpayers and any expansion would be carried through by the issue of debentures. He mentioned that the greatest advantage of such a hospital would be the lack of financial worry. Among the disadvantages he stated the contention that charitable gifts, such as the Ross Memorial has received from estates and other sources would probably decrease greatly, or cease, and there would possibly be more waste under a civic administration.

The trust type hospital, he said, has as advantages many of the opposite qualities to a civic hospital—more economic operation and the continuation of the bequests and gifts and the more stable board of governors. The financial problem is the big worry he said, with current and capital expenditures the responsibility of the board of governors and the general public.

Following Mr. Weldon's speech, discussion over the preference for either type of hospital took a place and the general feeling seemed to be in favor of a trust hospital, but with a larger board of governors than presently operates the Ross Memorial.

Representative of the Lindsay Kiwanis Club, Leroy Brown stated his club's resolution that the club would support the expansion campain if the hospital was converted to a civic institution. Other representatives asked for time to discuss the matter with their organizations and this was granted until the next meeting.

INVESTMENTS LIQUIDATED

The next speaker, S. A. Flavelle, treasurer of the hospital, outlined the financial situation with special attention paid to the debts of the hospital over the past three years and the growing difficulty in operating.

Since 1950, he said almost all investments had been liquidated to pay off debts and loans. Only a small amount in trust was remaining. The hospital deficit to the end of March 1953 was $9,000 although a slight operating profit had been shown during the latter month. He urged the town and county to take over financial responsibility for the current situation at the hospital, to ensure the retirement of debts in future years.

T. H. Stinson, a chairman of the board for many years was the next speaker, his topic being the enlargement of the board of governors.

He claimed that the board of governors had no objection to being enlarged by additional members, but pointed out that under the deed of trust the only way this could be done would be to apply to the legislature for permission to do so. H. S. Johnston added that every member on the enlarged board should have a vote, and the board should include full members from the medical society and the hospital auxiliary. After a discussion over the merits of various systems for enlarging the board, the delegates were requested to bring the opinions of their organizations to the next meeting for further consideration.

Dr. W. C. Crow of the medical society was the final speaker making brief remarks on the Agnew plan for enlarging the hospital at a cost ranging from $820,000 for one alternative to $1,040,000 for the full expansion program. Final act of the committee was the appointment of a publicity committee with the next meeting scheduled for May 28.

Claxton Clears Mines Dept. Over Airstrips

OTTAWA (CP)—Defence minister Claxton today cleared the mines department of any breach of security in publishing a map showing emergency RCAF airstrips in Quebec but regretted that the purpose of the strips has been made public in a newspaper.

He said in the Commons that all Western powers—he doubted that Russia did it—publish maps showing the locations of airfields. The thing they try to keep secret is the purpose of certain fields and the fact that they fit into a system.

Questions were provoked by an article in the Montreal Gazette saying any person can buy the key "to a closely-kept $7,000,000 RCAF secret—the construction of seven emergency jet fighter airstrips in Quebec." This could be done by getting charts issued by the mines department.

(The airstrips are part of the air defence system.)

Mr. Claxton said the maps were cleared with the defence department.

He told Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes VC (PC—Nanaimo) that he would not try to restrict distribution of the maps because they fitted into a general international civil aviation agreement governing such matters for Western countries.

"You can't keep airstrips secret and no effort is made to do so," he said. Civilian and military pilots had a right to know where they are.

"But what we do try to keep secret is the purpose of the airstrips and the fact they are part of a system. Obviously their locations are well known."

"Unfit" Frozen Eggs Confiscated In Toronto

TORONTO (CP)—City, provincial and federal authorities Wednesday night seized a number of frozen eggs intended for sale to Toronto bakeries. Officials said the eggs were unfit for human consumption.

City police arrested Alex Bornstein, egg and poultry dealer and bail was set at $2,000. One police official said there will be further arrests.

The federal department of agriculture is co-ordinating the investigation.

Second Miner's Body Found At 4,900 Feet

KIRKLAND LAKE (CP)—The body of Leon Wojcechowski, 39, one of two men trapped by a rockburst at the Wright-Hargreaves gold mine April 27, was found today by a recovery squad working at the 4,900-foot level.

Wojcechowski and Leo Murray, 25, were buried under some 50 feet of rubble between the 4,800 and 4,900 levels. Murray's body was found Tuesday about 20 feet away from Wojcechowski.

Doctors said the men were killed instantly by the rockburst. Rescuers dug for 60 hours in an effort to free the men before giving up hope of finding them alive.

Company Head Leaves City With Even Higher Opinion

"With a higher opinion of Peterborough than ever,—and that was a lot," J. G. Rayniak, head of Outboard Marine and Manufacturing Co., Waukegan, Ill., said Wednesday afternoon as he was leaving by automobile for Oshawa to fly back home.

And, in the telephone conversation he didn't mention the fact that Peterborough has not yet got around to the conviction that an airport would be an asset worth having.

"That Chamber of Commerce dinner Tuesday night was the most impressive affair of its kind I've ever seen," Mr. Rayniak said.

"There is no exaggeration in that statement. For a town of 40,000 to run out a dinner company of around 500 was to me really wonderful. I congratulate Peterborough once more. It has not lost any of the spirit of goodwill and friendliness that largely decided us to come here exactly 25 years ago."

That expression of fullness of appreciation reflects the glow in which the long experienced industrialist took off from the Empress after lunch Wednesday.

"A dinner in the Empress Hotel first opened our eyes to this city, and now 25 years later I am happy to be back on the occasion of our anniversary. I didn't come to see what we had done here in the meantime, because I have known all along, year to year."

PERSUADED BY MAYOR

When Rollie Denne as Mayor was doing a concentrated job of trying to persuade Johnson Motor Co. that they ought to locate in Peterborough, he arranged for a dinner meeting of the heads of the city's industries, to tell Mr. Rayniak their experiences here.

Among those at the table were: W. R. Breyfogle, J. H. Vernor, Robert Abbott and others.

"They certainly backed up everything Mr. Denne was telling us. I remember saying, I think it was to Hugh Campbell, 'this sounds all right, like the kind of town we want to come to'. Those manufacturers made a real impression, so we asked the Mayor to show the plant he had been urging us to see."

Mr. Rayniak's good humor bubbled into laughter as he recalled an incident of being pushed through a window at the Monaghan Road plant, and sprawling on the floor.

That was his introduction to the building vacated by the Henry Hope Co.

DOOR LOCKED

"It was in the winter and the front door was locked, and I guess Mr. Denne didn't know who had the key. So we managed to pry open a window, and we had to crawl through it. We looked over the floor space and the sprinkler system, things like that. The building appeared to be in pretty fair shape, and I remember saying to Mr. Campbell: "This is it." We took a 90-day option to buy and that's exactly what we did."

"By the way, we went out the front door, because we were able to open it from the inside.

"Now I'm going to Waukegan again after another Peterborough dinner, and I don't mind repeating that it was a grand affair, not just for us, but as indicating the continuing friendly attitude of the people of this city. That was a great turn out and we are exceedingly happy that they turned out for our anniversary. That was a wonderful reception.

"There is another thing I can say before leaving. Canada has tremendous possibilities, and will continue to grow rapidly. That is the general estimate of this country. Those last 25 years have brought big changes in this country, and we are glad we were here to help go along with them. We want to continue to grow with Canada and Peterborough, and as has already been said any of our engineering devices and resources are at the disposal of this plant here. Anything we devise is theirs for the asking.

"There is a fine staff here working together under Mr. Neal, and altogether it has been a grand experience. Again I'd like to say that was a wonderful dinner crowd the other evening."

Algonquin Mercy Flight Saves Angler's Life

HUNTSVILLE (CP)—A mercy flight into isolated Ragged lake in Algonquin Park was reported today to have saved the life of William Fry of Mayville, N. Y.

Mr. Fry suffered a perforated ulcer while on a fishing party at Ragged lake. A plane piloted by Tom Douglas of Muskoka Airways flew in Dr. E. J. Cloutier of Huntsville to treat the stricken man and carry him to hospital here.

Huntsville is 100 miles south of North Bay.

Firemen Too Eager, Goderich Twp. Feels

CLINTON (CP)—Firemen in this neighborhood are too conscientious as far as the Goderich township council is concerned.

Councillors objected to paying fees to three different fire brigades that turned up at a fire recently at James Cox's farm.

The Clinton brigade sent in a bill for $100 for two hours work. The Goderich town brigade asked $50. The third fire crew from Bayfield didn't charge—it works on an annual retainer.

Councillors offered to pay the Clinton brigade $75 since it was the one called.

Clinton is 35 miles northwest of Stratford.

17 Cases Of Cigarettes Stolen At Belleville

BELLEVILLE (CP)—Seventeen cases containing some 175,000 cigarets worth $2,300 were stolen from a parked transport truck here Wednesday night.

Police said the thieves sawed through the lock of the rear doors of the truck while the driver, William F. Allen of Ottawa was attending a move.

Pinned Under Car, Dies

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Mrs. Claude Ranson died Wednesday night shortly after being pinned under a car which went out of control and crashed into a ditch. The woman, covered by about six inches of mud and water, was pulled free of the vehicle by two ambulance drivers who crawled under while spectators held it a few feet off the ground.

$10,000 Fire Damages Home, Sheds

BANCROFT (ENS) — An estimated $10,000 damage was caused Wednesday afternoon when a large storehouse, part of a home and a pig shed were gutted here. It was the second major fire in 10 days.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Martson, owners of the damaged house, were away at the time of the fire which was first noticed at 2.25. A summer kitchen at the rear of the house was beyond saving.

A storehouse, owned by the municipality and occupied by the Ontario HEPC, and another shed on the Martson property were also burned.

Members of the Bancroft fire department headed by Chief Cecil McAlpine, were assisted by pumps from the Department of Lands and Forests and the Hydro Electric Power Commission in the fight to confine the blaze in the closely built-up area.

Another $10,000 fire was fought in Bancroft just 10 days ago when an apartment was gutted.

Sees Trade Bill Dying In Congress

WASHINGTON (CP)—Vice-president Richard Nixon predicted today that Congress will kill the so-called Simpson bill and will pass the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act extension without amendment.

He made the prediction to a group of reporters at the Washington military airport where he had gone to meet Prime Minister St. Laurent arriving for a 48-hour state visit.

The Simpson bill would boost United States tariffs and shatter the spirit of the general agreement to tariffs and trade. Canada and other countries were disturbed over the possibility it would be passed.

Nixon said he is quite certain the Simpson bill will be killed and the one-year extension of the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act which President Eisenhower asked will go through without amendment.

Under the act, the President is empowered to negotiate on trade with other countries, including Canada.

The Simpson bill, besides putting quotas on oil imports, would raise tariffs on lead and zinc. It would permit increased tariffs, or quotas against foreign products, on the basis of injury to U. S. producers or workers.

Stelco Says Price Not Increasing

HAMILTON (CP)—The Steel Company of Canada, currently engaged in wage negotiations with its employees, today tossed the ball back to C. H. Millard, National director of the United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL).

A spokesman for the company said it does not contemplate any general increase in the price of its products unless there is a further increase in production costs, such as an increase in basic wages.

The spokesman, who declined to be named, was commenting on a statement made in Toronto Tuesday by Mr. Millard that "the only reason why we have had no offer on wages from Canadian steel companies is that they are waiting for United States concerns to announce further price increases."

The spokesman said that "with the cost of living on the decline, another inflationary upward wage-price spiral at this time would disadvantage all Canadians, including the steelworkers themselves."

The union and Canadian companies are negotiating wage increases under a provision of the two-year contract signed in 1952. The job Class I rate under the 1952 contract is $1.43½ an hour.

Bill Extends Benefits Of Workers' Insurance

OTTAWA (CP)—The House of Commons Wednesday gave final reading to the government's bill extending unemployment insurance to workers who become ill or injured after being laid off work for other reasons.

The measure now goes to the Senate.

Explaining the bill, Labor Minister Gregg said it is intended that its provisions be interpreted "liberally." Thus, a sick worker would draw benefits even after being offered suitable employment.

3-Quarter Mile Track Would Fit In Ford Building

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

Ford Motor Company of Canada supplies some striking figures to illustrate the size of its new plant at Oakville which will start turning out cars on Monday.

Says Ford:

"You could lay out a three-quarter-mile race track inside this building, and still have plenty of room for thousands of spectators.

"It is the largest building in Canada under one roof—32½ acres. Eight thousand tons of steel went into it. Above the trusses alone is enough steel of varying widths to stretch from Oakville (near Toronto) to Montreal, and most of the way back.

"The building is one-third of a mile long, 800 feet wide and has 1,270,000 square feet of floor space. In full production it will employ 4,000 people."

It is part of a $65,000,000 expansion program under which, ultimately, Ford of Canada will assemble all its passenger cars and trucks in Oakville, starting with cars.

Half the sum, or $32,500,000, will be spent on modernization of manufacturing facilities at Windsor which will feed the Oakville assembly.

Monday's first car will roll off the line with relatively little ceremony—but a number of civic officials, and members of the Ontario legislature and federal Parliament will be there.

The Dominion Bank, announcing today the opening of two new branches, one in Toronto and one in Montreal, says that this brings its total number of branches to 180.

Monsanto Chemical Company of St. Louis, Mo., recently came up with a novel advertising gimmick. It sent to a list of customers and prospects a recording of two specially-composed pieces of music.

At first glance one had the horrid thought that one was being handed a singing commercial "on a platter." But the music is instrumental, without a word or suggestion of advertising, except on the record's jacket and in the titles of the numbers—Monsanto March and ONB (for ortho nitro biphenyl) Samba. Good, too.

MONTREAL (CP)—Police said Wednesday night they have arrested an 18-year-old youth and two juveniles in connection with a $4,800 hold-up last October in a north-end dairy.

Baby's Crying Saves Family From Asphyxiation

OMEMEE (ENS)—A baby crying in the night saved his family from possible asphyxiation by coal gas Monday night.

When Mrs. Cecil McGill, wakened by the crying, got up to pacify her 15-month-old son Douglas, she collapsed just as she reached the door of the children's room.

Regaining consciousness she called her husband who was able to help her back to bed and throw open the doors before he too collapsed.

The window of the children's room had been open a slit, and they didn't fare so badly. However, 8-year-old Hazel and 4-year-old Teddie had inhaled enough gas to make them sick. Strangely enough the baby showed no signs of illness.

They all revived without summoning medical aid, but Mrs. McGill believes if the baby had not wakened her, it might have been much more serious, perhaps fatal.

Charges Missionaries Have Trouble In India

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian Council of Churches said Wednesday its missionaries are having no trouble in India despite a recent government threat to bar foreign missionaries unless they stop evangelical teachings.

R. A. Bennett, president of the council's department of overseas missions, said no Canadian missionaries have been refused admittance to India and that "no trouble is anticipated in the future."

He was commenting on a recent statement by Dr. K. N. Karju, India's home minister, who warned foreign ministers to end their evangelical work in the country and to confine their activities to social uplifting.

Peterborough School Costs Not Alarming

Mr. K. S. Wightman, Superintendent of Peterborough schools, has included in his annual report to the Board of Education a careful analysis of school operating costs during the last dozen years. His figures surprisingly show that while school operating costs have risen, and the school population has grown faster than the general population, the proportion of the mill rate which schools take for their operation is less than it has been since 1940, with the exception of one or two years.

* * *

Here is the tabulation, showing what percentage of the total mill rate the operation of the public schools and the Collegiate have taken:

	Percentage of Mill Rate
Year	Public Sch.	Collegiate
1940	23.7	11.3
1941	24.2	15.2
1942	24.9	11.5
1943	26.1	12.4
1944	26.4	12.0
1945	21.6	7.9
1946	19.7	10.1
1947	23.1	10.2
1948	22.2	9.2
1949	21.4	8.5
1950	20.7	7.9
1951	21.9	7.2
1952	21.8	8.0

The figures include salaries and all other costs of operating Peterborough schools. They do not include debenture costs, which, considering the great amount of new school building since the war, have increased. In 1940 public school debentures took 1.37 mills when the total tax city rate was 33 mills. Collegiate debentures took .57 mills. Last year, when the city tax rate was 64.75 mills, the public school debenture debts took 1.60 mills, the Collegiate debentures 1.07. But even here, the cost of debentures has not risen inordinately as a percentage of the total mill rate.

* * *

One should not minimize the fact that school operating costs have risen very sharply, both absolutely and relatively to each day of pupil attendance. For instance, in 1947 the public school operating expenditure was $325,818. In 1952 it was $675,829. The expenditure per pupil was $101.60 in 1947; last year it had risen to $166.64. The total Collegiate operating expenditure in 1948 was $119,870; in 1952 it was $179,917. The expense per pupil in 1948 was $176.80; last year it was $249.54. These figures are for academic pupils. For vocational students the expenditures were $120,335 in 1950 ($286.85 each) and $171,812 in 1952 ($341.13 each pupil). The figures are total expenditures; the cost to the municipality was less because of provincial government grants.

* * *

The point nevertheless is valid, as indicated by the first table, that in proportion to the rising tax rate and rising costs of other municipal services, operating costs of our schools have risen less; they take a smaller proportion of the city taxes than they did a dozen years ago. Mr. Wightman's considered and reassuring comment is this: "I cannot find in these figures anything to cause alarm that the city is finding or may find the cost of giving its children proper educational facilities too great a burden to be borne."

When A Holiday Isn't A Holiday

We have wrongly imputed irresolution to the Government for not settling at Ottawa the question of whether or not Coronation Day shall be a holiday. We noted that a Day of Thanksgiving has been proclaimed. This does not mean, it seems, that the Government has been shilly-shallying. Mr. G. K. Fraser, MP for Peterborough, secured clarification of this in the House when the Prime Minister recalled that the day had been declared a legal holiday late in January.

The Government (or the Governor-in-Council) has apparently done all it constitutionally can to make the day a holiday. By proclaiming a Day of Thanksgiving it has thus proclaimed a legal holiday, like Sundays, Christmas Day, Good Friday and Dominion Day. The authority for this is the Bills of Exchange Act, which encompasses fixed statutory holidays as well as special ones such as Coronation Day.

What is now apparent is that the Government has no power to enforce a statutory holiday which it has proclaimed. Sundays, Christmas Day and the like are bulwarked as holidays by laws such as the Lord's Day Act and by custom. Several fixed statutory holidays are not observed generally. For instance, Remembrance Day and Easter Monday. They, too, are legal holidays, but generally only banks, courts and government offices celebrate them.

So Coronation Day, June 2nd, is a legal holiday, a public statutory holiday, but it seems that only the will or desire of the people or decrees of municipal councils will result in its being kept as a holiday.

It is rather odd that a proclamation by the Governor-in-Council has so little effect. We can imagine that when the government of a dictatorial state declared a holiday there would be a holiday. However, in a democratic state such as ours, governments rule by the consent of the governed. Thus, if the people do not consent to having a holiday on Coronation Day, they jolly well won't have one, whatever the Government decrees.

Since Canada is also a Royal state, it seems very odd indeed that the people of this country, loyal subjects of the Crown, refuse to accept a holiday legally proclaimed in honour of the coronation of their Sovereign. We expect that the Russian press will make much of the reluctance of industry, business and labour to make holiday on June second.

Well, it's the way democracies not under the thumb of central government work; even to the extent of working on a statutory holiday.

A Tale Of Two Towns

New legislation has been enacted at Ottawa to revise and provide for the government of the Yukon. We have already referred to it, but note that the contentious question has been avoided of which shall be the capital town—Dawson City which was, or Whitehorse, which expects to be. With judicious political indecision, the Act does not specify; the government may sit where the governing council decides from time to time. But that is as good as settled; the council will settle on Whitehorse, settle the question and settle there permanently, we suspect. Whitehorse is a town, Dawson City (city!) is a village, in fact if not in name or constitution.

They were not ever thus. When the 1901 census was taken Dawson City could boast of 9,142 bodies, if not souls (it was just after Robert Service and the mad, roistering gold rush had hit the Yukon). In 1901 Whitehorse had no population to count. By 1911 it had appeared in census tables. In 1941 Whitehorse had 754 people, Dawson city 1,043. The tables were turning. They were upset abruptly with the opening of the Alaska Highway, on which Whitehorse is privileged to sit, and with the petering out of gold mining and almost every other sort of activity around Dawson city.

The last census (1951) showed the city to have 783 inhabitants (old die-hards, judging from the squawk they made when rumour went around that it would lose its capital status). The upstart village, now an incorporated town, had 2,594. What shades of '98 and of '42 they recall.

Wild Beasts In Toronto's Gallery

During May the Art Gallery of Toronto will have an exhibition of paintings by that remarkable group who were called Les Fauves in the period between 1898 and 1908 when they were fighting to achieve recognition. The name means The Wild Beasts, and it sums up the opinion of the conventional public of the time toward the work of the innovators. We now recognize Matisse, Derain, Vlaminck, van Dongen, Dufy and Braque as painters of original genius, and in some cases as great painters; their work no longer drives us to extremes of condemnation, and indeed aspects of it are copied recognizably in the work of conventional painters who have not the slightest desire to do anything original. It is always thus: the pioneer work of yesterday is the commonplace of today.

The technique of Les Fauves has become familiar enough to copy, but their genius is more elusive. How many painters today owe a debt to Matisse who could not, to save their lives, paint a picture comparable to a Matisse. It is not technique that makes the painter, but the inner vision.

While the French pictures are on exhibition in Toronto there will also be a show of some work by Emily Carr. This is fitting, for she was much influenced by Les Fauves, and the technique and use of colour which shocked Paris was infinitely more shocking in Canada, where the appreciation of art follows at a safe distance behind opinion in Europe. Time has justified both Emily Carr and Les Fauves, and it is fitting that her work and theirs should hang in the same place at the same time.

The Price Of A Truce

Is it reasonable or practical, asks the Montreal Star, to move almost 50,000 prisoners of war thousands of miles to some neutral state while they make up their minds where to go? That is what the Red negotiators seem to want, if they want a truce at all. The U.S.-U.N. negotiators at Panmunjom propose to place them under a strict neutral protection and control in Korea, the spot to be designated for the purpose as territory of that neutral. This is reasonable and practical.

The Red negotiators also want the U.N. to do the moving, and thus pay all the costs and incur all the odium. A first class proposition from the Peking point of view, the Montreal Star remarks icily.

Saucers And Science

By CHARLES DAVY

THERE ARE SIGNS of a new wave of interest in flying saucer stories. In several parts of the world groups of people have got together to exchange reports of sightings; numerous reports have come lately in New Zealand, and there are rumours of surprising new evidence from California.

* * *

MOST sober students of the problem would agree that a high proportion of the sightings can be explained in terms of weather balloons or optical illusions of some sort. But there has always been a residue of reports not easy to account for—reports not only of bright, saucer-shapes, but of dark, cigar-shaped objects apparently nosing their way at high speeds through the upper atmosphere, and not only of objects that glitter in the day-time but of objects that glow at night.

* * *

HITHERTO, the astronomers have mostly kept out of the controversy, but now a distinguished astronomer, Professor Donald Menzel, who holds the Chair of Astrophysics at Harvard, enters the fray with a book published this week (Flying Saucers, Pu 21/-) in which he boldly sets out to answer all the questions and clear away all the mystery. Having examined carefully most of the flying saucer stories, he believes they can be explained, without exception, by one or other of a variety of atmospheric and celestial phenomena—refractions and reflections (especially from ice-crystals), "mock suns", auroras, mirages and meteorites.

* * *

CONSIDER, for example, the episode of June, 1947, which led the United States Air Force to set up "Project Saucer" for the investigation of the stories. Kenneth Arnold, a business man from Idaho, was flying in a private plane near Mount Rainer, in the Rockies. He saw, in his own words, "a chain of saucer-like things at least five miles long, swerving in and out of the mountain peaks. They were flat like a pie-pan and so shiny they reflected the sun like a mirror. I never saw anything so fast."

* * *

THE AIR FORCE consulted Professor Allen Hynek, astrophysicist at Ohio State University; his opinion was that what Arnold saw could not be attributed to any known astronomical phenomenon, and that the objects "may therefore have been some sort of known aircraft."

* * *

PROFESSOR MENZEL, however, who is familiar with the Mount Rainier region, considers that the objects can be readily explained as sun-reflections from billows of either snow or haze, caught up in the turbulent air over the mountain ridges. He remarks that throughout the Air Force investigation this kind of explanation was apparently overlooked. The Air Force attributed most of the sightings—leaving a residue unexplained—to objects such as weather-balloons, kites, meteors. They "gave no serious consideration to the possible effect of mist, ice crystals, or mirages."

* * *

UNDOUBETEDLY, these effects can explain a lot; the atmosphere plays queer tricks with visual images, refracting and distorting them and colouring them in all sorts of unexpected ways. Distant city lights, car headlamps or searchlights can produce shining saucer-shapes, apparently quite detached from their point of origin, a long way up in the air. Moreover, they will seem to move, fast or slow, according to the movement of the observer, just as a rainbow recedes if you walk towards it.

* * *

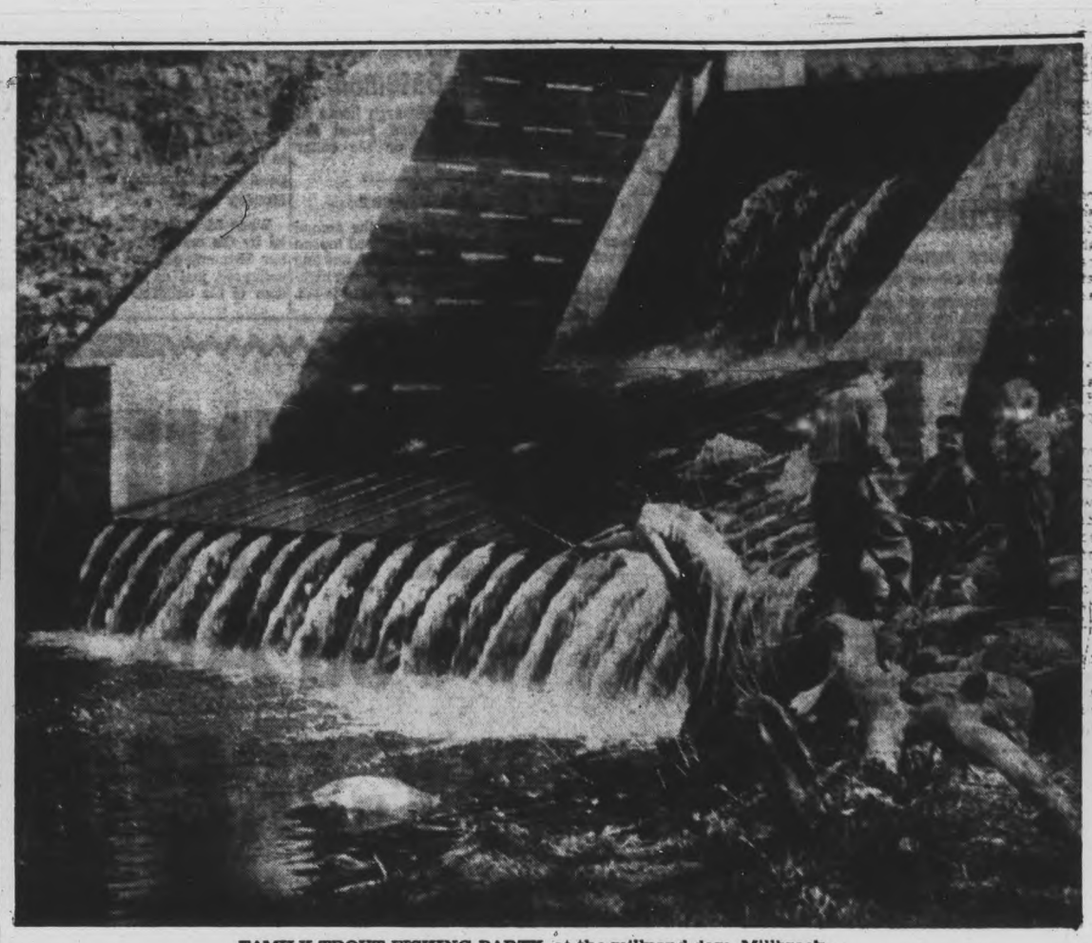
AS FOR THE DARK, cigar-shaped objects, reported both by airmen and by ground observers, Professor Menzel attributes them to mirages, common particularly over hot desert country. Mountains or parts of mountains can "appear like cigar-shaped islands floating in the sky." A mirage, too, seems to travel with the observer, and may appear to be manoeuvring rapidly if seen from a plane. Mirage-conditions can also produce radar echoes, as though from an aircraft in flight.

* * *

A WHOLE CHAPTER is given to the story of "the little men from Venus", popularised in Frank Scully's book "Behind the Flying Saucers". Subsequent investigations seem to have shown that Mr. Scully was the perhaps unwitting victim of an elaborate hoax, though he why and wherefore of it all remain rather obscure; a wish to score off the United States Air Force may have been one of the motives involved. Certainly, as Professor Menzel says, the security veil thrown over Project Saucer was a potent factor in kindling public curiosity, and in persuading people that the Air Force experts knew more than they cared to say. Even now, no full report of their findings appears to have been published.

* * *

PROFESSOR MENZEL extends his survey into the past, examining most of the outstanding records of saucer-like apparitions, notably the "great Saucer of 1882", which he attributes to a rare effect produced by the aurora borealis. He even includes a chapter on saucers in the Bible, bringing in the visions of Daniel and Ezekiel. When he has finished his exhaustive analysis, what is there left? Has he accounted for everything?



* * *

HE HAS SHOWN, I think, that nearly every reported saucer can be interpreted as a natural phenomenon of some kind. But this, of course, does not prove his case. If a real saucer were to cross the sky, it might look just like an ice-crystal shining in the sun. The only certain way in which it could establish its identity would be by landing in some inhabited district.

* * *

I HAVE RECENTLY seen some photographs purporting to be of a saucer which landed not long ago in California. The object photographed is a solid-dome-shaped, metallic structure, certainly not an atmospheric illusion of any kind. Clearly, this is either a very startling story or a thoroughgoing and skiful hoax. The odds are obviously in favour of a hoax, but there seem to be no dead-sure grounds for a final verdict either way at present. In the meantime, Professor Menzel's book, learned and lucid, and equipped with many excellent illustrations, is essential reading for anyone interested in this tantalising subject.

Time To Talk Strongly

(CALGARY HERALD)

MR. CHEVRIER said in Washington the other night that, if the U.S. insists on having a hand in the waterway, it should build its own navigation works on the American side of the river. But Mr. Chevrier also admitted that Canada had not yet got beyond the "thinking stage" in connection with that section of the rapids (at Lachine and Beauharnois) wholly in Canada.

Why, then, doesn't the Canadian government get to work building the necessary canals around that section now? And if, by the time they are under way, the United States still hasn't been able to cope with its lobbyists, Canada ought to start work on its own International Rapids bypass.

But the most important aspect of the whole seaway project, so far as Ontario is concerned, is hydro-electric power. And on this matter, the Canadian government ought by now to be kicking up a most undiplomatic row to Washington. We can only hope that Prime Minister St. Laurent in his visit to President Eisenhower, will make the need for immediate co-operation on this part of the project as painfully plain as he knows how. It should be pointed out that further delay by the United States would be a most unfriendly act.

After all, ninety per cent of this seaway course lies in Canadian territory and the United States, as a sort of minority stockholder, is blocking the most essential aspect of the scheme, by the refusal of its power commission to settle a licensing dispute, whose hearings were concluded more than two months ago. It is certainly not a neighbourly state of affairs and the Canadian government should make perfectly obvious its distress over this balking.

And in addition to talking turkey, we believe the Canadian government should, as an earnest of its endeavour, start the upriver canals as soon as possible.

Liberal Resigns Under Fire

(Windsor Star)

It is unusual that a member of the Commons feels impelled to resign, as Mr. Austin E. Dewar, Liberal, Qu'Appelle, has done, over accusations of wrong-doing. The last occasion was in 1932, when a Conservative surrendered his seat.

That such instances are rare is a tribute to the generally high standards which prevail among public men in Canada. Whether Mr. Dewar benefited from a federal contract let to his friend, a Regina contractor, hasn't been proved. Mr. Dewar denies it. But the exchanges of cheques between the two men did create doubt as to the ethics of the member's conduct.

Rather than embarrass the Government and his fellow-members, Mr. Dewar has taken the easy and, we believe, the best way out. He is leaving it up to his constituents whether he should be re-elected. They would do well to chose someone else, Mr. Dewar having exhibited irresponsibility at least.

In most parts of this country people just won't tolerate any politician who is subject to suspicion of unethical conduct. Such a man rarely is chosen as a candidate in the first instance. If any member becomes subject to suspicion either he isn't renominated or fails of election. That is how it should be.

Hollywood Style

(Moose Jaw Times-Herald)

A picture, which is based on the lives of the early settlers and in which the hero-role portrays a member of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, is to be filmed, of all places, in Banff, and the title of this masterpiece of incongruity, this ridiculous travesty, is to be "Saskatchewan"!

Silly, isn't it, to spend a million dollars—that's what Universal International says the picture will cost—on making a film story of the lives of the early settlers of Saskatchewan when there was no Saskatchewan and no Royal Canadian Mounted Police. But, that's Hollywood for you!

British Comets For R. C. A. F.

(U.K. Information Office)

Two of Britain's jet-propelled Comets, the world's first turbo-jet airliner, will make their Canadian debut, about the middle of May, wearing the roundel-enclosed red maple leaf of the R.C.A.F. Following completion of flight trials in Britain and long distance test flight to Johannesburg, South Africa, they will fly to Ottawa to join No. 412 Transport Squadron. They will be the first Comets to go into service with an air force anywhere in the world.

ELIZABETH the Queen

By Marion Crawford

© 1953 BY DOUBLEDAY & CO., INC. DISTRIBUTED BY NEA SERVICE

II

Do people ever ask themselves on seeing Queen Elizabeth going smoothly and gracefully about her duties at a public function, wether she has ever overcome the handicap of shyness which so often afflicts Royalty as well as ordinary folk?

Does Royalty long for the privacy that others have?

She was not a shy child, but was always ready to stand up and meet people. In fact, Queen Elizabeth is deeply interested in people.

I remember the King saying to me once, as we watched her strut on the stage (built in Queen Victoria's time and still hung with the dark purple gold-bordered heavy curtains that had screened the Victorian tableaux of so many years ago) at Windsor Castle for one of our pantomimes: "Where does she get her poise? I was always terrified of getting up in public."

However much she may like people there are times when any woman desires privacy. But for a Royal Princess, there is no such thing. Soon the world knew that a Royal Heir was to be born.

There was a new shine in her eyes, a radiance from within, which all of us in the household were conscious of.

Soon others were to notice it. Indeed the radiance became so unmistakable that the newspapers to [illegible] as an unofficial announcement.

I can reveal now that there was some annoyance among members of the household over these premature revelations. Some journalist abroad even went so far as to forecast, by "scientific" means, whether the child would be a boy or a girl. Some of these learned prognosticators pointed one way, and some the other but one thing was certain: Prince Elizabeth was going to have a baby.

"Why can't they let her have her baby in peace?" growled members of the household. As if that could be possible in a world filled with curiosity!

But it was idle curiosity. The eagerness of everyone to know everything about Princee Elizabeth, to wish her well, to pray for her health and happiness, was a sign of their high regard for her. It must have been some recompense for the invasion of her privacy to realize that millions were praying for her.

Queen Elizabeth II and her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, in the drawing room of Clarence House.

Members of the Royal Family adhered to the same strict wartime rations as British commoners. Here King George VI, Princess Elizabeth and Princess Margaret Rose ride bicycles while the Queen sits in a horse-drawn cart to save gasoline at their estate in Sandringham.

The pram Princess Elizabeth had mentioned was a stately affair which should really have been called a perambulator, if not a carriage.

It was the one in which both she and Princess Margaret had been wheeled when children, and for which they hold a deep affection.

After speaking to me about it, someone was sent down to Windso—that storehouse of Royal relics, from priceless dresses and jewels to baby shoes and chriening robes—to dig it out. It was overhauled from top to bottom and was solemnly brought up to the palace.

The first time that we tested it, in Princess Elizabeth's rooms, was an hilarious occasion. I was sent for, and as I came near I heard shrieks of laughter. Then I opened the door and saw Bobo, the Princess's personal maid marching behind the empty pram with a look of pride.

The upright, old-fashioned vehicle was paraded up and down before us. Bobo's pride was unmistakable but understandable. It was like old times to her to be wheeling the pram in which she had taken Princess Elizabeth and then Princess Margaret for their airings from 145 Piccadilly.

While we were enjoying the [illegible] Princess Margaret came in. When she saw what was happening she said delightedly, "Oh, the pram!"

She rushed forward, took it from Bobo and began wheeling it about herself, smiling happily.

Such pictures as those, coming into my mind today, seem to take away nothing of the Royal grandeur that surrounded Princess Elizabeth in her public life, but rather throw it into sharper relief.

All of us in the Palace were naturally concerned for the Princess as the time for the birth of her baby approached. But none of us had any fear that she would not come through her ordeal safely and happily. She is the sort of person who goes competently about any business that engages her, and she faced motherhood calmly.

One of the first things she did was to call in Sir William Gilliatt, her doctor, to explain everything to her. He told her what she ought to do, and she carefully followed the routine he set.

There were no extravagant or faddish preparations. She got up at her usual time and took her usual meals supplemented by plenty of green food and orange juice. She took no alcoholic drink of any sort.

That abstinence was easy for her, because she had never used liquor herself. At a cocktail party I have seen her nursing one drink through a long session, and leave it three parts untouched at the end. Smoking did not come into the matter, as she has never smoked. Prince Philip is equally abstemious.

All evening engagements were cut out; the Princess arranged to be in bed by 10 o'clock every night.

Princess Margaret's reaction to all this was amusing— and charming. Normally she is more high-spirited than thoughtful, although she has moments of great [illegible]dness and perception.

But suddenly she seemed to realize what motherhood meant to a woman, and became tender and protective toward her sister, bringing cushions for her back and seeing that she was comfortably seated long before such care became necessary. Such solicitude, from one normally so effervescent, was touching.

Princess Elizabeth, of course, went her own way. She would have nothing of the old superstiti[illegible]ide which made an illness of pregnancy.

"It should be a natural process," she would say. "After all, it is what we are made for."

How different this attitude was from that which prevailed in Queen Victoria's time! Then, a princess would have disappeared entirely from public view, to spend much of her time in bed.

But Princess Elizabeth had many public duties she continued to perform — most important of which was a tour of France with Prince Philip in May, 1948.

She refused to listen to any suggestion that the tour should be canceled. "They have made their arrangements," she said, "and we cannot let them down."

Paris gave them a tumultuous reception. Parisians in thousands lined the streets, hailed her as "La Belle Princesse" and declared that she was the best ambassadress Britain had ever sent to France. They were particularly delighted to hear her speak excellent French, fluently, clearly, with hardly a trace of English accent.

Princess Elizabeth was as happy as the crowds and much flattered by their ovation. Nevertheless, it was an exhausting round of appearances for her at such a time.

Pomp and ceremony in a Princess's own country are familiar ground to her; but abroad there is a certain strangeness. In Paris the people wanted to see the Royal couple everywhere, against every background in the city.

Tim Holds Hans For Win In Main Tussle Using The "Irish Sleeper"

The good guys won. Timothy Geohagen pinned Hans Hermann in seven minutes of the final round of the main tag team mat bout at the Brock last night with his "Irish sleeper" to send a slim crowd home happy. It gave Tim and his partner, Bobo Brazil, the top bout over the villainous duo of Hermann and the Red Mask, after each had won a fall in a lively bout.

Tim got Hans with his special grip after several hard slams, as well as some earlier cocoa conks by Bobo—declared illegal all of a sudden by a bewildered Referee Sam Gotter, who had let Brazil do the same thing in the second round. It was a lively session with the villains at times hitting each other by mistake and having their heads bumped hard together once as human battering rams. The fans loved it.

BOBO WINS

Bobo beat the Mask in 13 minutes to even the bout up in the second stanza of the main go. He did it with a standing shoulder spread just after a series of bonks to the beano and a drop kick to the chops. Tim helped soften up the husky hooded one with a lot of strong-man holds, despite corner villainy at every opportunity of Hans and the red gent. The German didn't do too much actual ring work, preferring to strut around and let his partner take the bumps, but they really worked on first Bobo and then Tim at times in the villains' corner. Referee Gotter was too busy chasing Tim or Bobo to a neutral corner to notice their corner teamwork.

The Mask, at 251 pounds, downed the 250-pound Negro in 14 minutes for the first fall. Tim scaled but 226 to Hans 274 but made up for it with some fine muscular work. The Mask got Bobo with a punishing leglock, the pair working on Brazil's leg hard in the corner and then the Mask kicking, pounding and twisting it in the centre of the mat till Bobo was helpless. It was pretty open grappling but they roughed it too much and the referee appeared blind as a barn full of bats and deaf to the warning shouts of the crowd. It was an unpopular fall, and the grapplers mixed it briefly after the bell, all slaving in the ring during the rest intermission.

PAT PINS JAN

Pat Flanagan, bumping the beam at 231 pounds, pinned the 232-pound Jan Gotch in 22 minutes with a reverse standing full leg nelson. In other words he survived a battering of head butts to the be—to the midriff—to suddenly surprise the rough Jan and run his legs (Pat's, that is) up under the ducking Jan's shoulders, entwine them and flip him over so he was standing on his shoulders for the count. It was applauded by the few hundred fans as popular Pat took a bit of beating earlier by his hard-hitting and hair-pulling rival. They started cleanly enough but Jan reverted to form shortly to mix it hard against the flying Irishman.

In the prelim, both Abe Zvonkin, going 235, and big Bill Stack, scaling 241, were counted out of the ring in 19 minutes for a draw. Zvonkin played it rough from the start, using the ropes for leverage, among other tricks, in a fairly lively joust which saw both men slugging hard at times with closed fists. Abe yanked hair and Bill's appeals to the ref to stop it were of no avail. Stack chased his tormentor around and later cuffed him plenty but the ex-gridder got his big opponent down by yanking his trunks. Stack punished him for that with a tough stepover toe-hold, and they battled right out of the ring, finally to be counted out.

Rookie's No-Hitter "Biggest Thrill"

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Husky Alva "Bobo" Holloman, who twirled a no-hitter here Wednesday night in his first major league start, said "this is the biggest thrill of my life."

"Were you nervous, Bobo?"

"Just in the ninth," he replied. "That was the toughest one."

Holloman said he was throwing change ups and curves, mixing his last ball in with them in the ninth inning.

The last man he faced was Eddie Robinson.

On the first pitch Robinson swung and missed. He fouled off the next two pitches and then flied to Vic Wertz in right field to end the game.

Holloman said he threw Robinson a curve on the last pitch.

"He pulled my curve ball foul so I gave him another one."

Flashy fielding plays assisted Holloman earn his no-hitter.

Guelph Leafs May Lose Cleveland Southpaw

GUELPH (CP)—Guelph maple Leafs of the intercounty Senior Baseball League may have to get along without the services of southpaw pitcher Jackie Bowes this season.

Cleveland Indians, who paid Bowes a bonus to turn professional in 1951, have advised the Maple Leafs they won't permit him to go on the voluntarily retired list.

Bowes ran up a 7-3 record with the Maple Leafs in 1951.

Maxim-Moore Match Scheduled For June 24

OGDEN, Utah (AP)—Champion Archie Moore will meet challenger Joey Maxim in a light heavyweight fight in Ogden June 24, co-promoter Al Warden announced Wednesday.

Warden said the last obstacle was cleared when arrangements were made to provide equipment to televise the fight over a country-wide hookup.

Dutchies Whip Penticton For Allan Cup

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP)—The Allan Cup, Canada's trophy symbolizing Canadian senior amateur hockey supremacy, is back in Kitchener after an absence of 35 years.

Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen Wednesday night won the cup by defeating Penticton Vs 5-0 and taking the best-of-seven finals 4-1. The last time Kitchener held the trophy was in 1918.

It was a hard-fought victory for the 1952-53 champions. The Dutchies finished in third place in their Ontario Hockey Association senior A series and swept aside Stratford Indians in five games in the series semi-finals. It took them six games to win the OHA title from Owen Sound Mercurys, last year's cup winners.

The stretch drive was the hardest. They were forced to go the seven-game limit to down Sudbury Wolves in the all-Ontario series and Smiths Falls Rideaus for the Eastern Canada title.

LIST FIRST TWO

Penticton arrived in the Allan Cup finals after only two years in organized hockey. Plagued with injuries, the Vs lost the first two games 5-2 and 8-3.

Then they suffered the heaviest blow. Their regular goalie, Ivan McClelland was forced out of the series with an injured hand. Coach Bill Carse asked the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association for permission to use Bobbie Gillson of Owen Sound. Permission was granted and Gillson brought some life into the series in the third game when he held back the Dutchmen to give the Vs a 2-1 victory, their only one of the series.

The Dutchmen filed a formal protest with the CAHA over the use of Gillson, but an airmail vote among the hockey executive confirmed the original decision. Kitchener returned with a vengeance in the fourth game Monday night and whipped the western representatives 5-3.

DUDLEY GIVES CUP

George Dudley, CAHA secretary-manager, presented the cup to Kitchener's captain Clare Martin. After the ceremony the fans formed a victory parade and wound up at the city hall. The players were carried in open cars and thousands of hockey fans followed on foot.

The series was one of the most successful financially ever held. A total of 36,674 fans jammed Kitchener's new auditorium during the five games.

Coach Bob Rafferty said after the game: "Those boys really came through for me, every one of them."

Carse remarked: "They had the script all written for this series before we ever got here. They (Kitchener) have a fine team, they're better than ours but what can you do against refereeing like that."

RAPS OFFICIATING

The officiating of Vic Lindquist and Lorne Linden, both of Winnipeg, was a sore spot with Carse throughout the series.

The Bobby Schnurr, Doug Verity, Maurice Leveque line gave Kitchener its final victory. They scored three of the five goals, including the two big ones in the first period.

Verity scored the first goal and Leveque, playing with his right shoulder frozen, due to an earlier injury, potted the second.

The winners' third goal came off Jack McKenzie. Charlie Brooker counted the fourth and then Leveque scored his second and the final of the night at 19:34.

OASA Group Insurance Covers Softballers

HAMILTON (CP)—Applications went out Wednesday to the more than 2,000 teams in the Ontario Amateur Softball Association, as the OASA group insurance scheme got under way.

Every coach, player or official signing a certificate and paying $1 will be eligible for participation in the group plan if all players on each team sign. The largest sports group plan ever underwritten, it will cover more than 35,800 players in amateur softball in Canada, up to $100.

King George Wins

King George juniors took a 16-14 school softball victory over Confederation yesterday on the formers' diamond. They scored two each the first two frames, three next time up and finished strong with nine runs. The losers got seven in the second, four in the third and added three in their last time to bat. Teams:

Confederation: Rex, Doleman, Hewie, Bosak, Howland, MacLellan, Brooks, Jackson, Westwood.

King George: Cullen, Munro, Davis, Eakins, Jamieson, James, Humphries, Barker, Sutherland.

Grove Victorious

Grove seniors triumphed 16-12 yesterday over King Edward on the latter's grounds in school softball play. After tallying three markers in the initial inning, they blasted in nine next time up, scoring two more in the third and fourth. King Edward counted two in the first, five in the second, then three, and one more in the fifth. Teams:

Grove: Patterson, Copping, Griffin, Wood, Simmons, Merrett, Casey, Bailey, Heard.

King Edward: W. Rowe, Simmons, Hedges, Tushingham, Jones, King, Heard, Warner, Waldie, R. Rowe, Walling, Beggs.

SPORT CORNER

We note an item where plans for a true championship North American canoe meet were made recently in Montreal and the CCA decided to see about a meet at Ottawa or Toronto on Aug. 9. The Canadian championships will be held July 31 and Aug. 1 in Ottawa at Mooney's Bay. Probably this information is of little interest to people here, but we feel there should be more interest shown in the home of the noted Peterborough canoe. We can readily recall when Little Lake of an evening or weekend in the summer was dotted with paddlers and canoes, and we frequently knelt in one, too. Not so many canoes seen hereabouts now, motorboats taking over in this machine age.

Oshawa scribe says: "The Red Raiders are likely to get a financial injection of worthwhile proportion within the next few weeks, once their accountant has an opportunity to straighten out their books and present same to the 'angel' for his perusal. This rather completely spikes the rumor that the Raiders won't be operating this year. Another rumor, to wit: Jack Wedley would be coaching the Peterborough Orfuns, is vigorously denied also by the local executive. 'Jack will definitely be here,' they say. So the bright weather is very bright for the football enthusiasts of this city." We're glad to hear that Raiders will be back in our grouping. Officials here weren't too interested in Wedley's application to coach the Orfuns. 6

OLA-ers On Free List

Players not registered with senior lacrosse clubs by last Saturday, according to a new rule, are free agents. Seven are on that free list now: George Masters, Chuck Simpson, Archie Dixon, Red Hartley, Doug and Grant Gillespie and Merv McKenzie. We hear via Bun Morganson that Jack Kapasky is going great guns in exhibitions with West Yorks, and that club is said to have added Johnny Chabria and Gord Rush of Orillia. Joe Whitnall is with Hamilton. Brampton is banking on some ex-juniors to round out the roster, Mimico will use several youngsters, and Fergus obtained Bill Allum from Owen Sound. St. Kitts added Coach Doug Cove, goalie Doug Favelle of Hamilton, and Derry Davies of Mimico. Petes open in Orillia this Saturday night and have Mimico here the following Thursday.

Meeting is Tuesday when certificates will be handed out, insurance details checked, and plans made for the big twin bill opener May 21. Lot of prizes up, ducats being on sale now. The loop will go two nights a week in double-headers again with playoffs in August. Four umpires have been named: Cliff Smith, Pat Calladine, Arn Olmstead and Bill Leggitt. Meantime, the teams are rapidly signing up their players and working out for the keen race ahead. Looks like some large evenings for fans at Ashburnham Bowl this semester.

Bobo Used His Cocoa

Those rough wrestlers, Hunnish Hans Hermann and the ribald Red Mask, got their come-uppance along the Rue Brock last p.m. somewhere about 10.30 of the clock, DST. An indignant Irisher named Tim Geohagen and a towering colored chap called Bobo Brazil defeated 'em in the main mat bout and did it most decisively. Even sleep-walking Referee Sammy Gotter couldn't find anything wrong with the final fall and had to pat (albeit reluctantly) the brawny back of strong Timothy as he cuddled the relaxed form of the Mask in the "Irish sleeper" grip. The fans liked the finish. Pat Flanagan won the semi-final o'er Jan Gotch, while Bill Stack and Abe Zvonkin drew in the prelim.

Bill McMaster is back after a successful puck season in Scotland. Two of the clubs over there are after him for next winter. Incidentally, we saw a sharp item in an English publication the other day which said in part: "Those imported Canadians who come over to Britain every year would be better employed as prizefighters. Most of them are unable to get a place in the minor leagues on the other side. To say that these chaps play hockey to perfection is utter nonsense. The only way to fill the ice rinks during matches is to get rid of the hooligan element in the game for a start. Give English younsters coaching and plenty of ice time and they will soon be able to take their place alongside their Canadian cousins. Of all the homebred players in Britain, none can compare with the Scots." Hm, the writer mustn't care for bodychecking.

Lehman Pitches Two-Hitter To Dump Leafs

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Lefty Ken Lehman, who served with the American army in Korea before he returned to baseball last season, still has all his pitching skill.

He proved this Wednesday night in Toronto, stopping the Maple Leafs cold with a sharp two-hitter and leading Montreal Royals to a 4-1 International Baseball League victory over their arch rivals.

The win was the third in as many starts for the left-hander, with Brooklyn Dodgers of the National League and St. Paul Saints of the American Association last year. Lehman struck out seven men and allowed only four bases on balls.

First baseman Rocky Nelson gave Lehman a hand with a bases-loaded double in the ninth that brought home three runs.

ALLOWS SIX

Stubby Overmire, also a lefty, went the route for the Leafs, allowing six safeties. Toronto's only run came when lead-off man Mike Goliat slammed a round-tripper in the second inning.

Rochester Red Wings moved into first place with a 9-4 victory over Ottawa Athletics in a game marred by seven errors, six by Ottawa. Montreal and Toronto are second and third, respectively. Only percentage points separate the three teams.

Bobby Tiefenauer, a right-hander who took over in the fourth from rookie Floyd Melliere, was credited with the victory. Lefty Vince Gohl, first of three Ottawa hurlers, suffered the loss.

Syracuse Chiefs, who won their last six games from Baltimore in 1952, resumed the string with a 7-6 victory over the Orioles. Jack Griffore, last of three Syracuse hurlers, was credited with the win.

The tail-end Springfield Cubs made their third victory of the season a good one. They scored eight times in the third inning and went on to crush Buffalo Bisons 10-0. Young Don Elston subdued Buffalo with a fine four-hitter.

Middlesex Batsman Hits 110 Runs

LONDON (Reuters)—Jack Robertson of Middlesex hit a fine 110 runs off Cambridge University bowlers in less than four hours Wednesday, with the help of some weak Cambridge fielding.

Denis Compton took a 56 towards the Middlesex total of 334 for eight declared. Cambridge managed 14 runs for no wickets before stumps were drawn.

In the only country championship match starting wednesday, Gloucestershire wicket-keeper A.E. Wilson caught six Hampshire batsmen to equal the county record. Wilson, 40, is having his benefit season. Hampshire tallied 290 runs; Gloucestershire replied with 64 for no wickets.

Close of play scores in first-class cricket:

Australian tourists 298 for five vs. Yorkshire.

MCC 150, Surrey 125 for five.

Oxford University 193, Lancashire 27 for no wicket.

Middlesex 334 for eight declared, Cambridge University 14 for no wicket.

Hampshire 290, Gloucestershire 64 for no wicket.

Fire Sweeps Pro Shop At Toronto Golf Club

TORONTO (CP)—Fire that swept through the locker and pro shop of Thornhill Golf and Country Club Wednesday night destroyed an estimated $60,000 worth of equipment. Between 300 and 400 sets of clubs were lost, along with other equipment, officials said.

Club pro Joe Noble lost all his equipment. Bill Richardson and Morty Charles, assistant pros who lived over the shop, were driven out of their quarters by the flames.

ALS SIGN MOROCCO

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Alouettes announced Wednesday the signing of Tony (Zippy) Morocco, from the University of Georgia, to a Big Four football contract. Morocco is described as a smart pass-receiver and punt-return man. He was assistant coach to Wally Butts at Georgia last season.

Saunders Wins Third Title As Canadian Heavy

By W. R. WHEATLEY

MONTREAL (CP) — Big Jim Saunders of Winnipeg, only 1952 champion to return to the Canadian amateur boxing tournament this year, breezed through to his third national heavyweight title Wednesday night in the 10-bout finals that produced six out-of-town winners and four from Montreal.

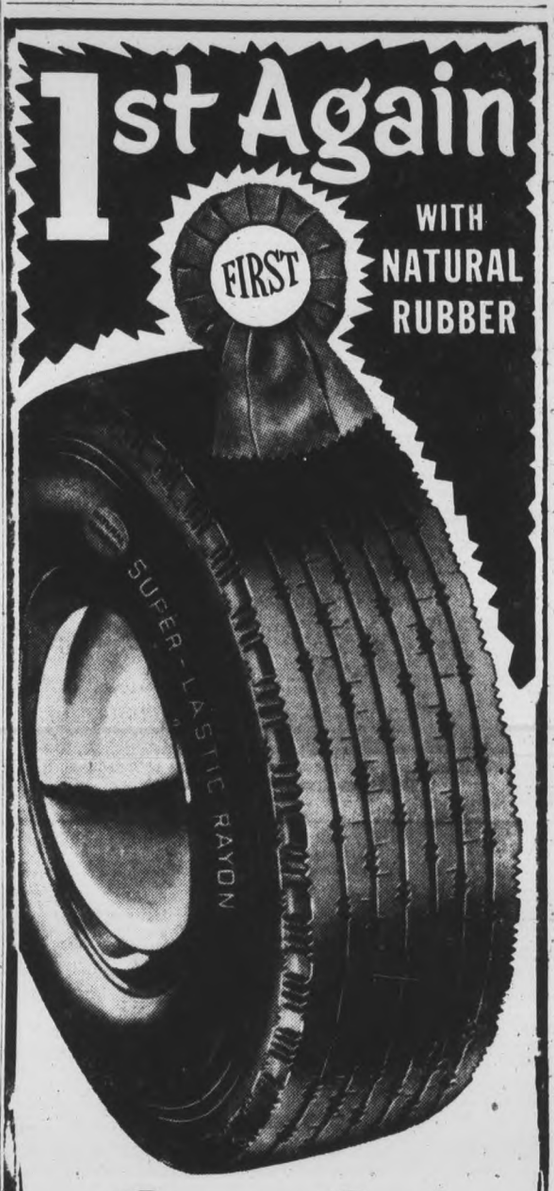
Three of the new champions are from Winnipeg. A neighboring battler from St. Boniface, Man., was eliminated earlier. Two Halifax fighters won championship medals. A third, now fighting out of Vancouver, lost in a final but a Vancouver boy, Des Archer, came through winner.

Three of the four Montreal winners fought against fellow-townsmen in the finals. The seven local finalists were all that were left of 24 Montrealers in the starting entry list of 52 three nights ago.

Saunders' win over Lee Donnison of Regina, last bout on the card, was a technical knockout at 2:37 of the third round. There wasn't even a knockdown in any of the nine other bouts although a couple of the boys were in wobbly shape when their scraps ended.

Gerry-Boucher, little 112-pounder of Vancouver and formerly of Halifax, stormed about the ring in high dudgeon when the decision went against him. When he climbed down he shook his fist at the crowd, made a move toward one of the judges, then headed for a spectator in the third ringside row and was pulled back by his handlers before he stalked out of the gym.

A roar of approval for the best fight of the night turned into a concert of boos when Paul Cnyzy of Winnipeg was given the decision over Lloyd Lawrence of Toronto in the 156-pound class.



Elmer Gelzins of Hamilton damaged his hand when he landed a hard right on Trent Ketcheson of Halifax in the first round, found it of little use thereafter, lost the decision in the 165-pound bout and was sent to hospital to have the hand X-rayed.

The heavyweight final was a one-sided affair from the start. Donnison gave away 47 pounds to Saunders, weighing 177 to Big Jim's 224, but elected the heavyweight class for the tournament instead of the 178-pound division.

Jim patiently followed the backpedalling Donnison, thumping him with rights and lefts to the body. In the final round a couple of lusty rights sent Donnison to his knees for an eight count. A booming right and a jolting left brought the end, referee Leo Fisher halting the bout.

Rookie Hurls 6-0 No-Hitter In First Major League Game

By BEN PHLEGAR, Associated Press Sports Writer

Bobo Holloman of St. Louis Browns pitched a no-hitter in his first Major League start Wednesday night. The big test now will be whether he can survive it. Holloman, a fun-loving Georgian nicknamed after the last Brownie hurler to pitch a no-hitter, jumped from low man in the bullpen to pitching glory in nine hitless innings against Philadelphia Athletics. He faced 31 men. Five of them walked and one reached first on Holloman's own error. St. Louis won 6-0.

The big 27-year-old righthander now will have to skip the jinx that befell the last pitcher who opened his major league starting career with a hitless performance.

In 1892 Charley Jones brode in with Cincinnati with a no-hitter against Pittsburgh, although Pittsburgh scored one run. Jones won only one other major league game and was out of the big leagues in 1894.

Bobo Newson was the last Brownie hurler to pitch a no-hitter and he lost the game.

Holloman drove in three of the St. Louis runs on a pair of singles.

TIGERS WIN 8-4

In other major league activity Wednesday, Detroit defeated Washington 8-4 nd Chicago stopped Boston 6-2 in the American League. Brooklyn whipped St. Louis 7-3 and New York overcame Chicago 8-5 in National League games.

Cleveland and New York weren't scheduled in the American League while rain halted the other two National League games. Philadelphia was leading Cincinnati 2-0 when the game was postponed after 2½ innings. Milwaukee and Pittsburgh were tied 1-1 after three innings when the weather intervened.

Billy Pierce of the White Sox won his fourth game of the year as he set down the Red Sox on six hits. A pinch-hit home run by Del Wilber with a runner on base cost him a shutout.

Ned Garver won his second straight for Detroit after three early season setbacks, scattering 10 Washington hits and driving in two of the Tigers' eight runs on a homer in the eighth inning.

CARDS PROTEST

Brooklyn, where "rhubarb" was first applied to a baseball argument, had another one. St. Louis finished the game under protest after a sixth inning set-to during when Cardinal manager Eddie Stanky and catcher Del Rice were chased from the park for arguing with umpire Jocko Conlan.

Conlan nad waved Jackie Robinson home from third base after a collision with Cardinal shortstop Solly Hemus. Hemus sprawled head first in the baseline, diving for a drive off the bat of Roy Campanella. Robinson, running from second, collided with him and fell. Conlan ruled Hemus had obstructed the base runner.

Gil Hodges set a Dodger lifetime record for home runs as he hit his 140th four-bagger. Duke Snider also hit a homer. Rookie Ray Jablonski hit two for the Cards who got only five hits off Carl Erskine.

The Giants battered six Chicago pitchers for 15 hits as they handed the Cubs their seventh straight loss. The victory moved the Giants up to sixth place and pushed the Cubs down to seventh.

N.Y. Rangers To Train In Western Canada

GUELPH (CP)—New York Rangers of the National Hockey League, who have held their training camp in Guelph for the last two years, are planning to shift to a western site next fall, probably Saskatoon or Vancouver.

This was made known Wednesday in a letter from Rangers' manager Frank Boucher to Howard Radford, manager of Guelph Memorial Gardens. Boucher said the switch has already been worked out and needs only the approval of Gen. John Reed Kilpatrick, head of Madison Square Garden, to make it official.

Boucher was reported dissatisfied with the small attendance for Rangers' exhibition games here last fall.

They'll Do It Every Time — By Jimmy Hatlo

Flyers Paste Canadiens 6-1 To Capture Memorial Cup

WINNIPEG (CP)—A superior crew of Barrie Flyers captured the Memorial Cup Wednesday night as they pasted St. Boniface Canadiens 6-1 in a hot, fight-spattered hockey game.

The fifth and final game of the best-of-seven Canadian junior final mixed up with a heat wave, short-tempered players and fans and a visit from the stork.

Barrie showed top form in the first three games, downing the Canadiens 6-4, 6-3 and 7-5. Flyer coach Hap Emms, however, had been complaining when he stepped off the train and didn't stop until he walked into the Canadiens' dressing room after the game to say all was forgiven.

St. Boniface raised western hopes Monday when they played inspired hockey to down the surprised Flyers 7-4 in the fourth game.

WORST REFEREEING

Emms claimed his team was more inundated than beaten as a western heat wave reduced the ice in the Winnipeg Amphitheatre to luke-warm water. Emms said the refereeing in the fourth game was the worst he had ever seen and called the Winnipeg rink a barn.

Jim Robertson led the Flyers Wednesday with two goals and Doug Mohns, Ralph Willis, Orv Tessier and Don Cherry scored the others. Leo Konyk scored the single goal for St. Boniface.

What the hockey lacked in excitement was made up by flying fists in the crowd and on the ice. The squabble began when Barrie's Skip Teal skated to the St. Boniface bench in the second period and, in answer to a verbal raspberry, invited any player to come down and fight. Billy Short complied and both received penalties including a major to Short for leaving the bench.

TWO MIX IT

Later in the period Orv Tessier and Gary Blaine mixed it near the St. Boniface net and before the officials halted the battle, 11 players from both teams including goalie Hal Dalkie were involved and four major penalties were handed out.

Although the temperature in the rink climbed to 75 degrees during the game and some water appeared in the third period, the ice surface was not soft. Both teams were short a player as Tony Poeta of Barrie and Bob Jason of Canadiens sat it out with injuries

Coach Bryan Hextall of the Canadiens, who gave Barrie credit as the better team after the game, was not entirely a loser. Hextall's wife presented him with a baby boy during the day.

Harry Foxton, president of the Manitoba Amateur Hockey League, presented the Memorial Cup to captain Don McKenney of the Flyers in a centre-ice ceremony after the game.

Baseball Veteran Dies

LONDON, Ky. (AP)—James Tilford Jones, former major league baseball player, died Wednesday after suffering a heart attack. Jones, 74, had been in ill health for some time. He started his baseball career with a team at Louisville and went from there to New York Giants. He played with that team in 1902 and 1903 when he joined Cleveland Indians.

SET DAVIS CUP TIE DATE

MONTREAL (CP)—The Canadian Lawn Tennis Association announced Wednesday night that the North American Davis Cup tie between Mexico and Canada will be held at the Mount Royal Tennis club here July 17, 18, and 19.

An official of the association said Mexico agreed to play here after Canada extended an invitation. Mexico had the option of deciding where the tie would be held.

The official said the association will hold some sort of trial to give younger Canadian players a chance. However, Lorne Main of Toronto, and formerly of Vancouver, and Montrealers Brendan Macken and Henri Rochon appear the likely candidates to make this year's squad. All were members of the 1952 team.

NAME PARK FOR UMPIRE

ST. THOMAS (CP)—The Pinafore Park grounds will be renamed Emslie Field in honor of the late Robert D. Emslie, former dean of National Baseball League umpires. City council Tuesday night approved the move and mayor T. H. Currah Wednesday headed a committee to confer with the baseball association on a date for the ceremony.

JONQUIERE IN JAHA

MONTREAL (CP)—The Junior Amateur Hockey Association announced Wednesday that Jonquiere in the Lake St. John district, has been admitted to membership. It will be sponsored by Loisirs de Jonquiere, a sports organization. Approval for the Jonquiere entry was given by Canadiens and Royals of Montreal and the Reds of Trois-Rivieres.

She went on to win other firsts to become intermediate champion. Terry Fitzpatrick (centre) seems to have his left leg cut off at the knee, but he used both legs to advantage in the dashes to win the senior boys' championship. Jim Ayotte (right) clears the bar in the high jump to pick off first place in that junior event. —(Examiner Staff Photos).

Saunders Wins

Before the fight, Saunders said this was his last amateur appearance as he was turning pro. He previously won the heavyweight title in 1949 and 1952.

Little Pete Kawulia of Winnipeg hammered out a win over Fernand Paradis of Montreal in the 125-pound class, beating Paradis to the punch and rocking him with rights.

Freddie Deegan of Halifax gave Maxie Saunders of Montreal, a rugged, crowding fighter, too much leeway in the first round but came back with smarter boxing and damaging uppercuts to take the 132-pound title.

Vancouver's Des Archer had the best left jab of any boxer on the card and this was the deciding factor in his 147-pound fight with Danny Saunders of Hamilton.

Remember When

Laborites Claim Gain In Boroughs

LONDON (Reuters)—The Labor party today claimed a net gain of 77 seats thus far in Britain's week of local elections.

This gain, party officials said, has given Labor control of eight councils previously dominated by the Conservatives. At the same time, however, Labor admitted losing control of four other councils.

At stake are seats on councils everywhere from the metropolitan boroughs of London to little Scottish villages. Main interest is in today's voting which will decide 1,400 seats in the London area and 3,200 elsewhere in the country.

The outcome has already been decided in 796 local councils with a total turnover of more than 4,000 seats.

Local issues usually influence the voting, though many voters stick to their national political parties. Both major parties and the Liberals make rival claims for the support of hundreds of candidates who stand and are elected as independents.

Title Stays

BATLEY, England (CP)—The Shoddy and Mungo Manufacturers Association will retain its name, it was decided by the people who make shoddy—a cloth made of recovered woollen materials.

Book Shows Legal Purchase

A charge of having liquor not acquired under regulations of the LCA against Edward Crandall of Belleville was dismissed in Magistrate's Court this morning after Crandall submitted his liquor book proving the legal purchase of two 26-ounce exhibits.

The charge was laid after police visited Crandall's room in a Peterborough hotel April 2. According to testimony by PC Bert Howden, two partially filled bottles were found in the room.

Crandall was unable to produce a permit at the time and told the officers it was in his car. A search of the auto failed to uncover the permit.

The permit turned up in court, however, showing the legal purchase of the bottles, and the charge was dismissed.

War On Skeeters

Farm Scientists Find Mite Bears Wheat Disease Virus

LETHBRIDGE (CP) — Another triumph has been scored by Canada's agricultural scientists with the discovery that streak mosaic, a virus wheat disease, is spread by a specific type of mite.

Dr. John T. Slykhuis, plant pathologist at the Dominion science service laboratories here, identified th insect as the virus carrier while working last year in southern Alberta wheat fields. It has seldom been found in Western Canada.

The disease with its microscopic living organisms break down life-giving chlorophyll in a plant, gradually transforming it into stunted yellow straw. The first sign is a faint yellowish-green stripe or mottling on young green leaves.

DANGEROUS BLIGHT

The streaks become more distinctly yellow to white in color and often the entire leaf dies. Sterility, poor filling of heads with resultant losses in yield and quality make the virus a dangerous blight for grain growers.

The known story of streak mosaic in southern Alberta started last summer shortly after Dr. Slykhuis arrived here from South Dakota State College at Brookings. It is possible it went undetected in previous years.

The virus did serious damage in Kansas four years ago, ranking as the state's most serious wheat disease. It has occurred in the U.S. winter wheat belt with varying severity each year since. However, what is thought to have been streak mosaic was reported in the winter wheat belt 30 years ago.

While in Brookings, Dr. Slykhuis discovered a new virus in winter wheat which was labelled "striate mosaic." A week after his arrival here he found streak mosaic in both winter and spring wheat crops. Several fields were plowed under because of extensive damage.

Last October, Dr. Slykhuis, a native of Carlyle, Sask., and a graduate of the Universities of Saskatchewan and Toronto, found a mite carried the blight.

IDENTIFIED AS MITTES

He had been studying thrips as one of the many possible carriers but found plants sheltered by mesh too fine for thrips to get through still contacted the disease. Examination of one of these plants showed tiny, pale creatures with four legs. The laboratory soon identified them as mites, distinct from insects which have six legs.

Putting the finger on the mite didn't solve all the problems. There roughly are 200 kinds. Dr. H. H. Keifer, entomologist at Sacramento, Calif., narrowed the search down to the eriophyidae family of four-legged mites Most have eight legs.

This was further broken down to the aceria genus and the tulipae species, so called because of some dubious relationship to tulip diseases.

The mite was tabbed the carrier after tests in the laboratory here. The experiments seemed to show the mites also transmit a disease which causes leaf discoloration similar to streak mosaic but which actually isn't the same thing.

Dr. Slykhuis says the virus can be disastrous if most of a farmer's crop is in winter wheat. He recommends winter wheat be planted in mid-September and spring wheat sown early as possible. Barley and oats can be infected but not seriously. Rye is exceptionally resistant.

The laboratory now is working to develop grain types hardy enough t resist the mite and its virus. There may be no need for this if p'anting time changes prove successful.

KILLS CHILDREN—The deaths of Mrs. Adele Holmes, 36, and her four children were called murder and suicide by police. They said the wife of a Toronto truck driver left a note addressed to her husband which said: "Bill: Mom said you'd be better off without me. I love you too much to spoil your life. Sell out and go away. You'll have a chance now to get out of debt. It was wonderful to have you love me. God forgive me, Bill. Your mom struck me and I struck her back. I'm sorry. They'll be glad to be rid of me because you're mine now."

Canadians In Korea To Get U.S. Army's New-Style Jeeps

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

IN KOREA (CP) — Canadian units here are scheduled to receive the United States army's new-style jeeps and 2½-ton trucks, the 25th Canadian infantry brigade has been informed.

Eighth army headquarters has told the brigade that it will be "phased unto" the change-over from old to new-style vehicles as part of the Korea theatre's overall program.

Actual switch is expected to take place during the summer, and autumn, brigade staff officers say.

The turned-in vehicles, after reconditioning in U.S. Army workshops in Japan, will be reissued to Korean Army units.

For certain types of equipment, and rations, the Canadians here have been in the American pipeline. It was not considered practicable or economical, when the force was set up in 1950, to establish a Canadian pipline for so small a formation.

SECURING OF PARTS

The problem was to maintain not only a flow of vehicles to replace those knocked out in action or damaged in accidents, but parts to service those in operation.

It was almost a foregone conclusion, when the theatre change-over was decided, that the Canadians, too, would make the switch.

The new jeep has many refinements suggestive of civilian vehicles, a longer wheel-base affording more foot room in the rear, and a moulded hood that gives it a dressier look.

Major difference in the truck is that it is hydraulically driven, has a more comfortable cab for the driver, and also is generally better looking.

The theatre program is to effect the switch from the base forward. During the last two months most base and lines-of-communications units have drawn theirs.

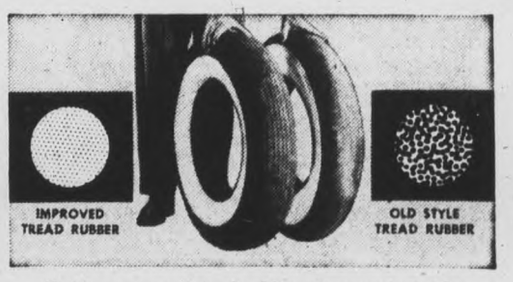
But now Goodyear brings you the miracle strength, amazing safety of an All-Nylon cord tire . . . for only a few dollars more than a standard tire.

All-Nylon cords mean greater sidewall strength—longer tire life—greater freedom from blowout worries.

NEW TREAD RUBBER, TOO! UP TO 21% MORE MILEAGE!



This new All-Nylon Cord Super-Cushion tire features a newly developed tread rubber that actually gives you as much as 21% more mileage than old style tread rubber!

"Brick Bat" test fails to break All-Nylon Cord Super-Cushion at 8,560 lbs!

An ordinary brick was mounted on this hydraulic press, then slammed into a Goodyear All-Nylon Cord Super-Cushion with a force of 8,560 lbs. The tread was driven clear down to the rim, but the tough, All-Nylon cord body bounced back without a break! A tire with standard cords broke at 4,040 lbs! All-Nylon's extra strength means longer tire life, greater safety against impact blowouts.

Tests prove new tread rubber gives up to 21% more nonskid mileage!

Both tires above—an All-Nylon Cord Super-Cushion (left) and an ordinary tire—were driven the same distance. But, because of a new development in carbon-black—an agent used to toughen rubber—the All-Nylon Cord Super-Cushion tread still has thousands of miles of safe, nonskid driving left! This new Super-Cushion actually gives you as much as an extra 1,000 miles for every 5,000 you get with an ordinary tire!

Miracle-Strength All-Nylon Cord Super-Cushion gives smooth comfort on roughest roads!

Lighter, stronger Nylon cords flex easily, smoothly, safely—cushion the shocks you get with some other tires. And because All-Nylon cord tires run cooler and are as much as 80% stronger than other tires, they are ideal for today's faster driving, higher powered cars.

See your Goodyear Dealer today! Although he may not have your tire size right now, because of a limited supply of Nylon cord, he will gladly accept your order for future delivery.

Baby Drowns In Sink

BALTIMORE (AP)—A four-week-old baby girl died in an inch of water in a kitchen sink Tuesday after her mother fainted while giving her a bath. Mrs. Martin Whitehill told police it must have been two hours later when she came to.

Leading Trombone Soloist Maisie Ringham To Visit

Recognized internationally as one of the best women trombone players in the world, Mrs. Maisie Wiggins, a Salvation Army soldier from Sheffield Citadel, England, will play here in Peterborough May 21. She is known professionally as Maisie Ringham.

The occasion will be the combined spring and coronation festival of the Peterborough branch of the Salvation Army. The Temple Band and Temple Songsters will also take part.

Peterborough will be one of Maisie Ringham's stops while on a Canadian tour.

Maisie Ringham's press notices are all in superlatives. She is the only professional woman symphony trombone player in England. In April, 1951, she was the soloist in the Halle concert at Sheffield and gave the first performance in England of the "Fantasy for Trombone" by the United States composer, Paul Creston. Rudolph Schwarz was conductor at the time but later Maisie Ringham broadcast this work on the BBC Third Program, Sir John Barbarolli conducting.

For five years Maisie Ringham has been principal trombone player in the Halle orchestra under Sir John, having already held the position of sub-principal trombone player for the two previous years.

She has toured Austria, Belgium, Holland and Portugal and will tour Rhodesia in June.

Pay for carpenters now will be $1.80 an hour and for masons $2 an hour.

Dummy Bomb Strikes

WALTHAM, Mass. (AP) — A missile that plummeted Wednesday through the roof and three storeys of a dwelling—narrowly missing a housewife—was identified as a two-pound army practise bomb. An army ordnance expert said the bomb "was not capable of exploding." Mrs. Maria Rosa Murabito, 60, told police the bomb landed on her kitchen floor only two feet from where she was washing clothes.

Obedience In Children Not Always Best Course

The part obedience plays in life and mental health was outlined Wednesday night by Miss Isabel Laird before the Peterborough Mental Health Association which met in Queen Mary School.

Many occasions arise when one must be obedient, the speaker said. Obedience plays its part in legal situations, medical advice, emergencies, games and sports and natural, physical law.

Similarly, situations might arise where disobedience might be exercised. These include times when one is faced with conflicting laws or rules, when a person has personal convictions, in keeping foolishly-made vows and promises and when faced with social standards which might impede progress.

When a child is inclined to disobey the rules of a game, Miss Laird said, the question may be raised: "Is the child old enough to follow the rules?" If so, they should be followed; if not, change the game.

AIDS MENTAL HEALTH

In keeping natural laws, a person goes a long way toward the goal of mental health. An example of natural law is seen in sewage disposal. Badly done, it may breed disease.

Disobedience in the case of social laws spells progress, the speaker pointed out. If laws were followed, generation after generation, then there would be no progress.

Parents might expect disobedience of a child. In a younger person, disobedience is a way of displaying the finding of new ways of independence.

One of the most important values in disobedience is for those who are disobeyed, the people in a position of commanding and demanding. As the most valuable form of information is conversation and since conversation has a minimum of commands, less commanding and more conversation will lead to improved mental health.

LAGGING BEHIND GADGETS

In this modern age, Miss Laird told her audience, our mental health is not keeping up with the new gadgets. Gadgets bring new problems; some solutions mark improvement of mental health; others do not. The speaker illustrated this and other remarks with examples from everyday life.

In conclusion, she extended greetings to the local association from the Canadian Mental Health Association, the Ontario division and the World League which she represents.

Chinese Let Wounded Back To Lines After Attack

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

IN KOREA (CP) — Grenade-throwing Chinese staged a savage assault on Canadian positions at night and then at dawn looked on without firing as the Canadians brought their wounded to safety.

That was the pattern of unpredictable Chinese behavior last week-end when two battalions of the Reds assaulted the lines of the Royal Canadian Regiment's 3rd battalion, inflicting at least 62 casualties.

The Chinese swarmed over the pouches of grenades and tossed them into the ranks of the Canadians. But there were several confirmed instances of Chinese medical orderlies dressing the wounds of Canadian soldiers and giving them water.

CANADIAN VICTORY

Analysis of the battle credited gunners of the 81st Field Regiment of the Royal Canadian Artillery with a victory over the Chinese troops.

The Red attempt to seize vital territory was beaten off by the gunners and troops of the RCRs, all of them in the line only 13 days.

The attack was the strongest the Canadians had been called on to repulse since the Chinese attacked Little Gibraltar spur last Oct. 23 and inflicted 66 casualties.

Its objective was a platoon position on a 300-foot ridge held by a company under Capt. M. J. Mullin of Charlottetown. The Chinese laid down the heaviest barrage the Canadians have experienced in Korea in an attempt to dislodge the platoon under Lieut. Edgar Hollyer of Toronto.

FOIL SURPRISE

A Canadian raiding party led by Lieut. Gerard Balfour Meynell, an Acadia University graduate who joined the army from Brooklyn, N.Y., foiled the Chinese attempt to make their attack a surprise.

Lieut. Meynell, who is missing in action and believed killed, called for help by radio when he ran into the Reds poised for the attack. A relief patrol under Lieut. Doug Banton of Ottawa covered the withdrawal of Meynell's party, under the command of Cpl. J. C. McNeil of Reserve Mine, N.S., after Meynell was struck.

The McNeil patrol withdrew through a minefield and uphill toward the RCR's main position but Banton's patrol was ambushed and most of its members are missing. Banton has been reported killed in action.

Hollyer's action in calling down shellfire on his own position while his men crouched in bunkers is credited as one of the two main factors contributing to the enemy defeat. The other was the fact Meynell's patrol spoiled the intended surprise.

GOVERNORS' CONVENTION—President Eisenhower plays host to U.S. Governors on the White House portico in Washington after a large-sclae luncheon. Left to right are the governors who are attending a three-day convention: Gov. G. Mennen Williams of Michigan; Wm. Senators Block CS Pension Bill

OTTAWA (CP) — The Senate, jealous guardian of its rights, Wednesday held up a government measure covering pensions for some 120,000 federal civil servants.

Senators made clear they favor the new pension deal, but the question posed by a number of lawyer-senators was: Is the historic right of the Senate to control its own employees being infringed upon?

The debate came on a 43-page bill revising the federal superannuation setup and making an additional 60,000 civil servants—now classed as "temporaries"—eligible for pensions on retirement. It also provides that the government may set retirement age limits for various employee classes by regulation.

Senator John T. Haig, Progressive Conservative leader, said he understood the measure did not interfere with Senate control of its employees. If a Senate employee reached the lawful retirement age, there was nothing to stop the Senate rehiring him next day.

Senator Salter Hayden (L—Ontario) chairman of the committee which considered the bulky bill, said that for pensions purposes the bill did say when a man must retire. But he did not think that a serious infringement. The Senate and Commons would still have power to rehire the man.

Magistrate's Court Appoints Stenographer

COBOURG — (ENS) — Thomas Lightburn, recently of the Belfast Telepgraph newspaper, has been appointed magistrate's court stenographer for Northumberland and Durham counties and commenced his duties this week.

He arrived from the Old Country about two weeks ago and succeeds Charlie Love of Whitby who has taken a position with an industrial firm. A knowledge of stenography is a must for those working on many Old Country papers and Mr. Lightburn is an expert shorthand reporter.

Quebec province accounts for 68 per cent of the whole Canadian output of macaroni and kindred products.

DRAMATIC RESCUE—A real-life drama was being enacted on the Pit River Bridge, north of Redding, Calif., when a San Anselmo, Calif., housewife obtained this dramatic rescue picture of truck driver P. M. Overby, of Portland, Ore., being drawn from sure death on the end of a rope, after the cab of his truck went over the side of the bridge and dangled there just long enough for the rescue to be carried out. Shortly after this picture was taken the huge trailer-truck caught fire and the cab fell to the lower span.

Life Story Of Ford Recorded At Dearborn

DETROIT (AP)—The life story of Henry Ford and the 50-year history of the industrial empire he founded is being recorded at nearby Dearborn.

The late automotive magnate's former home, which he built in 1915 at a cost of more than $1,000,000, has been converted into the Ford Motor Company archives.

It has a complete library, with conference, reference and exhibit rooms, research offices and other facilities for the study of the last 50 years of United States history in which Ford had so vital a part.

The shelves of the archives eventually will house more than 5,000,000 letters, personal and company papers, 25,000 photographs and tape recordings of the voices of many persons closely associated with Ford and the early years of his company.

Naguib Favors Republican Rule

CAIRO (Reuters)—Prime Minister Mohamed Naguib, who ousted Farouk from the Egyptian throne, Wednesday declared himself in favor of a republican regime for Egypt.

In an interview with Al Tahrir, journal of the Egyptian Army public relations department, he said:

"As an ordinary citizen I wish to see a system of government in Egypt develop in such a way as to place all authority in the hands of the people.

"My personal opinion is that monarchy as a system of government has decayed and is no longer fit for the age wherein we live.

"As for the republic versus monarchy issue I do not wish to precipitate events. The final word rests with the people."

A 50-man constitution drafting commission appointed by Naguib Tuesday night endorsed its technical committee's view that a republican parliamentary system was the best regime for Egypt.

Since the army coup last summer many vestiges of royal rule have been swept away, although Farouk's baby son, Fuad, is still technically heir to the Egyptian throne.

AIR FORCE GUIDED MISSILE, the "Matador," is one of two that are classed as pilotless bombers. It's made by Martin.

Guided Missiles Become Centre Of Services Wrangle

By DOUGLAS LARSEN

WASHINGTON (NEA)— The future use of guided missiles has become the source of a new inter-service Pentagon dispute.

A group of Army and Navy experts contend that eventually the guided missile will relegate the Air Force to a glorified military air freight and passenger service.

Air Force experts scoff at this and claim that missile development and future use are an inherent part of the basic Air Force mission.

The cancellation of a public demonstration of the Army's anti-aircraft missile, the Nike, is considered part of this dispute. A tight security lid on news of all missile development has kept talk of their future use behind closed doors.

✦ ✦ ✦

But announcement of some details on missiles, such as recent official stories on the Navy's Regulus, have brought the fight more into the open, where it even threatens to reach the proportions of the B-36 squabble.

NAVY MISSILE, the "Regulus," surface-to-surface weapon.

CANCELLED SHOW

For this and other reasons, it is reported, the Department of Defense cancelled the Nike show in hopes of containing the brewing missile fight as much as possible.

The Army-Navy line on the future use of missiles, which is being thrashed out at levels as high as the Joint Chiefs of Staff, runs something like this:

When the current crop of missiles in various states of development and production are ready for operational use, they will become extensions and improvements of the weapons which have been traditionally and exclusively used by land and sea forces.

✦ ✦ ✦

Ground-to-ground missiles, such as the Army's Corporal E which is similar to the German V-2 and being produced by the Firestone Rubber Co., and the Redstone which is expected to be produced by Chrysler, are essentially improved artillery.

The Army's Nike is just a super anti-aircraft gun.

The Navy's Terrier is its long range anti-aircraft gun. And the Regulus, classed as a surface-to-surface missile and capable of being fired from submarines as well as surface ships, is really a tremendously improved naval bombardment gun.

CUTS INTO AIR FORCE

The result, then, is that the Nike tends to reduce the need for the Air Force interceptor planes, and the Corporal E and Redstone move in on the interdiction and close-support mission of the Air Force.

Other so-called intercontinental missiles, perhaps guided by the stars, plus the Navy's Regulus, tend to move in on the Air Force's strategic bombing mission, they say.

Thus, the argument sums up, the ultimate and logical result of guided missile development will leave the Air Force with only a freight and passenger, or troop transport, mission.

Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, Air Force chief of staff, recently argued that "aircraft and air missiles, both inhabited and uninhabited, all contribute to the Air Force mission and are essential parts of an air weapons system."

Air Force guided missile projects include the Sparrow to be fired from fighters against bombers, the Rascal and Matador which are classed as pilotless bombers, and the Spark, Falcon and Bowmark which are essentially pilotless fighter planes. Little has been said about these projects. The Matador is reported to have the same turbojet engine as the Navy's Regulus.

Spokesmen for all three services agree that it will be many years before any guided missiles make completely obsolete any of the current conventional weapons. What they are really fighting for is to avoid any trends in appropriations which will end up giving one service or another complete monopoly of a special class of missile.

Grain Handlers Back To Work

VANCOUVER (CP)—Grain for world markets was being handled today at West Coast elevators for the first time since mid-February as ships berthed to load a golden backlog of nearly 16,000,000 bushels.

Full work shifts resumed in the morning, ending a strike which started Feb. 16 at four grain elevators here and a fifth at neighboring New Westminster.

The 250 workers, who won a wage increase of 7½ cents an hour, will be busy. More than 6,500,000 bushels of wheat clog the giant terminals and another 9,000,000 bushels have been sitting out the strike in stalled railway cars

One snag developed Wednesday after the members of the Grain Handlers Union (CIO) voted to accept compromise terms, but it was cleared up at a special night meeting of the workers.

ASKED 12½c INCREASE

The grain handlers went on strike for an increase of 12½ cents an hour after the operators proposed continuation of a scale of $1.50 hourly.

Under the compromise agreement the workers will get 7½ cents, job classification, two additional paid statutory holidays, a five-cent boost on the graveyard shift differential and double pay for Sunday work.

The 80-day walkout is estimated unofficially at having cost between $5,000,000 and $6,000,000 in wages, shipping and elevator costs and railway revenue.

At one stage, when no negotiations were in progress, Prime Minister St. Laurent said the elevators could not be allowed to remain idle indefinitely and hinted at possible government seizure.

DEMANDS ACCEPTED

Head office spokesmen in Calgary and Winnipeg reported Tuesday that they had accepted the scaled-down union demands. The next step, actually only a formality, was for the union negotiating committee to put its proposal to the membership.

Shortly after the vote, however, grain industry sources reported that controversy over one man was threatening to stall the back-to-work movement.

They said the dispute hinged around an unidentified foreman, accused of actions during the strike that were not in the best interests of the union.

The stand as reported by these sources was that the union would not send the men back to work until the issue was settled and had asked that the man be dismissed from his position.

Following the special meeting, union officials said the actions of three men during the strike were discussed and that it was decided the issue was strictly a union problem.

TRAVEL: with Jean Stenton

Flowers, Singing River Make Uruapan Paradise

URUAPAN—The eraly Spaniards referred to Uruapan as the "Paradise of Michoacan" and Mexicans consider it one of the most delightful spots on earth. Its name literally means "the place where flowers bloom."

The Cupatitzio River which flows thmrough the National Park in the centre of the town used to be called by the Tarascans "Singing Waters" and today, because of its odd color, is called "Blue Waters." The river rushes through the park in little rapids and over small falls. The banks are bordered with flowering trees, ferns, banana and coffee trees. Rustic bridges are scattered at intervals across the fast-moving water.

Since I missed the volcano I spent a delightful time wandering around this beautiful tropical city. Part of the water has been dammed up in the park and there were many men and boys swimming. But no women or girls.

Many of Uruapan's sun-drenched pations flame with poinsettia, magnolia and tea-and-tube roses. As in most Mexican towns it is something of a shock to look in the door of a crumbling building opening onto the street and see a patio brilliant with flowers and a lovely home behind.

MANY FIESTAS

There are many religious festivals at Uruapan's neighborhood churches which are a charming sight. The day I was there was St. Joseph's day and we stumbled on a small street gaily decorated with attractive pale pink and green streamers. The facade of the little church was covered with the same twype of streamers and from a big wooden stand in the middle of the road, a man was setting off giant firecrackers.

While we sat by a small stream at the foot of the street for two hours, smartly dressed Mexican women and barefooted, ragged Indians mingled as they slowly promenaded up the hill, spent a few moments in the church adn then paused for ice cream or oranges before returning home. Busload after busload of people came to pay their respects to this particular church and saint. Every little neighborhood church which has a fiest is well patronized by the citizens of Uruapan and there is neearly always a festival being marked somewhere in the city.

One of the main business blocks was a smoking ruin. About twenty-four hours before there had been a big fire and only part of the gutted buildings remained standing. The stench of burned timber hung over one of their pretty squares. Uruapan has had the misfortune in the last few years to have suffered several bad blazes in their main business sections.

DAILY MARKET

Although it has a weekly market too, this city also has a daily one about two blocks long. At the covered stands you can buy fruits, vegetables, shoes, clothes, etc. But it lacks the color of many of Mexico's other markets. It is near the Church of the Sanctuary, which is a very old place of worship.

However one of the most famous beauty spots of Uruapan is the Watterfall of Tarararacua, a few miles outside the city. I took a car there and it was a gorgeous sight. The Tarascan name means sieve and that is an apt description. Pine woods cover the surrounding mountains and from the top of a steep gorge you have a wonderful view of the main falls and the myriads of smaller ones.

At the bottom of the gorge is a circular depression with a natural bulwark of stone at the end. From this comes a roaring tumbling river—the Cupatitzion which flows through Uruapan. This river falls thundering and boiling a sheer 90 feet to a bubbling pool below. The main fall has a big volume, but the chief beauty of the whole scene lies in the many miniature falls which break off from the central stream and leap through tiny fissures in the rocks. Some of the minor falls are several feet thick, while others are of needle-like proportions, as graceful as the finest crystal rods.

Points Out Flaw In Hiring Bill

OTTAWA (CP)—Senator Arthur Roebuck (L—Ontario) said Wednesday that the government's new legislation to prevent discrimination in employment and union membership on racial and other grounds has a weakness—it cannot eliminate such practices.

Piloting the measure in the Senate, Senator Roebuck said there could be no case against any employer who established that he did not refuse to hire a man on any of the grounds mentioned in the act. These include race, national origin, color or religion.

Senator Iva Fallis (PC—Ontario) said in that case an employer could discrinimate on these grounds "so long as he doesn't say so out loud."

Senator Roebuck replied that might be one weakness in the act. But acts or words, not thoughts, could be the only legal grounds for prosecution.

"But it really won't prevent discrinimation?" asked Senator Fallis.

"No," replied Senator Roebuck. Nevertheless he said he believes it a good measure.

The Senate gave second reading—approval in principle—to the measure which applies to federal fields of employment, such as transport and communications.

ROYAL PILOT—The Duke of Edinburgh sits in the cockpit of his Harvard trainer at White Waltham, Eng., where he made the last three flights to qualify for his RAF pilot wings. It took the Duke, who was appointed a marshal of the Royal Air Force last year, just 80 hours to attain his wings as compared with a normal 120 hours.

Granted Bail During Accident

PRESCOTT (CP)—Joseph Cullen, 28, of Prescott was freed on $500 bail Tuesday after he was charged with dangerous driving and leaving an accident. He was remanded to Tuesday for trial.

Cullen was charged in connection with the death of Sandra Harper, 7, of Prescott, struck by a car Monday as she walked home from school on No. 2 highway near this town 12 miles east of Brockville. The girl's companion, Larry Ferguson, 7, was knocked down.

Police said Cullen telephoned them and said he had seen the children walking as he drove on the highway, and had felt a bump. Officers quoted Cullen as saying he hadn't believed he had struck the children until he saw newspaper reports of the girl's death.

Labor Leaders Call For More Harmony Between AFL, CIO

A closer working agreement between the AFL and the CIO unions was advocated Wednesday night by George P. Schollie, general vice-president of the International Association of Machinists (AFL-TLC), at the first anniversary dinner of the Peterborough Trades and Labor Council (TLC).

Mr. Schollie, a Scottish-born trade unionist, deplored the tactic of "raiding", and he called for the leaders of the AFL and CIO unions to come to an understanding before it is too late. He anticipated bad labor legislation from the present Republican administration in the United States.

"It is the No. 1 thing of importance to workers in the United States and Canada that we should have a closer liaison between the AFL and the CIO," he said. "With the present government in the United States the effect will be to bring these two unions together.

NEED UNDERSTANDING

"I hope before long that we have the leadership in the AFL and CIO facing facts and sitting down and coming to some understanding before it is too late; before the forces at work now in the United States —through legislation and because of the split in the ranks—have weakened the trade union movement to the point where it can't withstand the onslaught."

(At the last election in the United States both the AFL and the CIO endorsed the Democratic Party.)

Eighty trade unionists from the Peterborough district attended the anniversary dinner of the Peterborough Trades and Labor Council who now have 16 affiliated unions with a membership of 1,000 craft and industrial workers. They are affiliated with the TLC who claim about 3,000 affiliated locals in Canada and membership of 525,000.

Invitations were extended to Percy Bengough, president of the TLC; Gordon G. Cushing, secretary-treasurer; and A. F. McArthur, president of the Provincial Federation of Labor, but they were unable to come to Peterborough.

Mr. Bengough's place was taken by Max Swerdlow, TLC director of organization and education.

GENERAL PROGRAM

The program for the Peterborough Trades and Labor Council for the next two or three years was laid down in general terms. As outlined by Mr. Swerdlow the chief points are:

1. Organize the unorganized workers of the community into TLC unions. ("You have already done this, and exceedingly well.")
2. Educate the workers in trade union affairs. ("Encourage the members to study the history of the trade union movement — what it is, and what its aims are.")
3. Take part in the community work of Peterborough. ("Don't be a body that just criticizes; take positive action.")
4. Have fun. ("Oragnize social evenings, dances, banquets such as this, etc.")

Mr. Swerdlow joined with the previous speakers in denouncing the tactic of "raiding" other organized trade unions to recruit members. But he qualified this by saying that the "hands off" policy applied only to "legitimate trade unions".

He said he undestood there is one union in Peterborough that does not come in that category, but he didn't want to make an issue of it in his address. (Though he didn't mention it by name there was no doubt among the trade union audience that he was talking about the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America who are now independent after being tossed out of the CIO, in the United States, and the CCL, in Canada, for alleged Communist activity.)

DEFINITION

The TLC organizational director gave this definition of a "legitimate trade union": "A trade union that strives to improve the economic conditions of its workers as an end in itself—not as a means to a political [illegible]."

Mr. Swerdlow said the trade union movement is an asset to the worker, the employer and the country.

To the worker it offers threefold advantages: the dignity of being a worker; job security; and, through collective strength, the opportunity to improve his economic conditions.

To "responsible" management" it offers economic stability, responsible workmanship, and peace and harmony in industry.

To the country it offers the gains that have been made through agitation for progressive social legislation.

Mr. Swerdlow said that the late Prime Minister Mackenzie King had said at a meeting with TLC leaders that every piece of social legislation on the statute books had its origin in some brief presented by the trade union movement.

It's not the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, the Board of Trade or the Chamber of Commerce that have fought for old age pensions, mothers' allowances and similar social legislation. Everything that has been accomplished had its origin in some trade union movement and that is no mean contribution to the country."

AVERAGE WAGE $58

Statistics compiled in 1950 showed that the average wage in Canada was $58 a week, said Jack Kellythorne, TLC representative for Central Ontario. The average wage in Toronto was $58.50 and the average in Peterborough was $59.51.

Mr. Kellythorne, who was dubbed "father of the Peterborough Trades and Labor Council," said that it was through the efforts of organized labor that the workers are enjoying this high standard of living here.

He added: "But there are still citizens of this city who are getting substandard wages and that is why we are here tonight."

Extracts from other addresses:

George P. Schollie who presented a $100 cheque to the labor council of behalf of the IAM: "Here in Canada we have only 15 per cent of the workers organized —whether AFL or CIO. There is no reason we couldn't increase this by 100 per cent without any raiding. We have 4,500,000 workers not organized in Canada today so there is ample room for every organization to do its bit without having to cast its eyes on people who are already organized."

EMPLOYERS HUMAN

Bob Brown of the Printing and Paper Specialties Union: "We've found the employers here in Peterborough easy to get along with. We only wish the employers in other cities were just half as human."

He said that he believed the first signed contract for a 40-hour week was at the Nashua Paper Co. And he told of an Allied Printing Trades Council which is now being formed.

Pat McQuade, IAM staff representative who along with Dan Dean has been organizing the DeLaval workers: "Without the very valuable help of the Trades and Labor Council here in the past few weeks we wouldn't have been able to apply for certification at the DeLaval plant. We are now waiting on the decision of the OLRB."

Henry Nokes, secretary of the labor council: "Our council was formed for the purpose of organizing any AFL unions in Peterborough and in the years ahead we hope to be able to help every union . . . Our objectives are to organize the unorganized, help in community work, and participate in municipal affairs."

Alderman William Beggs who is also a UPWA (CIO-CCL) staff member: "We certainly need a strong organized labor movement in Peterborough. . . We had a good labor movement back in the 1920s but it dwindled. It's gratifying to see that trade union spirit flaring up again in Peterborough."

President Glenn Price welcomed the guests and was chairman of the meeting. A stringed quartet provided music during the turkey dinner. It was under the direction of Cecil Searles of the Peterborough Musical Protective Association, Local 191, American Federation of Musicians.

School Board Operates Classes For Palsied Children

HALIFAX (CP)—The parents of any cerebral palsy victim here, if questioned two years ago about their child's future, would have been pessimistic. The Halifax Cerebral Palsy Association has changed all that.

With assistance from other public-spirited organizations it has succeeded beyond its members' fondest dreams in developing opportunities for stricken children.

The association has successfully adopted practices used in other Canadian centres, and added a few ideas of its own.

REGULAR CLASSES

Officials claim this is the only city in Canada where regular classes for palsied children are administered and paid for by the school board.

Each day throughout the year several children, aged from six to 10, are picked up at their homes by Walter Callow wheelchair coaches—the type developed by the well-known paralysis sufferer—and taken to a bright new room in the basement of St. Francois School. After morning classes, they are returned by coach to their home.

To keep abreast of latest developments in the fight against cerebral palsy, the association brings in prominent medical men to address its monthly meetings. Afterwards, some 50 parents engage in round-table discussion and plan for the future.

The movement began after Edward Cosgrove, youthful chief of general services at the national research council's regional laboratory here, and his wife Doris discovered that their son Bill had cerebral palsy.

Edward and Doris got in touch with a woman whose daughter was afflicted. Together they rounded up eight other parents with the same problem, called a meeting and formed the Halifax Cerebral Palsy Association.

They corresponded, and got what information they could about the program being carried on in other centres. Then the movement began to peter out for lack of objectives; until last spring, when the school board came through with an offer of a classroom and teacher.

KEEN TEACHER

Margaret Pirie, an attractive young teacher, was named to the job, and last summer the Rotary Club put up funds to send her to Columbia University for specialized training.

The teacher's first objective is to teach the pupils to use their hands. Parents, she finds, are too concerned about getting their children to walk. "They forget that without the use of their hands, they have no potentialities whatsoever. Walking can come later."

Her ultimate objective is to bring the children to the point where they can step into normal classes of children about their own age. But they will still require special therapeutic training—"otherwise, what they have learned will not stick with them."

Some of the children are instructed once a week by a speech therapist brought over from England by the Junior League, Dalhousie University medical clinic and the Rotary Club. Their conversation, says Miss Pirie, has improved "tremendously."

Next year the association expects about a dozen pupils will be enrolled in the course. Meantime, it plans to approach Ottawa and the provincial government in an effort to establish a cerebral palsy ward at the Nova Scotia Children's Hospital here to handle physiotherapy.

The association estimates there are about 70 cerebral palsy victims in this city of 85,999, many of whom can develop through training.

Synod Alarmed By Working Time

HAMILTON (CP)—Delegates to the annual synod of the Anglican diocese of Niagara said Wednesday they are alarmed at the increasing number of industries operating on a seven-day basis.

Rev. John Anderson, chairman of the diocesan council for social service, said the seven-day work week presents a serious threat to family life and is seriously affecting church attendance.

Reporting on Sunday observance, Mr. Anderson said in some industries seven-day operation is essential, but many others do not need to work on that basis.

Many persons are working five days a week, he said, with two days off on a progressive basis. It meant they had Sunday off only once in six weeks.

IODE To Give Prizes For Pupils' Writing

LAKEFIELD (ENS)—The Catherine Parr Traill Chapter, IODE, will hold a garden tea the latter part of June, it was decided at the meeting at the home of Mrs. William O'Brien. The event will be held in the park at Memorial Hall and conveners will be appointed later.

The standard was brought forward by Mrs. Donald Hendren and the treasurer Mrs. Kenneth Morris reported a balance on hand of $160. The regent Mrs. J. A. Arnott presided for the meeting. Mrs. G. E. Renwick was appointed program convener and Mrs. E. H. Northey Empire Study convener for the year.

The chapter was invited to attend a meeting of the Peterborough Horticultural Society at the Peterborough YWCA May 25. It was decided to again give prizes for writing in each grade of the public schools of Lakefield and district exhibited at the Lakefield fair.

Mrs. L. Quackenbush gave a paper on "War In French Indo-China" and Mrs. J. McKerchar a reading on "The Queen's Budget Problems."

Mrs. McKerchar donated a hand-loomed bag as the raffle prize, won by Mrs. B. Q. Dench. Mrs. Renwick and Mrs. Morris assisted the hostess in serving refreshments.

Fire Hazard

A small bush fire in Haliburton county at Glamorgan was one of 15 fires put out during the last 24 hours. Twenty-two are still burning, all but six of them under control. Those out of control are in the Port Arthur, Sudbury and Fort Frances districts. District Forester A. B. Wheatley of Lindsay said today a four-acre fire at Glamorgan had been extinguished, but he warned people to be careful of lighting fires in the bushland that is still dangerous because green growth is retarded.

Firefighters To Honor 2 Former Chiefs

Two former fire chiefs will be honored tonight at a private dinner served in the YWCA. The hosts will be Local 519, the Peterborough branch of the International Association of Firefighters.

Guests will be former Chief George Gimblett, Sr., in charge of the Peterborough Fire Department from May 15, 1922, to Dec. 15, 1947, when he was given six months' leave of absence before retiring; and Chief George Smith who formally took over as head on June 15, 1948, and officially retired Dec. 31, 1952.

Their combined terms of office covers 30 years, during which time they were responsible for putting out any fires that started in the city.

Local 519 have invited Fire Marshal W. J. Scott as guest speaker as well as a number of district fire chiefs and members of the Firefighters' Association. An attendance of 50 is expected.

ASSOCIATION PRESIDENT

Among the guests will be Chief Kenneth Putnam of Kitchener, president of the fire chiefs' association; Chief Allan H. Clark of Lakefield, secretary; Chief Alex Wylie of Lindsay; Chief Al Crowe of Bridgenorth; Chief Gerald Vance of Belleville; Chief Walter Stevens of Omemee; and Chief John Record of Port Hope.

Two representatives of the firefighters' association have also been invited—Reg. Swansborough of Hamilton, district vice-president of the international, and Dave Forgie of Toronto, district vice-president of the Provincial Federation of Firefighters.

Another special guest will be Jack Luther, former fireman, who left the department recently. Invitations have also been extended to Alderman Harold Rehill, chairman of fire, water and light committee; Alderman A. B. Burrows, past chairman of the committee; and Alderman William Beggs who was chairman of the negotiating committee.

Hold Contractors To Finish Job

OTTAWA (CP)—An Ontario contractor stopped work May 1 on a $166,100 post office for Southampton, Ont., but the public works department indicated Wednesday he still is responsible for completing the building.

The information was tabled in the House of Commons for John Diefenbaker (PC—Lake Centre) who first raised the question during debate on the Harvey Lunam Construction Co., of Regina Mr. Diefenbaker claimed the Lunam company went into insolvency last February leaving a number of subcontractors with claims of about $250,000 on the company.

Later, Mr. Diefenbaker asked a series of questions about the Southampton post office. He said the replies would show the need for a "real shakeup" to protect the government and individuals who deal with it.

The public works department said the Southampton contractor, John D. Trumbley of Kincardine, Ont., has not paid all sub-contractors for materials supplied. To date four notified the department without proof of their claims that Mr. Trumbley owes them $6,078.

Built School 3 Years Ago, Need More Room

BRIDGENORTH (ENS)—Less than three years ago Bridgenorth built a two-room school to ease the overcrowded school conditions. But extensive building in the village since then has again presented the school problem.

In February a committee was appointed to consider the problem of school accommodation and it has now completed its findings. Tonight the committee will present its report before the school board at a ratepayers' meeting in the school.

During the past 10 years the Lake Chemong community has grown considerably. This growth resulted in overcrowded school conditions and a two-room school was built in front of the old Bridgenorth school. Even then the old school was used for a third classroom.

New buildings and new families in the community since then have again presented the overcrowding problem. This coming September, an estimated 35 will start school.

Theological Students Study In Rural School

MILLBROOK (Staff)—Third annual rural school for Anglican theological students is in session this week in this Durham county village. Started three years ago by the Rev. Allan Read at Mono Mills in the Orangeville district, the school has since been switched to Millbrook, selected as a typical rural area.

Dean of the 1953 school is the Rev. A. A. Chote, former rector of St. Thomas' Anglican Church, Millbrook, and now rector of the Anglican church at Richmond Hill. In 1952, the dean was the Rev. Warren Turner of Bowmanville, formerly of Peterborough.

Sixteen students—all men—are in this year's class; 20 attended last year.

NO DEACONESSES

"There are no deaconesses attending this year," remarked Mr. Chote. "Two of them— one a student and the other an instructor—married people they met through last year's classes.

"It may be that there is too high a mortality rate among them," he added with a smile.

Last year's school achieved more than two marriages beyond its actual purposes. Two of the men at the classes, who were billeted with farmers have received financial aid from those farmers, who have in a way adopted them, said Mr. Chote.

During the 10 days of their school, the students will look into every aspect of the rural pastorate discussing and studying the problems peculiar to a country parish.

Classes start at 9 a.m. and conclude at 5 p.m., with a break from 12.30 to 2 p.m. for dinner. Mornings are devoted to lectures and study, with one lecture each morning by the Rev. Allan Read, originator of the school.

Mr. Read's lectures on rural sociology are complemented by lectures from laymen — doctors, agricultural representatives, and the farmers themselves.

TIME ON FARMS

Two afternoons during the 10 days are spent on the farm at which the student is billeted. A third afternoon will be occupied by a trip to the Ganaraska river to study efforts at soil conservation and reforestation on that watershed.

On Monday afternoon the students heard a type of lecture that has been added to the course only this year. Dr. O. E. A. Stephens, MD, of Agincourt, spoke on the practical use of Christianity in the medical profession, and mentioned some of its applications available to rural ministers.

Second lecture of that nature will be given the students tonight by Dr. M. E. Hobb of Millbrook, who will speak on co-operation between the rural minister and the doctor.

On Friday night the farmers will have their say as to what the farmer expects from a rural minister. Next Tuesday will complete the school, when a soil and seed service will be held at Millbrook in the evening.

So far this week, the students have had perfect spring— almost summer-like— weather for their classes, some of which have been taken outside, as they were last year.

FROM WIDE AREA

The students themselves have come from as near as Cavan and as far away as Vancouver. Walter Dyer is the student from Cavan. Other communities represented are: Dauphin, Man.; Victoria, B.C.; Winnipeg, Bala, Hamilton, Toronto, and several smaller ones in the Toronto area.

When their ten days are up and they return to their homes, these 16 students will have a fresh appreciation of the work a rural minister does, the problems he faces, and the problems of rural parishioners.

Moreover, they will be more ready, when they graduate, to accept the challenge of a rural parish.

Uranium Find At Paudash "Promising"

Ore May Be Mined As Open Pit If Indications Right

A uraninite deposit west of the north end of Paudash Lake known the Centre Lake Uranium Mines is said by the owners to be one of the most advanced prospects in Canada.

A diamond drilling program now in operation has revealed 300,000 tons of ore in place valued at $1.60 gross value per ton. The ore pattern is being probed to vertical depths of 300 feet.

Company engineers on the job are already recommending driving an adit, or horizontal tunnel, into the high ground to enable immediate underground development of the ore.

Recent airborne surveys have revealed two additional radioactive ore zones on the property and the result of mill tests in Ottawa have proved the material as uraninite,— the crystal form of pitchblende and that no milling or metallurgical problems need be anticipated. Macassa and Bobjo Mines are two of the large Canadian mining companies that have staked adjoining properties to Centre Lake; they, too, are actively engaged in development.

The new uranium field, engineers report, is in an enviable position; a hydro power line crosses the property, water and timber are plentiful and it is within 15 miles of a railway. In the event of production open pit mining methods are considered likely.

Memorial Service To Be Held For Soldier

A memorial service for Pte. Russell Gardiner, 22-year-old native of Mount Pleasant who was killed during the weekend fighting in Korea, will be held Sunday in the village.

The memorial service will be conducted by the Rev. A. E. Larke of Springville, assisted by the Rev. E. W. Rowland, assistant minister of George Street United Church. It will be 7.30 p.m. in Mount Pleasant United Church.

THREE CASUALTIES

Pte. Gardiner was one of three district casualties (two killed, one wounded) when the Chinese launched a surprise attack on the Canadian-held sector of the Korean front, late Saturday night and Sunday. He was with the 3rd Bn. RCRs who stood firm though subjected to a severe pounding by Chinese mortars and artillery.

The attack was thrown back with heavy Chinese casualties.

The 3rd Bn. arrived in the front line late in April and Canadian Army spokesmen say that the Chinese, knowing the battalion was green, were probing for a soft spot in the UN defence lines.

Pte. Gardiner was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Gardiner of Mount Pleasant.

He had been overseas a year and would soon have been eligible for rotation leave. At one time he lived in Peterborough and was employed by the Quaker Oats Co.

Singers Win High Marks At Music Festival

Consistently high marks were awarded by English adjudicators George Heath-Gracie and John Russell at the first music session of the Peterborough Kiwanis Music Festival in St. Peter's School Wednesday night.

The highest mark of the evening was awarded to a Lindsay contestant, Miss Jean Dunn, who received 87 for her singing of "Love and Music" (Tosca), by Puccini-Ricordi.

Mr. Heath-Gracie in his remarks said that Miss Dunn was a bit immature for a true interpretation of this aria, "nevertheless it was lovely singing."

Mrs. Leone Northrop, of Peterborough, placed second in this class with 86 marks and third place went to Daisy Murray, of Kingston, with 84 marks.

Mr. Russell gave a great deal of encouragement to contestants in the piano accordion solo and band classes. He explained that this instrument is here to stay in Canada, and if played competently is quite acceptable musically.

William Perry, of Lindsay, was a two-time winner during the evening. He was given 83 marks for his singing of "Che Gelida Manin" (La Boheme), by Puccini-Ricordi and 85 marks for Mendelssohn's "If With All Your Hearts."

Youth Injured While Riding Along Highway

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS)—Believed to have been struck by a hit-and-run driver, Zibie Ellis, 11, was found unconscious by the side of the road on Victoria St. Wednesday afternoon

The accident was discovered by Mrs. Harold Copperthwaite who found the lad lying beside his smashed bicycle on the road in front of her home. Mrs. Copperthwaite summoned police and medical aid and after being treated by Dr W. W. Baker, the boy, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Ellis, Victoria St., was taken to Belleville Hospital.

Besides suffering a fractured collarbone and jaw, it is believed that he has received a fractured skull and concussion. Most of his front teeth were knocked out as well.

Provincial Constables Archie Eady and George Rose are conducting an investigation.

Child Swimmer Dies After Dip

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Kathy Tongay, who learned to swim before she could walk and once made preparations to swim the English channel, died Wednesday, two weeks before her sixth birthday.

Detective Charles Sapp said the child went into convulsions soon after returning from her daily swimming exercises and died en route to hospital. He ordered an autopsy.

Sapp said the autopsy also was requested by the parents, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Tongay. The father had often been criticized for his handling of swimming careers he mapped out for his young children.

His first child, Russell Tongay Jr., died in 1945 and a doctor testified at the inquest that a cerebral haemorrhage, probably brought on by a head injury, caused its death.

Kathy and her brother, Bubba, 7, swam several miles down the Mississippi river some years ago and in 1951 Tongay announced they would attempt to swim the English channel but the project was abandoned.

Plenty of Trout

TORONTO (CP)—More than 1,000,000 speckled trout have been put in Ontario streams this spring. The department of lands and forests said Wednesday that the fish were spawned last year and were wintered in bass ponds after bass were distributed. Another 2,000,000 trout will be stocked in Ontario streams and lakes within the next two months, officials said.

School Safety Patrol Inspects Police Station

Carrying out a plan to acquaint school safety patrol members with police methods, PC Donald McKay guided one half the patrol of Queen Mary School through the police station today.

After visits to different sections of the station, the students wound up their tour by watching Magistrate's Court proceedings. They were headed by patrol lieutenant Wayne Routley and vice-principal L. R. MacNeil.

PC MacKay hopes to have demonstrated the workings of the police department to six or seven school patrols by the conclusion of the school term in June.

Counties Issue School Debentures

COBOURG (ENS)—The Council of the united counties of Northumberland and Durham Wednesday passed a resolution introduced by Reeve H. Smith of Port Hope that the council would, if requested, issue debentures for high school construction in high school areas.

Warden J. H. Lowery explained that the only area immediately concerned was the South Durham high school area but the resolution would cover any other high school area as well.

Reeve Smith pointed out that all council would have to do would be to issue the debentures and the high school area would pay for them. Such a procedure not only made it easier to issue the debentures but also made a lower rate of interest possible.

If the assessment of the area was more than half the county assessment, he explained, the council had to issue the debentures. Otherwise they could be issued at the pleasure of the council.

Deputy-Reeve D. R. Maybee of Campbellford was opposed to the idea, even when it was explained that it would cost the school area, not the county, for the debentures. He claimed that the people of Campbellford woke up one morning to find they were in a high school area and would have to pay more than 50 per cent of the cost of the Brighton school.

"We don't want to wake up some fine morning and find we are paying for debentures too," the deputy-reeve of Campbellford warned.

Garnet Shields Assessor For Counties

COBOURG (ENS) — Garnet Shields of Peterborough was appointed assessor for the united counties of Northumberland and Durham Wednesday.

The appointment was made at a special session of counties council called to choose a successor to Dick Hall, who resigned as counties assessor to take a position in the assessment department of an engineering firm.

Mr. Shields is at present assessor and building inspector for Otonabee township. He was formerly assessor for North Monaghan townships and for seven years previously represented Cavan township in counties council. In his new position he will receive a salary of $3,000 a year and expenses of eight cents a mile.

ASKED INCREASE

At the April session of council, Mr. Hall asked for a $500 raise to bring his salary up to $3,500 but council would sanction only a $300 increase. Mr. Hall thereupon resigned to take his present job which pays considerably more.

There were 23 applications for the past. They were narrowed down to Garnet Shields, who asked $3,000 a year, and R. J. Found, of Courtice, who asked $4,000 a year.

Reeve G. Rickard of Darlington township suggested council should recognize that the counties assessor and the clerk-and-treasurer were key men. There should be a definite salary scale which would eliminate uncertainty in hiring a man and would remove the need to dicker over increases later on, he urged.

Reeve Rickard sponsored a motion to fix the minimum for a counties assessor at $3,000, with annual increases of $200 up to a maximum of $4,000. An experienced man would not necessarily have to start at $3,000, he said. The motion was defeated, however.

New Iris Variety

PRESTON (CP)—A new variety of iris, "Okon", developed several years ago by O. A. Kummer of Preston, has just been recognized recently. The flower, a cross between the onco-cyclus hybrid, escaped public attention until I. Zubrigg, University of Toronto student and Irish expert, visited Mr. Kummer's garden.

Captive In Korea

60 Per Cent Of Prisoners Died In 5 Months

BY PHILIP DEANE
Correspondenent of Observer, London

LONDON: The death-rate kept climbing. Two civilians of neutral countries, Matti, a Swiss, and Father Canavan, a citizen of Eire, died, and so did many others, though not always through ill-treatment or privations. There were G.I.s who would give up a day's food for one cigarette rolled in old newspaper, and—I am sorry to say it is true—there were G.I.s who bought food at the price of another man's life. There were those who worked in the cook-house and stole their comrades' food. There were those who stripped their skeletic, dying companions, hours before they died. But, by and large, those were the exceptions. There were those who not only succeeded in preserving their human dignity but tried to explain—to me, a journalist—the others who had failed.

"You see, they belong to the generation that was spoilt by World War Two. Mom and Dad would give Junior a ten-dollar bike (bicycle) so that he would leave them in peace while they spent their huge war-factory pay packets. And Junior can't take it now."

And these young Americans went on dying. There had been 777 when we joined them in September, 1950, and more than sixty per cent. of them had died by February 2, 1951, when an elderly Korean major took our special group of diplomats and journalists away.

"Political conditions have changed," he told us. "You are being taken elsewhere." More he would not say.

We were driven by bus to Manpo. In the outskirts of that town, near the Yalu River, we were to spend the next two years, waiting for liberation.

Considering the standards of the local population, we were now living well. We had white rice, which the peasants could not get. We were issued with padded winter clothing each year, and with summer clothes—cast-offs from the Iron Curtain. We did not have to work. A korean woman worked for us and carried our water. We did our own laundry. A doctor visited us regularly; whenever he had a consignment of drugs he gave us injections, just in case.

The guards were obviously under orders to be courteous. They were not always successful, but they were never brutal. We were free to organise our lives as we wished. We were not allowed to walk outside the courtyard until March, 1952, when we were permitted to promenade 100 yards away from the house.

Boredom and lack of news were the great enemies. We were anxious about our families, and we were afraid that Korea might become a kind of Indo-China. Then came the news of the peace talks, and uncontrollable hope. The guards seemed genuinely pleased. Taking advantage of this, the French managed to sell a prized piece of jewellery belonging to Madame Martel, seventy-six-year-old mother of Charles Martel, the Chancellor of their Legation in Seoul. With the proceeds they gave a Quatorze Juillet (July 14) reception. By some magic the shabby, filthy room had been transformed into a French salon. In his rags, Georges Perruche, managed somehow to look as debonair, charming, gay, as if he were wearing a dinner jacket. The sickening rice spirit, handed round in aluminum bowls with some inimitably French remark, sparkled almost like champagne. For a little while the magic of these Frenchmen took us out of captivity. They managed to produce remarks we had not heard before, to tell new stories, to make us feel that they were not the people with whom we daily shared the cattle turnips, but the French Legation having us as guests. We went back to our room—the English room—which the French called la Chambre des Lords, treasuring the beautifully hand-written invitation cards:—

M. Georges Perruche
Le Charge d'Affaires, etc.

Then there were the interrogations. A Korean who said he was the Communists' "plenipotentiary for prisoner questions" 'talked to us through an English-speaking Russian. This Korean repeated to Mr Holt and to me the statement of the Minister of the Interior to the effect that North Korea had counter-attacked on June 26 to put an end to South Korean provocation. After a couple of interviews the Korean disappeared and we were left in the care of the Russian. He wanted our biographies. Then he wanted to talk politics. He argued philosophy and found himself in very deep water with Jean Meadmore, who outquoted the Russian on Engels, Marx and Stalin. Then he asked for dissertations on the various countries we had served in. Mr. Holt, who is an Arab expert, gave him highly technical details on camel-riding, Arab calligraphy, and the relative merits of the Iraqi Army and Police polo teams. The Russian interrogator seemed slightly disconcerted.

He tried George Blake (British vice-consul) on Holland, and received an erudite paper on Franz Hals (the Dutch painter).

From me he wanted something on Greece, especially the Communist problem. I told him that really to understand this problem one had to go back to ancient Greece, that one had to have a short historical review. "Of course, of course," he said.

He kept me for five days. After the seventy-second manuscript page, when he saw that I was still dealing with the Iconoclast-Iconolatre feud in Tenth-Century Byzantium, he gave up and sent for the next internee.

Perruche really solved the problem of our Russian by telling him some of his stories. After that we never loked back. He gave up talking Marxism and brought us vodka; our conversations would not bear repeating. I confess that on one occasion, arms around each other, we sang the Internationale, followed by "Caviare comes from virgin sturgeon."

Then, unfortunately, he left us.

On January 1, 1952, a General came to the house with an interpreter who spoke violent Brooklyneese A terrific meal was served, then another. The General drank too much.

"Never mind the General," said the interpreter, "he's dead drunk."

The next day the General wanted letter of thanks to Kim-Il-Sung for the good treatment meted out to the diplomats and journalists.

"Good treatment!" said Mr. Holt, in frigid Ambassadorial tones. "I suppose you want me to thank his Excellency for the death of Sister May Clare, Father Hunt, Father Canavan—not to speak of my colleague the Apostolic delegate, Bishop Patrick Burns, whom you allowed to die of privations and disease. Good treatment, when you kept me and my colleagues imprisoned against diplomatic practice under the insultingly flimsy pretext that you cannot repatriate us? Shall I include these details in the letter of thanks to his Excellency?"

"Please," said the interpreter, "don't talk like that, your are hurting my feelings."

The General departed without his letters of thanks and we went on vegetating, occasionally getting a scrap of news from Communist sources, presenting the Korean war as one with no possible issue.

It was hard to keep on hoping.

On March 20, 1953, Captain Vyvyan Holt, George Blake, Norman Owen and myself were taken away from the camp. While old Mrs. Martel was crying, saying good-bye, Perruche, trying hard to keep control of his emotions, managed to produce a story which we had not heard before—to send us off with a smile. This was the beginning of a fantastic three weeks of red carpeting. The first night in Pyongyang we were told that germ bombs had just been dropped. Yet nobobdy bothered to inoculate us. Korean sanitary teams were collecting the germs, we were told. Then brigadiers and full colonels started waiting on us who had been beaten with a rifle butt by a mere sergeant.

On April 8, 1953, we were told that we were being released. That night we drove to the frontier. We had come down the Manpo-Pyongyang road to the northern capital, and we went to the Chinese frontier along the Pyongyang-Atung road. All the bridges on both roads were functioning. We passed many trains. Lorries followed one another in procession. Between Pyongyang and the frontier on the night of April 8, I counted more than 1,000 trucks going south.

"The communications," a Korean colonel told me, "are working as they have never worked before."

And along the road, on both sides, every town, every village was completely destroyed. Somehow this did not make sense.

KIBBLEWHITE ROVER SCOUTS

All Cub and Brownie Packs, Guide Companies and Scout Troops in Peterborough and the surrounding towns should now have received a questionnaire from the Crew, which we asked the Leaders to return to us as soon as possible, in which we requested the amount of milk which each group would need for their noon day meal. These questionnaires have been very slow in coming in. Please help us to give you better service at the Field Day by mailing this information right away.

If you have mislaid our letter, or if you did not receive one, please let us know how much white, or chocolate, milk that your group will wish to purchase for their noon meal, and mail it to the Rev. MAHWAH MURDER QUIZ—Mrs. Carol MacDonald (left) leaves her Mahwah, N.J., home for questioning in the carbon monoxide murder of her four young children. With the 29-year-old suspect is detective Arvilla Harper. According to police, Mrs. MacDonald, despondent over marital troubles, put the youngsters in a station wagon in their garage and let the motor run. She had intended to kill herself, too, police said, but fled the garage after 15 minutes, screaming in terror. Her husband, Kenneth W. MacDonald, is a former Rutgers University football captain.

Lakefield School To Play Softball

LAKEFIELD (ENS)—Chairman Dr. R. H. Campbell presided at the Lakefield Public School Board meeting. All the trustees were in attendance.

Principal E. G. Sloan reported attendance for the month of April as 318 pupils and percentage attendance 91.12. Mr. Sloan asked permission for teams from the school to enter competition with softball teams from other urban centres and the request was granted.

Mrs. Stanley Burger, president of the Lakefield Home and School Association, asked that cupboard space be allotted the association for dishes when the changeover is made with classrooms in the fall. This the board have promised to do.

The principal and caretaker will arrange to have the doors open earlier on stormy days for the convenience of pupils who come early. The finance committee recommended payment of accounts totalling $60.13.

Millions Of Acres Wait Replanting

PORT ARTHUR (CP)—J. L. Van Camp of Montreal, general manager of the Canadian Forestry Association, said Wednesday millions of acres across canada, mistakenly cleared by settlers and now waste, could be turned into valuable woodlands by a program of tree planting.

He said there are 4,000,000 acres of land in Ontario alone which are not returning a cent to the owner but which could be made profitable with trees.

"It is a problem of poor resources management," he said. "People take everything they can from the land, then get out, leaving a wrecked area."

Mr. Van Camp is at the Lakehead to present the association's annual national forest conservation award to Dr. W. P. Hogarth of Fort William, whom the association acclaims as Canada's champion tree farmer. The Fort William doctor started planting trees 14 years ago and now has a valuable crop of timber.

Actress Pleased To Play Wicked Woman

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Susan Hayward has returned from a business and pleasure tour of Europe and is ready to play her heart's desire, a wicked woman.

The actress, whose temperament matches her flaming hair, is back to start work in "The Story of Demetrius." The picture sets something of a record.

It appears to be the first time that a picture and its sequel were made in quick succession. Its predecessor, "The Robe," just wound up shooting, and the studio will save thousands by again using the sets and costumes.

Miss Hayward plays the sultry wife of Roman Emperor Claudius in the film. The empress' pastimes include murder and adultery.

NOT MUCH FUN

"I've been wanting to play a wicked woman for a long time,' she said. "I'm fed up with playing so many good girls. They're not much fun."

The actress toured France, Spain and Italy for two months with her husband, Jess Barker. The trip had a two-fold purpose.

"In the first place, I had never been to Europe," she said. "So it was a wonderful experience. But it was also a business trip. I made appearances and did interviews wherever I went. The foreign market is very important to the picture business, you know."

Among her impressions:

Italians, both male and female, were the best-dressed among the nationalities she saw. That includes the French.

"The Italian cars are also the best, but they're not for us," she added. "They're designed to go 100 m.p.h., and where can you go that fast here?"

GOOD ACCOMMODATIONS

The Barkers found the accommodations excellent, except when they stopped in the smaller towns of France. The actress was much impressed with the hospitality of Spain.

The only discordant notes were occasional "go home, Americans" signs in France—"but they represent the opinions of a small minority."

Senator Fallis LaudsCommittee

OTTAWA (CP)—Senator Iva Fallis (PC—Ontario) said Wednesday if the Senate committee on salacious and indecent literature has done nothing more than bring that problem before the Canadian people, it has done a good job.

Speaking in the Senate on a report of the committee, Senator Fallis said before she had taken part in committee proceedings she had not regarded the problem as very pressing. But the committee's work had opened her eyes to its scope.

Lurid and ther objectionable books came into Canada by the hundreds of thousands. This "pernicious stuff" was aimed at the 'teen-ager whose mind was not yet fully matured and could be corrupted.

She denied that the committee sought to sweep all of the cheaper, paper-back books—including reprints of good novels—from the market. The thing the committee was after was books intentionally filled with objectionable material.

The Senate approved the report of the committee which recommended that the revenue department's facilities for examining imported literature be expanded.

Children's Diseases Flourish In April

COBOURG (ENS) — Children's diseases comprised the list of ailments recorded by the Northumberland and Durham Counties Health Unit for the week ending May 2 and these were scattered throughout the two counties, mainly in the rural areas. Only two cases of chickenpox were listed and these were at Cobourg. Thirteen cases of red measles and 10 of mumps comprised the total of 25.

PATH OF DEATH—Specially equipped work trains of this type are waging war on weeds and brush along some 10,000 miles of Canadian National Railways right-of-way across the country. The five-gun spray units shoots a weed-killing chemical mixture—harmless to domestic animals and game—over a 100-foot-wide swath.

Will Keep Production Going When Arms Demand Slackens, Howe Tells House

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's mushroom-growth defence production facilities for the Korean action and the cold war are likely to be kept operating when the immediate demand for arms slackens.

The government is studying the possibility of keeping some production lines operating and using the goods to meet Canada's mutual aid commitments to NATO Allies, Production Minister Howe told the Commons Wednesday.

This, he said, would both keep a segment of Canadian industry alive now that the rearmament program is levelling off, and make a contribution to Western Europe's defences.

The minister's statement was made as he came under the annual fire from the opposition on his departmental estimates on their way through the House.

CRITICIZE REPORT

The criticism was directed mainly on the basis of the defence spending committee's report to the Commons this week after a long investigation. Majority and minority reports of the committee split sharply on the efficiency of government spending on defence.

Opposition speakers contended the committee had been curtailed in what it could look into. They also renewed attacks on the way the defence production department—which does much buying for defence—handled the money.

Trade, wheat and foreign affairs also came under the eye of the Commons Wednesday as it pushed through major subjects with a prorogation coming up—the last before a general election now expected in August.

The Commons voted unanimously to give Prime Minister St. Laurent, going to Washington today, a mandate to tell the United States administration of Canada's objections to U. S. trade barriers.

RARE UNANIMITY

It was a rare expression of unanimity, particularly because the vote came on a Progressive Conservative motion which technically called for a vote of non-confidence in the government as an amendment to a government supply motion. But Prime Minister St. Laurent accepted it, with a slight change.

With the Commons pushing for prorogation—perhaps by Saturday—the usually long foreign affairs debate on External Affairs Minister Pearson's anual estimates was curtailed. CCF speakers settled for a few pot shots at Canada's program of assistance to underdeveloped countries.

M. J. Coldwell, CCF leader, taxed the government with doing "pitifully little" to help underdeveloped countries in the technical assistance program of the United Nations.

Stanley Knowles (CCF—Winnipeg North Centre) complained of a disparity between Canada's contributions to direct defence and to technical aid.

Mr. Pearson replied Canada has been doing her fair share in technical aid—as divided between the nations—but that direct defence must come first. Technical aid would be of little help to Canada if defence weakness opened the way to aggression.

RAP WHEAT POLICY

Government policy on wheat prices came under fire from the opposition, but the Commons' Liberal majority knocked down a CCF non-confidence motion embodying a demand for an immediate announcement of a $1.65-a-bushel initial payment on 1953 wheat.

Last year, it was $1.40 for No. 1 northern basis Fort William and Trade Minister Howe recently announced that at least that much would be paid this year.

But he said earlier—and repeated Wednesday—that the price announcement will have to wait until after the July 15 deadline for ratification of signatures to the international wheat agreement. He said there might be some difficulty about ratification.

WOULD BOOST PRICE

The agreement would boost the ceiling price for IWA wheat to $2.05 a bushel from the $1.80 of the previous pact.

The $1.65-a-bushel motion, moved by Hazen Argue (CCF—Assiniboia), was supported by all opposition parties and by one western Liberal—John S. Sinnott from Springfield in Manitoba.

It was the second time in this session—and only the second time in Prime Minister St. Laurent's administration—that a Liberal member had kicked over the traces on a non-confidence motion that theoretically could topple the government.

Mr. Howe also said to the Assiniboia member—who has been urging that farmers be paid storage charges on wheat they have to keep on their farms—that he thinks those holding wheat after Aug. 1 will be "rewarded" in the final 1953 price. This was regardless of the initial price.

The minister was suggesting that the final price for wheat marketed in the 1953 crop year which starts Aug. 1 would be higher than that for the current crop year ending July 31.

Must Sell Freedom

KITCHENER (CP) — Canadians must sell freedom to their countrymen to compete with communism and socialism, Tom Lawson of London, Ont., president of the Ontario Chamber of Commerce, said Wednesday. He told a regional conference of district chambers that, to get the emphasis "off the material to the spiritual, we must rededicate ourselves to God."

Adjudictor Lauds Play Staged By Toronto Alumnae

VICTORIA (CP)—Enthusiastic approval of the University of Toronto Alumnae dramatic Club's presentation of T. S. Eliot's play "The Family Reunion" was given Wednesday night at the Dominion Drama Festival.

Adjudicator Pierre Lefevre said it was "a very distinguished performance" and "on a higher level than we have seen so far in this festival."

"It was a performance which could hold its own against any company in any country," he said.

Earlier Mr. Lefevre gave more praise than criticism of the first French-language play of the festival, "Le Bourgeois Gentilhomme" by Les Etudiants de l' Universite Saint-Joseph of St. Joseph, N. B.

Wednesday's plays were the third and fourth of the eight plays to be presented at the festival. Sunday, Governor - General Vincent Massey will present the award for the best play of the eight.

Mr. Lefevre said the Toronto group played as "beautifully and as close to the thought of the author as one would ever hope to see."

Eliot's play is about a hero coming home after eight years and an unsuccessful marriage to find his reason for the failure of his life in the past. He finds a new purpose in life. The play works in a Greek pattern using a chorus.

Mr. Lefevre's remarks were not without criticism. When a "show is as good as this, one becomes super-critical," he said.

One or two lighting effects were "not subtle enough" and the appearance of the mysterious Eumenides was "too definite and too real" to maintain the air of mystery.

He said the direction of the play by Herbert Whittaker was "distinguished and accomplished", "with a great sense of measure and respect for the author's work." Richard Easton's performance was "very distinguished."

Mr. Lefevre said the French-language presentation was "a charming spectacle with lots of spirit."

He praised the large cast and said the comedy "was fresh and inventive" and "showed maturity, confidence and vigor."

But, he said, the play lacked high comedy.

Roch Banville, who took the part of the merchant Jourdain and Jean-Paul LeBlanc, who played a valet, were singled out for praise.

Jean Giraudoux's "The Mad Woman of Chaillot" will be presented by the Ottawa Little Theatre group tonight.

Urges Freedom For Railroads In Setting Price

MONTREAL (CP)—Reasonable managerial freedom in pricing services must be given railways, president W. A. Mather of the Canadian Pacific Railway said Wednesday.

Addressing shareholders at the company's 72nd annual general meeting, Mr. Mather said "the serious problem confronting the railways is that of meeting truck and other competition while they themselves remain bound by a pattern of rates designed at a time when competition was a relatively unimportant factor."

The present freight-rate structure has evolved from one originally designed to serve a very different economy, he said. Railways then were the only effective means of overland transportation. Opening new land areas and developing the commerce of a young nation were important. The understandable dominant consideration was that products of the farm, the forest and the mine should move to the market place at minimum rates.

APPLY PRINCIPLE

The value-of-service principle was applied. Relatively low rates were granted for low-valued and raw commodities; higher rates for high-valued and processed commodities, but not so high as to prevent or discourage their movement.

Today, he said, railways no longer are the exclusive means of transportation for high-value traffic, once relied upon to offset "marginal revenues" for haulage of primary commodities.

The trucking industry "has an important place in the economy" but it "is not required by law to carry all types of traffic at published scales of rates, enjoys the privilege of using public highways at low cost and is relatively free from regulation."

Windsor Sister Bosses School's Boiler Room

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Sister Mary Gertrude joined the order of the Holy Names of Jesus and Mary almost 40 years ago with the intention of becoming a school teacher.

Now she is boss of the boiler room at St. Mary's Academy.

Since the day she left her job in a Montreal insurance office to join the order she has had a unique career in mechanics and construction. In 1932 she was awarded a fourth-class stationary engineer's certificate.

She once applied to write for third-class papers with the intention of eventually winning a second-class certificate. However, the Ontario labor department returned her fee and diplomatically explained that since the examination text used the masculine gender, she was not eligible for such certification.

INTERPRETER AT FIRST

Being bilingual, one of her first assignments was that of interpreter for the bursar who was supervising construction of the order's mother house in Montreal and who spoke only French.

She became interested in the work and was later named to supervise construction of St. Mary's here. She travelled to Windsor every three weeks during the construction.

When the academy opened in 1929 she was appointed director of maintenance.

She said she decided to study engineering because her work brought her into contact with various mechanical problems about which she felt she should have a better understanding.

As director of maintenance she also supervises one of the city's largest house cleaning jobs.

The five-storey building covers 5½ acres and has 27 teachers and 600 students. The boiler room over which she is boss has three towering boilers of 250 horsepower each.

She also is director of maintenance for the five-storey academy building which rambles over 5½ acres. As boss of the boiler room she supervises three towering boilers of 250 horsepower each. Sidetracked from her original intention of becoming a school teacher, she has been an engineer since 1932.

Anglican Synod Stresses Work For Missions

HAMILTON (CP)—The 79th annual synod of the Anglican diocese of Niagara Wednesday voted in favor of a resolution that stressed improvement and development of established missions in Canada, India and Japan before undertaking new missions.

Bishop W. E. Bagnall said that no matter how members of the synod voted on this resolution, the diocese would never tell the Missionary Society of the Church in Canada that the diocese would not support the decisions made by that society.

Rev. Morse Robinson of Hamilton said that he was afraid of the missionary society. "They involve us in matters then say that we have to support them. We have never really taken over our own Canadian work."

"The entire church must work as a team and although individual parts of the church might disagree yet the whole-hearted support was necessary," said Bishop Bagnall.

Tie Asparagus In Bundle To Cook

By Consumer Section Marketing Service, Canada Department of Agriculture

Those lucky people who have an asparagus patch in their garden get quite a thrill watching the green shoots poking their heads through the ground and no one can tell them when asparagus is at its best for they know. But for those homemakers who buy asparagus at the market or in the shop here are a few useful pointers from the home economists. Asparagus stalks should be straight and firm, bright green in colour and should have tightly closed tips. If the stalks are tender, they should be very brittle. If the stalks look wilted and the tips of the asparagus are spread, then it is quite possible that the asparagus has been cut too long. After the homemaker has selected fresh, tender, firm bunches of asparagus, she should hurry home and cook it because asparagus toughens rapidly after it has been cut. If all the asparagus is not going to be used immediately, it should be dried thoroughly, then wrapped and stored in a cool place. If the asparagus is stored in a moist condition, it will lose its quality quickly.

Home economists suggest that when cooking asparagus, the stalks should be tied in a bundle, then placed upright in a small amount of boiling water and cooked until they are just tender. Young, slender asparagus stalks should be tender in ten minutes but large less tender stalks may take fifteen or even twenty minutes. When cooking asparagus pieces, cut the asparagus stalk in one-inch pieces. Place the stalk ends in a small amount of boiling water and cook covered. When the stalks are almost tender, place the tips on top of the stalks and cook until they are tender.

FREEZING ASPARAGUS

Now is the time for those who have either a home freezer or a locker to freeze asparagus for it is plentiful and of good quality. Select young, tender stalks with tightly closed tips, remove any tough butts and scrape off the scales. Wash thoroughly to remove any sand, then cut the stalks in uniform lengths to fit whatever type of container is to be used. Home economists suggests that these ends, which are trimmed off be saved and frozen separately Later on, they can be used in soups or casseroles dishes. Blanch the asparagus stalks in boiling water to preserve the natural colour and flavour. The large stalks should be blanched for four minutes and the medium stalks for three minutes. Cool the stalks quickly in ice water then drain thoroughly and pack in cartons. Freeze the cartons of asparagus as fast as possible so as to retain the flavour. Looking ahead to winter when meals are sometimes a little dull, the serving of hot buttered asparagus will perk up the family appetities just as if it were spring.

ASPARAGUS ROLLS

Don't you love to go out to a tea where the hostess serves toasted asparagus rolls? The family will love them too if two or three toasted goodsized rolls topped with a cheese sauce are served as a luncheon dish. One easy way to prepare the rolls is to place them in a square baking dish or on a cookie sheet and broil until they are crisp and brown. For a change the cooked asparagus may be rolled in ham or bologna slices, broiled the same way and served on toast with a cream sauce.

ASPARAGUS PIE

2 cups milk
1 large bay leaf
4 sprigs parsley
4 thin slices onions
Pinch of thyme
Pinch of marjoram
8 peppercorns
4 tablespoons fat
4 tablespoons flour
1 tablespoon fat
1 cup canned pork, cut in ¼" cubes
1 lb. asparagus
1-9" baked pie shell
½ cup Cheddar cheese
¼ cup very fine buttered crumbs

Bring milk to scolding point with bay leaf, parsley, onion, thyme, marjoram and peppercorns; then strain to remove seasonings Make a cream sauce of the fat, flour, salt and strained milk. Meanwhile heat the 1 tablespoon of fat and add the cubed pork. Allow to brown and add to the cream sauce. Cook the asparagus in boiling salted water until just tender Drain. Line the baked pie shell with half the cooked asparagus, all points leading away from the centre. Pour over them a thin layer of the sauce. Add remaining asparagus, points in this time, on top of the sauce. Combine remaining sauce and cheese and pour over asparagus. Top the dish with the buttered crumbs and brown quickly under the broiler. Yield: six servings.

ASPARAGUS EGG CASSEROLE

1 lb. bunch asparagus
6 hard-cooked eggs
¾ cup minced canned pork
¼ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 teaspoon grated onion
¾ teaspoon dry mustard
1 tablespoon milk
¼ teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper
4 tablespoons fat
6 tablespons flour
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 cups milk
1 cup grated Cheddar cheese
½ cup buttered bread crumbs

Cook asparagus in boiling water until just tender. Drain. Cut hard-cooked eggs in half lengthwise and remove yolks. Mash egg-yolks and blend with the meat, Worcestershire sauce, onion, mustard, milk, salt and pepper. Fill centres of the egg-white halves with egg-yolk mixture. Melt fat, blend in flour, salt and pepper and slowly stir in milk. Cook, stirring constantly until sauce thickens. Add grated cheese and stir until cheese is melted. Place asparagus in a layer on the bottom of a casserole. Arrange stuffed eggs in a layer on top. Pour cheese sauce over and top with buttered bread crumbs. Bake in a moderate oven, 350 deg. F., until thoroughly heated and crumbs are browned,—about 25 minutes. Yield: six servings.

ASPARAGUS AND PORK SCALLOP

1 lb. bunch asparagus
1½ cups cheese sauce
½ tin canned pork (6 oz.)
1 tablespoon grated cheese

Cook asparagus. Pour part of the cheese sauce into an oval or oblong casserole. Add half the asparagus and cover with the remaining sauce. Cut the pork into fingers or cubes and place down the centre of the casserole. Arrange remaining asparagus on either side of the meat. Sprinkle with grated cheese. Place in a moderately hot oven 375 deg. F., until thoroughly heated—25 to 30 minutes if ingredients are cold. Yield: four servings.

Thistlewaite-Baskin Rites

In Christ Church, Anglican, at Norwood on Wednesday, May 6th, Jean Isabella, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Baskin of Norwood, became the bride of William Albert Thistlethwaite, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred E. Thistlethwaite of Toronto. The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. H. E. Peasgood, rector.

Pink and white carnations in standards, banked with ferns, were at the altar. The wedding music was played by Mrs. Frederick Tredree and Mrs. Leonard Metcalfe sang "The Lord's Prayer" during the signing of the register.

The bride wore a white lace redingote, with high collar and trimmed with pearl buttons, over taffeta, and a headdress of sweetheart design held her veil of net edged with Chantilly type lace which fell to shoulder length. She carried a white prayer book topped with an orchid.

Given in marriage by her father, she was attended by her sister Miss Ruth Baskin and the groom's sister, Miss Shirley Thistlethwaite. The attendants wore matching gowns of pink and blue net over taffeta and matching hats trimmed with sweet peas. They carried nosegays of pink and blue carnations.

The groomsman was Mr. Jack Thistlethwaite and the ushers were Porter Five and Sherwood Reinhardt.

The wedding reception was at the bride's home where her mother received, wearing navy with white accessories and a bouquet of white carnations.

Leaving later on the wedding trip to Toronto and points west, the bride wore a navy frock trimmed with daisy medallions and had navy and white accessories.

The couple will live at RR 2, Norwood on their return.

Neighbor Guilds See Display At Dixon House

Four types of craft work, each showing marked progress in variety and craftsmanship, were viewed by a very enthusiastic crowd Wednesday evening at the Dixon House. Peterborough Handcraft Guild was holding an "open house" under sponsorship of the Peterborough Recreation Commission and members of Handcraft Guilds in Lindsay, Belleville, Port Hope and Cobourg came to view the work.

The most extensive display was of leather work and it was amazing to find that nearly all of the beautifully tooled and bound purses had been made by students in their first year. The display included a movie camera case of heavy leather, sized and designed by the maker. Miss Ethel Robson was demonstrating the setting of a design in leather.

Pottery making was being demonstrated during the evening by Miss Lillie Taylor and Miss June Fraser, along with a display of very fine work.

Metalcrafter Lloyd Jackson of Bailieboro had on display the copper tray which won honorable mention in an exhibition by Canadian crafters at Montreal recently. He has been working with the metal for two seasons now and this was an outstanding achievement in that length of time.

Weaving is the fourth craft taught at Dixon House and looms are housed in the third storey. The difficulty in this work is there is not enough looms for the weavers wishing to progress in this art.

Members of the Guild were gathered for a box supper following which they held an annual meeting. Mrs. R. H. Parker read the nominating committee's report and it was unanimously accepted.

Mrs. E. C. Frost was re-elected president and she will have Mrs. M. J. Swanston as first vice-president and Miss June Fraser as second vice. Miss Lillie Taylor will be secretary for next season and Mrs. M. G. Niblett will be treasurer.

June meeting of the Guild is to take the form of a picnic at the home of Miss Fraser at Burleigh Falls.

Mrs. S. Malsch Circle President

Mrs. Sidney Malsch was elected president of the Mary Nicholls Mission Circle of Murray Street Baptist Church at the annual meeting Tuesday evening. She succeeds Mrs. Percy Johnson who has completed a three-year term. Upon taking office Mrs. Malsch presented Mrs. Johnson with a life membership donated by the honorary president, Miss Margaret Matthews.

Splendid reports from the various committees covering activities for the past year were heard, with a most encouraging one from Mrs. H. Welch, treasurer, showing that $1,350 had been raised for missionary enterprises.

The Rev. Ivan C. Morgan who had just returned from a tour of Home Mission Churches in Eastern Quebec, gave a vivid description of the conditions which exist in that territory, with regard to church work.

The following officers were installed by Mr. Morgan: Honorary president, Miss Margaret Matthews; president, Mrs. S. Malsch; first vice president, Mrs. H. Wells; second vice president, Miss I. Scott; recording secretary, Mrs. G. H. Frise; corresponding secretary, Mrs. L. Gould; treasurer, Mrs. H. Welch, assistant, Mrs. W. Kidd; Link and Visitor agent, Mrs. N. Barrie; membership, Mrs. S. Gillespie; work conveners, Miss S. Eastwood, Mrs. W. Cocks; telephone convener, Mrs. E. Briggs; reading course secretary, Mrs. H. H. Graham; pianists, Mrs. P. Johnson, Mrs. I. C. Morgan.

Mother's Day Gifts Feature Of Rebekahs' Tea

Rebekahs of the Golden Link Lodge held their first social event in the Oddfellow's new quarters at 370 Water St. on Wednesday afternoon. The annual spring tea has formerly been held in member's homes so that the spaciousness of the hall and the kitchen facilities was much appreciated when a crowd numbering more than 200 attended.

Perfect weather for the occasion may have caused the hall to fill with guests even before the opening hour.

Feature attraction was a table of gifts suitable for Mother's Day. The items included a variety of apron styles, plants, cups and saucers, crochet work, costume jewelry, bedroom slippers, household novelties, and embroidered towels and cases. Mrs. K. E. Hoard and Mrs. F. E. James were in charge of the table and did a most successful business.

Mrs. R. Colmer arranged for a splendid variety of home baking for sale and also a table of home-made candy. Salesladies at the bake table were Mrs. Olive Howland, Mrs. Edna Sage, Mrs. O. Cruikshanks, Mrs. S. Thompson, Mrs. Eric Miller and Mrs. W. T. Alberry and at the candy table, Mrs. S. J. Rowe and Mrs. Richard Wellman.

Mrs. F. Mowry was tea room convener and she had arranged a very dainty tea table using the colors of the Order, pink and green, as her basis. The tapers in silver holders were in these colors and the bouquet of spring flowers in a matching silver bowl showed pink snapdragon with hyacinths, pansies, and sweet peas.

Tea pourers were Mrs. W. H. Morton, Mrs. A. V. Harnden, Mrs. Frank Barrie and Mrs. H. Beatty.

Serving were Mrs. H. Burrows, Mrs. Greta Cuffe, Mrs. Irene Tyler, Mrs. A. Harte-Maxwell, Mrs. Harold Wilson, Mrs. E. Hatherley, Mrs. Irene Viscoff, and Mrs. E. Reid. Mrs. B. MacLean and Mrs. C. Collins looked after replenishing the plates. Tea was made by Mrs. C. Fairbairn, Mrs. E. Preiver and Mrs. E. Moxam.

Receiving at the door was Mrs. James Ridyard, vice grand, assisted by Mrs. Herb. Youngs, Past Grand, and Mrs Irene Hewitt and Mrs. L. Hildenbrand were at the treasurer's table. Hostesses in the tea room were Mrs. O. Price and Mrs. Beatrice Gurney.

Urges Broadening Of VON Works

OTTAWA (CP)—E. P. Taylor of Toronto, president of the executive council, Victorian Order of Nurses for Canada, said Wednesday that ways and means must be found to extend VON work, both in centres where VON now operates and in areas not served.

The 55th annual meeting of the board of governors was held in Rideau Hall, home of the governor-general, Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey. The governor-general said "there isn't a person in this country who doesn't want to see VON service expanded."

Mr. Taylor, re-elected president of the organization, said the principal limiting factors to developing the full potential of the order were inadequate finances and a shortage of trained nurses. Extension of home nursing would make a "notable contribution" to relieve a deficiency of hospital beds in many places.

An expanded program of public information was needed to extend VON work and to raise the necessary financial support. National funds will "be exhausted very shortly," he said, and accordingly "we must launch a financial appeal."

DOROTHY DIX:

Wife, Mother-In-Law Clash Husband's Church Different

DEAR MISS DIX: Seven months ago my husband and I ran off and got married. We are of different religions, and had no understanding about the situation. We came home to live with his people, and everything went wrong. My mother-in-law argued constantly. I tried to co-operate by taking instructions in his church, but didn't understand what I was learning, so I stopped. This, of course, made things more difficult between me and his family. In any argument between me and my mother-in-law, my husband took her part.

A few weeks ago he was called into the service, and I left my mother-in-law's to go home to my own parents. I have been happy and contented there, except that I haven't heard from my husband since he left. I write to him almost every day. How can I get him to talk things over with me and respect my wishes as much as he does his mother's? ALICE M.

AN IMPULSIVE LARK

ANSWER: Your letter is a recital of inadequacies and frustrations. Marriage, you expected, was an impulsive lark. There is no harder job than making a marriage work, but it apparently has never occurred to you to put some effort into yours. From the time of your impetuous, runaway marriage, you've conceded defeat without trying to work for victory. There is, for instance, the matter of your religious differences.

You began to straighten out that complication by agreeing to consider your husband's church. But how far did your concession go? After a few conferences you decided it was too much trouble to understand his religion, and down you went in defeat again. Your difficulties with your mother-in-law follow the same pattern. You made no allowances for her shock at having her son secretly wed.

I'm quite sure she was no happier in having a strange and unexpected daughter-in-law foisted upon her than you were to share her living quarters. Oblivious to the fact that it WAS her home, you expected things to be arranged according to your own convenience.

Your husband was undoubtedly so fed up with the constant bickering around him that he welcomed the call to service. Perhaps he's beginning to regret his hasty marriage, and you are largely to blame if he is. Now you are realizing that you two should "talk things over!" The time for that was eight months ago, but even now it's not too late if you are willing to face the complications of your marriage. Write your husband and, instead of complaining, let him know that you realize your responsibilities and will henceforth meet them squarely.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I'm 19 and going with a boy in service. He writes me every day and tells me he loves me. I've never told him I love him, because I know I don't. I like going out on dates with him, but have no intentions of becoming serious over him. I don't want to encourage or discourage the boy. How can I tell him how I feel?

B. B.

✧ ✧ ✧

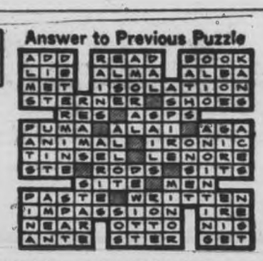
ANSWER: In view of his regard for you, it's scarcely fair to keep him dangling. Tell him frankly that you like him very much, enjoy the dates you have and would like to continue the status quo. He can then decide whether to go on dating you in hope that he will win your love, or give up the quest.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: Through my high school years I had many dates and good times. Now I have been out of school for two years, and rarely have a date. I have become interested in a boy quite a bit older, whom I have never met formally. We see each other on the street and I know he used to date my best friend. How can I get to know him? I do not know his church preference or any activities in which he is interested.

K. R.

✧ ✧ ✧



ANSWER: Surely your best friend could give some information on the boy's activities. If you don't want to ask her outright, hinting around should elicit the desired information. Once you know where he is most likely to be found, hunt up a mutual acquaintance who could do the introducing. Meeting a boy through an introduction is really the simplest way to get to know him. Other systems are too uncertain.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Let Children Have Part In Making Mother's Cake

Mother's Day and mother's birthday, present an unique problem to mothers as well as to their eager and adoring children.

For the children's ambition often outruns their know-how.

How does a tactful mother pave the way for her eager young ones to make a festive cake? Some of you lucky gals have husbands who can cook and bake and who love to do it too, and who can, of course, include the children in on the festive cake-making.

Many's the time I've left around a simplified recipe with a large caption "Mother's Day Cake Children Can Make" at the top in bold letters, then taken off for downtown, so my eager conspirators could make a wreck of the kitchen in their own abandoned fashion.

The most foolproof cake batter I know is

JIFFY CAKE WITH TOPPING

This is good for any emergency for it may be mixed and baked and out of the oven in one hour flat (see below).

For a special Mother's Day cake follow directions for brown sugar and walnut topping, but leave a 2-inch wide strip unsugared across the middle. With a pointed knife imprint the batter, which is fairly thick, to spell out the word M-O-T-H-E-R. Carefully fill these letter marks with brown sugar, then further outline the word with walnut quarters on top of the sugar.

In a large bowl put all together ¼ cup soft shortening or butter, 1 cup sugar, 1 egg, 1 cup milk, 1-3 teaspoon salt, 1½ cups sifted flour, 1½ teaspoons baking powder and 1 teaspoon vanilla. Now beat with strong rotary beater or electric beater until batter is perfectly smooth. It takes at least 2 minutes. (I tried putting the bowl under the electric beater as soon as the shortening was in and let it beat while I was adding the ingredients. It worked perfectly. Nothing can spoil this batter.) Pour into pan about 8x8x2 inches which has been butered and paper-lined. Sprinkle top with 1-3 to ½ cup brown sugar and then with 1-3 to ½ cup finely chopped walnuts or see note above for putting name on it. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. about 40 minutes.

Variation: Instead of sugar and walnuts sprinkle over the batter, ½ cup each grated sweet chocolate and chopped almonds.

When the sugar (or the chocolate) melts it seeps into the batter a little and is delicious.

I'll tell you a cake not to make—that is, if you make a habit of walking off and forgetting all about the stuff in the oven, just because unexpected company turns up. That's exactly what I did last Sunday afternoon. I made a special 3-layer spice cake because I thought this column needed a cake-lift treatment. I carefully kept notes on every little different spice I added, arranged the 3 layer pans in the oven ever so fussily, adjusted the temperature control, and at that point a "bop-bop" sounded on our knocker. We took the visitors into the living-room, I served tea, and the guests left in about an hour. When I went back to the kitchen things smelled queer and it was pretty foggy. Pete and I met at the oven door in a dead heat. There they were, all three of them, a dark shade of brown-black, merrily smoking away. And I was expecting more guests for dinner! What a mess. There was something sadistic in the flourishing way Pete flung them into the garbage pail.

Daunted but determined, I made the Jiffy Cake I've told you about above. It was baked and out of the oven in 1 hour. Pete (the angel) said he didn't like spice cake anyway, and that the Jiffy Cake was the best yet. The kind of talk that keeps grey mothers from getting greyer.

WHEN your Baby's head feels hot it may be because of simple fever common to some minor baby ailment. If so, Baby's Own Tablets will help reduce this simple fever by clearing harmful wastes out of the system. If baby's fever is not promptly relieved consult your physician.

One Midland, Ontario Mother has this to say: "My little baby was feverish and hot. I gave her Baby's Own Tablets and by night-time she was up and around again."

Baby's Own Tablets are sweet-tasting, easy to take—and have been used with confidence by mothers for over 50 years. No "sleepy" stuff—no dulling effect. Equally good for restlessness and peevishness resulting from irregularity at teething time, for constipation, digestive upsets and other minor infant troubles. Get a package today at your druggist.

6—In Memoriam

FARTHING—In loving memory of a dear father, Reginald Farthing, who passed away May 7, 1952.
"Entered into God's holy rest."
Ever remembered by son Gordon, Gladys and grandchildren.

FARTHING—In loving memory of my dear husband, who passed away one year ago today, May 7.
Gone is the face I loved so dear,
Silent is the voice I loved to hear,
Too far away for sight or speech,
But not too far for thoughts to reach.
Sweet to remember him who once was here,
And who, though absent, is just as dear.
—Sadly missed by his wife.

FARTHING—In loving memory of our dear father, who passed away one year ago today, May 7.
His weary hours, his days of pain,
His troubled nights are passed,
And in our lonely hearts we know
He's found sweet rest at last.
—Ever remembered by George, Anita and children.

ROWAN—In loving memory of my beloved infant son, Thomas Hector Rowan, in his 17th month, who met death by drowning at Bowmanville Beach, May 7, 1952.
He was a flower too great for earth,
Sent here but for awhile,
God marked him when he gave him birth,
And took him with a smile.
—Ever remembered by mother and sister Nancy.

ROWAN—In loving memory of our dear grandson, Thomas Hector Rowan, who passed away May 7th, 1952, in his 17th month.
The memory of his dear, wee ways,
Will linger with us all our days.
Sweetest flower, too sweet to stay,
God took him home to show us the way.
—Ever remembered and sadly missed, Grandma and Grandpa Fisher.

FARTHING—In loving memory of Mr. Reg. Farthing, who passed away May 7, 1952.
If we had all the world to give,
We'd give it, yes and more,
To hear his voice and see his smile,
And greet him at the door.
But all we can do dear dad,
Is go and tend your grave,
And leave behind tokens of love,
To the best dad God ever made.
—Ever remembered and sadly missed by daughters, Cora, Hilda and Irene.

FARTHING—In loving memory of Mr. R. Farthing, who died May 7, 1952.
There is a link death cannot sever,
Love and remembrance last forever.
—Ever remembered by Grace, Bill and Danny.

VASS—In loving memory of a dear husband and father Walter Vass, who passed away May 7, 1946.
Seven years have passed and gone
Since one we loved so well,
Was taken from our home on earth,
With Jesus Christ to dwell.
The flowers we place upon his grave
May wither and decay,
But the love for him who sleeps beneath
Shall never fade away
—Sadly missed by wife, son and daughter.

CWL President Makes Changes

First meeting of the Sacred Heart sub-division of the Catholic Women's League under new president Mrs. Margaret MacDougall was held Wednesday evening. Mrs. MacDougall spoke a few words of thanks for the honor of being president before the opening ceremony. The treasury report was given by Mrs. V. LaPlante.

It was decided that the Women's League communion Snnday will be the last Sunday of each month at the eight o'clock mass. In future the rosary is to be said for the deceased at seven o'clock the first evening of the wake.

The following committee chairmen were appointed: Mrs. Frank Daley to visit sick in hospital; Mrs. Eddie Amyotte to visit sick at home; Mrs. Neil Collins to be social convener; Miss Louise Letellier to look after the rosaries for the deceased; Mrs. Leo Martyn in charge of membership.

Weekly card parties will still be held every Wednesday evening in the club house. Those in charge are Mrs. A. Brioux, Mrs. Joseph Stewart, Mrs. Leo Marytn and Mrs. F. Gilmore.

Members who miss three meetings in succession will taken off the roll in the future. All meetings are to be held the frist Monday of the month at seven-thirty in the evening, in the church basement.

Mrs. MacDougall and Mrs. Martyn were appointed to represent the sub-division at the Children's Aid Society meeting tonight. There is to be a meeting Sunday evening after devotions to prepare for the forthcoming diocesan convention in the Sacred Heart parish on June 10th. Mrs. Neil Collins, convener, asked that all members be present for this.

A gift was presented to the retiring president Mrs. Leo Martyn by the members.

Monsignor P. P. Butler closed the meeting with prayer.

10th Anniversary Of Catholic Group

Tenth anniversary of the organization of the group now known as Our Lady of Fatima sub-division of the Catholic Women's League (formerly Catholic Junior League) was celebrated at the regular meeting Monday evening. The feature was the draw for a birthday cake which was won by Mrs. James Butler.

The meeting was held in the social centre with president Miss Veronica O'Leary presiding. Plans for a rummage sale to be held this Saturday at the K of C Hall under convenership of Miss Genevieve Murray were made. Annual outing for the children of the orphanage was also planned. Mrs. P. J. LaBranche announced the communion breakfast will be held on Sunday, May 10th after nine o'clock mass and will be served at the Kawartha Golf and Country Club.

Miss Barbara Hickey introduced the speaker of the evening, the Rev. J. F. Marrocco who took as his subject "Your Society and what it means." He declared the object of all societies is to save souls and said: "It is abnormal for the members of the body to be separated, and so it is abnormal for us to sin or go against Christ thus separating ourselves from Him. While not thinking ourselves better than others, we must have self-respect. We are entitled to our rights but not at the detriment of others."

"The Catholic Women's League is part of the Catholic Church and as such we can influence others by our example.

"Your society," said Father Marrocco, "should have an interest in all things that save souls."

Our Lady of Fatima sub-division also all other parochial organization and societies should perform all the corporal and spiritual works of mercy. All our activities should fit in with the works of mercy.

Miss Vivian Sullivan voiced the appreciation of the members to Father Marrocco. Lunch was served by the refreshment committee.

OMEMEE PUBLIC SCHOOL

OMEMEE (ENS). — Omemee Home and School Association held their final meeting of the '52-'53 year, Monday night, with yearly reports and election of officers.

They had as guest speaker, the newly-appointed district chairman, Mrs. C. Coons of Lakefield. She was accompanied by Mrs. A. R. Gariepy of Peterborough and Mrs. V. Deck of Lakefield.

Reports were heard from the secretary, the treasurer, and the following conveners: Mrs. Lennox for membership; Mrs. Hicks, pubic relations; Mrs. G. Smith, social; Mrs. S. D. Vaughan, press; Mrs. V. E. R. Zufelt, health, and Mrs. Sisson, sunshine.

Miss Rea's room gained the shield for best parent attendance. Two numbers were sung by Mrs. L. Casey, with Mrs. A. Stephenson accompanying.

Mrs. Coons spoke on County Health Units, of which, she stated, there are now 27 in Ontario. In Lakefield, Home and School were first interested in a health unit in 1948, and after five years of effort, hope they are nearing their goal.

It is necessary to first get the permission of the medical health officer and of the local council, and the backing of service clubs before taking it to county council.

Norwood Home and School had made a start by holding an open meeting in the interest of the health unit. At this a committee was formed, who visited the various township councils, after which a delegation approached the county council. Some of the difficulties in organizing are population and cost. There must be approximately 20,000 people in the area; and objections are sure to be raised concerning cost of salaries for doctors, nurses, sanitary inspectors and clerical staff.

In reality, she said, the annual cost is not so high—approximately 65c per capita, and Ontario is prepared to pay grants of 50 per cent in rural areas and 35 per cent in cities.

Mrs. Collins also spoke on "Our Duties as Home and School Members."

The report of the nominating committee, given by Mrs. J. B. Hough, showed that a vote was necessary for executive members only. Elected officers were: President, Mrs. A. Stephenson; vice-presidents, Mrs. Hough and Mrs. Ralph James; recording secertary, Mrs. R. Rehill; corresponding secretary, Mrs. A. Whetung; treasurer, Mrs. G. Nelson; executive members: Mrs. H. Bent, Mrs. L. Casey and Mrs. George Stephenson. The officers were installed by Mrs. Coons.

Mrs. H. Green was presented with a past president's pin by Mrs. S. Northey, the past president who preceded Mrs. Green.

As a token of appreciation for the hundreds of cups of tea she had made for Home and School in the past years, Mrs. Wilfred Wilson was given a coronation cup and saucer by the past executive.

Lunch was served by Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. Decker, Mrs. Joyce and Mrs. Goddard.

Convict Mother Of Child's Death

DES ARC, Ark. (AP)—Linda Epperson Head, 33-year-old mother of two other children, was convicted Wednesday of the drowning of her foster daughter in a rain barrel, and sentenced to prison for 12 years.

Her husband, James Walter Head, on whom she placed full blame for the brutal killing, has been committed to the state hospital for insanity.

The bruised and lacerated body of five-year-old Mary Wolfe was found Dec. 30 in a homemade rain-barrel near the Heads' rented shack. An autopsy showed she was drowned.

Mrs. Head testified her husband beat the child to make her mind and, thinking her dead, weighted her down in the barrel with a sledge hammer.

Speaker Suggests WCTU Do Research

BELLEVILLE (CP) — Rev. F. W. I. Brailey of Toronto, said Tuesday that increased home consumption of liquor in Ontario "is nothing short of a revolution."

He was addressing a local convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

"No institution in society has suffered so deeply from the inroads of drunkenness as the home," he said. "It would be a great contribution to society if the WCTU would do some research regarding the impact upon family life and particularly the psychological scars left upon the children by intemperance in the home."

Voting Delegates From YW Named

Mrs. H. T. Rehill, Y president, announced that 14 delegates will attend the convention in Quebec City in June. Voting delegates will be Miss L. Brownscombe, Mrs. Rehill, Miss Jean McIntyre and Mrs. Walter Perks.

Mrs. S. McBride announced another Surplus Sale will be held on this Saturday morning at 10 o'clock to raise funds for convention delegates. Donations of dishes and good used clothing are solicited.

Plans were made to hold the next meeting in the form of a picnic at the Filtration Plant on Wednesday, June 3rd.

No Novelty

EASTBOURNE, England (CP)—Jill and Peter Burville, aged 8 and 3, get plenty of train rides. Their father, a member of the Eastbourne Society of Model Engineers, built a 56-pound locomotive that can pull half a ton, to drive a miniature train at their home.

GALLOP TO THE CENTRE—After a number of eye-catching manoeuvres, the Mounties' Musical Riders do a sudden gallop towards each other in what appears to be an almost certain head-on crash but which actually turns into this striking circle of men and horses. The manoeuvre is called the Dome. The RCMP Musical Ride will be performed at the Royal Tournament in London after the Coronation June 2.

QUIT PULLING!—The horses seem to have a certain air of disrespect as the top Mountie, Commissioner L. H. Nicholson (right), passes through the Musical Ride ranks to give his stamp of approval. The Musical Ride—to be performed at the Royal Tournament in London after the Coronation June 2—is steeped in the traditions of the RCMP and not a flaw must be seen anywhere. With the Commissioner is Assistant Commissioner D. L. McGibbon, of Regina, who will head the contingent overseas.

NERVES OF STEEL—The horses performing in the RCMP Musical Ride—to be presented at the Royal Tournament in London after the Coronation June 2—don't frighten easily. A four-engine aircraft skims overhead but they don't budge an inch. Flags, bunting and tin cans have been used to train the horses not to bolt when big crowds act up.

Garage Workers In Lindsay Plan To Organize

LINDSAY (ENS)—Garage mechanics and other workers are next on the list of Lindsay groups to be organized by the United Steel Workers of America representatives in town at the present time.

A meeting of some mechanics, body repair men and stores and parts was held Tuesday night at the Canadian Legion auditorium, when Ralph Carlin, organizer for the union, outlined their plans for the town, and reviewed the past record of the steel workers.

"We mean to stay in town until the job is finished," he said to the dozen-odd men to attend the meeting, "we've taken a five-year lease on a building, where we will have an office and assembly hall. We'll stay, at least, as long as the working men in Lindsay want us."

Although the meeting was intended only to outline the union's organizations and aims, it developed at the insistence of some of the mechanics present, into a discussion of wages and other union benefits. Mr. Carlin told the men that wage discussions were premature but the meeting finally decided to attempt to bring Lindsay wages up to the level paid in Oshawa, when the men organize.

HOLD MEETING

Organized workers of Dominion Brake Shoe and McCrae Foundry in Lindsay are meeting tonight to formulate their proposals to present to management. M. J. Fenwick, staff representative, of Oshawa, is to be present, and will negotiate with the two firms when the workers have their proposals drawn up.

Mr. Carlin also revealed before the meeting that further CIO organizational attempts in Lindsay will be aimed at National Textiles, Visking Ltd., and Silverwoods Ltd.

One of the members of last night's meeting was a worker at the Brake Shoe, a union man and former union sympathizer in an attempt to put the Union Electrical Workers into the Arsenal during the war. He accused the industrial commission of setting the town's wages, before the union came into the plants. Mr. Carlin also aroused some comment when he told the meeting that workers at the Arsenal, although they cannot lawfully do it, are organizing, and will take their case to C. H. Millard, national director of the Steel Workers, for presentation to Ottawa when their case is strong enough.

Famed RCMP Musical Ride Goes Back To Pioneer Days

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — The famed RCMP musical ride, to be performed at the Royal Tournament in London after the Coronation of the Queen, has a history almost as old as Canada.

It was in the days of gun-totin' outlaws, cattle rustlers and wild, untrusting Indians that the unique precision drill of men and horses was born. It was started by the Northwest Mounted Police, a tough, pioneering police force that helped to bring law and order to the unruly West.

Inspector William Dick of Lethbridge, Alta., who helped revive the ride after the Second World War, recalls an old diary which tells part of the story.

"There's an item in this diary which tells of an order issued in December, 1874, to a Sergeant-Major Belcher, instructing him to prepare two musical rides, one with lances and the other with swords," says Inspector Dick.

That order, seven years after Confederation, was issued at a remote Prairie settlement, "Pile of Bones Creek," now the thriving city of Regina.

Since then the fame of the "musical ride" has spread far and wide. Now the ride will be presented for the first time overseas before a reigning monarch. The Royal Tournament will be held June 10-19.

King George and Queen Elizabeth saw it in Regina during the 1939 royal tour. A miniature ride was held for Queen Elizabeth when she visited Canada in 1951 with the Duke of Edinburgh.

The spectacle of prancing black horses with colorful RCMP riders in the saddle performing intricate patterns of movement has survived through two world wars.

"The odd thing about that order at Pile of Bones Creek," says Inspector Dick, "is that it asked for a musical ride performed with swords as well as with lances. Swords are unusual. I've never heard of it since."

The RCMP still perform the charge—two rows of 16 horses abreast. The horses and riders, with lances pointed ahead and slightly downward, roar down the parade ground at full gallop. It's a thrilling sight, with the horses' hides glistening with sweat and steel-shod hoofs pounding the earth.

Sometimes red-and-white pennants fly from the lances, a link with medieval gladiators who wrapped white cloth around their lances when they fought and sometimes got them bloody.

Music lovers, the 32 horses like all kinds of tunes including rhumbas, fox trots and waltzes. They'll trot, gallop and even do a side-step to the mall with a fine sense of timing. This timing is the key to the beauty of the equestrian show.

At a preview of the ride here as horses and riders trained at RCMP barracks at Rockcliffe the animals went around the arena, heads held high, bodies groomed to perfection. Not a horse was out of step.

Torch Singer Drug Addict

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—One of the top torch singers in the U. S., Mary Ann McCall, pleaded guilty of possession of narcotics Tuesday and then told reporters "the H-habit (heroin) is a false crutch."

Superior Court Judge George W. Schonfeld will pass sentence May 19. It could run from 90 days to six years.

The flame-haired, 33-year-old singer originally pleaded innocent and spent 23 days in the county jail.

"Don't get on the H," she advised. "If you do, reach for a .45 instead of a bindle. Blow your brains out—it's the best way out."

"You know, I was the No. 1 girl vocalist in Metronome and Esquire and Downbeat in 1950—singing with Charlie Barnet, Woody Herman, Benny Goodman and Artie Shaw. Look at me know," she said at a press conference.

"I had an $18,000 home, and it's gone. I spent $400 to $500 a week for the stuff."

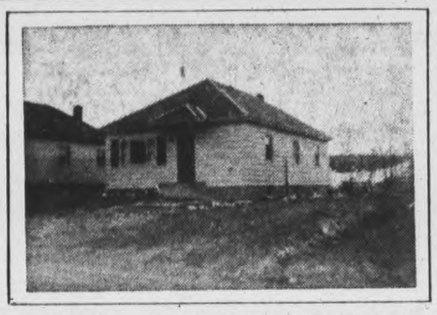
U.K. Labor Leaders Claim Edge In Voting Power

LONDON (AP)—Labor party leaders Wednesday night claimed the party has gained more than 60 country seats so far in local elections.

The elections—biggest in four years—began Tuesday in country districts. Voting in London's 28 boroughs and in 361 other towns starts today.

Labor, seeking to increase gains in last year's local polls when more than 600 Conservatives were unseated, said the party has gained 62 seats, mainly in Scotland, and lost 28. Spokesmen claimed this includes control of eight country district councils.



Conservative party headquarters claimed the party was all square with 40 gains and 40 losses. The casualty rate among non-party independents appeared high. Official results won't be announced for several days.

Nearly 5,670 candidates are fighting for the 3,451 seats at stake in provincial cities, where one-third of the councillors retire every year. Most of the campaigns were fought on local issues.

In London's first municipal elections in four years, 2,729 candidates—including a record 651 women—are scrambling for the 1,350 seats in the 28 borough councils.

Labor now controls 17 of the London borough councils and Conservatives the remaining 17

US Failure To Expand Trade Fatal--St. Laurent Warning

Wait Instructions From Washington On Truce Answer

PANMUNJOM — (AP)—Allied truce negotiators today awaited instructions from Washington on how to answer the Communists' latest Korean armistice proposal—an eight-point plan aimed at breaking the prisoner exchange deadlock. The Reds unveiled their offer unexpectedly Thursday and it went right to the top for decision. The plan would set up a five-country commission to take custody in Korea of 48,500 Red prisoners who refuse to return to communism.

With negotiations here in recess until Saturday, President Eisenhower discussed the offer with his top state and military advisers in Washington.

COUNTER OFFER

They are reported to have decided some provisions are unacceptable, but that the plan merits a counter-offer even though the Communists indicated they consider it a package deal, all or nothing.

One big question is the possibility of a hidden trick permitting the Reds to get back the 48,500 prisoners who say they won't return to communism. The Allies always have insisted that no one would be repatriated against his will.

Key points of the new Red plan include:

1. Acceptance of Allied demands that prisoners unwilling to return be left in Korea after an armistice, rather than transported to a neutral country.

2. Creation of five-country "neutral nation repatriation commission" of India, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Sweden and Switzerland to take custody of those prisoners after an armistice.

BIG WORRY

3. Each of the five countries would send equal numbers of troops to Korea to control the prisoners.

Eisenhower and his advisers are reported to object most strongly to this point, which would permit the Communist troops of Russian satellites Poland and Czechoslovakia to watch over the prisoners, many of whom are violently anti-Communist.

4. After four months of Red "explanations" to the unwilling prisoners, leaving the fate of any who still refuse repatriation to a post-armistice, high-level political conference.

The president and his advisers also were reported opposed to this, on grounds that the prisoners might be held an unreasonable time if the problem is not settled quickly.

Eisenhower was reported to be awaiting advice from Gen. Mark Clark, UN Far East commander, before instructing the delegates at Panmunjom.

Accuse Father Of Causing Child's Death

MIAMI, Fla.—(AP) — Russell Tongay, swimming instructor who once was acquitted of charges that he mistreated his swim-star daughter, Kathy, today was accused of causing her death.

Detective Charles A. Sapp of the Miami homicide bureau said an autopsy report showed that the flaxen-haired five-year-old child died Wednesday of a ruptured intestine caused by a blow.

A warrant charging the husky, 36-year-old former Coast Guardsman with murder was issued Thursday night, minutes after Tongay was released from jail on a writ of habeas corpus.

Tongay had been arrested and ordered "held for investigation of murder" two hours earlier after lengthy grilling. Tongay made no admissions during the interrogation, Sapp said.

In 1949 Tongay was acquitted of charges that he had mistreated Kathy who would have been six years old May 22.

RELEASED IN CUSTODY

Judge Marshal C. Wisehart ordered Tongay released in custody of his lawyers pending a hearing today. Justice of the peace Edwin Lee Mason then issued the warrant which Sapp said would be served at the hearing, to be held before Wisehart.

The child, who learned to swim before she could walk, suffered convulsions Wednesday and died en route to hospital.

Dr. Victor Calderine, hospital pathologist, said in his report that the ruptured intestine, with accompanying haemorrhages, apparently had been caused by a blow. Poison seeping from the resulting infection sent the child into convulsions before she died, he added.

Lieut. Chester Eldredge, chief of the homicide bureau, said:

"The girl had apparently suffered an extremely brutal beating. She was bruised all over and had a ruptured intestine."

TAKING LESSONS

Kathy and her brother, Bubba, 8, had been taking swimming instructions from their father daily.

Mrs. Tongay said the child was not injured in any accident and she could not explain the convulsions.

PM Invites Child To Canada

WASHINGTON (CP)—Canada's prime minister toured the Capitol today and surprised officials when he patted a small schoolboy on the head and told him to "come and see me next time you come to Canada."

The incident occurred as 71-year-old Louis St. Laurent was led through the historic halls of the U. S. Senate and House of Representatives on his first visit to the scene of American political battles and the hot fight for higher tariffs.

School-children safety patrols from various states were going through the capitol at the same time. As the children made way for the prime minister, he paused, leaned over and chucked a little girl under the chin. Her eyes popped.

Then the little boy told the prime minister he had been to Canada last year and he liked it. The prime minister, obviously pleased, smiled and passed along the personal invitation.

A surprised guard remarked:

"We've had a lot of prime ministers go through these halls. But this is the first one that has shown interest in the children."

UK Warns Egypt Talks May End

LONDON (AP)—Britain has told Egypt that talks on evacuation of the Suez Canal zone may collapse unless Premier Naguib backs down on his demand for Egyptian control without strings attached, British informants said today.

Sources in touch with the flagging Cairo discussions indicated Britain's negotiators, Ambassador Sir Ralph Stevenson and General Sir Brian Robertson, told Naguib yesterday that only a softening of what the British describe as Egyptian stubborness could open a way to further talks.

The parleys, which started in the Egyptian capital April 27, have teetered on the edge of a breakdown since Wednesday when they were adjourned without setting a new meeting date.

Stevenson and Robertson, transmitting their message from top foreign office officials to General Naguib and Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Fawzi, reiterated the position that British evacuation of the base would be acceptable only if Egypt guarantees its efficient maintenance in an emergency.

That would require major British technical participation in operation of the base area's gigantic military installations.

Reports from Cairo indicate Egypt has told Britain she will insist on unconditional British evacuation of the base and full Egyptian control of facilities.

Sharp Notes Exchanged In Ottawa

Polish Legation Angry Gov't Officials Attended Meeting

OTTAWA—(CP)—The Polish legation and the Canadian government have been involved in a sharp exchange concerning the status of Polish war veterans in Canada and the theft from the legation of a Polish emblem, it was disclosed today.

The external affairs department released the texts of a note received from the legation and the Canadian government's reply.

The Polish note, one of the most heated ever produced in Ottawa, concerned a meeting here April 10-12 of the Polish Combatants Association in Canada.

"It is a matter of public knowledge," said the Polish note, dated April 17, "that this organization is only a cloak for a gang of traitors to the Polish nation, conducting a vast campaign of espionage and diversion against the Polish state."

The note continued that on April 9, the Polish charge d'affaires drew the attention of L. D. Wilgress, acting under-secretary of state for external affairs, to the demonstration and protested open participation by official representatives of the Canadian government.

"In spite of this," government representatives attended including Immigration Minister Harris as representative of Prime Minister St. Laurent.

As an immediate effect "unruly elements removed from the legation building a plate bearing the emblem of the Polish state" on April 12 or 13.

The note demanded an immediate inquiry, punishment for offenders and that the Polish government be informed without delay of this action.

The Canadian reply, dated May 1 and signed by Mr. Wilgress, regretted the theft and said police had immediately been informed, recovered the plaque undamaged and returned it to the legation. At the legation's request, the police investigation was terminated.

"The department of external affairs cannot accept the suggestion that it was in any way improper for Canadian ministers or government officials to address a convention of war veterans in Canada who happen to be of Polish origin," the note said. "Those who attended the convention are residents of this country and most of them are Canadian citizens or have applied, under our law, to become citizens."

Jail Detective For 4 Years

TORONTO (CP)—Michael Manos, 30-year-old private detective, was sentenced today to four years in penitentiary for his part in a $38,000 theft from a Toronto law firm in 1950. He was convicted Wednesday.

Elsie Teasdale, chief witness for the crown and a former secretary in the law firm, testified that some of the money was used to buy a race horse for entry in a fixed race. She has served a two-year reformatory sentence for theft in the case.

Manos was convicted three times of the theft. He appealed the first two convictions.

The law firm has launched a suit against the pair for $43,622.83 damages each.

The horse lost the race.

Car, Train Hit; Driver Escapes Unhurt

Merle Lunn of RR 1, Fraserville, escaped uninjured Thursday when the truck he was driving was rammed by a CNR locomotive on Dublin St., just west of Aylmer St.

According to police Lunn had been driving east on Dublin when the accident occurred. The train struck the left front corner of the light truck, turning it sideways and carrying it 20 feet.

Damage to the truck was estimated at $400 and to the train, $20.

T Madill of 76 Albert St. S., Lindsay, was engineer of the locomotive.

PC Grant Gillespie of the city police force investigated.

British Bomber Beats Altitude Record

LONDON (AP)—A British twin-jet Canberra bomber zoomed to 63,668 feet, bettering the world aircraft altitude record by 4,222 feet, the Royal Aero Club announced today.

The flight was made last Monday from Filton airfield, near Bristol, with Wing Cmdr. W. F. Gibb, assistant chief test pilot of the Bristol Aeroplane Company at the controls.

The old record was set by John Cunningham, March 23, 1948, in a Vampire jet fighter. He reached 59,446 feet.

The absolute world altitude record is still held by a balloon, November 11, 1935, Capt. O. A. Anderson and Capt. A. W. Stevenson ascended in a balloon from Rapid City, S. D., to 22,066 metres (72,376 feet).

PARIS (Reuters)—An English woman beat a panel of top ranking Frenchmen today at their favorite national pastime—tasting wine.

Says U.S. Ready To Meet Peace Efforts Half Way

NEW YORK (AP)—President Eisenhower says the United States stands always ready to meet "any one half way" in winning a truly peaceful, moral world—but this peace must respect the rights of all men. This means "everybody, not only our friends," he said Thursday night.

For example, in Korea, he added, United States policy is dedicated to protecting rights of all people there, including those "only lately fighting in the ranks of our enemies, people that have become our prisoners."

The President, who addressed a Republican dinner here, said Korean prisoners are entitled to the "right of political asylum."

State Secretary John Foster Dulles, also addressing the $100-a-plate affair, said the United Nations command is "not prepared indefinitely to continue truce talks with the Communists in Korea."

MUST ACT SOON

"We earnestly desire and seek an honorable peace in Korea," he said. "But we shall not allow our enemies there to use peace talk as a strategem for gaining military advantages in their war of aggression."

Dulles termed it a "shocking thing" that Russia thus far has refused to agree to a post-war settlement restoring Austria, "the first victim of Hitlerite aggression," to independence.

Because of the size of the Republican gathering, it had to be split into two hotel ballrooms—1,200 at the Astor and 3,500 at the Waldorf-Astoria. The affair grossed the party $350,000.

In parallel talks to both groups, Eisenhower sketched the aims of government foreign policy and said "no foreign policy really deserves actions from someone else's initiative"—obviously an allusion to the fluctuations of Soviet policy.

CLOSE TIE-UP

The President said the U. S. domestic program is tied in closely with its foreign policy, and he referred specifically to foreign trade. Urging an ever-expanding and Douk Policing Problem Of B.C.

OTTAWA (CP)—The British Columbia government has been told by the federal government that policing of the unruly Doukhobors is B. C.'s own problem, Justice Minister Garson told H. W. Herridge (CCF—Kootenay West) in the Commons today.

Mr. Garson read a telegram received Thursday from Premier W. Bennett of B. C. asking that the federal government take action under the war measures act to proclaim a curfew on members of the Sons of Freedom in the Kootenays.

The justice minister said Rt. Hon. C. D. Howe, acting prime minister, replied that such action by Ottawa would constitute an invasion of a provincial field of jurisdiction.

New Reactor Ends Assistance

OTTAWA (CP)—Production Minister Howe disclosed today that the big new atomic reactor being built at Chalk River will take the government as far as it is going in the field of atomic power and that from there on it's up to private industry to put it on a commercial basis.

He told the Commons that Parliament won't be asked to build a fourth atomic pile because that would take the government into a field it feels private industry and such provincial power groups as the Ontario Hydro Commission should handle.

It was the government's hope that such bodies as Ontario hydro and others would combine their resources to bring the atom into commercial use and present indications were that the hope was not unfounded.

The government was ready to make its information available to any provincial power authorities that are interested. Methods of producing commercial power from the atom now were fairly well developed.

Mr. Howe's statement was the clearest-cut yet on just where the government figures its responsibilities towards the atom end and those of private industry begin.

Lawbreaking Scarce Need Few Jails

OTTAWA (CP) — Parliament heard today with amused pleasure of a place where lawbreaking is so scarce that the authorities can use one institution as both a provincial jail and a federal prison.

The place: Newfoundland.

Justice Minister Garson told the House the double-purpose institution was perpetuated in the 1949 terms of union although other provinces send any persons sentenced to more than two years to federal penitentiaries. The reason, he said, is that lawbreaking in Newfoundland is so scarce.

Flies Mercy Mission In Only 80 Minutes

BOSTON (AP)—An RCAF jet plane flew from Montreal to Boston and back again in 80 minutes on a mercy mission Thursday night. The round trip is 510 miles.

Airport officials said the jet plane flew here to pick up serum needed to save the life of a woman already on the operating table in a Montreal hospital.

The woman's name and the nature of her illness were not disclosed.

The serum was fibrinogen, used to clot blood.

Fears Communists May Win Bloodless Battle

WASHINGTON—(CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent today warned the United States that the Communists may win a "bloodless battle" if the U.S. does not take a bold lead in expanding world trade. In a fervent plea against the growth of American protectionism, the Canadian prime minister said free men will stand strong if they have hope for the future, it is too much to expect them to remain steadfast, if there is nothing for them ahead "but austerity and the fear of depression".

"Unless the national economies of the free world can be made and kept healthy and productive, communism could win a bloodless victory without any war, hot or cold," St. Laurent said in a speech prepared for the National Press Club.

"Most of us think that to keep the free nations economically sound, there must be a high and expanding level of international trade."

FIRES FIRST ROUND

St. Laurent fired his first round of public criticism of American trade policies as he launched into the second stage of his 48-hour state visit to this capital. The visit reaches a climax when St. Laurent huddles with President Eisenhower on the delicate issue of American trade policies this afternoon.

Observers anticipated that St. Laurent's speech will provide the key to the approach he will take in his final talks with the president before his take-off for Ottawa Saturday.

There have been criticisms of American tariffs, customs procedures and "certain other features of your country's commercial policies," both inside and outside the U.S., said the prime minister.

While these criticisms did not reflect any lack of appreciation of what the U.S. has done for the free world, they did point up the "crucial importance" of the American trade position.

If real progress is to be made in freeing trade, then the U.S. "will have to give a bold lead."

LITTLE TO FEAR

The American market meant a great deal in dollar-earning power to foreign producers, yet the U.S. "would seem to have little to fear from wholesome competition with the other nations of the free world."

"Is your economy not too strong and are your industries not too productive to be in any serious danger from imports?

"American business has always proclaimed its faith in the wholesome effects of honest competition. Is it not then the part of wisdom to widen the area of competitive trade and see if more nations cannot make their own way into prosperity and strength?"

Daring Flight Brings Four Job Offers

LONDON (AP) — Christopher (Mad Major) Draper, 61-year-old aviator who piloted a small plane under 15 Thames River bridges last Tuesday, has received about "four job offers" as a result of his flight, a friend said today.

Draper himself was resting in bed—"not feeling too well after all the excitement this week"—and was not available for comment.

But Joe Matthews, the photographer friend who went along on the flight, said Draper will consider the employment offers when he recovers.

Election Shows Big Gains UK Labor Says

LONDON (Reuters)—Labor leaders talked of a return to public favor today as they counted gains in municipal elections.

The Labor Party, which lost control of the national government in the 1951 general election, claimed that the support shown for its municipal candidates reflected a trend away from the Conservatives.

The Conservatives contended that final compilations would show an increase in the number of votes cast for their candidates compared with a year ago.

Both big parties have an annual argument over the significance of the nationwide local elections, often fought on regional issues and personalities.

CONTROLS COUNCILS

Labor won control of councils in such big centres as Leeds, Manchester, Plymouth, Dewsbury, Odham, Grimsby and Swindon.

Voting in some parts of England and Wales began Monday and continues until Saturday, deciding the composition of local administrations from tiny villages to the great cities.

In voting so far this week the Socialists claim control of 352 out of a total of about 1,860 local councils in Britain—an increase of 16 over the pre-election position.

Most of the strength is concentrated in big industrial cities.

10 Soldiers Beat Off 250

NAIROBI, Kenya (Reuters)—Ten African soldiers beat off an attack by 250 Mau Mau terrorists in the Fort Hall reserve, killing or wounding about 20 terrorists, Thursday night.

The patrol of the King's African Rifles suffered no casualties.

Meanwhile, thousands of seasoned British troops were deploying for a hammer-blow offensive and fight to the finish with the Mau Mau.

The troops have been ordered to corner the terrorist gangs in designated areas and cut them down without sparing lives.

Maj.-Gen. William Hinde, new "strongman" director of anti-terrorist operations, will give the signal for start of the offensive, depending on weather and speed of the troops' deployment.

Mau Mau gangs are reported at their greatest strength since the emergency was declared last October.

Laos Invasion Ended

Believe Long Supply Lines Curbed Drive

By LARRY ALLEN

HANOI, Indo-China (AP)—The end of the Communist invasion of Laos—without a major battle and virtually without casualties—seemed today to be just around the corner. So far it had been one of history's strangest tries at conquest.

Communist-led Vietminh troops which overran one-third of the Indo-Chnese kingdom in a 25-day march were continuing to pull out of the heart of the little mountain state, heading towards the Black and upper Red Rivers in northwestern Indo-China—their original jump-off bases.

Non-military sources said the Vietminh already has withdrawn two divisions—half their initial invasion force—and the tempo of the movement is increasing.

The Vietminh began its attack on Laos with an estimated four divisions, or more than 40,000 soldiers.

LONG DRIVES

Drives from supply bases 200 to 300 miles away quickly brought advance units to within sight of the Laotian royal seat of Luangprabang and posed a threat to Vientiane, the kingdom's administrative capital on the Mekong River border with neighboring Thailand.

The only opposition to the Red drive came from a half dozen thinly - manned French-Laotian posts in the mountains.

In all, there probably were not 100 men killed in direct clashes, but French air bombings may have killed scores of the Vietminh.

The initial French military explanation of the puzzling Vietminh withdrawal was that the Red leaders apparently had found they couldn't maintain long supply lines on the backs of their army of tens of thousands of coolies.

The French said also that the start of heavy torrential rains in the mountains of Laos had helped break down the enemy's communications.

The best explanation for the withdrawal may be that the international furore over the Vietminh march into Laos—at a moment when both Moscow and Peiping are making peace gestures—prompted Moscow to order the invasion halted.

Gives Himself Up

PoW Hunted For 7 Years Successful US Decorator

NEW YORK (AP)—An escaped German prisoner of war, hunted by the federal bureau of investigation for seven years and now a successful interior decorator, gave himself up Thursday night—because of a picture and a girl.

Harry Girth, 27, said he had lived in constant fear of being caught.

"I didn't want to go back to Germany," he said. "Their way of life is so different. I wanted no part of it."

Since he escaped from the Fort Dix, N. J., PoW camp, in 1946, Girth had built up an interior decorating business in Atlantic City, N. J., was buying a $5,900 home, and was engaged to an American girl.

It was his acquaintance with the gidl, Judy Florentine, and the appearance of his picture in the current issue of Collier's magazine as one of five fugitive German PoWs in the United States that led to his surrender.

The girl's mother spotted the picture of Girth and notified her son George, who got in touch with his prospective brother-in-law and advised him to surrender. Girth agreed.

At a Manhattan police station, the escapee told reporters he hoped to become a U. S. citizen.

Girth was booked as a fugitive, to be turned over to the immigration and naturalization service

Plan To Rebuild Paint Plant Immediately

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Officials of Standard Paint and Varnish Company have anounced immediate plans to rebuild their plant destroyed early Thursday by an explosion and fire which caused loss estimated at $1,000,000.

Two men, alone in the plant at the time of the initial explosion which rocked the city and shattered windows for a distance of four blocks, are recovering in hospital.

Engineer William Buchan, 55, and watchman Edward Welch, 60, said the explosion occurred when a pipeline, containing lacquer under pressure, broke and sprayed the paint grinder room with its explosive fumes.

HALT BLAZE

Firemen found flames gushing from all windows of the two-storey, brick building. Every piece of fire equipment in the city was dispatched to the scene as successful attempts were made to keep the blaze from spreading to several nearby storage tanks containing varnish and explosive oils and paint thiners.

Cause of the fire was not known.

Frederick G. Weed, president of Rinshed-Mason Company of Detroit, which purchased Standard Paint last August, said plans are under way for erection of a "new and modern plant with the most modern production and laboratory equipment obtainable."

Tour Canada On Bicycle

QUEBEC (CP)—A British family of three, with faith in Canada's future, today prepared for the long trip from Quebec to Vancouver, which they intend to make on a tandem bicycle.

George Whitford, a former British commando, his wife, Margaret, and their two-year-old son, Jimmy, arrived here Thursday night aboard the liner Samaria.

The Whitfords, who come from Barnsley, Yorkshire, England, plan to ride their 14-year-old tandem bike, with Jimmy in a specially-built trailer, across Canada during the summer.

"We think we can make it in about three or four months," Whitford said. "Ever since we started planning for this trip—about a year ago—people have been telling us we're crazy and will never make it, but we intend to have good try anyway."

The Whitfords have relatives in Vancouver and Kelowna, B C.

Gov't Too Optimistic Ships Ready In '54

OTTAWA (CP)—Production Minister Howe says the government was too optimistic in the original plans for production of radical new anti-submarine warships but that they should start coming into use by the navy in 1954.

(The navy has ordered 14. It once hoped to have some of them in service before now.)

Replying Thursday night to questions by Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes VC (PC—Nanaimo), Mr. Howe said the program launched in 1949 will take 5½ years to complete compared to six years for a similar program in Britain and five in the United States.

Whether they would all be in service in 1954 remained to be seen. Some might go over to 1955.

U.S. Arms Shipments Will Be Stepped Up

WASHINGTON (AP)—The flow of U.S. guns, tanks, planes and other military equipment to Allied countries around the world will be stepped up sharply during the coming months, Defence Secretary Charles Wilson said Thursday.

Wilson gave this report to a closed-door meeting of Senators as Gen. Omar Bradley, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, told a group of members of the House, also in closed session, that Russia's "atomic capability is rapidly improving."

"I know of no intelligence," Bradley said, "which reveals any change of attitude on the part of the Soviet Union or which would give us any reason to diminish, or slow down, or stretch out our preparedness effort."

Wilson told the Senate foreign relations committee that the Eisenhower administration hopes to deliver $5,000,000,000 worth of military supplies to Allied countries during the year starting July 1.

He said this would be an increase of $1,200,000,000 over the $3,800,000,000 in actual deliveries during the current 12-month period.

The Tongay's first child, Russell Jr., died in 1945 at the age of 18 months. At that time a doctor testified at an inquest that a cerebral haemorrhage, probably brought on by a head injury, caused the child's death.

Mrs. Tongay said the baby had fallen down some steps in their apartment. No charges were filed.

Kathy and Bubba had swum in the Mississippi river when both were tiny tots and in 1951 they flew to Britain for an attempt to swim the English Channel but British and French authorities intervened.

The children returned to the United States and put on swimming exhibitions, later appearing in a movie with Esther Williams in a water ballet scene.

Dick Kohler, lifeguard at the pool where the Tongays worked out, said Kathy "wasn't feeling well during the morning and I noticed bruises on her—all over her."

Kohler reported that Tongay fed Kathy some baby soup but she vomited and that later she went into the water, at her father's command.

CHILD CRIES

Kohler said Kathy cried while swimming and at other times that morning but didn't say anything.

"They never say anything," he added "He's got those kids trained. t seemed like Bubba loved the water but Kathy never seemed to like it."

Sinatra Has Very Bad Day

ROME (AP)—Temper-torn Frank Sinatra arrived in Rome today and topped off a day that was bad from the start by scuffling with a photographer.

The crooner and his wife, Ava Gardner, started building up a head of steam in London, where they were late for their Milan-bound plane and couldn't get aboard. They had to take one for Rome and vowed they'd never fly that airline again.

A photographer from an Italian agency was on hand to take their pictures.

The crooner charged the photographer. He scuffled briefly in a no-decision match.

Police scurried up and led the photographer away, releasing him a few minutes later.

Sinatra and his wife bustled off, still bristling with the indignity of it all.

The photographer said he got two pictures anyway.

Cars Collide At Corners Suffers $320 Damage

Damage totalled $320, in two accidents on Peterborough streets Thursday. No one was injured in the two double car collisions.

Involved in an accident at the intersection of King and Aylmer Sts. were John Clapper of 301 King St., and Desmond Cranley of 31 Lansdowne St.

Clapper, driving west on King St., stopped at Aylmer St. for through traffic. When a hole appeared in the line of eastbound cars, Clapper drove through, colliding with Cranley's westbound vehicle.

Cranley's car was damaged to the extent of $200, and Clapper's to the extent of $40.

In the second crash, Donald Sanders of 297 Louis St. was driving north on George St. when a car driven by Mrs. J. K. Hughes of 512 Weller, westbound on Parkhill Rd., struck his vehicle as he passed the side street.

Although Mrs. Hughes' car escaped undamaged, estimates of damage on Sanders' vehicle totalled $80.

to the American market, had a special stake in U.S. policy.

The "vast exchange" of goods between the two countries formed a fundamental part of the good Canada-U.S. relations; it underlied the strength and prosperity of the North American continent—"Bastion of the free world."

GRAVE IMPORTANCE

"It seems to us of the gravest importance that nonretrograde steps be taken that would imperil this great structure and it must be seen as a whole or it can very easily be imperilled. . . .

"That is why we in Canada, like the other free countries, so greatly hope that over the next few months your country will avoid taking any backward steps and will move rapidly as possible towards the kind of commercial policy which is required in your own interest and in that of the whole free world.

"Both the U.S. and Canada badly need strong friends and allies. To have them and to hold them requires trade policies that are those of good neighbors."

The free countries had been made militarily strong, but military strength alone could not deter aggression.

". . . We must also find the means to maintain and develop the measure of social justice and economic opportunity we have achieved in our own countries, and we must work for the extension beyond our countries of human well-being and of that basic human equality which is the hallmark of a genuinely free society.

MUST BE CONVINCING

"If we are not willing to do that, how can we expect to convince others that our way of life has more to offer than communism?

"While we are strengthening the free nations of Western Europe and halting aggression in Korea, we cannot afford to overlook those vast areas and populations in Asia and Africa and even in this hemisphere where mass poverty prevails. It is not very helpful to preach the abstract advantages of freedom to men and women who are suffering from misery and starvation."

Arrested For Treason

MUNICH, Germany (Reuters) — Race driver Manfred von Bruachitsch, 47, was arrested Thursday by German police at his home in Starnberg, Bavaria, on suspicion of high treason. Three other persons including one woman also were arrested. Brauchitsch, hero of German motor racing fans for 10 years before the war, has recently been associated with Communist activities.

Russian Unity Campaign Suggests Country Quelling Internal Tromble

By WILLIAM L. RYAN, Associated Press News Analyst

A campaign for internal unity, begun just after Prime Minister Georgi M. Malenkov took over, has reached such a level in the Soviet press as to suggest some sort of internal crisis. This campaign may explain the sometimes bewildering Soviet peace offensive, as well as a tightening up of the Russian Communist party and government. By the beginning of May, almost every domestic item in Russian organs had something to do with the theme of the "inviolable unity of the Soviet people".

Interwoven was the theme of the superiority of the Russian people proper and the debt owed them by peoples of the 15 other Soviet republics. The press inveighed violently against "bourgeois nationalism" — meaning nationalism in any dependent Soviet republic—and "cosmopolitan". And old description of Jews with Zionist leanings.

STRESS ON "RIGHTS"

There is great stress on "rights" guaranteed by the Soviet constitution, and upon the idea of "equal rights of all races and nations."

The home-front propaganda suggests that with Stalin's death there were restless stirrings among the people of the Ukraine, White Russia, the three Baltic states and the republics of central Asia. All are being mentioned specifically.

This may explain the general tightening up under the Malenkov regime. Each republic government got a shake-up. Russians took over key positions in the republic governments and the security forces were overhauled in each. The Communist party itself apparently was pruned of unreliable elements.

This also could explain the peace offensive. Previous peace campaigns were aimed primarily at convincing people abroad of peaceful Soviet intentions. This one seems equally concerned with convincing the people at home that war is not at hand.

Superintendent Booby-Trapped

ELIZABETH, La. (AP)—State police doubled their forces here today as angry crowds gathered at the Cancasieu Paper Company after a plant superintendent was booby-trapped in one of three dynamite blasts.

Lee Howard, plant manager, was blown more than 50 feet when he stumbled over a dynamite-laden booby trap while investigating an earlier explosion.

He suffered a fractured skull and his condition was termed as "critical."

Col. Francis Grevemberg, state police superintendent, increased his force to more than 50 troopers in the little central Louisiana community and ordered a state police plane to patrol the area.

Lands Dept. Cancels Burning Permits

SAULT STE. Marie, Ont. (CP)—All burning permits except those issued to qualified settlers were ordered cancelled by the department of lands and forests today as falling humidity, high temperatures and lack of rain brought on an explosive situation in Sault district bushlands.

Fire-fighting crews throughout the district are on stand-by orders.

Sand Lake division, 125 miles north of the Sault was the scene of three minor fires Thursday. All are under control after burning over nine acres.

The district faces a "deadly serious" week-end, forest protection supervisor Tom Woodside said today. Unless local anglers exercised extreme caution, fires were almost certain.

COLOMBO, Ceylon (Reuters)—The governing body of Ceylon's capital city voted Thursday night to ignore the coronation next month. The leftist-dominated city council ruled that the money could not be spared.

NEW YORK (AP)—Fifty police and coast guardsmen searched the berthed liner United States for three hours early today after an anonymous telephone caller said a bomb would explode aboard. No trace of a bomb was found, and the call was attributed to a crank.

Eden Has Good Night

LONDON (AP)—A doctor's bulletin said today that Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, recovering after two gall bladder operations, had "another good night and continues to gain strength." The doctor's report said the jaundice which made Eden's second operation necessary last week "has steadily diminished." Doctors first operated on the foreign secretary April 12.

Airliner Damaged

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuters) — Lightning damaged an airliner in flight and many homes in Sydney Thursday night as cyclonic winds struck the New South Wales coast. Air and road traffic was dislocated. Several holes were burned in the nose of the airliner, struck by lightning between Brisbane and Sydney.

3 Injured By Bomb

BUENOS AIRES (Reuters) — Three persons were injured when a bomb exploded in a residential suburb early today. Arrests of "terrorists" continued in the capital and provinces and more than 400 now are in jail. Today's bombing was the latest in a series of street explosions which has punctuated Argentina's current political turmoil.

Money Racket Aids Vietminh

PARIS (AP)—The French weekly L'Observateur and daily newspapers today began a campaign of criticism against the French government for aiding in the rearmament of the Communist-led Vietminh by countenancing currency speculation in Indo-China.

The weekly said France, in maintaining the piaster at an unrealistic rate of exchange profitable to speculators, "has greatly facilitated the rearmament of the Vietminh."

L'Observateur said those who profited from speculation have steadfastly opposed negotiations to end the Indo-China war because it would dry up the source of their power.

The black market operation works two ways. First, piasters can be bought for eight francs in Saigon, then can be sold at the official rate of 17 francs to banks in Paris. Secondly, greater amounts of piasters can be had by buying dollars in Paris for 400 francs, smuggling them to Saigon, and selling them for 50 piasters. Transferred back to France, the piasters bring 850 francs.

The audience was treated to the best of Lindsay talent in the final acts of the program, which included Rosalind Albert, pianist, the Maple Leaf Quartette, and individual members, Francis Taylor and John Moore, repeating their perfect score rendition of "God is Our Refuge and Our Strength," and Robert Trotter in operatic solo class. Charges Attack Unwarranted In House

OTTAWA (CP)—Revenue Minister McCann said today in the Commons that Leon Balcer (PC—Trois-Rivieres) made an "unwarranted" attack on a civil servant in the House Thursday.

Mr. Balcer, calling for the dismissal of F. A. Humphrys, chief of the salary and investment income section of the Ottawa district tax office, read an article from Le Droit, Ottawa French language daily, quoting Mr. Humphrys as having told an inquiring taxpayer: "You can see the minister and your Pope if you want to."

Mr. McCann said Mr. Humphrys has denied making the statement, and he said he accepts the official's word. He described Mr. Humphrys as a conscientious and efficient officer.

New Bursaries To Aid Teachers

TORONTO—Education Minister Dunlop Thursday announced a broadening of the bursary assistance program for students at Ontario Teachers Colleges. There will be four categories under the new scheme.

Students proceeding directly from Grade XIII to the one-year course who have an average of more than 66 per cent on eight senior matriculation papers will be eligible for Type A bursaries of $175 for residents and $250 for non-residents. These amounts will be available to those applying in June. If the application is not made until later, Type B bursaries with maximum amounts of $125 for residents and $200 for non-residents are provided for those recommended by the principal of the Teachers College.

Students on the first year of the two-year course may in January apply for a Type B bursary, as may students at the beginning of their second year. In both cases, application must be recommended by the principal of the college.

Atomic Test Device Has Dazzling Flash

41 Bush Fires Reported In N. Ontario

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Fire rangers battled 41 bush fires across Northern ontario today. The fire protection division of the Ontario department of lands and forests said all are under control.

Biggest blaze was one in the Port Arthur district which covered 900 acres. Others are in the Sioux Lookout, Kenora, Fort Frances, Geraldton, Swastika, Sault Ste. Marie, Sudbury, North Bay, Parry Sound, Tweed and Pembroke fire protection districts.

A combination of high temperatures and low humidity produced what veteran lumbermen termed an exploding situation throughout the province's northland.

Authorities, warning that utmost care is required i nthebush just now, said all 41 fires were due to some form of carelessness. Most were caused by campers, smokers and settlers.

Thermometers have hovered in the mid-70s most of the week while the humidity dropped to the low 20s. A humidity reading below 30 is rated as dangerous.

The hot, dry weather retarded spring green growth throughout the north and increased the fire hazard. Only the absence of high winds has prevented fires from spreading.

LESS DANGEROUS

In the area south of Parry Sound where two fires are burning, spring green growth has had a chance to get started. The fire hazard is considerably less dangerous in these southern Ontario districts.

The biggest fire has evelled more than 100 acres of young pine and slash in the Marten river district, 38 miles north of North Bay. However, lands department firefighters checked the blaze Wednesday night by dropping water bombs.

All bush-burning permits were cancelled Thursday in the Sudbury district where eight fires are reported burning. Forestry officials blamed all eight on carelessness of lumbermen and fishermen in the tinder-dry bush.

Some 190 acres of jackpine seedlings and second growth trees in Merritt and Baldwin townships near Espanola were burned by a slow fire which crews from Sudburn extinguished Thursday.

Prices Still Low In Dull Trading

TORONTO (CP)—Prices continued lower in dull early afternoon stock market trading today.

Industrials showed the only strength. Base metals led the losses. Golds and western oils were weak. Volume for the first three hours totalled 1,161,000 shares.

Uraniums slipped but New Brunswick base metals were mixed.

Industrials mixed as foods and banks gained and liquors and manufacturing companies weakened.

Senior golds held firm but weakness in juniors and holding companies depressed the list.

Base metals weakened although a few leaders recovered slightly from early losses.

Western oils showed a small majority of small losses.

Baska Uranium, a new listing today, traded 25,000 shares between 95 cents and $1.01.

OPENS MONDAY—Focal point of hundreds of production lines all over the country is the final assembly line at the Oakville, Ont., plant of the Ford Motor Company of Canada, Ltd. Production starts May 11. The assembly line will carry nearly-completed automobiles past work stations where finishing touches will be added and inspection of the vehicle carried out. These heavy-duty motors being installed will keep the 1,600-foot-long conveyor tracks moving. First steel for the plant was laid a year ago and its opening marks the completion of one stage in a $64,000,000 expansion program.

Richard, Mosdell Attend Banquet For TVL Champs

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS) — Guests of honor at a banquet for the Campbellford Greenshirts, winners of the Trent Valley Hockey League championship, included the famous Maurice (The Rocket) Richard and Kenny Mosdell of the Montreal Canadiens. The surprise visit of these two famous players was arranged by Art Duncan, TVL president, and Bill Perry, of the Bata Shoe Co.

Introduced by Mr. Perry, Kenny Mosdell wished the team future success and Rocket Richard congratulated the Campbellford club, adding that he knew what a great thrill it was to be a member of a championship team.

Chairman of the banquet was Fred M. Rutherford, team manager. Mayor R. J. Locke welcomed the guests and expressed his compliments to the winning team. He paid particular tribute to manager Rutherford.

TROPHIES PRESENTED

The Hon. W. A. Goodfellow, Provincial Welfare Minister, was introduced by Mr. Rutherford and presented the Goodfellow Trophy, symbolic of the northern division TVL championship, to playing captain Doug Free.

The Thomas Bata Trophy was presented by William Ritchie, personnel manager of the Bata Shoe Co., to Mr. Free.

League president Art Duncan spoke briefly on the history of the Bata Trophy and of his pleasure in seeing it come to Campbellford. Mr. Duncan, commending the team, had special words for Doug Free, whom he said played the best hockey of his career this season, and for playing coach Wib Blake, a fine sportsman whose 17 years as a player in the league stood as a record.

Mr. Rutherford introduced the players and presented each of them with his personal gift of an autographed pencil as a memento of the past season.

Team captain Doug Free presented George Pace with a gift on behalf of the team. Mr. Pace had tendered, at his own expense, a bouquet to the team after their championship victory in Belleville over the Wellington Dukes.

The banquet for the team and its executive officers was tendered by the town in appreciation of the honor the team had brought to Campbellford.

Farmers Dissatisfied With Grain Marketing

OTTAWA (CP)—The spokesman of a Western Canada farmers' organization argued in a five-hour appearance before the Commons agriculture committee Thursday that farmers are dissatisfied with administration of government grain marketing.

J. L. Phelps, chairman of the Interprovincial Farm Union Council representing Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta farmers' unions, said dissatisfaction is so widespread that the whole question of grain handling should be investigated.

The council's brief urged that a royal commission or parliamentary committee study grain grading, storing, weighing, shipping and all matters pertaining to administration of the Canada Grain Act by the board of grain commissioners.

10 In Hospital After Crash

ST. THOMAS (CP)—A head-on motor crash near Aylmer sent 10 persons to hospital Thursday night. Two are in serious condition.

A car driven by Arnold Marger, 38, of Ossian, Ind., carried seven passengers, including three children. The truck driven by Russell Mifflin, 39, of Norwich, carried one passenger.

Mr. Marger and Mrs. Ida Lee Hyman, 20, of Houston, Tex., were seriously hurt. Mr. Marger suffered two fractures of the left leg, a split right kneecap and possible rib fractures. Mrs. Hyman had almost the whole right side of her face torn away. Doctors said plastic surgery will be necessary

Mifflin and his passenger, Victor Ellington, 26, Norwich, received hospital treatment and were later released.

MAYOR'S PROCLAMATION

I desire to proclaim the week of May 11th to 16th, Paint Up - Clean Up Week in Peterborough, and to call upon all citizens to join in the laudable effort to make our city more presentable.

The Peterborough Junior Chamber of Commerce, a group of enterprising men, are sponsoring the Paint up - Clean Up Campaign with the single objective of civic improvement.

This is an enterprise in which every citizen may join easily and make a worthwhile contribution by improving the appearance of his home, lawn and garden.

We should have a particular pleasure in beautifying our places at this time, since the Coronation of Queen Elizabeth II is an early June event.

Let us make Peterborough sparkle with new paint and flowers and general orderliness especially this year.

DOUGLAS T. MILLER,
Acting Mayor.

Girl Had Hives After Boy Friend's Visit Changed From Chocolates To Flowers

TORONTO (CP)—A young woman here appealed to a specialist on allergies for help in an affair of the heart.

She said that every time a certain young man called on her she broke into hives. She favored him over a rival to whom she had no such allergy.

The doctor discovered that the first suitor always brought her chocolates, the second, flowers. Using this clue, the specialist demonstrated she was not allergic to her suitor, but to chocolates.

After her swain was tipped off and brought flowers, there were no more hives.

Citizens Start To Coronation

Peterborough people bound for London and the coronation have been departing recently according to their own timing of their visits. Pat Hyde of BOAC and TCA said the other day that the peak of the exodus will continue fairly steady until May 24.

"Some will not be going until as late as May 30," Mr. Hyde said. "Their main interest is the spectacle of London in the tremendous setting of a great historic event. They are quite happy in reaching London one day ahead of the Abbey ceremony. There may be a few who will think at the last minute that they should be going. And, for them we'll probably be able to find some accommodation. There is the odd plane seat left, and we know of a few seats along the procession route that are down to $15."

Mr. Hyde said there would probably be a few of the late stragglers in circumstances that persuade them they should go or they can go.

"If some person had to cancel a plane seat on May 30 we would probably have it spoken for and accepted immediately, and then put the last purchaser down in London not later than June 1. That is a touch of the speed of this age."

Hospital Auxiliary Holds Successful Tea

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS). — The tea under the auspices of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary, held on Saturday, was a very successful affair in spite of the poor weather. The home cooking table in charge of Mrs. Fred Macoun and Mrs. Alex MacColl was very well patronized and had an abundance of delicious food for sale.

The tea table was centred with blue scillas and yellow candles. Pouring tea were Mrs. D. W. Burgess, Mrs. W. W. Baker, Mrs. F. Free and Dr. Betty Bright.

Serving were Mrs. G. Mitchell, Mrs. McConnell, Mrs. Pierce, Mrs. White, Miss Youker, Mrs. Waldorf. Mrs. Earl Craighead was in charge of the tea table with Mrs. G. Couch helping.

The home baking and candy tables had a large and excellent choice of food. In charge of the former were Mrs. F. Macoun and Mrs. A. MacColl and the candy was in charge of Mrs. K. Cairns and Mrs. W. Scott.

Receiving with the hostess was the Auxiliary president, Mrs. R. Fox and Mrs. Henry Bakes attended to the cash donations. Mrs. George Free and Mrs. Heffernan sold raffle tickets. Showing the guests to the dining room were Mrs. J. P. Archer and Mrs. R. J. Locke. The tea was convened by Mrs. W. A. C. Witthun.

Air's Use In Machinery Explained To Engineers

How air power is used in industry and the methods in which it has reduced the costs and improved machine design was explained by Donald Guy, manager of Bellows Pneumatic Devices of Canada Ltd., to the members of the American Society of Tool Engineers Thursday night at their monthly meeting.

Mr. Guy went on to demonstrate the various uses of air equipment and how air cylinders, drill press feeds, rotary index tables, air motors and special super-speed cylinders were used and operated in industry today.

Following Mr. Guy's demonstrations there was a 25-minute sound movie showing air powered devices in operation in many type of manufacturing, from the shops of individual craftsmen to modern industry.

Firecracker Explodes Child Badly Burned

LINDSAY (ENS)—The first accident of the firecracker season occurrd last night, when seven-year-old Diane Hennessey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herb. Hennessey, received serious facial burns when a firecracker apparently blew up in her hands.

When Mr. Hennessey returned home from his work, as a painter, last night, he found Mrs. Hennessey trying to reach a doctor for the little girl. He rushed his daughter to the Ross Memorial hospital in his car.

Dr. C. W. M. Service treated the girl at the hospital, where her condition is reported as good, but she is suffering from an extensive burn across her face and below the eyes.

"GRANDAD WOULD HAVE DIED"

WE LIVE in "wonder full" times today and take so many miracles in our way of life for granted . . . airplanes, radio, television,, are but a few. Nothing science develops seems to surprise us any more.

Many of the things modern medical science makes possible in our hospitals today are little short of miracles. The removal of an appendix has become almost routine — a hernia is repaired with despatch, and the diabetic is put on the road to added years of useful life.

While many operations are still considered serious, they are much less dangerous than they were a decade or two ago. The skill of surgeons in the use of modern hospital facilities restores thousands to health and strength who, at one time, might not have survived.

24 HOURS A DAY.. your hospital serving you

Your hospital is your doctor's "workshop" designed to help him protect your health. Hospital facilities, for your sake, must be the most modern —the services must be the best.

Economic Consequences Of 'Peace'

The quivering and vibration which the first onslaught of the Communist peace offensive created in some Western nations has subsided. This is not because peace has become less possible. Indeed, its prospects have revived with the new Red Compromises. The fear that if peace broke out it would ruin us all was due partly to panic and partly to an inadequate estimation of what "peace" might mean. It assuredly will not mean disarmament in any total way. As one pundit puts it: "The economic problem is not going to be one of forging swords into ploughshares".

* * *

The NATO "stretch-out" (a eumphemism to mean a paring of military targets and expenditures) is only a small reduction in the defence expenditure plans. The economy of the sterling area has improved during the last year. Although American stocks of raw materials are fairly high now and one of the first consequences of any small slackening of American business would be a cut in the U.S. import of raw materials, this should not significantly depress world markets. The fact is, too, that the large stocks of manufactured goods that piled up in various parts of the world after the outbreak of the Korean war have now almost been sold off.

* * *

The slight lowering of the cost of living in Canada and abroad—a slight deflation—has led to a healthier, more stable state of affairs. And in the light of this stability and the air of easier economic pressures the Prime Minister's Washington visit may—and Canadians hope, will—result in some sane, balanced tariff policies and a lessening of restriction of trade with the U.S. Canada is not the only country feeling these American barriers. Britain also suffers from them. Washington must be aware, and its regional politicians should be made to learn, that self-sustaining and self-priming world trade depends on the U.S. being willing to buy as well as sell.

Guessing The Election Date

Mr. Donald Fleming, Conservative Member of Parliament for Eglinton (Toronto) anxiously asked the Prime Minister for information about the election date. He referred to newspaper stories that it might be August 10th or 17th. Mr. St. Laurent replied that the date would not be set until after the Coronation, and that he has "purposely refrained from arriving at even a tentative decision . . . because I thought the Coronation was an important enough event in the constitutional set-up of this nation of the Commonwealth to stand on its own and not be dimmed or blurred or disturbed by political controversy about general elections".

That sounds reasonable; a general election date proclaimed now would prolong the election campaign and certainly interfere with Coronation travel and celebration. But Mr. St. Laurent's answer did nothing to reassure the anxious Conservatives.

Mr. St. Laurent's deft and able mind has certainly not been unconcerned about the election date. He knows its political importance, even though he has been in politics for a short time relative to his high political position. What followed in his answer to Mr. Fleming shows his mind has been at work on the date. A close reading of his statement virtually confirms an August election, probably on Monday, August 10th or the following Monday, the 17th.

Mr. Fleming had said an August date would "disfranchise" many voters. They would be away on holidays or farmers would be too busy to vote. Mr. St. Laurent replied that there were two kinds of disenfranchisement possible because of election timing. The second and less important seemed to be what Mr. Fleming talked of: the qualified elector's unwillingness to go to the poles and use his franchise, for whatever reason. The more serious, Mr. St. Laurent said, was disfranchisement caused by leaving a possible voter's name off the voting lists. If the enumeration were made in the holiday months many people might thereby be disfranchised. The enumerators had to call only twice at a house. Therefore, Mr. St. Laurent would not want, he said, to have the enumeration made in July or August.

Now we see his mind playing with the Conservative anxiety. (They do not want an election until autumn.) By the law, the preparation of the voters' lists must begin on a Monday, the 49th day before the day set for polling. If election day is in mid-September or October, the enumerators would have to make their calls in the summer holidays, when many people are away. To avoid a summer enumeration two election months are possible. First, an enumeration started after August could not begin until Monday, September 14th. This would put the elections into November. "November is an inconvenient month for an election", the Prime Minister said. It is too late for people in cold and snowy parts of Canada.

An enumeration begun before summer holidays start, but not before M.P.s return from the Cofonation, would have to begin Monday, June 15th or Monday, June 22nd. This would set election day—seven weeks later—at August 3rd or 10th. But the 3rd is Civic Holiday in many communities. Therefore August 10th looks like election day. August 17th would put the enumerators at work in the height of the July holiday season.

Another possible date—if the Government were calculating a snap election—would be Monday July 27th. For this the date would have to be announced immediately after the Coronation, so that enumeration could begin on June 8th. A July election would not set a precedent, as an August election would. No general elections have been held in August since Canada was formed in 1867.

It's all guessing, but Mr. St. Laurent has seemingly narrowed the field sharply by his statement in the House last Tuesday. Mr. Diefenbaker said when the Prime Minister sat down: "That fixes it". His words indicate the Conservative malaise over an August election. But Mr. St. Laurent is not bound by precedent, nor has the date been fixed. For instance, there is no constitutional reason why the elections should be held on a Monday; it is merely a custom, possibly owing to the required black-out of campaigning twenty-fours before polling day.

Mr. Pouliot Declares A Latin War On The States

Mr. L. B. Pearson missed his visit to Peterborough last Tuesday because he had to be in the House of Commons that evening to pliot his department's estimates, and because he was leaving with the Prime Minister to visit Washington and the President.

One of the speakers in the House Tuesday evening was Mr. Jean-Francois Pouliot, Liberal member for Temiscouta (Three Rivers). That scintillating brand of Parliament who can be doused only in his own ebullient stew of ideas and oratory, produced one of the best parables that Parliament has heard in many a moon. We cannot resist sharing it with our readers who may not have seen the Hansard report. Mr. Pouliot said the story is a translation of an article which was published in Havana last month, and entitled: "Mentes agiles in accion" —alert minds in action.

In a certain Spanish-American country they were having economic difficulties. The revenues were decreasing and it was impossible to balance the budget. The cabinet met in session to find some way of fixing up the public finances.

Suddenly the minister of labour rose and gave a bang on the table. He said, "I have found out what to do. We will declare war on the United States". "On the United States?" said the president, who was extremely worried when being told of such an absurd proposal. "If you repeat it, I will have you shot." "No, my dear president; you have not understood", said the minister of labour. "Let us examine recent history. Germany declared war on North America and lost. Then what happened? The United States has given Germany machines, food and money. What happened in the case of Italy? Italy declared war on North America, and we know what happened. Today Italian industry is prosperous. Thousands of Yankee tourists travel in Italy, and there is a great deal of United States money over there. What happened with regard to Japan? Japan took the United States by surprise, lost the war, and now they have good markets, good friends and a balanced budget with Uncle Sam's dollars. I am not crazy. If we declare war on the United States we will become a prosperous country."

This argument made a great impression and convinced the other ministers. Everybody spoke at the same time and the enthusiasm was delirious. "Gentlemen", said the president, "shall I declare war? I will." "Well, Mr. President", said the minister of finance who had been silent until then, "We will declare war; but before doing so, I should like someone to answer this simple question. What will happen if, instead of losing the war, we win it?"

With that story M. Pouliot bade farewell and good-luck to Mr. St. Laurent and Mr. Pearson as they left for Washington, to dicker there.

Notes And Queries

By ALPHA

Questions are solicited for this column particularly those relating to local lore and tradition.

SIR: Since members of Parliament have immunity in Parliament, they can say anything they please about anything. What keeps them in check — for instance, from slander, libel or just swearing?

ANSWER: The Speaker. Mr. Speaker is the voice of Parliament and its head. If he rules language is "unparliamentary," the member has to withdraw his statement or himself.

What is parliamentary and not parliamentary is not decided on a whim of the Speaker; there are precedents, established by other Speakers in other Parliaments, and precedent is at the basis of parliamentary procedure. In Canada the "rules" have been codified by Dr. Arthur Beauchesne, for many years Clerk of the House, and now upon his retirement perhaps to become a Conservative candidate.

The British House relies on a treatise published in 1844 by Sir Thomas Erskine May, which has been revised at intervals ever since. (The Canadian House also relies on May as well as "Beauchesne's Parliamentary Rules and Forms.")

Among the banned expressions are: insulting dog, behaving like a jackass, cad, caddishness, scurrilous, vicious, vulgar, dishonest, swine, corrupt, criminal, Pecksniffian cant. The fifteenth edition of "Erskine May" (published two years ago) adds four new epithets to the banned list: not a damned one of you opposite, stool pigeon, cheat, bastard . . . The new prohibited phrases as well as the old show that Parliamentarians continue to have hot vocabularies and the temptation to use them.

✧ ✧ ✧

ALPHA: Is there more drunkenness in Peterborough than in other cities of its size?

ANSWER: Do you expect me to count red noses? No, to your question. I have no statistics to support me. I have a notion that Peterborough and similar Ontario cities have a somewhat unhealthy psychic atmosphere, driving people to drink. May be there are more unhappy people, in Ontario centres like Peterborough, than in comparable places in Italy or England, and that it is this malcontent which drives people to booze. Others bypass the booze and go to church or other organizations of social solidarity . . . It has been said that the happiest Canadians are Canadians outside their own country.

This is a very large question into which I do not want to enter now. The Spring weather is too distracting. I might remark that Canadians have always been strong drinkers of strong drink. The Irish and Scotch in them?

✧ ✧ ✧

SIR: Why is mutton never advertised in this country? And when you go into a butcher shop and ask for mutton they stare at you. What's wrong with mutton?

ANSWER: Perhaps too many service people in England had a daily diet of mutton, and when they went to the continent had dehydrated mutton. I suspect that mutton goes under the inclusive name of "lamb" at our meat counters. Just ask for old lamb.

✧ ✧ ✧

ALPHA: How many teachers are there in Peterborough.

ANSWER: I presume you mean school teachers. I do not know, but I suppose I could find out by telephoning the Normal School, the Secretary of the Roman Catholic School Board, and the office of the Peterborough Board of Education. If you really want to know, why not telephone yourself?

I do know that the Peterborough Collegiate has 45 teachers, Kenner Collegiate 11, and the Public Schools 136 teachers and no fewer than ten special supervisors.

Prince of Wales School is the largest; it has 27 teachers, including the non-teaching Principal.

✧ ✧ ✧

TIME is marking its ways on the schools—and not only the fabric of the buildings. Central School used to be the largest and most important, and teachers in the city yearned to be transferred to it. This was partly because it and Queen Alexandra were the two teacher-training schools to which the Norman School sent its students for observation and practice. The teachers received extra pay for this. But as the City has pushed towards and beyond the old city limits, fewer homes and children are within reach of Central. Now the school is the least crowded, and has only twelve regular teachers, including the principal.

Central School has, as you know, two buildings. The West one used to be the Peterborough Collegiate. That was the building the Hon. L. B. Pearson attended when he was a schoolboy in Peterborough. The East building — built in Italianate style and considered before the turn of the century one of the finest public school buildings in Ontario, used to have a tower — Tuscany Gothic. The proportions of the building and its style were marred when this tower was torn down a few years ago.

SIR: The phrase to "eat one's heart out" suggests a queer kind of cannibalism or masochism at least. Where does it come from?

ANSWER: This strong and unpleasant expression means self-corroding mental and moral disquiet which seeks no relief in disburdening itself. In his essay "Of Friendship" Bacon attributes the phrase to Pythagoras. Bacon says: "The parable of Pythagoras is dark, but true: Cor ne edito — eat not the heart. Certainly, if a man would give it a hard phrase, those that want friends to open themselves unto are cannibals of their own hearts." Spencer uses the phrase:

To fret thy soul with crosses and with cares;
To eat thy hearte with comfortlesse dispaires.

The phrase has no analogy with the later "to eat one's hat" or "to eat one's head." These are not the stern stuff of eating one's heart; they are merely means of instancing something impossible of achievement.

COUNTRY NOTE: The marvel of Spring has touched the countryside, the The Acres. Lettuce, onions and radishes which I planted outside on Easter Sunday are above ground (despite the cold, dark April), the orchard is showing green, daffodils have come up in the most unexpected places and are now in bloom. The acre of lilac bushes ruthlessly exterminated by cutting to the ground last September is green with them again (alas!). The lambs are healthy and frisky, except one, who looks healthy, but stupid. I told the vet. about him, said I was convinced he had a low I.Q. He seemed to think this inconsequential. Perhaps it is: wool and flesh, not intelligence are what one expects from a sheep.

I understand that apple trees should be sprayed, so consulted the Agricultural Representative in Peterborough. He said: "How many trees have you got? I said "Fourteen." He said: "Do you know what I woud do with them if were you?" I said: ""No. What would you do with them if you were me?" He said: "Cut them down." Apparently it is uneconomic to bother with only a few trees. Perhaps he is right: he gave me a pamphlet which says they should be sprayed five times before the apples form. I didn't dare tell him that only two weeks ago I planted two pear trees in gaps in the orchard. I'll have my revenge next Fall when I munch a six-inch spotless pear off my own trees, right in his face . . . Well, maybe not next Fall, but two or three years hence.

. . . BUT THE REDS GO MARCHING ON

The General Election Date

(Spat and Banter in the House, as related in Hansard)

MR. DONALD M. FLEMING (Eglington): Mr. Speaker, I should like to raise briefly, and at a time when the Prime Minister (Mr. St. Laurent) is in the house, a subject that apparently everybody thinks about but nobody talks about in the house . . . I refer to the proposed election date.

Mr. Speaker, you are aware that there have been reports in the newspapers from time to time indicating that the Prime Minister is considering calling an election in August.

Some hon. Members: Order.

Mr. Flemng: The report in one of the newspapers of this city yesterday claimed information from some authoritative source when stating that the election date was likely to be either August 10 or 17.

Mr. Cruickshank: It won't make any difference to you, Don; you won't be here.

Mr. Speaker: Order.

Mr. Fleming: Mr. Speaker, it is not a question of the convenience of members or the length of campaign, or how it affects those members . . . But I am concerned about the effect that an August election would have in disfranchising tens of thousands of Canadians.

An hon. member: You are not ready.

Mr. Fleming: I have said, Mr. Speaker, that none of us in this part of the house asks any quarter from the government in this respect. We are concerned however about the disfranchisement—

Some hon. Members: Oh, oh.

Mr. Speaker: Order.

Mr. Fleming: —about the disfranchisement of tens of thousands of Canadians.

Mr. Dupuis: Mr. Speaker, are these observations in order? The hon. member says that if we were to have an election in August it would disfranchise electors to the extent of tens of thousands. I should like to have a ruling on that.

Mr. Speaker: I would not rule that statement out of order.

Mr. Fleming: Hon. members are aware of the fact that to most people in this country holidays come only once in the year, and they try to arrange them a long time in advance. August is probably the height of the holiday season. Therefore those who go any distance will in this way be virtually disfranchised.

For the farmers of this country it means that they will be asked to vote at what for them is the busiest time of the whole year. Surely it is in the democratic interests of all of Canada that the election campaign should be—

An hon. Member: What do you know about farmers?

Mr. Fleming: I know a great deal about farmers; I expect I have done more harvesting than all of the hon. members who have been interrupting put together.

Mr. Ferguson: They are farming the people; that is what they are doing.

Mr. Speaker: Order. We shall make much greater progress if there are not so many interruptions.

Mr. Abbott: Fine speech.

Mr. Fleming: . . . The report to which I refer is that the Prime Minister has been asked by a number of his supporters in the house—so the newspaper account runs—to call this election in the summer in order that there may be time for a fall session of parliament this year, with another sessional indemnity.

Some hon. Members: Oh, oh.

Mr. McCann: You want that.

Mr. Stuart (Charlotte): That has never been in the press.

Mr. Cruickshank: Just a small mind.

Speaker: Order.

Mr. Fleming: I hope no hon. member of this house has given that to the Prime Minister as any reason that ought to enter into the selection of any date for an election.

Mr. Stuart (Charlotte): Who is going to select the date.

Mr. Cruickshank: You are trying to get the opposition leader's salary now . . .

Mr. McCann (to Mr. Fleming): Pick your own date.

Mr. Cruickshank: He wants it on the 31st of February.

A 400-Year Job

(Ottawa Journal)

In a day given to speed and perfunctory action a report emanating from the Dominican Monastery in Ottawa provides a pleasant contrast.

Members of the world-wide Dominican Order are carefully re-checking and re-editing the complete works of St. Thomas Aquinas, (1225-1275) a member of that order. There are some 4,000 original manuscripts and relative documents, which date back five centuries and must be checked word for word.

One commission has its headquarters in the monastery on Empress avenue in Ottawa, another in Rome.

It is expected the task will be completed in 400 years.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And God said, Let us make man in our image, after our likeness; and let them have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth. So God created man in his own image, in the image of God he him; male and female; created them. . . And God saw everything that he had made, and, behold, it was very good. (Gen. 1:26,27,31.)

✧ ✧ ✧

But there went up a mist from the earth, and watered the whole face of the ground. And the Lord God formed man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living soul.

And the Lord God planted a garden eastward in Eden; and there he put the man whom he had formed. And out of the ground made the Lord God to grow every tree that is pleasant to the sight, and good for food; the tree of life also in the midst of the garden, and the tree of knowledge of good and evil . . . And the Lord God commanded the man, saying, Of every tree of the garden thou mayest freely eat; but of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil, thou shall not eat of it: for in the day that thou eatest thereof thou shalt surely die. (Gen. 2:6-9,16,17.)

Letter To The Editor

MR. PEARSON PLAYED BASEBALL TUESDAY?

Sir: In his letter of regrets that he could not attend the 25th anniversary dinner of the Outboard Marine & Mfg. Co. Ltd. on Tuesday night of this week, the Honourable Lester B. Pearson described the Honourable James Sinclair as a "pinch-hitter." Could it be that Mr. Pearson's choice of words was influenced somewhat by the, pardon the expression, baseball game between Members of Parliament and the Press Gallery in which Mr. Pearson was actively engaged while his "pinch-hitter" valiantly strove to fill the gap here in Peterborough?

There are conflicting reports as to whether Mr. Pearson actually took part in the slugfest in which the M.P.'s emerged victorious. It is a logical conclusion, however, that parliament could not (or should not) have been in session debating Mr. Pearson's estimates while its more athletic members indulged in such external affairs as baseball.

It has not been clearly stated as to whether the Honourable James Sinclair sat in on Tuesday's parliamentary session, but it has been stated that he was flown from Ottawa in the Outboard Marine Company airplane to Oshawa, (the otherwise progressive city of Peterborough has no airport!) from which point he was escorted by provincial police to the Club Aragon at Peterborough. If Mr. Sinclair can be so hurriedly transported to the scene, then why not Mr. Pearson? Four hundred and fifty fans were waiting to cheer him on, but "Mike" Pearson failed to come through in the clutch.

DISAPPOINTED FAN.

Ed. Note: Mr. Pearson spoke in the House Tuesday afternoon making a brief statement about the work of his Department. Thereafter the House went into Committee of Supply, when Mr. Pearson, concluded his comments. The House recessed at six p.m. It reconvened (in Committee of Supply) at eight p.m. and Mr. Pearson was in the House. Before ten p.m. he made a reply at some length to points raised in the preceding debate. A Department of External Affairs item for $2,853,958 was passed before the House adjourned at 10:12 p.m. If Mr. Pearson played baseball that afternoon it must have been before three o'clock.

III

There was a series of majestic drives through the wide streets. Parisian crowds cheered in a most un-Republican way. Princess Elizabeth's wardrobe of dresses sent a ripple of excitement through the fashion capital.

Even M. Dior, that leader among dress designers, could find no fault. "She is magnificent," he told one of the Royal party. "I never knew from pictures that she could be so lovely or wear her clothes with such distinction."

At home the fashion writers grew lyrical. At Nottingham Cottage I examined photographs with which the papers were full, and remembered what an effort it used to be even to persuade the Princess to change into a new hat.

Someone, I knew, must have been at work, for the Princess was always conservative about her dress, and content to wear whatever was laid out for her.

I did not have to look far for the author of this new chic. Prince Philip was beside her in more ways than one on this tour, as I shall show.

Friends of mine who accompanied the Royal couple noticed a new protectiveness had come over the Prince. Wherever they went he was always close by his wife's side, ready to give her a hand up some steps, or guide her by the elbow through a crowded place. It was a courteous display of husbandly affection at a time when she must have found it most rewarding.

And finally, as the climax to the tour, came the occasion on which she was to lay a wreath on the tomb of the Unknown Soldier. This was prefaced by a drive through the city in an open car.

The tomb was surrounded by ranks of soldiers, who clashed to attention as the Princess stepped a few paces forward to lay her wreath.

As she leaned forward, the crowds saw her sway, as if she was going to fall. Prince Philip was near at hand. As he saw her falter, he took a quick pace forward and caught her elbow to steady her. The incident was over in a second or two, but it was one that none who saw it will ever forget.

"It was as if there was no one else there but the two of them," one of my friends told me later. "She needed him, and he was there."

And then Prince Philip helped her back to her place while the bands played the national anthems.

Those who stood near them could see how anxiously he watched in case she should sway again. But she did not. It must have needed great courage to stand to rigid attention, feeling as she did.

The strain, in fact, did tell. On the way back through streets lined with people cheering her with undiminished vigor, the emotion became too much for the Princess.

All through the journey the crowds could plainly see the tears streaming from her eyes. She made no attempt to hide them; they were a gracious acknowldgment of the tribute the Parisians paid her.

And also, perhaps, relief after the strain she had imposed upon herself.

I remember another occasion which illustrates the same determination in the Queen to see things through, however great the strain and however aduous the task.

Queen Elizabeth has always disliked the sea, which makes her odd man out in a circle of sailors.

Her father was a naval officer; so was his father before him; and so is her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh. She has crossed the sea often—to South Africa, to the Channel Islands, and back from Canada. And yet I know that she has never been able to overcome her aversion to it.

When she was eight years old King George, who was then Duke of York, fell ill. For his convalescence the whole family moved to the Duke of Devonshire's house, Compton Palace, Eastbourne.

It is a large, rambling house which you come upon suddenly in the centre of the town. But behind it lies a pleasant garden, and beyond that a wood which stretches up to a golf course.

We took great pleasure in that wood which the gardener had planted with hyacinths taken from the greenhouse, so that one would come upon a group of vivid colors all mixed up together, with the hyacinths, daffodils, and other flowers.

It was while at Eastbourne that Queen Elizabeth first came to know the sea. She had seen it before — when she went down to Bognor Regis to cheer her ailing "Grandpa England," as she called King George V.

But she had little memory of that. We used, at first, to go to the private beach chalet which went with the house. There we would make tea and fight off two huge dogs which always tried to make off with our rations.

Until too many people came to watch the Prncesses play it was pleasant there. But despite the fun she had on the beach Queen Elizabeth never liked the sea. Something about the movement of the water seemed to spell danger to her.

If her father approached it too closely, she would scream to warn him. I think it rather puzzled the King, who so loved the sea himself, that his daughter should find it strange and alarming.

"It's the noise," she explained to me, "and the way it keeps rolling about and jumping at you."

Later, when we were making a cruise in that old-fashioned vessel, the Royal yacht Victoria and Albert which rolled and pitched in every direction, Princess Elizabeth was still landlubber enough to wish all the time that she was ashore.

With the Duke of Edinburgh, years later, she paid an official visit to the Channel Islands. Memories of the Nazi occupation were still vivid there and the coming of the Princess eagerly awaited.

On the morning she sailed in HMS Anson I looked at the skies, and my heart grieved for her. Ashore, the weather was bad enough, but it was much worse in the Channel. I know that the voyage in a rough sea would be a nightmare to her.

My fears proved true. She was white with seasickness and almost prostrate when the ship dropped anchor off Sark.

Between the ship and the shore was a strip of angry sea, which had to be crossed in one of the ship's boat.

"Are you sure you're fit to go ashore?" asked her husband. She could not speak, but looked up at him and nodded.

The Princess's advisers doubted that she was fit to land. When she realized what they were saying she roused herself.

"Of course I am going ashore," she said. "I won't disappoint all those people."

(Te Be Continued)

An example of Queen Elizabeth's devotion to duty is her frequent appearance at all types of gatherings. Sometimes she has as many as nine appointments in a day. Here she is shown with the Lord Mayor of London at the National Thanksgiving celebration in 1950.

A few months before the birth of Prince Charles, Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip visited France. At top they stand at the tomb of the Unknown Soldier under the Arch of Triumph. Below they chat with President Vincent Auriol and Mrs. Auriol at the Elysees Palace.

Not His Job To Censor Orders Howe Declares

OTTAWA (CP)—If, Production Minister Howe said Thursday by way of facetious example, the defence department told him to buy a gold-plated piano he'd buy it.

That, he told Howard Green (PC—Vancouver-Quadra) in the Commons, is the job of his department of defence production—not to censor orders coming from the armed forces but to buy what they say they want.

For that reason he was not the man to question about large orders for braces and shaving brushes and other things which Mr. Green thought were being bought in too large quantities. His department simply bought what the defence department wanted and took for granted that the defence department knew what it wanted.

The check on the department's ideas came from the treasury board—a group of cabinet ministers—but he wasn't on it.

Manitoba Fights Forest Fires

WINNIPEG (CP)—The forest fire situation in Manitoba is growing steadily worse as a sizzling prairie sun turns forest areas into tinder boxes.

Of two fires reported in southwestern Manitoba Thursday, only one remained under control—in the Whitemouth—Rennie area. It destroyed 3,000 acres of timber, mostly jackpine and spruce.

The second fire, which forced the evacuation of the village of Badger 75 miles southeast of Winnipeg, jumped a full quarter of a mile over the fire lines during the afternoon and raged out of control in the evening.

A. W. Braine, chief of forest protection, reported several new fires. The worst are at Point du Bois, in the Great Falls area, and at Ste. Genevieve, between 40 and 50 miles southeast of Winnipeg.

TORONTO (CP)—The first major study on the problem of children starving from severe malnutrition will be undertaken immediately at the Hospital for Sick Children here under a grant of $5,720 announced Thursday by the Canadian Life Insurance Officers Association.

The study will seek causes of, and treatment for, conditions under which many children are unable to utilize the food they consume.

Canada Experiments With Small Arms

OTTAWA (CP)—Production Minister Howe says Canada is doing "certain secret experimental work" on small arms.

Otherwise, he told the Commons Thursday, Canada is not producing any small arms. But production of guns and ammunition was coming along well.

He said he couldn't say anything about production of guided missiles because that, too, is secret.

Combination Track Teams For Universities

LONDON (AP)—A track and field team combining the best athletes from Oxford and Cambridge will meet combination teams from Yale-Cornell and Army-Penn at New Haven, Conn., June 13. It will be a triangular meet.

The meet, first of a series among the six universities, replaces the 53-year-old competition among Oxford-Cambridge, Princeton - Harvard, Yale-Cornell.

The American universities will send athletes to White City Stadium for meets in London, both in 1954 and 1955.

A disagreement over finances helped bring down the old series. Under the new set-up the visitors each year will pay their own travel expenses and become guests of the home universities after arrival. Home universities will keep gate receipts.

Under old arrangements American colleges "banked" the entire deal. The Americans took gate receipts both from meets in London and the United States and paid all expenses. After the 1951 games in London, American college officials received nearly $8,400.

The old series started in 1899 and ran almost without interruption except during war years.

Tourney Brings Big Upsets

ROME (AP)—Unseeded European players surprised touring American and Australian tennis stars Thursday as a wave of upsets swept through the Rome international tournament.

Vic Seixas of Philadelphia, the U.S.' second-ranked player, and veteran internationalist Mervyn Rose of Australia were the biggest names to fall. Both lost to Swedes, Seixas to Lennart Bergelin, 6-4, 6-1, 1-6, 6-4 and Rose losing by 3-6, 8-6, 6-3, 2-6, 6-3 to Sven Davidson.

Italy's top player, Fausto Gardini, upset Rex Hartwig, another member of the Aussie delegation who was seeded seventh 9-7, 6-4, 6-1.

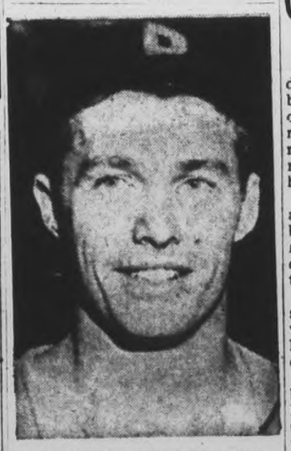
Top-seeded Jaroslav Drobny, now playing out of Egypt, trounced young Clive Wilderspin of Australia, 6-3, 6-0, 7-5, and fifth-seeded Budge Patty of Los Angeles whipped Australia's Ian Ayre, 6-1, 6-4, 4-6, 6-4.

Confederation Wins

Confederation seniors recently took three School Softball League games, downing Central "B", Queen Mary and Central "A". In the first game, Ferguson went all the way for the winners, he and Trotter leading them at bat, while McNaughton hit and fielded well for the losers. Woods was good defensively for Confederation.

The next game saw Haig and Ferguson pitching good ball, the latter and Rollins leading the victors at bat. Drury, Haig, Hendry and Mann want best for Queen Mary.

One good inning spelled the difference for Confederation over Central "A" in a tidy tilt. Trotter and Ferguson were strong afield for the winners, the former and Steele leading them at bat. McNaughton had a nifty catch for Central, and Aulbrook hit hard.



P Of W Boys Victors

Prince of Wales "A" team beat Central "A" school softballers 9-8 this week on the latter's diamond. They put together three runs in the third inning and six next time up, while Central counted one each in the first and fourth, and two apiece in the second, third and fifth. Teams:

P of W: Coombes, B. Douglas, Trotter, McIntosh, Oliver, Jay, Londerville, Bowen, G. Douglas, Ketcheson, Lesurf, Riel, Tully, Patterson, Bullock.

Central: Gray, Simpson, Tetlock, Aulcock, Barclay, Armstrong, MacNaughton, Robbins, Crowder, McDowell.

Umpires: Bullock and Patterson.

DADSON LEAVING—Lefty Bill Dadson, starry southpaw hurler for the senior Petes for the past several seasons, is joining the Oshawa Merchants of the Intercounty League on May 19. The former Bowmanville boy was invited to join Oshawa for the last two years, but waited until he had completed his trade at the CGE here before deciding to move.

Scribe Mike Rodden of Kingston, whose elephantine memory readily embraces the hockey era of the First World War, comments thusly on a piece he had of the short-lived 1916 team here: "Jerry Coughlin and his associates in the ill-fated venture lived too soon. In this era they could have claimed that they were entitled to replace all home town players who didn't have enough ability. Then in the event that some of the replacements failed to live up to advance notices, they could have imported the Cobalt Lake stars and also some of those Sudbury specialists like Shorty Green and Wally Smith who had won the Northern Ontario title at the expense of Cobalt."

* * * * * *

The esteemed Don Miguel adds: "Oddly enough, none of those northern aces imported by Peterborough actually qualified for amateur competition and, in suspending the team holus bolus, the OHA heads explained that they were professionals. That finding could hardly be faulted, but the salaries they received were so low that they were negligible in importance. At this time stars like Keats, Coughlin and Briden would not linger long in pseudo amateur ranks, and the Peterborough case would not be duplicated. Bill Tobin's goalkeeping services, however, would not now be in such demand and it is thought unlikely that his inclusion in the Penticton lineup would be protested." That last line is Mike's sly way of chuckling at the CAHA for allowing an Owen Sound goalie to play for Penticton in cup finals.

Stacking Up The Dollars

Talked to Bill Stack in town the other night and learned the large fellow is a busy man indeed. Operates a 212-acre farm himself (175 acres under cultivation) and wrestles professionally once or twice a week anywhere in the province. He's about six-three and goes 240 pounds, breaking into the pro mat game under Phil Lawson back in 1945. Had his second professional bout in Peterborough, and has shown here frequently since. Stack played high school football for Oshawa during the war years against PCVS, Belleville and Lindsay, scaling 190 then. His farm is about six miles nortr of Oshawa, and we wonder which pays him better, pro grappling or farming.

Orillia paper says: "Merv McKenzie refutes the claim he belongs to West Yorks. The popular defenceman, who played in three Mann Cup finals, obtained his release from Hamilton himself, only signing a 1952 certificate on that understanding. He explained: 'In 1952, Peterborough took me to the west coast to play in the Canadian championships. If I were to play lacrosse this year, this would be taken into consideration when signing, as well as many other facts. However, at this moment I do not think I'll be playing lacrosse this year or in the future.' A host of Orillia admirers would like to see big Merv back in action." So would we, but he has just been made Ontario Athletic Commissioner, and is unlikely to play lacrosse.

Water Skiers Get Okay

City council has granted a license to the local Water Ski Club to stage the big meet at Little Lake on Aug. 8-9, and the Canadian Water Ski Association had a representative down here the other day to look over the layout and okay the affair. It'll be sponsored by the Jaycees, and will attract top aquatic skiers of the country and some from Europe, who will be over for a crack at the world's championships later in the summer at Toronto. Special trains will bring contestants and fans, Chairman Alf Pink informs us. The club is starting to build a lake ski jump equal to the world's titular one at the CNE, and a firm is putting loudspeakers around the lake. Club has a Monday 7.30 p.m. meeting and all prospective entries are invited. No entry fee but they must belong to the local association.

Track and field athletes are having their inning here these days with various meets lined up. St. Peter's High had a good go at it earlier this week, while Jack Cullis at Kenner and Zoltan Temesy of PCVS stage their meets today, the latter in Morrow Park. Various grade schools do their track and field stuff in the springtime, also, or early summer. The third annual city and district high school meet under the Jaycees and Recreation Commission is listed for Morrow Park a week from next Monday, entries closing on Wednesday, May 13. Open for high school girls and boys in junior, intermediate and senior classes, with various trophies up for the many events on the program.

CAHA Faces Big Ruckus

By W. R. WHEATLEY

MONTREAL (CP)—The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, bedevilled and beset by squawks over referees and player replacements during hot-weather playoffs, now faces once more a winter-born ruckus that threatens to blow skyhigh again.

Because of the still suspended and bitterly resentful Quebec branch, the CAHA's annual meeting opening at Niagara Falls Monday takes on tremendous importance for hockey generally.

Ramifications from the suspension itself have spread far. A survey of the situation in Quebec, relating to the hockey picture generally, shows these possibilities:

1. A jump to professional status by the Quebec Senior Hockey League—powerful member of the Quebec Amateur Hockey Association. The league will meet Monday night to decide that point.
2. Termination of the pro-CAHA agreement.
3. Some change in status of the restless top-ranking junior circuits in Quebec and Ontario.

ONLY ONE LEFT

If the QSHL goes pro, the CAHA will have only one major series league left, the Maritime. The CAHA would lose whatever revenue accrues from the Alexander Trophy series, played between the two major series winners.

If the pro-CAHA agreement is terminated all mutual relations regarding jurisdiction, player lists, sponsored clubs and other important pro-amateur links would be wiped out.

It would also mean heavy loss of revenue that goes to support amateur hockey. Since 1947, when the agreement began operating, the pro leagues have handed over $250,000 to the CAHA for this purpose. This figure is over and above untold amounts spent by pro clubs in sponsoring amateur teams.

The possibility of intermination of this agreement arises because the CAHA resented the action of the pros—the National Hockey League and minor circuits—in extending to the QSHL full protection of players' lists.

But the protection was not extended until the QSHL had resigned with no hard feelings, from the QAHA, its governing branch. The league's action came suddenly before suspension of the QAHA was applied generally to all leagues, clubs and players within the branch.

Following the resignation, the QSHL went ahead unconcernedly with its schedule, lengthened the playoffs and, with revenue from them, distributed $135,000 among its clubs.

Now QSHL president George Slater says he must have many assurances before the league can even consider returning to the CAHA. He wants more money for drafted players. As pros his drafted players would bring $10,000 each. Now they bring $5,000 from the NHL clubs and $3,000 from minor pro leagues.

He would want assurance that the QSHL playoff winner would "profit financially" in the major series playoffs. He would want a negotiation list, two players for each team, and, he said bluntly, "we can't agree that all the power of the CAHA be in one man's hands."

Toronto Leafs Humble Montreal 3-2

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Maple Leafs are atop the International Baseball League ladder again by a full game and first baseman Ed Stevens can take a bow.

The big Texan belted a long 10th-inning double Thursday night that gave the leafs their first victory over Montreal Royals 3-2. The Royals won 4-1 in their first meeting of the season Wednesday.

In an Ottawa encounter, Rochester Red Wings, who held the league leadership before Toronto, fell short with a threerun ninth-inning rally as the Athletics defeated them 8-4.

RAINED OUT

Springfield at Buffalo and Baltimore at Syracuse were rained out.

Both Toronto and Montreal got 12 hits. Gerry Fahr, who came in to pitch for Toronto in the 10th, was credited with the win, his second against no losses. Ronnie Lee, who relieved starter Tom Lasorda in the seventh, took his third loss in as many starts.

At Ottawa the Wings jumped pitcher Bill Harrington for five of the eight hits he allowed in winning the game. He struck out six and walked three in making his record 1-1.

Rochester starter Kurt Krieger was the loser, his first setback against no victories.

Marion Admits Holloman Good

ST. LOUIS (AP)—"He proved to me that he's just about as good as he thinks he is."

That's Manager Marty Marion of St. Louis Browns talking. Once skeptical about rookie Alva (Bobo) Holloman after unimpressive relief appearances, Marion has changed his mind about the eager, 27-year-old right hander.

After weeks of pestering for a starting job, Bobo finally got his chance and curved his way into baseball fame by pitching a no-hit, no-run game against Philadelphia Athletics Wednesday night.

Only a weather-thinned crowd of 2,473 saw Holloman's 6-0 victory. And they saw the show for free. Browns' owner Bill Veeck announced their rain checks would be honored any time in the future to show his appreciation for their attendance on a rain-threatened night.

Name Guyle Fielder Outstanding Rookie

NEW YORK (AP)—Guyle Fielder, 22-year-old St. Louis Flyer centre who already was picked for the all-star team, was named today as the outstanding rookie of the 1952-53 American Hockey League season.

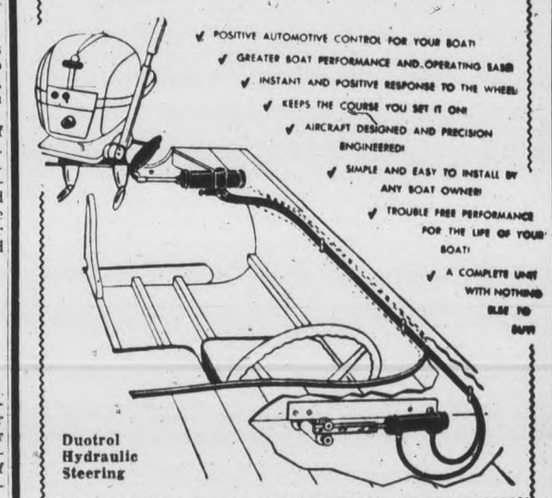
Fielder is the first freshman ever to be named to the all-star team. In winning the rookie award, he garnered 26 of a possible 35 votes. The votes were cast by the league's seven coaches.

Willy Marshall of Pittsburgh, also a centre, was second with 23 points.

The Dudley (Red) Garrett memorial trophy also goes to Fielder.

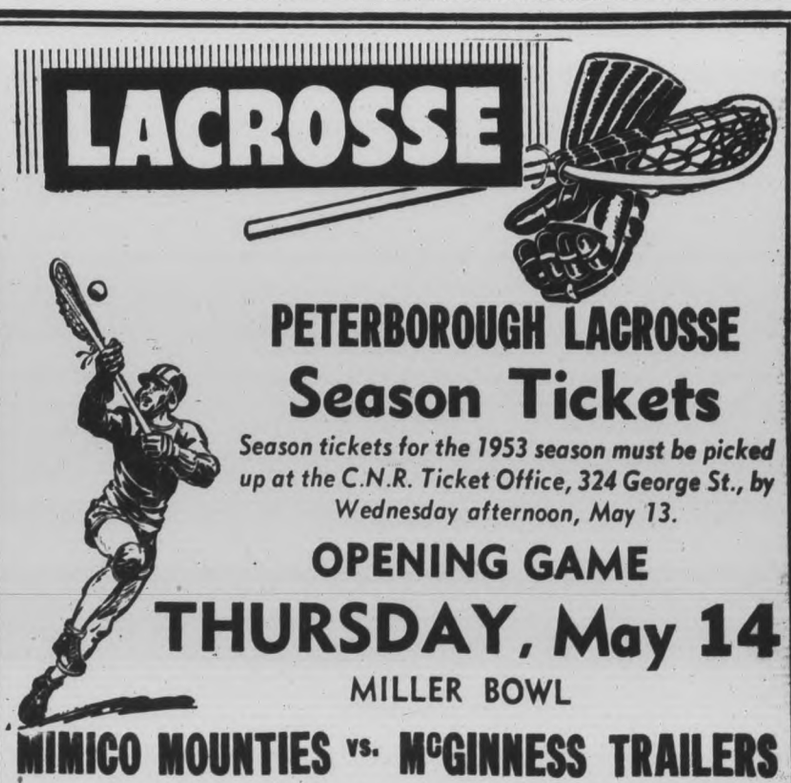
P Of W Boys Win

Prince of Wales Intermediate B school softball team defeated the Grove 13-6 on the former's diamond yesterday. They scored five runs in the first frame, one each in the second and third, with six tallying in their last time up. The Grove nine collected five in the first and one more in the fourth. Teams:



Grove—Keene, Dwyer, Atkinson, Leggett, Reid, Doughty, Duncan, Robinson, Simmons.

Prince of Wales — Drummond, Scholey, Donaldson, Downer, Frost, Billingsley, Davies, Burns, Curry, Marshall, Henderson, Connors, Wells.



Umpire—Hagerman.

GAME AS THEY COME—Little Wilf Desjarlais (left) delivers a left hook to the side of the head of Gaspard Bouchard during the Canadian Amateur championships at Montreal. Desjarlais, an Indian boy from Regina, fought with a badly swollen jaw, the result of a tooth infection, and came on to win a popular decision.

Major League Baseball Completely Under Lights

By BEN PHLEGAR, Associated Press Sports Writer

Major league baseball, which has seen little sunlight this spring, goes completely under the lights tonight for the first time this season. That's what the schedules say, but the weatherman may have other ideas. He has put the damper on so many times since the baseball season opened almost four weeks ago that club owners are beginning to suspect the weather bureau has been taken over exclusively by rainmakers.

First place in the National League will be at stake with Philadelphia Phillies moving into Ebbets Field for a three-game set with the Dodgers.

Milwaukee will attempt to play its third home game of the year—the Braves have been rained out of their new home four times in six tries—with Chicago Cubs. St. Louis will be at Cincinnati and Pittsburgh at New York.

TWO-DAY LAYOFF

New York Yankees put their 1½-game American League lead on the line in Boston after a two-day layoff. Cleveland Indians, the Yanks' nearest pursuers, invade Busch Stadium in St. Louis. The Athletics are at home to Washington and Detroit visits Chicago.

The Phillies, nursing a half-game edge over the second-place Dodgers, will fire their three biggest guns—Curt Simmons, Karl Drews and Robin Roberts. These guys shot Brooklyn full of holes in their previous three meetings in Philadelphia. Charlie Dressen of the Dodgers says he plans to counter with Billy Loes tonight, Preacher Roe Saturday and possibly Joe Black Sunday.

After winning six of eight while travelling, the Red Sox will go against New York with Hector Brown, a rookie who is even after two games. Johnny Sain probably will work for the Yankees.

Sports Writers Criticize Rough Cup Play

WINNIPEG (CP)—Barrie Flyers won the Memorial Cup and Winnipeg sports writers agreed they deserved it.

But the kind of hockey that was served up to the customers met with criticism almost as rough as Wednesday's final game itself. The game was described as a "back-alley brawl" and a "disgrace."

The Flyers won three straight in the best-of-seven series before St. Boniface Canadiens came up with a win, and the Easterners made no mistake about it with a 6-1 lacing in the final game.

Tempers were as hot as the 88-degree weather.

Describing the game, Maurice Smith of the Winnipeg Free Press wrote:

"It certainly wasn't hockey. It was a roughhouse, no-holds-barred brawl."

LOST CONTROL

Smith also blasted referees Lou Lecompte and Ching McDonald of Ottawa. He said they lost complete control of the game in the second period.

Vince Leah of the Winnipeg Tribune called the game "dismal" and "revolting."

Leah also levelled a volley at the spectators, whose conduct was almost as bad as that of the players. Many of the audience didn't wait for the presentation of the trophy and some who did remain booed.

Can't Accept Sterling As Payment

OTTAWA (CP)—A suggestion by the Canadian Congress of Labor that Canada accept sterling as payment for part of her exports to the United Kingdom was criticized as unworkable by members of the Senate trade relations committee Thursday.

The Congress suggested in a brief to the committee, studying economic co-operation among North Atlantic Treaty countries, that the government establish a "counterpart" fund with sterling exchanged for Canadian exports.

The Canadian exporter would be paid in dollars by the government which would use the sterling in the counterpart fund to pay for its purchases from Britain or for materials purchased under the Colombo Plan for economic development of southeast Asia.

EXPRESS DOUBT

Senators Peter Campbell (L—Ontario), J. J. Kinley (L—Nova Scotia) and G. P. Burchill (L—New Brunswick) expressed doubt that the fund would serve any useful purpose.

Senator Burchill said the weakness of the suggestion is that it would decrease dollar purchases in the United Kingdom which badly needed dollars.

Professor Findlay Dies In Hamilton

HAMILTON (CP)—William Findlay, 78, professor emeritus of McMaster University, died suddenly in hospital Thursday.

Born in Glanford, near Hamilton, he was educated in district schools and McMaster University when it was located in Toronto. He graduated in 1896. Later he received his Doctor of Philosophy degree at University of Chicago.

Prof. Findlay was a professor at McMaster for 42 years, retiring in 1947.

He is survived by two sons, William of Brantford, and John, of Toronto; two daughters, Matilda, of Bolivia, and Muriel, of London; two sisters, Mrs. R. J. Hay, of Sarnia, and Dr. Jessie Findlay of Hamilton; and two brothers, James and Allen, of Winnipeg.

Anti-Semitic Leader Vanishes In Hungary

VIENNA (AP)—Western diplomats said today one of Communist Hungary's most bitter anti-Semitic leaders appears either to have been purged or to have lost favor.

He is Istvan Kovacs, secretary of the Hungarian Communist party's politburo. He is said to have vanished from the public eye since communism's apparent reversal of the anti-Jewish attitude that was growing behind the Iron Curtain before Stalin's death.

Kovacs led an anti-Jewish group of Communists within Hungary. He and his supporters stood opposed to Premier Matyas Rakosi. Rakosi is a Jew and so are most of the Hungarian government's leaders.

General Election Battle Begins On House Floor

OTTAWA (CP)—The battle of the forthcoming general election has started—on the floor of the House of Commons.

For some weeks now, almost every topic has become an election issue as the session nears its close and expectations rise that Prime Minister St. Laurent will announce the vital date—widely expected to be in August—soon after his return from the Coronation June 2.

Thursday the electioneering broke out in earnest as the House went into the second day of consideration of estimates for Defence Production Minister Howe's department.

The wide-ranging debate touched, among a variety of things, the Currie report and that of the defence expenditures committee which opposition members term a "whitewash job." Committee chairman Rene Beaudoin advised members that much of their talk was out of order.

The political swings that will echo later on the hustings were frankly admitted as such on both sides. Donald Fleming (PC—Toronto Eglinton) got into the thick of it and confessed he rather enjoyed what he termed the Liberals' "good oldfashioned stump speeches."

IT'S THE SEASON

David Croll (L—Toronto Spadina) commented: "It's the season."

Mr. Howe, an old hand at the game, seemed to enjoy the odd whiff of political winds, but frequently expressed annoyance at the lack of progress with his estimates. At another point Works Minister Fournier, government House leader, appealed to members to curtail their remarks and urged the chair to enforce the rules of debate.

Solon Low, Social Credit leader, accused the Liberal majority on the defence committee of whitewashing what he called "sordid details" of defence construction. He suggested preferred treatment on defence contracts had been given the Alexander construction firm, formerly owned by Mines Minister Prudham.

Mr. Low suggested the firm had "friends at court" when it failed to complete a contract for an RCAF base at Penhold, Alta., on time, yet got another big contract elsewhere while still "stumbling around" at Penhold.

DENY SPECIAL TREATMENT

Mr. Prudham denied that the Alexander firm had ever received preferred treatment through him or anyone else. He said he had no connection with the firm since he sold it before the Korean fighting began.

Howard Green (PC—Vancouver-Quadra) questioned Mr. Howe's suggestion that the government might help keep key defence production facilities at the ready by giving their products to European allies. He suggested Canadians should not have to keep on paying for gifts indefinitely.

The minister said experience showed that plants, such as explosives factories, should be kept going at a minimum even if the products had to be given away. There were limitations on stockpiling because some items didn't stockpile well.

H. W. Herridge (CCF—Kootenay West) said there had been waste and inefficiency in defence construction, but they were largely beyond official control. He suggested Watson Sellar, the auditor general, should be recruited to keep an eye on armed forces stockpiling, records and condition of stores.

Mr. Howe said he'd like to see Mr. Sellar make the best possible check. If the CCF way was the best way he was for it.

Wing Cmdr. Lindsay To Lead In Salute

LONDON (CP) — Wing Cmdr. James D. Lindsay of Arnprior, Ont., will lead 24 RCAF Sabres as part of a screaming jet salute over Buckingham Palace on Coronation Day, June 2.

The Canadian contingent will be part of a massed formation of 168 jets taking part in the salute, the air ministry announced Thursday.

Flying at between 1,100 and 1,500 feet, the jets will form two broad Vs linked by a central flight.

Two Royal Children Help At Presentation

LONDON (AP)—Prince Charles and his kid sister, Princess Anne, got into the act from a Buckingham Palace balcony Thursday when their mother, the Queen, presented new colors to two battalions of her Grenadier Guards.

As the guards marched past, the Queen and her children raised their right hands in military salute.

A small temporary stand for spectators in the palace garden collapsed as the Queen came out for the ceremony, but no one was injured.

Gives Private Answer

OTTAWA (CP)—Defence Production Minister Howe Thursday night declined on security grounds to make public the size of Canada's strategic materials stockpile.

He told J. M. Macdonnell (PC—Toronto Greenwood) he would give him the information privately.

Child Sets Fire, Dies

WELLAND (CP)—Marcel Brousseau, 5, died Thursday when a fire, which his parents said they believe was set by the child himself, swept his bedroom. A few hours earlier, the youngster set fire to the back of the Brousseau house. He was punished by his mother and sent to his room.

Canada's Aid To UK $130,000,000 In '52

OTTAWA (CP)—Military aid to the United Kingdom under Canada's Atlantic Pact mutual aid program amounted to $130,000,000 in the last fiscal year, Production Minister Howe said Thursday night.

All told, he said in the Commons, Britain has received something like $200,000,000 worth of military aid from Canada under this program, including Sabre aircraft, radar equipment, explosives, air training and other items.

RCHA Leaving After Year In Korean War

By BILL BOSS

IN KOREA (CP)—After a year of good shooting in Korea, the 1st Regiment, the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery, is homeward bound.

The 500-odd returning officers and other ranks reach Shilo, Man., in mid-May. They have been told they will train at Shilo until Oct. 15, then move to Fort Osborne barracks, Winnipeg.

During their year here they have supported Canadian, United States, Korean, French, Netherlands, Thai and Puerto Rican troops. The DSO worn by their 34-year-old commanding officer, Lt.-Col. E. M. D. McNaughton of Ottawa, is symbolic of the RCHA's work.

(Col. McNaughton recently changed his name to Leslie to conform to the will of an aunt.)

The unit fired a one-year Korea record of 308,336 rounds. The last one was taken hot out of the breach April 22 and presented to Brig. M. P. Bogert, retiring brigade commander. The 2nd Regiment, RCHA, fired 299,076 rounds while here.

FOUR BIG ENGAGEMENTS

Most rounds were bunker busters, but much shooting supported patrols or discouraged enemy activity close to Canadian lines.

RCHA shooting, however, is known here mostly for four major engagements. The most notable was the battle of Little Gibraltar spur last Oct. 23. Others were in support of United States and RoK troops earlier in October, with the Black Watch in November, and the Dutch in March.

The Little Gibraltar battle occurred when the 1st battalion, the Royal Canadian Regiment, briefly lost and then recaptured a company position.

RCHA fire boxed off the battle, prevented the Chinese from reinforcing their troops and then supported the Canadians' counter-attack. The regiment fired 4,000 of the 17,000 rounds fired that night by the divisional artillery.

Its support of the U.S. and RoK troops was during the luckless October battles for Hill Kelly. The unit recorded: "The 1st RoK division appears to be getting as much, if not more, support from our artillery than from their own supporting United States artillery."

SUPPORTED ROKS

Its entry for the night of Oct. 20 read: "The RoKs tonight had apparently no support from U.S. artillery and our C battery fired in support, even though on another front. . . They stood by to shoot defensive tasks, which they did to beat off a Chinese counter-attack."

In November the RCHA was supporting a British brigade the night the Black Watch were attacked on "the Hook," Nov. 19.

Eighty Chinese bodies were in the positions after the battle, killed by the gunners and the Highlanders. The RCHA fired 3,000 rounds that night.

Besides supporting British and Australian troops in the 1st Commonwealth division whenever the Canadian brigade was in reserve, the RCHA during February and March, when the whole division "rested," supported the 2nd U.S. infantry division.

Besides Americans, the division embraced Netherlands and French battalions, and the regiment had a battery supporting each of the European units.

The night of March 26 the Chinese counter-attacked after ambushing a Dutch patrol.

The attack was broken by sheer weight of shells.

NOTABLE FEATS

Highlights during the last two months before rotation were a patrol by Lieut. Tony Sosnkowski of Argenteuil, Que., and a cool rescue from a mine-field by 40-year old Sgt. A. E. Thompson of Toronto.

Sosnkowski "laid up" with 12 U.S. infantrymen behind Chinese positions for 24 hours and from his hide-away directed fire onto enemy soldiers whenever he saw them.

A British signaller laying a telephone line to RCHA headquarters March 25 walked in the dark through a minefield, tripped over a detonator wire and was severely wounded.

Thompson, taking a bayonet and some wire, prodded a path through to the man, marking it with the wire, and neutralizing mines on the way. Discipline enabled him to ignore the man's agony and to concentrate on reaching him properly —otherwise both might have been killed.

Then Thompson returned to the barbed wire barricade and led a medical officer to the man, and helped to carry him out.

The unit has received many tributes from commanders whose troops it has supported. Its record for concentrating all its guns on one target is 25 seconds.

Maj.-Gen. J. G. Fry, commander of the 2nd U.S. division, wrote:

"The Canadian soldier not only looks like a soldier, but he behaves like one. Canada is fortunate indeed in having soldiers of this type."

The RCHA is the first regiment to leave Korea without having had a single courtmartial while here.

Nine of its officers and other ranks won decorations during the year.

Son's Head Saves 2 From Being Crushed

CORONATION, Alta. (CP)—Anthony Chopek and his son Alexander were working under an automobile when a hydraulic lift collapsed. They were saved from being crushed when the car apparently was held up by the son's head.

Doctors said their injuries were not serious. Chopek suffered a broken foot, but the son, although stunned, had only a head scratch.

Coronation is 135 miles southwest of Edmonton.

Children's Theatre May Be Assisted

VICTORIA (CP)—The Dominion Drama Festival will investigate the possibility of taking children's theatre under its wing.

The festival executive accepted a resolution Thursday from the theatre conference, being held in conjunction with the Dominion Drama Festival here, urging the promotion of children's plays in regional festivals.

It is hoped that plays for children will be held at regional festivals and the best in Canada will be shown in conjunction with, but not as part of, the Dominion festival.

Think 3 Boys In Ottawa Area

OTTAWA (CP) — Three young brothers missing from their Toronto home for a week are thought to be in the Ottawa district.

The brothers are Henry Quigley, 10, Howard, 7, and Paul, 5.

Allan Burton of Manotick, some 15 miles southwest of Ottawa, told provincial police here Thursday night that he gave three boys a ride in his car last Monday. He said he recognized them from news stories he read later.

The brothers vanished in mid-Toronto while on their way to buy candy.

Kiwanis Unknown Quantity Indian Reserve, Boot Polish?

What's Kiwanis—a superior Indian reserve or a very superior brand of boot polish?

"I'd never heard the name Kiwanis or anything about Kiwanis clubs until after I had agreed to come on this adjudicating tour of Canada and we started to get all sorts of mail with Kiwanis on it," John Russell, English adjudicator, said in a short address at the Kiwanis club luncheon Tuesday. "After some pondering my wife and I decided that it must be either a superior Indian reserve or a very superior kind of boot polish."

Mr. Russell and George Heath-Gracie who were special guests at the club luncheon, are the two English musicians who are in Peterborough adjudicating the Peterborough Kiwanis Music Festival, May 5-12.

Mr. Heath-Gracie, in his address, congratulated the Kiwanis on "the splendid work you are doing by holding this festival."

"You probably don't know how much good you are doing," the adjudicator continued. "A music festival such as yours develops character and individuality in a way you will never realize. You are making people out of children in a time when individuality is too often sacrificed to the concept of mass production."

Mr. Heath-Gracie also complimented the Kiwanians on obtaining St. Peter's School auditorium for the festival sessions.

"It is a glorious hall and it is a tremendous asset to have a shrine like that for your festival."

During the luncheon Past President Walter Howell presented Mr. Russell with a club pin and initiated him as a club member. This follows a club custom established five years ago of making all English adjudicators of Peterborough festivals, club members. Mr. Heath-Gracie was made a member when he adjudicated here three years ago.

Other guests at this festival club luncheon included: Christopher Gledhill, festival accompanist; Mrs. Angus Rees, festival secretary; Mrs. Heath-Gracie, Mrs. Wilson Gemmell, Mrs. Norman Armstrong and Mrs. Stan Northrop.

Says Newspaper Ads Have No Substitutes

TORONTO (CP) — Howard S. Mark, vice-president of the Robert Simpson Company, says newspaper advertising has no substitute for effectiveness.

Speaking during a forum discussing direct mail advertising at the 48th annual convention of the Association of Canadian Advertisers, he said Thursday that, while newspapers are advertising's "big guns," direct mail is only the "rifle fire." He added:

"Any merchant who [illegible] on direct mail when he should be using newspaper adv[illegible] surely lose sales, if not his shirt. . . ."

Horse like Woman

Must Be Petted, Treated With Kindness

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—"In a lot of ways, a horse is like a woman. It must be petted and treated with kindness before it will respond."

So believes Staff Sergeant C. W. (Andy) Anderson of Winnipeg, six-foot RCMP trainer of the musical ride to be presented before the Queen after the Coronation in June.

RARE SPECIMEN

The 47-year-old veteran horseman instructor—a rare specimen in this age of machines—faced a tough task. All the mounties chosen had been on horses at one time or another, but a lot of them had been away from horses for some years.

All were chosen for good conduct and good service and represent all parts of Canada. All had at least five years of service.

Andy knows a lot about horses—and men, too. He has served 24 years with the RCMP and before that was a member of the Strathcona Horse Dragoons.

The ride was trained at RCMP barracks at Rockcliffe, on the outskirts of the capital. Andy knows all the Coronation-ride horses by name. He can pick them out as they trot by on limbering-up exercises. And he knows the men—and their capabilities.

Andy has trained scores of musical rides in his day. Other countries seek his services and demands for the ride are terrific.

To meet requests he took musical rides across Canada and the United States. Last year the troop rode in 83 Canadian and American shows, including Hollywood. Still the demand grows.

In London the RCMP will perform before the Queen at the Royal Tournament June 10-19, inclusive. Then they will go to Scotland before returning to Canada July 7.

The horses will be attired in shiny leather, blue shadracks under saddles, with white headropes and maple leaves stencilled on both sides of the hind quarters.

The men will dress in full review order—red serge coats stetson hats, Sam Browne belts, gauntlets. They will carry rifles during the Coronation procession and lances with blue-and-gold pennants during the musical rides.

LEAD HORSE

Tartar is king of all the musical ride horses and he's got a DFC winner as master. The black gelding is the lead horse in the famed equestrian show, setting the pace for the 31 other animals as they go through the dome, bridal arch, Shanghai cross and other intricate manoeuvres.

Tartar is too good a soldier to stumble. He's drilled to precision. His rider is the same, a lean, hard man who chose the RCMP after world experience as a merchant seaman and wartime air-gunner in the RCAF.

NATIVE OF GLASGOW

Cpl. Eddie Hill is a relative newcomer to the RCMP. The 28-year-old Glasgow-born mountie with a Scottish burr still on his tongue won the DFC in two tours of duty over Germany.

The corporal, a bachelor, was attached to the RCMP riding school in suburban Rockcliffe four years ago. He showed such riding talent that he was kept there. Now he will ride the lead horse in the 32-member RCMP contingent in London on Coronation Day.

The RCMP decided to pick only those who truly deserved the trip. There are veterans with years of rugged Arctic duty. There are some such as Cpl. E. V. Carter of Vancouver and Cpl. R. W. Paige of Big River, Sask. who served with the army and RCMP provost corps in Italy and Germany.

Another is Cpl. L. F. M. Strong of Saskatoon and Souris, P.E.I., who dived into icy waters at Charlottetown in 1942 to save a seven-year-old boy from drowning. He won the King's police and fire service medal.

HEROES IN MOUNTIES' RIDE—The RCMP Musical Ride—to be performed at the Royal Tournament in London after the Coronation June 2—includes some of the best men in the force, men who have won awards for heroism and devotion to duty. On the left wearing the DFC is Cpl. Ernie Hill, Glasgow-born wartime flying officer with the RCAF, who now prefers a horse to a plane. Cpl. L. F. M. Strong (right), of Souris, P.E.I., won the King's Police Medal for saving a drowning boy. Riding Master C. W. (Andy) Anderson stands in front.

RIDE GUIDES — It took months of tough training to prepare the Mounties for the intricate movements of the RCMP Musical Ride, to be performed at the Royal Tournament in London after the Coronation June 2. The training took place under the watchful eye of Staff Sgt. C. W. (Andy) Anderson (right), of Winnipeg, who has moulded numerous other Musical Rides into perfection. Heading the RCMP contingent to London is Assistant Commissioner D. L. McGibbon, of Regina.

Field Marshal Given Freedom

ALLMENDINGEN, Germany — (Reuters)—Field Marshal Erich von Manstein, once one of Hitler's top generals and the most prominent war criminal still held by the Allies, was told Thursday he is a free man.

The mayor of this southwest German town broke the news to him. The 65-year-old field marshal "jumped out of bed like a youngster," the mayor said.

A village delegation, headed by a brass band and complete with children carrying flowers, trooped to the castle where Manstein has been staying on a medical parole from the British war crimes prison at Werl.

Manstein was sentenced in 1949 to 18 years in prison for atrocities committed by his troops in Russia. The term was later reduced to 12 years. Counting time previously served he now has completed two-thirds of the sentence and become a free man under good-conduct remission.

Soldier Drew Colored Comics To Drop On Reds

WINNIPEG (CP)—A Winnipeg man, who spent 27 months with the United States army in Korea, has returned with an odd story of his part in the war.

Technical Sergeant Rodolphe Prefontaine, 26, spent his time turning out colored comics designed to undermine the morale of Communist soldiers.

Prefontaine became a practical student of Oriental psychology, social habits, living conditions, geography, history and religion effectively to carry out his duties as an amateur cartoonist.

The four-color comics are a recent development, he said. A more generally used technique is that of the silent cartoon, designed to make its point in pantomime for the 80 per cent of the Chinese Communist army that can't read.

He told of one cartoon that went astray. It showed two cold, shivering soldiers on one side of the paper and on the other side, two more warm and comfortable in front of a fire. The caption, in Korean, indicated that the Communists should come over to the Allied side and warm up.

When the leaflet was dropped, one fluttered out of the target area and into the hands of a Chinese soldier who couldn't read Korean. He thought the warm soldiers were Chinese officers and since this didn't seem right in a people's republic, he surrendered.

He told the opening session of the Inter-Arab Chambers of Commerce and Industry that such a blockade "is the best way to kill Israel peacefully."

Judges Rule Show Indecent

Road," which has been touring the courthouse circuit for several months in British Columbia, collided with a stern audience here Thursday.

The Erskine Caldwell saga of a sharecropper family went under the judicial eagle-eye for the third time in B. C. and the score now stands at 2-1 against the play.

Five judges of the B. C Court of Appeal stripped a Vancouver repertory group's performance of the play of its temporary respectability, again branding it as immoral, indecent and obscene.

The court, which will give the reasons for its judgment later, reimposed a police court decision in which seven members of the Everyman Theatre were convicted of staging or participating in an obscene performance.

The conviction had been quashed in county court by Judge J. A. McGeer and the case was then taken to the appeal body by the Crown. The county court decision was made on an appeal by the theatre group. It is not known immediately whether any appeals will follow the most recent ruling.

Agree On Air Corridor

BONN, Germany (Reuters)—The Western powers have accepted a Russian proposal for a single wide air corridor in place of the existing three between West Germany and West Berlin, western sources said here Thursday night. The Western powers stipulated that this single corridor be wide enough to permit direct Berlin-Hamburg and Berlin-Frankfurt flights.

Mining Editor Fined, Acted As Counsellor

TORONTO (CP)—Robert Colucci, editor and publisher of the Toronto mining newspaper Bay Street Journal, Thursday was fined $500 and costs or two months on a charge of acting as an investment counsellor during a radio broadcast Feb. 8 without holding a counsellor's licence. His lawyer said he will appeal.

A second charge laid by the Ontario securities commission, that of acting as an investment counsellor through the Bay Street Journal Feb. 14, was adjourned to Sept. 16 to enable the appeal on the first charge to be heard.

W. W. Cameron, Ontario securities commission lawyer, said the case was the first of its kind to be heard in Ontario.

MP Demands Tax Head Resign

OTTAWA (CP) — Leon Balcer (PC—Trois-Rivieres) said Thursday in the Commons that the government should ask for the resignation of F. A. Humphrys, head of the salary and investment income section of Ottawa's local income tax office.

He accused Mr. Humphrys of making a statement contrary to national unity in telling a woman taxpayer seeking information that, if she did not like his reply, she could go see "either your minister or your Pope." The woman was a Roman Catholic.

The quotation appeared originally in Wednesday's edition of the Ottawa French daily newspaper Le Droit. Mr. Balcer cited it to the House and said outside the Commons later the woman taxpayer had confirmed it to him.

Mr. Humphrys said later in an interview: "I do not recall ever having said that to a taxpayer."

Architects Criticized

KINGSTON (CP)—Architects and contractors have come in for sharp criticism from the Ontario Urban and Rural School Trustees Association, eastern Ontario zone. A meeting Wednesday night passed a motion "condemning the lack of moral responsibility of architects and contractors who do not stand behind their work for more than one year in the building of new schools."

Lt.-Col. J. S. Gow Dies From Bullet Wound

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Lt.-Col. James Sinclair Gow died in hospital here Thursday. He was 54.

One of Windsor's best known citizens, he was vice-president of Bartlet, Macdonald and Gow, one of the oldest established department stores in Ontario. He also commanded the Essex tank regiment. He served two terms on the Windsor board of control.

Col. Gow was taken to hospital in the morning after suffering severe head wounds when a rifle was discharged when he was alone in his home.

For the last few years, Col. Gow had been in poor health.

Senator Dislikes New Measure

OTTAWA (CP)—Senator John T. Haig, Progressive Conservative leader, took exception Thursday to government legislation widening the provision of the Unemployment Insurance Act.

After Senator Haig said he felt the provision would simply put another load on the unemployment insurance fund, the Senate gave approval in principle to the measure "on division"—a Parliamentary way of showing disapproval without a formal vote.

The bill would permit continuing payment of unemployment insurance to an unemployed person even though he might become sick or injured. At present payments stop when an unemployed person becomes unfit for work.

Senator Haig said if a person fell and injured himself that was his own fault and the unemployment insurance fund should not be asked to pay him.

Bridgenorth School To Add Rooms

Ratepayers Decide More Room Needed Expect Cost $65,000

BRIDEGNORTH (ENS)—A proposal to erect a four-room addition to the present school in the village was approved by about 75 ratepayers from SS 5, Smith township, at a special meeting in the school Thursday night.

The proposal was approved by the school board at a previous meeting with the special committee appointed in February to prepare a complete report on alternative methods of providing adequate school accommodation in the growing community. A further meeting will be held when the board has prepared plans for a vote of ratepayers on the matter.

The committee reported the approximate cost of the addition would be $65,000, including a government grant of 44 per cent, making the cost $36,400 to the ratepayers. This is a capital expenditure and does not include any increases in operating costs.

In April the committee made a survey of the entire school section. It was disclosed that 111 pupils were attending the school at the time and 29 would be starting in grade 1 in September. With additional children in the other grades moving into the community, the total would be about 150.

Statistics further showed that, with families with children and younger couples moving into Bridgenorth, a five-room school would be needed by 1958.

NEW SCHOOL BUILT

Three years ago the new two-room school was complete on the same site. It was thought that it would provide adequate accommodation for some years. But the same day the new school went into operation the old school had to be retained for junior grades and it was also full to capacity.

Three alternatives were studied by the committee: dividing the school section into two parts; adding to the existing building; to provide accommodation on a site other than the present one while retaining the existing school.

The first method, of dividing the school section, was ruled out by the committee because of disapproval by the Department of Education. It was also considered that the cost of upkeep of two schools would be too great and the assessment would not be divided equally among the school population.

It was thought that the third method, of building on an entirely new site, would involve a great deal of additional expense for such things as plumbing, heating and playground facilities. Classes and school activities could not be easily organized and controlled and any available land for a new site would be less convenient for pupils in the outlying parts of the school section.

The committee decided that for reasons of economy, easier working of the school and school activities and the urgency of the situation, the best solution would be to build an addition on the present site.

The report was presented by the secretary of the committee George Beaston. The chairman of the meeting A. Mutton introduced the committee chairman W. D. Wray who asked that the report be accepted.

There followed a lengthy discussion which at times grew quite heated. Many questions were asked about the school area, condition of the old school, possibility of a two-storey building, additional land on the present site, the number of pupils in each class and other points.

The committee consisted of W. G. Wray, chairman, Ken Underhill, Roy Wood, George Beaston and Mrs. R. Arnott Chairman of the school board is Karl Blewett. Other trustees are Don McKay and Ray Harding. Mrs. W. G. Ray acted as secretary for the meeting.

2 PCVS Students Winners Of Driving Test

Two PCVS students, Derek Holme, 525 McKellar St., and Doug Laird, 190 Brock St., were declared winners today of the Jaycee-sponsored Roadeo to test their driving skill held Wednesday evening on London St., between Aylmer and George Sts.

The two will be sent by the Peterborough Junior Chamber of Commerce to compete May 18 in the Region 6 Roadeo. The winners of that competition will go to Washington in August in a United States Chamber of Commerce sponsored Roadeo to pick a North America teen-age winner.

Out of a possible 500 points Derek Holme received 449 and Doug Laird 442. In a written test held before the driving tests, Doug Laird was the only one of the 12 competing high school students who won a perfect mark.

The students will be given a jacket with an identifying crest for their trip to Ottawa.

Seven of the competitors were PCVS students, three were from St. Peter's and two from Kenner.

The tests consisted of: (1) driving and backing along a 100-foot white line, (2) driving and backing along a 10-foot flag marked lane with a turn into a second 10-foot lane. (3) to stop smoothly from a speed of 20 miles an hour in a 40-foot distance coming to rest at a marked line, (4) placing wheels and bumper front and back over white lines to test ability to judge length of car and (5) a parallel parking test.

The Roadeo was held not only as a test of driving ability but as part of a traffic safety program which is being initiated in the city.

All judges except Constable Don Mackay, school safety supervisor on the city police force, were members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce. They were Bill Waye, Steve Evans, Les Groombridge (chairman of the organizing committee), Tom Miller and Stewart Bannerman. Bill Ashton marked the written test.

German Hatbands

OTTAWA (CP)—G. K. Fraser (PC) — Peterborough - West suggests that Canada's navy has been ordering hatbands from Canadian manufacturers who in turn bought them from West Germany.

He made that statement Thursday night in asking Production Minister Howe how many navy hatbands had been bought.

Mr. Howe said he didn't know but he thought the information had been given Mr. Fraser earlier.

Mr. Fraser said his impression is that they total more than 200,000.

Holiday For CGE

Employees of the Peterborough works of Canadian General Electric Co. will be given a holiday on Coronation Day, June 2, with pay, Roy T. Bogle, works manager, said today. He added that other CGE plants will likely be following suit. It will permit employees to celebrate the occasion said Mr. Bogle and they will be paid as they are for other regular statutory holidays.

Two Former Fire Chiefs Honored By Association

Fifty-five years of civic service were recognized Thursday night when Local 519, the Peterborough branch of the International Association of Firefighters, honored two of their ex-chiefs—George Gimblett, Sr., and George Smith. Their service as heads of the department totalled 30 years.

Their successor, Chief Ralph Leonard, was also a guest of honor at the dinner where Ontario Fire Marshal William J. Scott was guest speaker.

Fifty attended the private dinner, served in the YWCA. Most of them were city firemen but fire chiefs from cities and towns nearby, as well as union representatives, were also present.

Former Chief George Gimblett, Sr., a fireman for 42 years—16 years in Hamilton and 26 years as Peterborough fire chief—received a wrist watch, with an inscription on the back, from Local 519.

CHIEF SMITH

Former Chief George Smith, a city fireman for more than 29 years, and head of the department for more than four years, received an easy chair and a smoking stand.

The only disappointment of the evening was the fact that Mr. Smith was unable to come. He was not well at the time so the presentation had to be made in his absence.

Assistant Chief Virgil Carr—now the senior man on the fire department—presented the wrist watch to Mr. Gimblett and Reg. Swansborough of Hamilton, district vice-president of the International Association, made the presentation on behalf of the local to Mr. Smith.

As the firemen don't often have get-togethers like the one Thursday night, two other presentations were made: a coffee table to Fireman Maurice Fraser who is getting married, and a pen and pencil set to John Luther who recently left the department for another position.

Fire Marshal Scott expressed his regret at Mr. Smith's absence and paid his tribute to the two ex-chiefs:

"When I became Fire Marshal 18 years ago, Chief Gimblett was one of the first city fire chiefs in this province whom I met, and particularly in his work with the Dominion Association of Fire Chiefs, we had many intimate contacts. More recently, I have had many occasions to work with Chief George Smith and to know well he carried on the tradition of outstanding service which has long been a feature of the Peterborough Fire Department."

Fire Marshal Scott also had high praise for Chief Ralph Leon-

Will Check Cars In Safety Drive

Held in conjunction with nationally sponsored Safety Month, an intensive campaign will be started by city police Monday to check automobiles for safety.

With the eventual aim of checking every car in the city, police will have check points spotted around the city where they will stop cars and test them on 10 different points of safety.

These include brakes, horn, windshield wipers, rear view mirror, lights, tires, exhaust system, steering and glass.

Once a car is passed, the driver is given a dated, stamped and endorsed windshield sticker. If a car fails any tests, the driver is required to have it repaired and serviced immediately. He will then report back to the police station where he will be given a windshield sticker if it passes the tests.

The safety program will be carried on indefinitely.

In the meantime, garages will invite customers to have their cars checked and serviced. When passed by a licenced mechanic, the car is certified as safe and a windshield sticker exchanged for a mechanic-signed check sheet.

Automobile Safety Month local sponsors are the Chamber of Commerce, Peterborough Automobile Club, Casualty and Accident Underwriters' Association, and the Garage Operators' Association.

In previous campaigns it has been found one of three cars fail some part of the 10 point safety check.

Labor Board Dismisses IUE Application To Represent CGE Workers

Cards Do Not Represent 45 Per Cent Of Production Employees Board Finds UE Continues As Bargaining Agent

The Ontario Labor Relations Board on Thursday dismissed the application of the International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers (CIO-CCL) to be the bargaining agents for more than 3,100 production workers at the Canadian General Electric Co. As a result of the OLRB's action, Local 524 of the rival United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America (Indep.) remain the bargaining agents. It was the fourth attempt of the IUE in as many years to wrest control of the largest CGE plant in the country from the left-wing UE who originally organized it.

After an examination of the IUE application cards the OLRB found that the right-wing union did not have the required 45 per cent of the eligible employees. Therefore their application was dismissed and there will be no vote held at the plant.

NO RULING

The OLRB however did not rule on the validity of the IUE's "obligation of membership", which was substituted by the IUE for the usual method of requiring a $1 membership fee from each employee joining the applicant union. A decision on the validity of this method of applying for certification has been awaited with interest by union officials throughout Ontario.

It may be acceptable—or it may not. The OLRB sidestepped this tricky point and threw out the application on the grounds of insufficient cards. In brief, the obligation permits a prospective union member to take an oath to uphold the constitution of the union and he then becomes a member in good standing. The usual method requires the payment of a fee, usually $1, as an indication of good faith and sincerity.

Obligations were taken in the 1952 campaign of the IUE but as the union failed to get 45 per cent of the CGE production workers signed up they did not make application; so the OLRB did not have to make a ruling.

Theoretically, the problem of whether obligations are legal could come up again next year if the IUE applies again. The likelihood is, however, that other unions will have applied on this basis and the OLRB will have made a definite ruling. At present there are reported to be two other applications before the OLRB in which obligations were taken instead of dollars.

Demolition Starts For Addition To Zeller's Store

The first phase of the construction of the new addition to Zeller's store started Thursday, with the erection of board-siding along Simcoe St. to protect passers-by from falling objects.

It is expected that it will take three weeks before the demolition of the three stores on Simcoe St. will be completed. The new addition will extend back as far as the King George Hotel. The whole job of adding an extension and modernizing the present store is expected to take about a year.

The store front on George St. will have its face lifted, and will be given a new ultra-modern look. The store's interior will be freshly painted and there will be new fixtures added, as well as new counters.

There will also be installed a modern escalator to take the place of the stairs. It will be the second store in Peterborough to have one. Woolworth's new store, scheduled to open in the fall, will have two. Two new freight elevators are to be installed in the new part of the building.

Ammoniam Nitrate Top Dressing Proves Value As Stimulant in Fall Wheat Fields . . . Dual Purpose Shorthorn Breeders' Picnic-Field Day at Edmund Ruth Farm Saturday, June 6 . . . Kawartha Medical Services Annual Meeting May 28 . . . Lakefield 4-H Forestry Club Plants 15,000 Pines.

Remember those weeks of doubt about the fall wheat in its emergence from winter, and the reports that many farmers were talking about giving the crop a shot of ammoniam nitrate.

It might be of little interest to know how many performed the pick-up operation after it was generally observed that the wheat had come through in vigorous condition, and without semblance of an anemic patient.

Five members of the Crop Improvement Association went through with their demonstration acre plots of treatment. They were Bruce Graham, Carman Seymour, Wellington Sutton, W. C. Mann and Robert Armstrong.

Mr. Armstrong left a strip down the centre of the field to last fall's customary fertilization of 225 pounds to the acre, treating the rest with the top dressing of the ammoniam nitrate at the rate of 100 pounds to the acre. As the new season's growth appeared in the crop that central strip stood out conspicuously as lighter and leaner rows with the brown earth showing up between them.

"That tells the story of what the nitrate does," he remarked Wednesday, and he is confident that the present effect of stronger and more vital growth will continue into grain production at the harvest.

The cost of the ammoniam nitrate was $4.70. Three bushels of wheat should pay for that, and the "shot in the arm" should increase the yield around ten bushels to the acre.

At any rate the difference in appearance in the crop is now plainly visible at a distance and close up. It is plainly seen in the richer color, larger and taller leafage, and general evidence of vitality and vigor. No brown earth shows between those rows.

Plan For Field Day

Peterborough Shorthorn Breeders are meeting Monday night in the office of the Department of Agriculture for a business session, mainly in preparing their field day Saturday, June 13.

✦ ✦ ✦

Co-Operation In Cavan

Co-operation in farm work as a means of solving the labor shortage problem is being carried on in Cavan township by Mervin and Charles Smith, Louis Pudsey, Gordon Staples and Robert Ross, as reported in the Toronto Globe and Mail. At the beginning of each season they agree on rates of hire for men and machines. The rates are on an hourly basis.

"Then when one man brings a tractor and implements to work on the farm of another member of the group, he is credited with the hours of work at the rate stipulated for the equipment used. That way, the use of implements is extended to all five farms, and the amortization of the implements' costs is reduced.

At the end of the season, credits are cancelled, and credit balances to members of the group are paid in cash.

Bob Ross, a chunky veteran who settled on 97 acres under VLA after serving with the RCAF as a wireless air gunner in Lancasters, is the junior member of the "union."

The co-operative arrangement has meant a saving of several years' labor for him since he took the farm in 1947. With the aid of the other men, he figures, his farm is at least two years more advanced than it would have been if he had had to work alone. And he could not have afforded to hire farm labor.

Bob is running a mixed farm. Hogs were the chief cash crop until prices dropped. Now he's concentrating on beef and peas. This year he is converting his farm economy to grassland operation. He and Mervin Smith are working together on forage cropping with a machine that will also combine swathed grain. Main objective is to save time and labor. Bob, in the time he saves, is studying TV maintenance as a somewhat unusual sideline to his farming career.

Broadcasting Sale

Eastern Ontario Hereford breeders are going as far afield as Wingham in their radio publicity for their sale June 1. Other broadcasts are from Peterborough, Kingston and Belleville, as reported by secretary Bill Mood.

✦ ✦ ✦

Picnic At Ruth Farm

Dual Purpose Shorthorn Breeders of eastern Ontario are holding their picnic and field day Saturday, June 6 at the Marlowemay Farm of Edmund Ruth, two miles north of Fowler's Corners, in Emily township.

The potluck dinner will be at 12:30 p.m. Probably four classes of the Ruth herd will be lined up for judging competition. Supervised sports will be provided for the children.

✦ ✦ ✦

A Prolific Dam

A purebred Holstein cow owned by Daniel Shea and Bud Sauriol, Vinton, Que., has established something of a record by becoming a mother of four calves within a period of 10 months and 28 days. Riverdale Goodyear Sylvia produced twin calves, a heifer and a bull, in the spring of 1952 and now has again calved with a pair of twins. Sylvia was herself born in 1940 and altogether has had a total of 13 calves.

✦ ✦ ✦

37 Group Leaders

Annual meeting of Kawartha Co-Operative Medical Services at the Public Library in the evening of May 28 will be preceded at 6:30 p.m. by dinner of the directors and group leaders.

The directors recently enlisted the support of 37 group leaders appointed in that new auxiliary post to assist the secretary, Miss Olive Bell. One of their recent aids was helping to mail 4,000 letters, distributed in the rural mail boxes. These letters contained booklets explaining the three plans of health insurance, hospitalization, medical aid surgical indemnity, plus an advisory pamphlet on health matters.

✦ ✦ ✦

Interest In Juniors

Eastern Ontario Hereford Club is quickening their association activities these days. The following notice, in part, is being sent to all members by Wm. Mood, secretary: "Early this spring, your Executive was asked by Norwood Fair Board to help them in procuring Hereford calves for their boys' and girls' club. After a couple of disappointments, a carload of MacIntyre heifers has now been promised and will arrive at Norwood sometime toward the end of May. The calves will be fed and rested out for several days, and should be ready to turn over to the boys after that.

There are 40 boys and girls to receive these "white-faced" heifers. It is felt that it would be appropriate for our Club if a formal presentation of the calves was made."

"The Press is being invited, and if any of our members are free at this time would you please try to be on hand at Norwood Stockyards (C.P.R. station)." Day of arrival of the calves is not yet known.

Homer Hawkey, president of the Hereford Club, recently remarked to the Examiner: "I'm convinced we should be more interested in the 4-H Clubs and their young members. Here is a chance for us to do something. We don't know how many of them are going to stay in farming when they grow up, but we feel they should know a lot about Herefords. I hope our members will recognize this opportunity of getting to know the young people and letting them see that we are interested in them as future farmers."

Next Week Affairs

Meetings in the date book for next week at the office of F. C. Paterson are: Monday night: Shorthorn Breeders; Tuesday: West Peterborough Dairy Calf Club; Wednesday, May 13: Junior section of Peterborough Exhibition at 10 a.m. Gordon Bennett, associate director of extension will be here from Toronto, and Miss Florence Eadie is also expected, with the junior director and the executive of the Exhibition. They will discuss the plans for Junior Farmers branch of the show in September. Normal School students visit the Harry Blewett farm in Smith Thursday 1:30 to 4 p.m.

Two meetings at Norwood are the Junior Farmers Wednesday, and the Norwood Tractor Club Friday evening at Dick Patterson's garage.

✦ ✦ ✦

Sells His Herd

Gordon Reeson, Holstein breeder and dairyman, Oshawa, is going out of the business because rising economic pressures make it no longer profitable to continue. In 1940 the Oshawa airport took 60 of his 100 acres. Purchase of land down the road from his home presented the drawback of lack of water and the necessity of driving the stock back and forth on a busy road.

The Reeson farm was incorporated in the city at fixed assessment, but there is the possibility of increase when that time expires. The dairy supplied by the Reesons is going into tank trucking which would react in $1,600 cost to Mr. Reeson for equipment as a producer and supplier. That was the last straw. Hence the auction sale Saturday of this week.

Real Plowing Feat

Not the least contribution to the planting of 15,000 seedling red pines on the CGE hill at Nassau Monday was the plowing of facilitating furrows along its contour. That was the work of Clarence Mann and Ken Best, and of a steady-going horse which Mr. Mann provided, also the plow.

The slope paralleling the Lakefield highway just above the Nassau turn looks like 50 degrees, from its top, and the slant might even be more than that. How the trio toiled last week along that steep acclivity is something to be seen to appreciate as a feat akin to mountain climbing.

It transpires that Clarence Mann as chairman of the agricultural committee of Kiwanis had been thinking of a tree-planting project in the neighborhood. In the meantime a set of circumstances, unrelated at the outset, suddenly began to move and click together, through the separate ideas of men already mentioned, John Bell, of Lakefield, district forester; Frank Paterson and Ken Best of the Department of Agriculture; Hugh Plowman and Cam Rowat of the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters, Zone 5; and right at the hub, unofficial forester Bob McMorran of CGE.

The plan began to take shape looking toward the Nassau site; R. T. Bogle of CGE was another in the picture, and finally the company went along and undertook to buy the trees. And in the centre of this corps was the 4-H Club of Lakefield High School, as the operating unit, and Principal Stephens. Cliff Curtis tractored furrows on the flat south of the hill, and the job was finished Tuesday morning by the 4-H Club of LHS.

The hope of all those engaged is that the seedlings will become a conspicuous symbol of what can be accomplished in retimbering lands that are fit for not much else than trees.

The undertaking was another local success, including Hon. Harold Scott's personal planting of a pine which he has marked for future observation. Maybe Mr. Mann and his Kiwanis associates will find some other location where their good intentions will become their own reality. The chairman will long remember his guiding the plow at the handles with Ken Best out in front at the halter.

Harvesting machinery sold in Canada in 1951 reached a total of $58,641,000.

TEXAS FLOOD—This is an aerial view of the Sabina River in Texas that has climbed to a 40-foot level near Deweyville, Tex., and has completely isolated the town of Ruliff, three miles south. Although sandbag levees have been thrown up, the river was too fast and entered the town around the embankments, threatening the 100 citizens.

Agriculture At Norwood H.S. Related To District, Nearing Second Year Close

Suggest rations for a 1800 pound cow giving 35 pounds of milk a day; and for an 1800 pound working horse.

You buy 12 steers averaging 1,000 pounds and you wish to finish them off and sell them around 1250 pounds. If they gain 1½ pounds a day, and hay is worth $20 a ton and oats $50 a ton, how much do you make or lose?

What is organic matter? What is a good pasture mixture for land that is not well drained? What are hunger signs in plants?

These are a few topics quoted from the note book of John Auckland, teacher of agriculture at the Norwood and District High School. He is a graduate of Ontario Agriculture College with the degree of B. S. A.

Parents of the rural community of East Peterborough probably haven't had an opportunity to look into the syllabus of this course which will become more practical with enabling facilities. The scope of subjects is ordinarily left to the Department of Education and to the teacher, likewise to the Inspector, and more or less, perhaps, to the trustees.

While Ken Best was making use of a half hour at the close of Wednesday afternoon with a recently organized 4-H Grain Club, the Examiner looked into the pages of the curriculum and Mr. Auckland's class book while he was outdoors on Norwood Fair grounds with a physical training group.

MORE OF THE INDEX

The sample topics and questions cited above indicate to practical farmers something of the scope of the course in agriculture. Others amplify the information that should be of interest to rural parents. Here are some more suggestive notes, selected in Mr. Auckland's absence.

Weeds: classify, identify; prevention.

Soils: what is soil; how is it formed; soil-water, capillary action; organic matter, the value of barnyard manure; what are the ingredients of commercial fertilizers; how applied; drainage types.

Feeding and management: dairy cattle, beef cattle, horses, swine. Stabling of dairy cattle. Advantages of dairy cattle facing (a) in, (b) out.

Plant breading: production of registered and certified seed; plant diseases.

What is a cash crop? Types, advantages, disadvantages.

Rations, dairy and beef cattle; summer; winter. What are concentrates? Roughage.

Feeding of horses: for energy; when not working.

Pastures, short and long term; mixtures; adaptation to soils.

Loafing barn for dairy cattle; open shelter for beef cattle.

These are topics chosen here and there from the class work for Grades IX and X. Presumably they convey to farm parents a fairly broad idea of the scope of teaching in this course. The incomplete outline reflects more of the general subject than many paragraphs could impart.

ADAPTED TO DISTRICT

"We are primarily concerned about trying to teach our students to think",—about agriculture, Mr. Auckland said. "There is considerable latitude in the syllabus. The details of the broad subject are related to the types of farming in the district. For example, livestock, grain pastures, soils here, but not orchards and their care, canning crops and so on, which are important in certain other counties and districts."

Mr. Auckland warns his students about the pitfalls of a little learning, and possibly in such phrasing as this: "For goodness sake don't go home and tell Dad he is wrong. After all, he has been working at it year in and year out probably for quite a long time, and he usually knows a lot more than he gets credit for. And not only knows, but does."

Granting the wisdom of that advice, nevertheless the students in agriculture are learning phases of present day farming which their fathers had not facilities of acquiring.

WERE SELF-TAUGHT

Many of those elders learned a great deal about the "whys" of agriculture from their own questing for knowledge that could help them. They got some of it at short courses, and much from farm journals; but not in their early teens.

"Why are young plants rich in proteins? Young hay?" And the importance and cost values of pastures? Other words brome, meadow fescue, reed canary grass. Comparatively new ideas.

"We want to link the study periods with practical work, and that will come," Mr. Auckland said. "A garden is a first addition, where we can do things. We have the ground, and the work will follow. Maybe some day, and possibly not distant, we may have a tractor." Certain field work is also required before the end of this course.

Mr. Auckland has 45 girls and boys taking agriculture, and around 150 the more general subject of agricultural science. "We would like them to know the 'what' of farming, the practical side, but also the 'why'. And, some of the students know quite a lot of both from their experience at home."

IS OAC EXTENSION

Obviously, the course of agriculture is a medium of what the Department calls extension work, such as that which is carried on in the counties by the Agricultural Representatives.

Mr. Auckland, for example, has the background of his studies at OAC, and it was his own statement that he would like to project the term work into the summer months although not at the school. Incidentally, one of the topics deals with the farm accounting, the necessity of keeping records, and eventually the annual balance sheet, or the month to month statement of "where we stand."

Well, the agricultural course is here or rather in East Peterborough, and in the splendid school at Norwood. Contrast with the old building across the fair grounds and down to the street corner is fantastic. Farmers and others used to advocate the establishing of this practical scheme of teaching agriculture in rural communities.

The Norwood school is providing that branch of study, now in its second year, too soon to attempt appraisal of results, and also confirmation of the expectations in times when such a spacious, comfortable and modern building was hardly a dream. Since its completion and opening, parents could only take for granted its usefulness, under the eye of official inspection and principalship. No doubt they did hear of and read the occasional denunciation from some quarters of such expenditure in building and plant. And, there is a sensible feeling that present day education should not be permitted to fall onerously on property, and that means farms that have to produce at a fair profit or fold up.

At any rate, a first visit to Norwood District High School appears to be reassuring. Time will bring forth definite evidence, but even that is not expected, and in the nature of aptitudes and personalities, cannot be expected to direct all the students taking the agricultural course to a future on the farm.

Community Sales Yards Must Employ Veterinary Says Commissioner Watson

Designed to ensure a continuance of the high standard of health of Ontario livestock, regulations governing the operation of community sales yards are now in force, W. P. Watson, Commissioner of Livestock for Ontario announced this week.

Operating under the Health of Livestock Act, the regulations provide for the licensing, inspection, and veterinary examination of all stock offered for sale in all yards except the Ontario Stockyards and sales of pure bred stock. Under the regulations operators of community sales yards must employ a veterinary to examine all animals before they are permitted to enter the yard.

"Community sales yards have performed a useful service in providing a medium to bring buyer and seller together," said the Livestock Commissioner, "The regulations are designed to ensure that only healthy livestock is offered".

MUST BE INSPECTED

The regulations provide that no person shall maintain or operate a community sale yard without a license being issued by the Livestock Commissioner, and that all animals be examined for symptons of disease by a veterinary before entering the sales yard. Operators of sales yards may not allow stock suspected of being infected to enter the yard.

Maintenance of a high standard of sanitary conditions in the sales yard is compulsory under the regulations. Operators of sales depots must have at least one building for the stabling of stock and the floor of every building used for stabling and every passage way must have a smooth impermeable surface.

Provision of adequate means for the watering of stock is mandatory.

Further provision of the licensing regulations calls for the removal of manure and refuse from the premises of the sales yard at least 24 hours before stock is received for sale by auction. Following the removal of the manure the premises must be disinfected with specified chemicals.

MUST RECORD SALES

In addition a complete record of transactions showing the name and address of the consignee, the buyer and seller, must be kept by operators covering a period of not less than 12 months.

Under the Act the Commissioner or his inspectors may enter any premises or vehicle used for the storage or transportation of livestock for the purpose of enforcing the regulations.

Penalties for contravention of the Act or regulation provide for a penalty of not less than $25 and not more than $250 for the first offence and not less than $50 and not more than $1,000 for any subsequent offence.

Fee for the license for the operation of sales yards is $25 and should be forwarded with the application to the Ontario Livestock Commissioner.

Counties To Pave Half Hoard's Station Road

COBOURG (ENS)—Half the 7½-mile Hoard's Station road will be hard-surfaced this year.

This was decided by the council of the united counties of Northumberland and Durham on Wednesday. Council also decided that road construction would be done elsewhere if the provincial Department of Highways agreed to spending that portion of the supplementary estimates in this way.

The resolution was passed after hearing a large deputation from Seymour township, backed up by one from Campbellford, and a telephone call to Highways Minister George Doucette. The Minister agreed to half the Hoard's Station road being done now but could not give an immediate opinion as to whether the other half of the money could be spent on other road work in the counties.

The township deputation asked for hard surfacing of the entire 7½ miles of road, pointing out that the province had spent about $175,000 on it as a development project. The fact that the counties had failed to pave it was resulting in the road wearing off to the rocks underneath, it was said.

Fred Peake of Seymour township said the road carried a tremendous amount of traffic. If paved, it would relieve traffic on Highway 2, fed by the Campbellford-Brighton link.

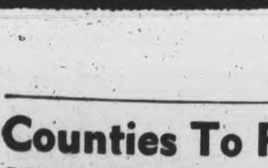
Road Superintendent Jack Jordan agreed that the gravel road would not take the traffic to which it was subjected and that the only solution was to pave it. However, the Department of Highways had cut down the road appropriations to the counties from $375,900 to $320,000, which limited construction to one-quarter of what had been planned.

Reeve R. McCann of Brighton township, chairman of the road commission, recalled that two years ago Mr. Doucette said that the rate could be increased and more paving undertaken. Accordingly, it was decided last year to increase the rate half a mill and do some paving. The council later learned that the road appropriation had been cut.

Last week the road commission went to see Mr. Doucette to ascertain if the situation could be relieved by an appropriation of $353,000, the same as last year, $33,000 more than the figure established by the department. To do the Hoard's Station road would cost about $33,700.

Mr. Doucette said he would give the counties an extra $30,000 over the $320,000 if the counties would complete the road, Reeve McCann said. Told that it would cost $33,000 to do it Mr. Doucette implied that he wouldn't want to see the counties stuck and would see what he could do, according to Reeve McCann who suggested to council that half the road be done, which would be somewhat in excess of 3½ miles.

QUESTIONS TERMS



Deputy-reeve L. Hooten of Cavan township said that after the road commission left the minister of highways, he thought the commission, of which he is a member, should have asked if Mr. Doucette meant that the whole road had to be done or else the figure would revert to $320,000. He wondered if the minister would have consented to the counties doing half of road now and the other half later.

Warden Lowery said he felt that the attitude of the department was that since it had spent a lot of money on this road and the counties had failed to put a hard top on it, it was time something was done. Reeve G. Broomfield of Haldimand township, another member of the road commission, declared he was of the opinion the minister was agreeable to the job being spread over two years. Reeve G. Black of Cartwright, also a member of the commission, was certain that the minister had not implied the whole road was to be done at once.

Council had a short adjournment and, when it resumed, Reeve McCann said he had telephoned Mr. Doucette who said he would agree to half the road being done now but could not give an immediate opinion as to whether the other half of the money could be spent on other road work in the counties.

District engineer E. H. Marsten of the Department of Highways told the council that the minister had pointed out that the department had spent $175,000 on its as a development road and there had been several requests that it now be paved. The minister had consented to subsidize half the road but would have to consult his engineers before agreeing to subsidize work elsewhere. However, the minister was agreeable to a subsidy on the entire job on Hoard's Station road.

Party Injuries Prove Fatal

ARNPRIOR (CP)—Mrs. Lois Ardella Wilson, beaten and kicked in the aftermath to a party last Saturday night, died in hospital here Thursday.

Her husband, Kenneth Wilson, 31-year-old steamshovel operator, was arrested Wednesday and charged with assault and causing grievous bodily harm.

Police said an autopsy will be performed on the 29-year-old mother of five children and its findings will determine whether a further charge will be laid against her husband.

The party was held in the Wilson home at Sandy Point, four miles north of this town 35 miles west of Ottawa.

ALLMENDINGEN, Germany (AP)—Field Marshal Erich von Manstein was freed Thursday from a British war crimes sentence and was given a tumultuous ovation from hundreds of Germans

The 66-year-old field marshal served eight years of a 12-year term for atrocities committed by German troops under his command in Russia.

Unable To Tap TV Programs On Toronto-Ottawa Skyway

A new era in the communications development of Canada will be inaugurated on Thursday when the Bell Telephone Company's microwave radio relay system—Canada's first capable of carrying both television programs and telephone calls—goes into service.

On that date the microwave system will make possible this country's first network television broadcasts over the CBC television stations in Toronto and Montreal. For the first time televiewers in the two cities will be able to watch the same live program at the same time.

The microwave radio relay system utilizes the latest developments in the communications field and represents a forward step, the significance of which has been compared to the building of the first railroads or the planting of the first telephone poles.

The microwave system is designed to provide both long distance telephone circuits and television channels between Toronto, Ottawa and Montreal. An extension to Buffalo provides a link with United States TV networks. Ottawa will be brought into the Canadian television network later in May when the CBC station there begins broadcasting.

The network can be extended north and west from Toronto and east from Montreal to meet future requirements, and engineering plas for a Montreal-Quebec extension have already been prepared.

In addition to providing eastbound and westbound television channels between Toronto, Ottawa and Montreal, the microwave "skyway" will also make available initially 60 new telephone circuits between Toronto and Montreal, 12 between Toronto and Ottawa and 12 between Montreal and Ottawa.

Installation of the microwave system, its towers, buildings and complicated electronic equipment, was completed rapidly and on schedule to meet the date for TV network operations set by the CBC. The system will be in service less than two years after the first experiments to test the most suitable route.

Of immense possibilities, microwave radio relay is the newest method of communications. Its basis is one of the oldest principles in transmitting intelligence—the relay system of delivering messages typified by tom-toms and smoke signals; its technique is microwave transmission — the newest method of using radio as the messenger.

CURVE OF EARTH

Microwaves are super-high-frequency waves oscillating at 4,000,000,000 cycles a second, more than 4,000 times the frequency of the average radio broadcasting station. They travel in straight lines, like light waves, and must be relayed to get around the curve of the earth or intervening obstacles such as hills or buildings. Because of the high frequency of microwaves, residents along the relay route will not be able to "tune in" on TV programs being carried by the skyway.

Bell's radio relay system will transmit television programs over a 407-mile route, comprising, for the present, the pick-up point at Buffalo, the Toronto, Ottawa and Montreal terminal points, and 12 intermediate relay stations. The Buffalo-Toronto link needs only one relay point, located at Fonthill, Ontario. The Toronto-Ottawa section has eight stations located at Uxbridge, Bethany, Hastings, Stirling, Enterprise, Westport, Smiths Falls and Stanley Corners, and the Ottawa-Montreal portion three stations located at Leonard, Maxville and Rigaud. The stations are located on the average of between 25 and 30 miles apart.

The typical relay station consists of a concrete apparatus building at the foot of a steel antenna tower. The stations are located on selected high points along the route, and the tower heights range between 50 and 225 feet.

SIGNALS BOOSTED

A platform at the top of the tower carries four huge antennae. Each is shaped like a squat pyramid about 10 feet square and weighs a ton. These big metal horns gather in the microwave signals and funnel them down a wave-guide to amplifying equipment in the apparatus building. After getting a million-fold boost in power, the signals are sent up through another horn and beamed at the next tower.

So efficient are the lens-type antennae in concentrating the signals that less than one watt of power—about the amount needed to operate a flashlight bulb—is required to span the distance between the stations.

"You can't have it all smooth sailing," says Mrs. Brott, "but if you're patient and enduring, you can soon look back and see how foolish you were to quarrel over little things."

Want Doctors Take Greater Responsibility

TORONTO (CP)—Two Montreal doctors have called on the Canadian medical profession to take a greater responsibility for automobile accidents.

In an article in the Canadian Medical Association Journal, Dr. Harold Elliot and Dr. H. L. Roundthwaite recommended that a committee be set up to study the causes of highway deaths and suggest effective safety measures.

"Although the death rate from road accidents is the most ravaging epidemic in Canada every year, it is strange that the medical profession in general has not considered it to be a medical responsibility," they said.

Sex Over-Emphasis Disturbs Phillips

OTTAWA (CP)—Health Minister Phillips of Ontario urged Thursday that individuals and organizations "do something" about what he described as over-emphasis on sex in movies, books, magazines and newspapers.

"I'm in favor of frankness and fearlessness, but I'm not in favor of staring at sex until cockeyed," he said. Due to the emphasis placed on the subject it was impossible not to be influenced. He did not elaborate.

Mr. Phillips was addressing the 55th annual meeting of the Victorian Order of Nurses for Canada.

Hockey Great Harry Smith Dies

OTTAWA (CP)—Harry Smith, a member of Ottawa's famous "Silver Seven" hockey team of the early 1900s, died in hospital Wednesday after a two-week illness. He was 69.

In the 1905-06 National Hockey Association Smith played on the forward line with Harry Westwick, Alf Smith and the late Frank McGee. On defence were Harvey Pulford and Arthur Moore, both deceased, and Billy Hague played in the nets.

Oldtimers talk of Smith as one of hockey's greatest shots, recalling a 1906 Stanley Cup series final which Ottawa lost. Ottawa was trying against Montreal Wanderers for its fourth straight Stanley Cup and lost the first game of a home-and-home total-point series 9-1.

When the series returned to Ottawa, Harry Smith scored six goals to help tie the series, but Lester Patrick broke the deadlock and then clinched the cup with another.

Jack Kramer Denies He Plans To Quit

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—Jack Kramer, tennis player-promoter, says that reports he will quit playing at the end of his current professional series with Australia's Frank Sedgman are wrong.

The 31-year-old Los Angeles star said in a press release Thursday: "I intend to promote pro tennis for a long time to come. I have absolutely no intention of retiring as a player so long as I am physically able to play top-flight tennis."

NO GALLANTRY IN DEAL

DUBLIN (AP)—An Irish government spokesman said Thursday Tulyar's retirement to stud was business—not gallantry.

Agriculture Minister Walsh made this plain in the Dail (parliament) after one member suggested with tongue-in-cheek that the wonder horse was being kept out of the English Coronation Cup to ensure that the Queen's Gay Time would win the race.

The Irish National Stud bought Tulyar from the Aga Khan for $700,000 a few months ago.

Walsh said Tulyar was purchased for breeding purposes and the question of his racing again never arose.

Only Two Ball Clubs Will Be Standing Pat

CHICAGO (AP)—Having had a look at every team in the American League, Frank Lane figures there are only two clubs—New York and Philadelphia—that can stand pat as 1953 pennant contenders.

Every other club, with the possible exception of Boston, must help itself with trades or other sources of new material, the White Sox general manager says.

Lane excepted Boston because he believes the Red Sox are assembling a young team for the future and probably will go along with it.

But the White Sox, Cleveland and other American League clubs all have put out help-wanted signs —or should, Lane said Thursday.

2 Former Fire Chiefs

ard who took over at the beginning of the year:

"With a background of service with the London (Ontario) Fire Department and the Corps of Canadian Overseas Fire Fighters, Chief Leonard had a very broad experience in Canada, the United States and England in the 3½ years he was with the Fire Marshal's office. While we do not like to lose our well-trained instructors in the Fire Marshal's office by having them go back to municipal fire departments . . . we do wish Chief Leonard every success in his new field as chief of your fire department."

The Fire Marshal said that there has been a great change in the tools and technique of firefighting but the backbone of any department remains what it always has been, "namely the courage and experience of the officers and men on the fire department."

10,000 FIREMEN

Today in Ontario there are 3,000 full-time firefighters and about 7,000 volunteer firefighters, he said.

The crux of Fire Marshal Scott's address was a review of the progress that has been made throughout the province on the standardization of pumpers, hose threads and hose. In this the civil defence program is a spur to conformity.

At the same time, with a practical eye on expenditures, the authorities are only taking civil defence measures which are valuable and economically-sound for peace-time protection.

"If nothing else is ever needed from the present fire civil defence program in Canada and Ontario, one item alone will be a lasting monument to it, namely the standardization of hose threads.

"Another phase of progress is about to start, in the standardized civil-defence fire pumpers (a six-man crew in a fully enclosed cab capable of travelling long distances in a hurry) which are rolling off the production lines. . . . When these reach the municipalities, the CD firefighters will start to train with them, using a standard manual so that firefighters from many municipalities can work effectively together."

Fire Marshal Scott said that about two-thirds of the municipal and private firefighting equipment in Ontario is now standardized, and the fire departments of municipalities having a population of 2,500,000 people are now able to co-operate fully with one another. Municipalities comprising over 1,000,000 people have still to convert but authorities hope this will be done by the end of 1954.

PAY TWO-THIRDS

In the conversion program the province pays two-thirds of the cost and the federal government one-third. To date $385,000 has been spent and there is a stockpile of conversion parts valued at $120,000.

The speaker said that the halfway mark is approaching in the converting of hose, firefighting equipment and fire hydrants to standard. The total cost is estimated at $900,000—less than 10 per cent of maintenance costs for 459 municipal fire departments and less than two per cent of what Ontario pays each year in fire insurance premiums.

Two other honored guests were two ex-captains of the department, William Jones and Archie McDonald.

Visiting fire chiefs included Leslie Elliott of Oshawa, Allan Clark of Lakefield, Kenneth Putnam of Kitchener, Gerald Vance of Belleville, James Record of Port Hope, Alex Wylie of Lindsay, and Al Crowe of Bridgenorth.

Fire Marshal Scott was introduced by Chief Leonard and thanked by Captain George Gimblett, Jr Fireman Henry Nokes, president of Local 519, was chairman. Chairman of entertainment was Fireman Jack Pruner.

CHAMP ENGAGED — Lovely Miss Melba Wiser, of Vallejo, Calif., and Bob Mathias, two-time Olympic decathon champion and all-time Stanford U. athletic great, have announced their engagement. They plan to marry in June. The handsome young couple have co-starred on a campus radio show for six months.

Ottawa Drama Group Prised By Adjudicator

VICTORIA (CP)—An Ottawa group's presentation has led the adjudicator of the Dominion Drama Festival to exclaim that the Canadian theatre has reason to be proud.

Commenting on the production of "The Madwoman of Chaillot" Thursday night by the Saturday Players of the Ottawa Little Theatre, adjudicator Pierre Lefevre said:

"There is no point in talking about the future of the Canadian theatre after a performance like this—the future of the Canadian theatre is here."

His remark was greeted by a tremendous burst of applause from the audience.

SECOND NIGHT OF PRAISE

It was the second performance in as many nights to be praised highly by Mr. Lefevre. He said Wednesday night that the University of Toronto Alumnae Dramatic Club, which presented "The Family Reunion," could "hold its own against any company in the country."

Thursday's play, a difficult one to present, is a fantasy in which the madwoman of Chaillot brings happiness to the world simply by arranging the destruction of evil. It was written by Jean Giraudoux.

Because of the large cast Mr. Lefevre could not deal with all the actors individually.

He did note the "beautiful" performance of Richard Lamb as the deaf mute, and the simplicity and sensitivity" of Ruth Addleman as Irma and "the ease and comedian's agility" of Bruce Swerdfager as the rag picker.

WONDERFUL TRILOGY

He praised Marion Taylor as the madwoman and Andrew Cunningham and Julia Murphy, also director of the play, as Mme Constance and Mlle. Gabriel, her two madwoman friends. Together they were a wonderful "trilogy of madness."

He said he was impressed by the wonderful teamwork of the cast.

"It is something to see a company of actors with a definite approach to an idea and young people who come up to the level of the older actors in the poetic feeling for a play like this."

There were "a number of extremely good performances," he said.

On the critical side he said the setting of the first act was less effective by contrast to the second act. The opening of the play was "hesitant in its pattern" a fault which lasted for a third of the first act.

Mr. Lefevre extended his "hearty congratulations to these people" for the extremely sensitive and beautifully acted performance."

Jerry Vanstone Scores Unanimous Decision

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Jerry Vanstone, who wears the uniform of the Royal Canadian Regiment, 2nd battalion, scored a unanimous decision over Don Churm of Brantford in the main boxing bout at the Arena here Thursday night.

Churm, who decisioned Manny Saunders of Buffalo, the New York state Golden Glove bantam champ at Toronto Monday night, figured to be an odds-on choice to beat Vanstone.

Vanstone relied on a rapier-like left jab and some plain and fancy footwork, plus an occasional right hook to pile up points in every round in the 120-pound clash.

The second surprise of the card was provided by Bob Hesson, light-heavyweight from Brantford who kayoed Ian McDonald of Orangeville at 1:27 of the fourth in their scheduled five-rounder.

Notes On Soccer

The local Scots-Canadians soccer players are getting into shape, having played exhibitions lately with UEW and the Peterborough Merchants. These three teams and Port Hope round out a City Soccer League which will be playing within two weeks. The schedule should be drawn up this week.

Many of the Scots are displaying the finer touches of the code, using a short-passing method, and Jim Buchan is hustling his charges to get them into shape for an out-of-town game Saturday. The local commission is presently endeavoring to collect all the soccer trophies of the city, some being here and some in Lindsay.

In the Eastern League schedule, the Merchants play in Picton on Saturday while Batawa meets UEW in Morrow Park.

23% Purse Increase At Yonkers Raceway

YONKERS, N.Y. (AP) — Bill Cane, president of Yonkers Raceway, Thursday announced a purse increase of approximately 23 per cent shortly before representatives of the 700 owners demanded a boost of 30 per cent and threatened a strike if their demands are not met by Monday.

Effective Monday Cane's increase will bring about a sizable boost in all events, including the jumping of purses for free-for-all races from $6,000 to $7,500.

Ed Doughterty, president of the Standardbred Owners Association, sent a letter to Cane and the United States Trotting Association asking for a 28-per-cent increase in overnight events and cancellation of the two-per-cent starting fee.

On hearing of the owners' demands, Cane said he is confident there will be no interruption of racing in view of the general acceptance of his plan.

Want Niagara Gov't Affair

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress was asked Thursday to guarantee that Niagara river power never will be turned over to private interests.

Senator Herbert Lehman and Representative F. D. Roosevelt, New York Democrats, said this could be done by passing bills they introduced. They said in a joint statement their bills to authorize new Niagara plants would:

"Fulfil the obligation of the United States to reserve the beauty of Niagara Falls and beneficial use of water power by pledging that the policy of the U.S. will be to develop its share of Niagara power in the public interest by a public agency;

"Authorize power and remedial works under supervision of U.S. engineers in accordance with plans approved by the U.S. and Canada."

No part of the U.S. share of water used for power could be diverted to any person or private company.

'American Girls' Get Freedom From Contracts

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Jeanne Crain and June Allyson are different types but they have much in common. Both started film contracts in their teens and reached great success as portrayers of the all - American girl. Neither has made a movie away from her home studio. After 10 years of contracts, both asked for and won freedom in the same week.

Soon after Miss Crain left 20th Century-Fox, I called on her at the Hollywood Hilltop estate she shares with her four young sons and her husband, manufacturer Paul Brinkman.

"I've never been more excited," she remarked. "Within two hours after the news of my leaving Fox, I had offers for two plays and three pictures." Her first assignment will be to make "Gentlemen Marry Brunettes" in Europe in July.

NOT USUAL PATTERN

Her break with the studio does not follow the usual pattern. Her option had just been picked up for another year at a salary estimated around $3,500 weekly But she said she talked the studio into letting her go.

"I loved being at the studio," she said. "After all, I started at 15 and grew up there. But there comes a time when an actress stays too long at one place. People get used to having you around, and they can't think of you in a different light. I wasn't happy with some of the pictures I had been doing. I'm not at all worried about the future."

Neither is June Allyson When I visited her 58-acre Mandeville Canyon estate, she was as happy as a starlet with a new contract.

CRIED AFTER LEAVING

"I cried for two days after I left MGM," she remarked cheerily. "At first I felt lost. When I first went there, I wasn't even wearing lipstick or high heels except on-stage—that's how young I was.

"But after the shock wore off, I have never been more elated. I've already lined up four pictures, all of them with wonderful scripts. And I can hardly wait to go to work for Richard." That's her husband, Dick Powell, now a producer-director at RKO.

Miss Allyson said she had been trying to shake MGM for three years. She made no secret of her unhappiness over assignments.

"They would buy stories or write them especially for Greer or Lana or Ava," she remarked. "but they never did that for me. Because I did a little of everything—dramas, comedies or musicals—they figured I could be put into anything Whenever they were stuck for a casting, they said, 'let's ask good old June; she'll do it.' "

HANDED DOWN FROM generation to generation in a few carefully selected families in the Patzcuaro area, the Dance of the Little Old Men is one of the favorites with the Tarascan people. The dance apes the antics of old men and has a lively, humorous aspect.

TRAVEL: with Jean Stenton

Dance Of Little Old Men Hundreds Of Years Old

PATZCUARO — From pre-Spanish times there has been handed down from generation to generation in villages around here a special dance called "The Dance of the Little Old Men." Only certain families in the villages know the intricate steps and their symbolic meanings and they in turn begin to teach their children at an early age.

The group of seven which I saw perform it here were almost all members of one family. The youngest was 10 and the oldest close to 45. Another boy 12 years old took part with a little more assurance, and the father had his brother, nephew and brother-in-law, etc., in the group. They came from a little village called Cucuchucho near Patzcuaro and they had fine faces and were interesting to talk to. Every Tuesday and Thursday nights they perform at the Posada. Aside from that, this dance is generally only used for fiestas.

Its steps are symbolic of something with the harvest and they also have a religious significance as well as being a takeoff on the antics of old men.

The dancers begin by acting like old decrepit men. Then suddenly they do a series of virile zapaleados to gay tunes played on a tiny stringed instrument called the jarana.

ODD COSTUMES

The Little Old Men wear white cotton suits with long, flaring trousers embroidered at the bottom; tunic with a red sash tied at the side and strong shoes; a wide brimmed, low crowned hat with colored ribbons crossed from the point and falling over the brim; silk kerchief around the neck and a white jorongo with colored stripes. The masks are made of light wood, carved and painted with old faces some sad, others smiling. These masks also have fibre hair and some have beards. Each dancer carries a staff with an animal's head carved on it.

The lone musician directed the dancers who sometimes danced together singly, each trying to outdo the others in steps and clowning. One of their serious figures is called the "Cross of the 4 Stars" in which the dancers form files, one pointing in each direction.

Some of the mountain groups are rougher in their dancing, pushing each other around but never losing the measure of the dance. In Petamba there are sometimes as many as 40 taking part, one of them representing a woman.

WATCH BOATS COME IN

It pays to get up early Friday morning in Patzcuaro and go down to the landing and watch the islanders arrive for the weekly market. They come from all points on the lake in big canoas and small canoas and big launches. I saw one launch wallow into the dock with 15 smiling Tarascans standing on the roof and the inside of the craft jammed with about 25 people.

The boats glide gracefully across the water and the bright clothes of the Indian women make a brilliant picture. Almost all the people are barefoot and they have to walk about a mile up rough cobblestone streets to the Zocalo where the market is held. This Friday gathering is as much a social get-together as a business occasion. Nobody has too much in the way of goods, but everybody has a little and they all earn a little bit for the next week.

Women stagger up the road with huge straw petates (mats) in rolls across their shoulders. Or they carry big baskets of vegetables or fish. The men from one village bring straw sombreros. You often see bread carried in these big ones. Even the children trot along beside their parents prepared to enjoy the day in town. For about three hours, there is a steady stream of old and young up the path from the landing, along the road to the marketplace. It is an everchanging pattern of rainbow hue.

Packers Union Launches Wage Drive

WINNIPEG (CP) — Canadian packing house workers launched a drive Thursday for a general increase in wage rates.

The policy was determined by delegates attending the District 10 conference of the United Packinghouse Workers of America (CIO-CCL). They approved recommendations of the union's wage policy committee which called for opening of negotiations with the "big three" of the industry—Swift Canadian, Burns and Co. and Canada Packers. The wage scales of the "big three" set the pattern for the industry.

About 12,000 UPWA members in packing plants from New Brunswick to British Columbia will be affected.

NO FIGURE YET

Research Director John Lenglet told the conference that no firm figure had been established for the wage increases because of the complexities involved.

The conference also urged that all basic labor rates below he Toronto rate be brought up to it, with "special emphasis" on the rates paid women workers in Canada Packers' plants at Peterborough, Ont.; Vancouver, Hull, Que. and Montreal; and the Swift Canadian plant at Moncton, N.B.

The union will seek a cut from 26 to 13 weeks in the periods after which women workers in Canada Packers' Toronto plant and Burns Kitchener, Ont., plant qualify for increases in their probationary wage rates.

City Of London Stays Up Late With Theatre

LONDON (Reuters)—The City of London stayed up late this week for the first time in 300 years.

Professional theatre — expelled from the area by the Puritans in the 17th century—returned to the City, London's financial district where thousands work ut only cats and caretakers live and which normally s deserted after the close of business each day.

The theatre permitted to open in the City is the Mermaid, an Elizabethan-style playhouse built by Bernard Miles and set up in a roofed courtyard for the summer season.

ON PROGRAM

The program includes such ancients as the opera "Dido and Aeneas," Shakespeare's "As You Like It" and the play "Eastward Ho" which hasn't been played professionally for 300 years.

So far the Mermaid's 985 seats have been sold out for each of the twice-nightly shows and the critics have praised the venture although they have reserved comment on the acting until the novelty has worn off.

A BOY'S BEST FRIEND
Is His MOTHER
By KINGAN'S AD MAN

The other day I looked into the back yard and saw my little two-year-old staring out across the fence to a bunch of big kids playing in a nearby yard. The look on his face brought a lump to my throat. You could just see the longing coming from his inner being . . . just wishing himself over the fence and away.

Seems I can remember back to another day when I, too, wanted to stray away from home . . . and mother. I was a big boy and didn't want to be tied to Ma's apron strings.

Many's the time since then I've thought back to that day and the reminiscences made me think about how foolish we were when we were kids and wished ourselves away from home and mother.

I have spent Mother's Day in many strange places. No matter where I happened to be it always brought back pleasant thoughts of home . . . and Mom.

Too, I always remembered Mom with a little something on "her day." I don't think it's too "commercial" to make Mom a little happier with a little gift in her honor. Do you?

Soft Armchairs Appreciated

Trip Of Luxury Through Manchuria Given Deane's Group

(Ninth in Series)
By PHILIP DEANE
Correspondent of Observer, London

LONDON.—We crossed the Korean-Manchurian frontier April 9, 1953. The Chinese control made no the slightest difficulty. A young English-speaking Chinese met us, welcomed us and in luxurious American-made cars whisked us off to the best hotel in town. There we were greeted by Mr. Pyotr Fyodorovich Vassilief, who introduced himself as a member of the Russian Embassy in Peking. Debonair, friendly, yet restrained, he made us feel we could call on him and that we needn't fear any intrusion on his part. We had a wonderful time in a huge communal bath, brimful with hot water. Scented soap and freshly laundered towels were provided, and we just let ourselves soak. In another part of the building a Chinese concert party was singing. Suddenly all of us rediscovered one of the basic urges which grip the Western male. We had to sing in our bath. Led by Bishop Cooper we went into verse after verse of "Who Killed Cock Robin?" and "Three Blind Mice," finishing up with a deafening rendition of "Land of Hope and Glory." The Chinese concert party was silenced.

When we left the bathroom members of the concert party had gathered outside to see us. We kept our eyes lowered.

That evening, in our luxurious limousines, we were driven to the well-kept Japanese-built railway station of Antung We were expected. A procession of officials escorted us to a special car. It had a salon with deep, soft armchairs—you must sit on the floor for nearly three years to be able really to appreciate an armchair. There were chicken and caviare and all sorts of drinks on the table. There were silent-footed obsequious waiters, and there were inviting berths in tastefully decorated coupes. Pyotr Fyodorovich Vassilief talked books, music, ballet, sport without once introducing the too familiar Soviet slant into his conversation. He was soothing—we were grateful. After a night in our frothy berths we arrived at Mukden, where we were whisked away again by enormous sedans to a well-appointed hotel. Rooms with private bathrooms, a panelled private dining-room, and any kind of food we could think of. Unfortunately, we did not yet know what we wanted, and we kept embarrassing our hosts by enquiring whether it was permissible for us to have a bath, and whether we could really go into the neon-and-nickel barber shop for a shave.

CONDUCTED TOUR

As we were staying thirty-six hours, we asked to see the town, and it was tactfully explained to us that ours would be a "conducted tour" We were driven in lovely vehicles, slowly, through the best districts of the Japanese-built part of Mukden. The old Chinese walls were being demolished. We were not shown antiquities. My guide said the New China was more interesting than the Old China. At all street interesections the small pavilions for the traffic policemen were decorated with plaster Picasso doves, and attractive Chinese characters writing "peace" in every imaginable way.

We passed many shops. Their windows were full of production posters, of advertisements. There were very few actual goods.

On the clean, well-kept sidewalks, Monseigneur Quinlan, an Old China hand, saw something which surprised him. "Bedad!" he said, "Look at those girls, their feet unbound, their heads high, their little chests stuck out, walking freely They look happy now. Not like the poor little things I knew before, trailing behind their popos." ("Popo" is Chinese for mother-in-law.)

Back in the hotel, the representatives of a big departmental store brought us samples of their wares. They gave us women's knee-length stockings. Most of their goods were of very poor quality. The shaving kit they gave us removed the skin from under one's beard, but not the beard. The zip-bags fell to pieces the first night. The only articles of really good quality were some exquisite but gaudy Chinese brocade dressing gowns. A group of normally inhibited Englishmen slipped into these gorgeous garments and attitudinised with evident pleasure in front of the full-length mirrors. Then, as if by common consent, they looked at one another. The pleased, exhibitionist smiles were replaced by the normal expressions worn by people in their position. "Ridiculous!" they said, reluctantly relinquishing their radiant raiments, "Couldn't possibly wear such a ghastly thing."

PEACE EXPRESS

We were then taken to a beautiful blue train, spoiled only by bad reproductions of that shaggy Picasso dove This was the "Peace Express." Red China's show train, which carried us—running dead on time—to the Sino-Soviet frontier town of Manchu Li. There we spent part of the day in a hotel which we shared with our Outer Monoglian concert party, whose male members were busy smearing cold cream on to their faces in the bathroom, and dousing themselves with potent perfume. Finally we crossed into Russia in the frontier town of Otpor, a strikingly handsome Intourist official told us the surprising—and a little alarming news that henceforth we would not be escorted. He gave us a credit account for the restaurant car and a thousand roubles to spend on incidentals. The customs processed us, an exceedingly courteous and well-dressed official looked at our papers, and a young doctor with a pleasant bedside manner took our temperature and inquired solicitously after our health. Then the train started.

That night while I stood in the corridor a six-year-old boy came and started talking to me. He did not have straight, black hair and slanted eyes. He was fair and blue-eyed. He did not scream "big-nosed foreigner" at me. This little boy called Boris made me feel near to freedom at last.

CARRIAGES, SOFT, HARD

The train had two types of carriage, marked "Hard" and "Soft." In the "Hard" carriages the passengers had to provide their own bedding for the wooden berths; in the "Soft," sheets and blankets were available to cover the inner-sprung beds. In our "Soft" carriage there was a sergeant of the Red Army. In the "Hard" carriage ahead, there was a major of the Red Army Tank Corps. In our "Soft" carriage, along with doctors, engineers and other University-standard technicians returning from advisory duties in China there were locomotive firemen, there were intellectuals.

The end carriage was an old pre-Revolution wagon-lit car, reserved for three men who, alone in the train, wore made-to-measure suits. The other passengers were not allowed to go into that car Yet these three—whom we, of course, called "The Commissars"—came to eat with everyone else in the restaurant car. As soon as they were seated, the attendant brought them linen napkins. Everyone else used paper serviettes. The fourth chair at their table was occupied by whoever came first—by a locomotive fireman, by a Red Army private, by a colonel; once by a dowdy woman who acted like a prostitute.

The restaurant car was in plastic and chrome. Not everyone used it. Many people bought their food at the stations—boiled potatoes, sour cabbage, yoghurt, bread, smoked herrings, pieces of boiled meat. "The Commissars" from the special car sometimes bought boiled potatoes at the stations.

The waiters and waitresses, when they made out their bills, sat down at the table beside their customers and joked with them. Then they would accept a tip with a low bow and rush to open the door. One of the restaurant-car attendants walked up and down the corridors of the train with a basket, selling oranges. We called her Nell Gwyn. At every station, "Nell Gwyn" rushed out on to the platform offering her wares: she said she wanted to exceed her sales norm. The people in the stations bought readily from her, and from the peasant women selling local produce at various stands. They were wamly but untidily clad. They wore top boots or Wellingtons which, by and large, seemed to be of good quality

Senate Delays Action On Deal

OTTAWA (CP)—The Senate, still in doubt about a possible infringement on its rights, delayed action Thursday for the second straight day on a new pension deal for federal workers.

It sent back to a committee for further study a government measure revising the Superannuation Act. The revision expands the act to cover an additional 60,000 civil servants now classed as temporaries and provides for retirement age limits.

No action was taken on an amendment, proposed Thursday by Senator Arthur Marcotte (PC—Saskatchewan) which would have inserted in the bill a phrase to preserve the right of the Senate and House of Commons to control their own employees. He said the phrase had been dropped in revision.

Suggest Taxing Toronto Drivers

TORONTO (CP)—A proposal to tax the estimated 200,000 motorists in the Toronto area to help pay for at least four express highways may be placed before the metropolitan road committee.

The tax on automobiles would be $5 to $10. A levy on trucks, transports and other vehicles would depend on their carrying capacity.

It is believed the tax, combined with federal grants, would provide a quick means of financing an estimated $30,000,000 in road construction.

The island of Jamaica has three counties named Surrey, Middlesex and Cornwall.

Find Mistake Made Call Off Road Block

WOODSTOCK (CP) — A road block in the southwestern Ontario area was called off Thursday after police discovered a mistake had been made in a report of an armed robbery of a service station.

They said they misunderstood a Hungarian couple over the phone and set up the road block. Later they found that Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gaal were reporting that three unarmed young men came into the station and attempted to rifle the cash box. Mrs. Gaal demanded the money back and "he took the money out of his pocket and gave it back to me."

The three men then jumped into their car and drove off.

RAF Plane Lost

It said they were "missing presumed killed" after wreckage was sighted near the Scilly Isles, off Britain's southwest coast. The plane was carrying a crew of four and six young officers being taught navigation.

Canadian Junior Red Cross Helps Children In Korea

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

SEOUL (CP)—The pennies of Canadian school children have bought $20,000 worth of textiles for youngsters in Korea.

Stafen Bjarnesan of Toronto, assistant national commissioner of the Canadian Red Cross, said that the cloth will be used in a self-help program in Korean schools.

The pupils will be taught to sew them into clothes for other needy Korean children.

The money was raised by the Canadian Junior Red Cross and is a gifts from its national service fund. Textiles have been bought in Japan, where a Korean woman teacher spent three months learning self-help methods.

She now is back in Korea and the program has been launched in Pusan.

Bjarnesan went to Pusan while here and formally presented the gift to the Korean Red Cross.

The main purpose of his trip, he said, was the semi-annual liaison visit usually made to workers in the field here by an officer from Toronto headquarters.

"We like to see if there is anything new we can provide," he said.

"Our chief operation is in Japan, where we have 16 girls divided between the hospital and convalescent centres in Kure, and the Maple Leaf Club in Tokyo. We have one in Korea.

"I find that it is extremely difficult for us to do more for the soldiers than we are doing now. Already we have a more-extended service than we had during the Second World War when our girls were only at the general hospitals."

While in the brigade area Bjarnesan visited the two Freedom Villages at Munsan, the one for UN troops, the other for the ROKs, as an official observer.

His liaison officer during his three-day visit with the brigade was Capt. David Harrison of Halifax.

A pleasant feature of the afternoon was the presentation of a china teapot to Mrs. Warren Mintz in honor of her recent marriage and in appreciation of her helpfulness. Mrs W. Rowland read the address, with Mrs. T. Malcomson presenting the gift.

A pleasant social hour was spent and lunch was served. Mrs. T. J. Jackson expressed the thanks of the members to Mrs. McMaster for the use of her home and to Mrs. T. Malcomson who had been in charge of the program.

Empire and World Affairs convener Mrs. J. L. Evans read an interesting paper giving a concise description of the Coronation of Queen Elizabeth II to take place in Westminster Abbey June 2nd.

Mrs. T. Gaskell services at home and abroad convener reported five food parcels had been shipped. One letter of thanks from a recipient of a food parcel and two letters from mothers of children who had received Christmas stockings were read. It was evident the assistance was greatly appreciated. A sewing meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. A. E. Thompson, 324 Sherbrooke St. on Wednesday, May 20th.

June meeting is to be held following a dinner at Lakeview House Young's Point on Tuesday June 9th.

The Junior Missionary Society was in attendance at the regular meeting of the Free Methodist WMS on Thursday evening at the church, and, as is the custom annually, provided the program. Their leader, Mrs. Reta Reynolds, who was in charge, read the scripture and commented on the display of handwork done during the year.

Saskatoon Rites Of Interest Here

A wedding of widespread interest was that solemnized recently in St. John's Cathedral, Saskatoon, of Mabel June Scharf of Saskatoon to the Rev. Clement F. R. McFadden of Sutherland, Sask., secretary and travelling missionary for the Church of England in the Diocese of Saskatoon.

The groom is grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. McFadden of Peterborough, and the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. McFadden, formerly of Vancouver and now of Saskatoon.

The marriage was performed by the Rt. Rev. S. C. Steer, DD, assisted by the Very Rev. N. D. B. Larnmouth, Dean of St. John's Cathedral. The bride, who is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Scharf, was given in marriage by her father.

The bridal gown was of ivory satin and lace and she wore a coronet headdress with veil of nylon net and carried sweetheart roses and stephanotis. Miss Shirley Lang in blue lace and net, carried a pink Colonial bouquet and flower girl, Patricia Sharf, younger sister of the bride, was in mauve and carried a similar bouquet.

The groom was attended by his close friend, the Rev. Eric Low, rector of Duck Lake.

After the reception in the Cathedral Parish Hall, the couple left on a short wedding trip. They will live in St. Matthew's Rectory, at Sutherland.

DOROTHY DIX:

Girl Advised To Let Boy Take Lead In Romance

DEAR MISS DIX: A month ago I met a very attractive boy. He came to visit me once or twice, and has called me several times, but has never asked me out. Do you think I should drop him before I get any serious ideas? We're both 19

PHYLLIS

✧ ✧ ✧

DON'T RUSH FRIENDS

ANSWER: Can't you accept a boy's friendship for a month without worrying about getting serious? If you are going to rush all your friends like that, you'll be a long time getting one who is seriously inclined. Be sensible, accept the boy as a friend, and let him make the first move toward getting serious—if he does. If he doesn't, wait for the next man.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: Alice and I recently became engaged, but she finds it difficult to break off with her former boy friend. I have repeatedly told her to break off with him, and the only reason she gives for not doing so is that he's a friend of the family. To me this is not a sufficient reason.

B. P.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Nor would it be to me. The lady is apparently trying to have her cake and eat it; she likes the prestige of being engaged yet hesitates to give up another man's devotion. It would be better for you to break the engagement until you are satisfied that she has severed all connection with the other man.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a 22-year-old widow with two small children. I have fallen in love with a widower of 39, who also has two children. I'm undecided whether I could be a mother to his youngsters, and he wants me to be sure about that before we marry. Sometimes his children get on my nerves; perhaps it's just that I resent the fact of having a ready-made family.

UNDECIDED

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Since you certainly wouldn't want him to resent your children, aren't you being a bit selfish to feel as you do about his youngsters? I really don't think that's the reason for your hesitation. You are just too young to have the responsibility of so large a family and I recommend that you give up the idea, at least for some time.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: As long as I can remember, I've had an inferiority complex. I try to cover it up, and have found out that some people think I'm conceited. I'm 17. How can I convince people that I'm not stuck-up?

J. M.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Paradoxically, many folks do misinterpret inferiority for conceit. The silence of inferiority masquerades as the silence of disinterest. To overcome both the real and the fancied failings, you must learn to become more friendly. As a help, I can suggest some good and inexpensive booklets giving tips on getting along with people. A self-addressed, stamped envelope will bring you the list.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: We are two confused girls. How can we be sure we're in love? We go with two very nice young men, and when we're with them we think they're the only ones, but when we're apart we wonder.

MADGE AND CLEO

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: If there's a doubt, it's not love. Settle for friendship with these boys and wait for the big emotion to come along.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I have been going with a boy for four years. When we are out, he doesn't want me to look or speak to another boy. He is very jealous of me, but when we're together he always has something to say about other girls. He will also speak to those he meets. He has never said anything about us being engaged or married. Please tell me what to do.

A. M.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Give up this one-sided friendship, pronto. Without committing himself to anything, the boy has you practically wearing a ball and chain.

Readers' Friday Column Conducted By Mary Moore

QUESTION: Have been enjoying your column for some time and have tried many recipes. . I wonder if you could send me some I have mislaid. One is for canned peppers not in vinegar, but in water and salt. Another is for crisp oatmeal cookies. Also do you know a recipe for LONZIA. I think I have spelled it correctly. It's a macaroni dish. The macaroni is about 2 inches long by 1 inch wide. It is done in a casserole in the oven . . it has a sauce of tomatoes and cheese in it. . .Mrs. J. C. R.

ANSWER: I have two methods for canning green sweet peppers but neither calls for the use of salt. I will give you them and you can use your judgment.

SWEET PEPPERS CANNED WITH WATER

This is the common method used for pimientoes too. Remove seeds and stems. Plunge into boiling water, and simmer about 3 or 4 minutes—just long enough to make them slightly pliable—no longer. Immediately pack them into hot sterile small ½-pint jars preferably, quite tightly, pressing down with back of sterile spoon. Fill with fresh boiling water, add no salt, partially seal by turning top to within ¼ turn of tight. Sterilize in hot water bath 30 minutes. Tighten seal—never loosen it. Store in cool dark place.

SWEET PEPPERS CANNED WITHOUT WATER

Wash and remove seeds and stems from sweet peppers. Pack dry in ½ pint jars, pressing down with back of sterile spoon. Put on sterile tops, pressing peppers in to pack them down. Tighten top to within ⅛ turn of tight. Sterilize in hot water bath 2 hours. This processing brings out a thick liquor like you see in commercially canned pimientoes. Tighten seal and cool as quickly as practical.

CRISP OATMEAL COOKIES

Mix together in a large bowl 3 cups rolled oats, 2 cups sifted flour and ½ teaspoon salt, and cut into this 1 cup shortening—preferably half butter. Cut it in with pastry blender until it is as fine as ground cereal. Dissolve 1 teaspoon baking soda in 1-3 cup sweet or sour milk and add that with 1½ cups brown sugar. Stir until just mixed. Chill dough thoroughly. Roll out on sparsely floured board to ½-inch thickness. Cut out with cookie cutter. Bake on unbuttered cookie sheet to 375 deg. Fahr. for 10 to 12 minutes.

I think the Italian dish you are referring to is Lasagna because it has all the ingredients you refer to and is baked, and besides it is the only Italian dish I know that has a name similar to the one you give.

BAKED LASAGNA

One lb. of lasagna macaroni (2 inch-wide 1-inch long macaroni), ¾ lb. ricotta (this is Italian cream cheese—you could substitute process cheddar cheese), 2 eggs, 4 cups Italian Tomato Sauce, 1 lb. mozzzarella cheese (no substitute that I kknow of), ¼ cup Parmesan cheese, 1½ teaspoons salt, ¼ to ½ teaspoon pepper. Boil the lasagna 15 minutes in plenty of water and drain well. Mix eggs and ricotta (you might use white cream cheese here I think if you can't buy ricotta), Season with the salt and pepper. Cover bottom of buttered baking dish with lasagna, add layer of tomato sauce, then ricotta mixture and thin slices of mozzarella cheese. Sprinkle with grated cheese. Repeat with these alternating layers till all are used up. Bake about 20 minutes at 375 deg. Fahr. or until bubbling and golden.

LETTER: . . .am giving dandelion wine recipe. Have made it and found it to be good.

DANDELION WINE

(Contributed by Mrs. K. F.)

Fresh dandelion petals are required for the wine. Pick the petals from the flowers to make 1 gallon. Place them in a vessel and pour over 1 gallon of boiling water. Cover, let stand 12 days, stirring occasionally. Strain off the liquid, pour it into a preserving kettle, add 3½ lbs. white sugar and the thinly shaved rind of 1 orange and 1 lemon. If desired add a little whole ginger root. Boil gently for 20 minutes. Let stand until lukewarm. Spread ¼ oz. yeast on a piece of toast and lay this on top of the liquid, cover and let stand for 2 days. Strain and put wine into large crock and leave for 2 months. Then bottle and keep for at least 6 months before using. Mrs K. F.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: I hope the reader who asked for dandelion wine sees this and I want to thank you.

Machine Doubles As Heart, Lungs In Operation

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—A machine which functioned as both heart and lungs of a human being for the first time in medical history was unveiled Thursday by surgeons at Jefferson Medical College hospital.

Invented by Dr. John H. Gibbon, Jr., director of surgical research at the college, the machine was shown to newspaper men with the announcement that it had performed the combined functions of both organs while surgeons closed an abnormal opening in the wall of a patient's heart.

The operation was performed Wednesday on Miss Cecelia Bavolek, 18, who suffered from the malformed heart for years.

The surgeon said that Miss Bavolek was connected to the machine for the 45-minute operation but that the apparatus did the work of the heart and lungs for only 26 minutes.

The apparatus, four feet high and six feet long, consists of two pumps, corresponding to the right and left sides of the heart, with a large section in between from which the blood can absorb oxygen and give off carbon dioxide

Labor Board

LOST AT RAYBESTOS

The decision of the OLRB is the second heavy blow suffered by the IUE in Peterborough in the last 10 days. After a hot campaign at the Canadian Raybestos Co. plant they were defeated in an attempt to supplant Local 527, UE, by 63 votes to 62. However IUE said they were appealing the decision on the grounds that the UE had electioneered during the 72-hour blackout on propaganda before the vote.

This leaves Peterborough still the biggest plant under contract to the UE in the CGE chain. On the anniversary date of the two-year master contract between the UE and the CGE there were 3,153 production workers at the Peterborough plant. When the five Toronto plants are added it brings the total number of workers under contract to 7,000.

The joint negotiating committee, consisting of the Peterborough and Toronto locals, will now have a stronger hand in their negotiations with the company. Threat of the IUE taking over the Peterborough palnt is now relieved until 10 months after the anniversary date of the new contract. As the new contract will probably be retroactive till March 27 this means that the IUE would be unabel to make application again until Jan. 26, 1954.

Though down IUE ofifcials refuse to admit final defeat. They indicate they will be back again next year for another try at ousting their rivals.

"Our intentions are to continue the campaign and keep up our mailing list and keep in touch with IUE members," said Minor Shaw, IUE international representative. "It was the same story as last year: we didn't start soon enough. If we had begun two weeks earlier I'm convinced we would have got 1,700 cards signed."

Joe Wirtz, IUE Canadian coordinator, told the Examiner: "Our cards were valid but we lost our application through layoffs that have occurred since they were signed."

Presumably that is just what happened.

FILED 1,484

At the OLRB hearing in Toronto on April 22 the IUE filed 1,484 cards. Nobody knew at that time how many exactly were in the bargaining unit but a month before, March 26, there were 3,153 eligible workers, company figures indicated. Company figures for April 22 were later supplied to the OLRB.

When the hearing was held this gave the IUE slightly more than 47 per cent of the eligible workers based on the list of a month before. The IUE are believed to have lost something over two per cent of their followers in the plant turnover and layoffs from the time the cards were signed until they were checked by OLRB examiners after the hearing.

Mr. Wirtz said today that his union lost out on the 45 per cent by "something less than one percentage point."

The OLRB in its official statement gave no specific figures and leaned heavily on the side of official prose. Here are the relevant extracts:

"The Board is satisfied on an examination of the records of the applicant and the records of the respondent that less than 45 per cent of the employees in an appropriate bargaining unit are members of the applicant even if for present purposes we assume—and we express no opinion thereon—that the records submitted by the applicant considered in the light of the evidence presented at the hearing do constitute adequate evidence of membership for the purposes of the Act. The application is dismissed."

J. B. Metzler was the acting chairman and the other four members were Dave Archer (CIO) and Russell Harvey (AFL), representing organized labor; and H. F. Irwin and Gordon Ferguson, representing management.

BITTER COMMENTS

As usual, rival comments were bitter.

George Wallace, president of Local 524, UE, said today:

"We stated from the outset and we repeat: the whole campaign and the application for certification were solely for the purpose of interfering with UE negotiations. The filing of less than 45 per cent of the necessary application cards, unsupported by initiation fees, was not by accident on the part of IUE . . . it was done deliberately in order to save face and avoid an examination of their cards for accuracy.

"However the important issue in the minds of CGE workers is that of concluding negotiations that were impeded somewhat because of the pending application. We will now proceed in negotiations with the company, with a view to reaching a settlement . . ."

Mr. Wallace denounced the IUE as "raiders," and the IUE replied with a blast about communism:

"CGE workers are still confronted with the same issue that has faced them since 1949," said Mr. Wirtz. "That is Communist unionism versus democratic trade unionism.

"Undoubtedly Tim Buck and the heirarchy of the Communist Party are relieved to know that one of their main sources of financial support is safe for at least a short time to come."

And that's that—till next January anyway.

Wage Problems At City Hall Heading For Solution

City council is gradually catching up on the job of fixing salaries and wage scales of the employees of the ratepayers.

Two policemen on their beat the other night held brief colloquy without stopping about this subject: "I hear they got things settled." Only one guess is needed to decide they were talking about the salary agreement between the Police Commission and the Police Association.

The Fire Fighters' Union and the council likewise arranged the working agreement in that department for 1953.

So, gradually the council is disposing of this matter of paying the people who work for the city.

Settlement in one instance was nothing more than a brush-off. A few women are employed in the caretaking at the city hall. They wrote the council asking for some increase in their wage. It did not take the council long to tell them that official opinion was that they were getting a fair wage for the work they were dong. For them, no negotiations, no agency of conciliation, just plain, "no".

BOTH AGREED

Apparently both the firemen and the police have agreed with the council who are hoping that they have at hand the early settlement of the wage scales for the men of the board of works, parks and sanitation departments. They are known as the Peterborough Civic Employees Federal Union.

Their last note to the council was that they intended to apply for the services of a conciliation officer "with regard to the 1953 working agreement". That group may be the next to sign up on this year's terms.

Somebody asked the other night, it might have been Ald. Rehill whether the miscellaneous fund could absorb these several post-budget increases in expenditure for department services. That fund was some $80,000. The reply was that so far this resource was not exhausted by the demands for wages and salaries.

Heads of departments were the last to be considered by the council. Their salaries are usually reviewed singly. It is not a collective approach to the council. But, there have been several group meetings reported of late, even if they were not definitely collective.

3 YET TO SOLVE

Last intimation is that the only outstanding salary details were the Federal Union, the outdoor workers and City Clerk Outram. This responsibility of adjusting remuneration, determining wage schedules and salaries has become the most vexing detail of the responsibilities of the citizens who are elected to the council. That probably applies to the board of education, utilities and police commission.

And there is this nuance of effect: an increase to one group reaches all the way up the scale of payment as a new and higher norm of hiring.

For instance, and without factual reference, if the firemen's wages are twice as high as they used to be some years ago, why shouldn't the top salaries also be multiplied by two?

City council has less authority in wage settlements than they ever had If a group doesn't get what they have collectively decided they are worth, they can call on the Labor Board, then conciliation, provincial authority, and so on.

The Guelph Mercury reports wage discussions and action ending in "rancor" at the city hall. Some members got $1,000 boosts all the way down to "nothing." Firemen asked for $10 a week increase. Council offered five, and the firemen talked of going to arbitration. The outdoor workers took the same course, but recently an increase of 6% has been mentioned with likelihood of being accepted.

Seventeen of the 27 employees of the Guelph city hall staff get increases; the others get nothing. Incidentally the employees of the Guelph Transportation Commission got an increase of 11c an hour.

HUNDREDS FIGHT FOREST FIRES, 1 DIES

Fear Rhee May Ignore Korean Truce

UN Becomes Alarmed At Statements Army To Fight On

TOKYO (AP)—The United Nations command is becoming increasingly alarmed over threats by President Syngman Rhee that he will refuse to observe an armistice in Korea.

Gen. Mark Clark, the UNC supreme commander, conferred in Tokyo with U.S. ambassador Ellis Briggs and Robert Murphy, political adviser to Clark.

A source close to the UNC said Briggs, who has been guiding United States diplomacy in Korea for the last six months, told Clark that recent "spontaneous" demonstrations against a Korean truce were sponsored by the Rhee government.

Two weeks ago in Seoul, several thousand young Koreans paraded the streets of the former ROK capital, bearing signs proclaiming "On to the Yalu" and "Unification!"

HALTED BY POLICE

In Pusan recently, one youthful crowd of demonstrators, carrying similar signs, attempted to push down the gates in front of the U.S. embassy, but were halted by Korean police.

Briggs is known to have protested the demonstration to Rhee himself.

The demonstrations the Rhee government are staging, however, aren't causing the UNC as much concern as the statements the 76-year-old president has been making in the last two weeks.

Rhee's latest outbursts infer that South Koreans won't quit fighting even if an armistice is signed.

NOT GOOD ENOUGH

The ROK army now consists of 16 well-trained divisions and, although it is a much more formidable army than South Korea had when the war started 34 months ago, competent military leaders feel it still wouldn't be a match for the Communists—as long as the Chinese remain in Korea.

Rhee's stand is that an armistice will not guarantee peace in Korea. He insists the only way to end the war is to unify North and South Korea.

The way to unify it, Rhee says, is to march to the Yalu.

The UN command is trying to convince Rhee that its purpose in Korea was to halt aggression That means pushing the Reds back of the 38th parallel where they started and where they are now.

The proper way to unify Korea, the UNC maintains, is to follow an armistice with a peace conference which would specify proper elections.

12 Blazes Uncontrolled In Manitoba

Second Firefighter Badly Burned, Trapped Near Lake

WINNIPEG (CP) — Forest fires which already have taken one life and destroyed thousands of acres of valuable timber today are raging through Manitoba forests in 25 scattered areas. A forestry official said about 12 fires are out of control.

Courtney Anderson, about 20, of Victoria Beach, Man., one of hundreds of volunteers recruited to battle the flames, was burned to death Friday when he advanced too close to a fire front and was trapped.

The fires are scattered on a 150-mile front in eastern and central Manitoba. They sent a pall of smoke drifting across the province.

SITUATION BAD

A. W. Braine, forest protection chief, said the situation is "very bad—as bad as it has ever been in Manitoba."

A scorching 20-mile-an-hour south wind whipped up flames and made it impossible for fighters to get in front of the fires in many sections. Temperatures ranged up to 80 degrees.

Hospital authorities reported as fair the condition of Clifford Joseph, 27, of Victoria Beach. Joseph was trapped while fighting a blaze near the southern tip of Lake Winnipeg and his clothing set on fire.

Mr. Braine said the worst fires were three in the Lac du Bonnet area, 55 miles east of Winnipeg; and three between Lake Manitoba and Lake Winnipeg in central Manitoba.

FIRES IN ONTARIO

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario department of lands and forests reports 39 forest fires are burning in the province. All are under control.

Eighteen forest blazes were extinguished in the last 24 hours. Largest fire, which covered an area of 1,000 acres before being brought under control, is in Paipooge township in the Port Arthur district.

Department officials warn that forest fires will start and spread quickly under the present dry conditions and advise extreme caution.

Seek Joint Board To Consider Trade Restrictions

WASHINGTON (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent said today Canada and the United States will investigate the possibility of setting up a joint board to consider the problems of Canada-U.S. trade restrictions. The decision was reached Friday at a meeting between St. Laurent and President Eisenhower. It was disclosed by St. Laurent this morning at a press conference before his departure for Ottawa at conclusion of a 48-hour visit to Washington.

The two leaders agreed that the establishment of the board should be considered by L. B. Pearson, Canada's external affairs minister, and John Foster Dulles, the U. S. state secretary.

It would be similar to the joint defence board in that it would investigate mutual trade problems and make recommendations to both governments on how to deal with them.

NOT SATISFIED

The Canadian government has indicated on a number of occasions that it is dissatisfied with restrictions on import of some goods from Canada, particularly dairy products. It claims U. S. quotas on these are a violation of the trade and tariff treaty signed by the U. S. government.

On the other side, U. S. agricultural representatives have indicated they would like Canada to take action to reduce the export of oats to the United States, claiming the heavy flow of this product has forced American prices below government support levels.

St. Laurent said the idea of setting up a board to deal with trade problems came up during general discussions. It was Eisenhower, he said, who suggested that Dulles and Pearson investigate the idea further.

OPINIONS DIFFER

The prime minister said he was convinced of Eisenhower's firm belief in the need for freer world trade. But he couldn't say the same for congressional leaders. He said his talks with these leaders indicated that while they appreciated Canada's difficulties with U. U.S. restrictions, they were quick to point out that the people of the U.S. were afraid of the effects of freer world trade on the country's economy.

The top-level talks were the first between Canadian government leaders and the new Republican administration.

A joint communique issued Friday said the two countries believe the new Malenkov regime in Russia cannot be trusted and added that Canada and the U. S. have agreed to bolster the defences of the Free world.

Four Canadians Decorated After Battle

By BILL BOSS

IN KOREA (CP) — Immediate award of the Military Cross to two Canadian officers and of the Military Medal to two soldiers was announced today by Maj.-Gen. Michael West, commander of the Commonwealth division.

The awards followed the battle of May 2 when Canadian gunners helped in a great victory over Chinese troops attacking United Nations positions in strength.

The awards:

Military Cross:

Lieut. Laurie Cote of Winnipeg and Aylmer, Que.;

2nd Lieut. Edgar Hollyer of Toronto.

Military Medal:

Cpl. J. C. McNeil, Reserve Mine, N. S.; Pte. George Julien, Halifax.

COMMANDED PLATOON

Cote is the signals subaltern of the Royal Canadian Rregiment's 3rd battalion which combined with the 81st Field Regiment of the Royal Canadian Artillery to throw back the enemy in the battle. Hollyer commanded the platoon which was the specific objective of the Chinese.

Hollyer's presence of mind in calling artillery fire on his own position when it was overrun was credited with contributing to the enemy defeat.

Cpl. McNeil assumed command of a raiding party which foiled the intended silent attack by bumping into the enemy assembly area. McNeil, taking over after his officer was wounded, led his men in a co-ordinated withdrawal through a mine field and uphill back to the RCR's main positions.

Pte. Julien rounded up eight men, including wounded, posted them defensively, and held a forward corner of the RCR bunkers under the rain of Canadian shellfire which beat off the Chinese.

Allies Agree Red Proposals Need Clarifying

WASHINGTON (AP) — State Secretary John Foster Dulles said today the United States and the UN allies have reached general agreement that several points of the new Communist Korean peace proposals need to be clarified and perhaps modified.

Dulles told a press conference that the Communist proposals were discussed Thursday at a White House conference and again by President Eisenhower and himself at luncheon Friday. He declined to specify what points were objected to.

The proposals, he said, leave a number of points in an unsatisfactory condition and unless they are changed there will have to be further consultations at Panmunjom.

He said the Communist proposals now need only some clarification and perhaps modification. The conclusion was reached by Washington envoys of the nations taking an active part in the Korean fighting.

Dulles told of the developments before leaving tonight with mutual security director Harold E. Stassen for a tour of the Middle East and South Asia.

Dulles said there was nothing new in the Communist nomination of Czechoslovakia, Poland, Sweden and Switzerland to a commission to supervise repatriation of the war prisoners. He noted that the UN resolution of last October specifically named these four to serve as neutrals. The new Communist eight-point proposal added India as a fifth neutral country. Dulles did not say whether he thought this was satisfactory.

Planes Strike Troop Centre

SEOUL (AP)—U. S. Sabre jets—flying double duty as fighters and bombers—today shot down two Communist MiGs and smashed a big Red troop concentration centre in Korea.

Thirty-six Sabres, in one of their biggest strikes as fighter-bombers, flattened 45 buildings in a troop concentration area near the Panmunjom truce conference site, the air force said.

The attack followed by a few hours low-level sky battles deep in northwest Korea which sent two Russian-built MiGs spinning to earth.

The Sabre jets were guarding F-84 Thunderjet fighter-bombers which hit Red oil and ammunition dumps at Knup, about 15 miles southeast of the Yalu river border city of Sinuiju. The air force said 13 buildings were destroyed.

Ontario Actor Dies

HOLLYWOOD (CP)—Actor Angus D. Taillon, 65, a native of Ontario, was found dead in the back yard of his home here Friday.

Movie actor Barry Fitzgerald, for whom Taillon had been standin since 1938, returned from a trip to find Taillon slumped in a garden chair in the yard of the home the two shared.

Police said the Canadian apparently died of natural causes two or three days ago.

Taillon played bit parts in films before becoming Fitzgerald's stand-in.

Indo-China Truce Possible

Sees Armistice Smart Move Against French

SAIGON, Indo-China (AP)—The premier of Viet Nam, one of the three French associated Indo-Chinese states, declared today he believes the Communist-led Vietminh rebels may soon propose an armistice in the Indo-China war.

Speaking in an interview, the premier, Nguyen Van Tam, described such a move as "very possible." He added, however, that he did not think any such offer by the Vietminh would be sincere.

French sources say an armistice offer would be a smart move for the Vietminh because of its possible effect in slowing the French war effeort and disrupting promised U. S. military aid.

The Viet Nam premier made his statement as thousands of Vietminh troops continued their withdrawal from the little mountain kingdom of Laos, after overrunning a third of the country in a 26-day invasion. French bomber and fighter planes harassed the retreating rebels but French and Laotian land forces made no attempt to pursue them.

The French military sources in Hanoi were convinced the Soviet Union and Communist China were behind the Vietminh withdrawal. They believe the pull back order was issued by Moscow and Peiping because the rebel invasion of Laos had created a storm of world protest that embarrassed the recent Communist peace campaign.

Bands Meet Canadian Troops Mayor Waddell Included Too

LIVERPOOL, England (Reuters)—Canada's 97-member service contingent for the Coronation received a warm welcome as it arrived here today on the liner Franconia from Quebec. On hand to offer official greetings to the party, which included 22 servicewomen, were Albert Morrow, Lord Mayor of Liverpool, and Lt.-Gen. Sir Charles F. Loewen, Canadian-born chief of Britain's western command. Bagpipes sounded ashore and on the ship as the Franconia nosed into the dock. A Liverpool-based army pipe band played on the pierside and when it began "The Wearing of the Green," Pipe Maj. George Pate of Toronto got so excited he grabbed his own pipes and joined in.

Pate is the contingent's only representative of the Irisih regiment in Canada.

CAUGHT UP IN TIDE

Lt.-Col. E. A. Brooks headed a party of five members of the 2nd regiment, Royal Canadian Horse Artillery, all with service in Korea, who will march in the Coronation procession with the Queen's Commonwealth escort.

"It is the biggest honor our regiment could have," Brooks said.

A non-military figure who was swept up in the tide of greetings was Hugh Waddell, mayor of Peterborough. Mayor Waddell and his wife will see the Coronation from seats in the Abbey as guests of the Lord Chamberlain's office.

The Canadians came down the ship's gangway to the tune of the bagpipes and hundreds of spectators cheered as their train pulled out for London.

2nd Air Disaster In India Plane Crashes, Kills 18

NEW DELHI (AP)—An Air India passenger plane crashed in a ball of fire today. It killed 18 persons, including three Americans, in India's second air disaster within a week. One of the dead was identified as a member of a wealthy American family that originated in India and now lives in Hawaii and Los Angeles.

As in the crash of a British jet Comet airliner that killed 43 persons near Calcutta last Saturday, the two-engine Air India plane plunged just after takeoff.

The Comet broke to bits in a summer monsoon storm. The two-engine plane today apparently caught fire soon after leaving here on a routine five-hour flight to Bombay.

3 MILES FROM FIELD

Airport officials said it crashed less than three miles from the field.

It was a complete loss by the time emergency crews from Palam airfield could get to the scene.

Air line officials said the plane was a Douglas Dakota (C-47) on the overnight mail run.

The pilot apparently tried an emergency landing with fire enveloping the plane from an engine where it first broke out, officials said. The blazing wreck plowed along the rocky earth nearly three-quarters of a mile to the edge of Mahpalpur village.

The blazing heap of metal and bodies piled up finally just 50 yards from village huts filled with sleeping Indians.

Queen Takes Holiday At Balmoral Castle

LONDON (AP)—The Queen left London by plane today for a week-long family vacation at Balmoral Castle, royal country home in Scotland.

Word went out simultaneously to government officials and newspapermen that her holiday is "a real necessity" in view of the arduous Coronation program ahead, and everyone was asked not to intrude on her privacy.

Her two children, Prince Charles and Princess Anne, travelled to Balmoral by train early today. The Duke of Edinburgh will follow later.

School Banquet Poisons Scores

ANNISTON, Ala. (AP)—Scores of high school students became ill at the Anniston High School junior-senior banquet Friday night, and were taken to hospital.

Food poisoning was blamed as the nauseated youngsters, including girls in evening dresses and boys in dinner jackets, were brought to hospital.

Cody Hall, Anniston Star reporter, said the boys and girls filled every available bed, were placed on tables and then on hospital floors.

U.S. Gives France $60,000,000 In Aid

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States has given France $60,000,000 in "special aid" to bolster French and native forces opposing the Vietminh rebels in Indo-China, it was announced Friday.

Mutual security director Harold Stassen told a press conference the money has been transferred to the French government out of foreign aid funds.

Stassen said the program was "developed specifically" during the 14-country North Atlantic Pact meeting in Paris several weeks ago after the Communist-led Vietminh launched their invasion of Laos.

"The transfer now has been effectuated," he said.

Stassen also said there has been a speed-up in deliveries of American military shipments to Indo-China in recent weeks.

3 RCAF Pilots Decorated By US

OTTAWA (CP)—The RCAF announced Friday three RCAF fighter pilots have been awarded United States decorations for operational flying in Korea while attached to the U.S. Air Force.

Wing Cmdr. James Lindsay, 30, of Arnprior, Ont., received the Distinguished Flying Cross for "outstanding courage, aggressiveness and devotion to duty." He was cited as having shot down a MiG fighter last Oct. 11.

Sqdn. Ldr. Eric G. Smith, 32, of Navan, Ont., and Flt. Lt. Robert Lowry, 28, of North Bay, received the U.S. Air Medal.

Sqdn. Ldr. Smith received a citation for "dedication to duty and skill" in air operations against the enemy.

Flt. Lt. Lowry was cited for distinguishing himself in 20 combat missions in which he showed exceptional flying ability, aggressive spirit, skill and heroism.

Gaiety, Prosperity On Surface

Austrian Premier Faces Problems

This is the fifth of a series of articles by I. Norman Smith, of Ottawa, who is touring Europe. He tells of an interview with the Chancellor of Austria, Julius Raab.

By I. NORMAN SMITH

VIENNA— April 29 —(Mailed from Belgrade) — On the marble floor of the antechamber of the office of the Chancellor of Austria there is a little tile bearing the name of Chancellor Dollfuss who was murdered there in the Nazi putsch of 1934.

And just alongside it the present Chancellor, Julius Raab, showed me where lay the couch on which Dollfuss died.

The next room was the meeting place of the Congress of Vienna where was settled the peace and shape of Europe in 1815 after Napoleon's defeat.

Outside the window you may see the palace and parks of the Austrian emperors and one room beyond the Congress salon is the Cabinet Council of the present Austrian government, the only painting on the wall being that of Emperor Francis Joseph.

The chancellor caught me smiling a little and I explained I was interested that the cabinet of the new half-Labor democratic republic of Austriia should meet under the gaze and guidance of the last of the defunct line of monarchs.

"Ha," said Dr. Raab, "we are beyond the monarchy now, but we are not ungrateful."

What history has happened in the chancellor's building, beneath the graceful crystal chandeliers! Dr. Raab's own room was bombed in 1945 but it is newly panelled, quietly furnished and pleasant with flowers and books. The soft chair he invited me to take all but immersed me.

Dr. Raab has been chancellor only since April 2 but he has been head of the Austrian People's Party for some years. That means he is a Conservative, and that means he has his troubles for the coalition government he heads has a sharp division. His party has 74 seats and the Socialist or Labor party has 73. The remaining 18 are 14 extreme Right and four Communists.

The People's Party (Conservative) have led the three elections since the war, in 1946, 1949 and last February. Always there has had to be a coalition but this is the lowest the Conservatives have polled.

Dr. Raab, a technical engineer by profession and in appearance, seems to take his worries easily. He has no doubt Austria will be able to stand on its own feet if a peace treaty grants independence. But, he adds, Austria must still further reduce its overhead laid upon it in terms of cost of living, luxury habits and administration. The nation has not yet fully made the necessary adjustments consequent upon declining from an Empire of 50,000,000 peoples to a mountain country of 7,000,000.

NEED TRADE

I told him Canadians were impressed that Communists had been unable to get beyond five percent of the vote and asked what he believed Canadians might do to assist his country to stand firm against Russian imperialism.

Dr. Raab's reply came at once: "We do not need charity but we do need trade. If Canada would buy more from us we would be greatly helped. We have not the foreign exchange to buy much in return, but you would be getting value for your money and at the same time would be helping our economy and independence."

Dr. Raab and others cautioned me not to be misled by the comfort of some hotels or shops. Austria was not well off, he said. War damage had scarcely begun to be repaired. And the bulk of Austrian industry was under Soviet control.

POVERTY STRESSED

In Vienna I have had poverty and damage pointed out to me most painstakingly. Even in the Chancellor's building an official who had been showing the view from his window paused to point out that there was no paint on the window-sill. It seems that word has gone out that visitors should be shown the bad as well as the good, the better then for Austria to see American or Western aid.

Probably I surprised the chancellor—he is more than a Prime Minister, something atwixt President and Prime Minister—by not embarrassing him with a lot of questions about the Peace Treaty and Russia.

I didn't, because . is a story amply on the record. Frustratingly so. Here it is, in brief:

Must Pick Wealth Or Love

Difficult Choice Faces Girl On 21st Birthday

NEW YORK (AP)—A pretty Park Avenue girl today faced this poignant choice: Did she want wealth? Or the man she loved?

With her 21st birthday just two weeks away, Jean L. Tanburn has received a court ruling that she must choose between one or the other.

She can't have both. Caught in this classic conflict between love and money, Miss Tanburn Friday night declined to comment on what she will do.

If she goes ahead with her plans to marry Donelson M. Kelly, jr., she forfeits her rights to a $10,000 cash inheritance and a $6,500-a-year income from a $675,000 trust fund.

The trying dilemma resulted from a provision in her great-grandfather's will that no descendant who marries a person "not of the Jewish faith and not of Jewish blood" can benefit from the will.

Kelly, a Princeton University senior, is not Jewish. He and Miss Tanburn, who attended Vassar, are engaged and planned to marry before he reports to the army next month.

When the problem was put before Surrogate Judge William I. Collins Friday, he said Miss Tanburn's situation "commands the court's sympathy."

"It is unfortunate that she cannot have both a marriage with the man of her choice and the inheritance. Present considerations which tug at her heart do not resolve the legal queries propounded."

The will is "discrminatory," he said, but "to discriminate in the dispostion of property is frequently the motivation of a will.

President, Cabinet Approve US Role In Seaway

WASHINGTON (AP)—Limited U.S. participation with Canada in building the much-discussed St. Lawrence seaway has the approval of President Eisenhower and his cabinet. The Eisenhower administration stand on the perennially controversial waterway was announced Friday by the White House. The action came after Eisenhower and the cabinet unanimously approved recommendations of a special committee named by the president to study the project.

The White House said the committee proposed, and the cabinet agreed, that participation would be "highly desirable" providing the U.S. interest in the undertaking was limited to the International Rapids section of the river.

It is in this section that New York state and a private firm have asked the federal power commission for a licence to join with the province of Ontario in construction of 2,200,000-horsepower hydro-electric generating plant. The commission's decision is still awaited although hearings were ended in February.

MUST BE AUTHORIZED

Prime Minister St. Laurent, after a two-day official visit to Washington, indicated to reporters that the seaway as a joint undertaking by the two countries would hardly be feasible unless American participation in the power project is authorized.

"We would like to see the power end approved and started," St. Laurent said, "and we are ready to discuss the seaway project in the International rapids section with the United States."

He said it was "for the experts to decide" which side of the river was best for building the International Rapids canal.

The cabinet committee had this to say:

"Construction. . . on the United States side would be more economical than construction on the Canadian side and would result in lower tolls, and, because of its design, the American project would constitute in certain aspects a superior navigation facility."

WOULD BE SPECIFIC

The cabinet-approved committee recommendations said U.S. participation in the seaway should be "expressly conditioned" on:

"Satisfactory assurance that the underlying power project will go ahead, pursuant to appropriate authorization, and

"Satisfactory assurance that Canada will go ahead with its part of the navigation project, in co-operation with the United States, and,

"Predication of the project on a self-liquidating basis."

Crosses Lawyer Goes To Jail

WINDSOR — (CP) — Paul Roger, 43, a farmer of RR 1, concession C, near Leamington, pleaded not guilty when he appeared in Windsor police court Friday on a charge of drunk driving.

He had brought along his lawyer to help him prove it, too.

Evidence was given by a Leamington police officer of seeing Roger weaving erratically along the road in his truck.

The lawyer questioned the police officer and at the psychological moment put his client in the witness box.

Smoothly he said: "You had a few drinks on the evening in question, but you were not drunk?"

Leaning his elbow on the witness box Roger said, "Oh yes, I was drunk."

The lawyer lost his case. The court lost its composure. Roger lost his freedom for two weeks and his right to drive for three months.

Prevalence Of TB In Ontario Unchanged

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario's death rate from tuberculosis has dropped from 3,500 a year in 1900 to 400 a year in 1952, but the prevalence of TB in the province is as great as ever, Dr. G. C. Brink warned Friday.

Dr. Brink, director of the TB prevention division of the Ontario health department, spoke at the annual meeting of the Ontario Tuberculosis Association.

"Persons are not dying from TB as they did in former years because there now is better treatment for them and more and more are reporting symptoms earlier," he said.

"Nevertheless, last year there were as many new cases of TB admitted to sanatoria for treatment as in any previous year."

Dr. Brink said greater efforts are needed to eradicate TB. There were 18,500 TB patients in sanatoria on any day of the year throughout Canada, but no one knew how many undiagnosed cases there were.

Soviet Delegate Shocked Book Sold

GENEVA (AP)—Soviet delegate P. D. Morosov told the United Nations commission on human rights Friday he was "shocked" to hear from British delegate Samuel Hoare that Hitler's "Mein Kampf" had been on sale in England before, during and after the last war.

Apparently, the Soviet delegate continued, "this must have been connected with the fact that the United Kingdom was not invaded."

Hoare promptly reminded Morosov that, to his best knowledge, the book was on sale "at a time when we were practically alone in the world in fighting Hitler."

"The measure of the shock my Soviet colleague has experienced," Hoare continued, "is also the measure of his failure to comprehend liberty and freedom of speech."

Vietminh Troops Attack Civilian Train

SAIGON, Indo-China (AP)—Elements of a Vietminh battalion Friday attacked a civilian train near Quang Tri in Annam, about 30 miles northwest of Hue, and killed 19 passengers, a French spokesman announced today.

Ten of those killed were soldiers assigned to the train as guards, the spokesman said. Fifteen persons, including six soldiers, were injured.

The Vietminh was reported to have placed a series of mines on the tracks, which destroyed four of the train's coaches. The attack which followed was beaten off with the aid of artillery and planes. Six Vietminh bodies were found after the hostilities ended.

Rejected As Agent

BELLEVILLE (CP)—Employees of the Northern Electric Company plant today voted 274 to 108 to remain members of the company's employee association and rejected the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers Union (CIO-CCL) as bargaining agent.

SPRING TRAGEDY — The robin above and his mate, caroling to the spring sunshine and their new-found love were busy building a honeymoon nest in a tree in the back yard of James Herron, in Cleveland, Ohio. Mr. Robin was triumphantly carrying a long piece of string nestward when it caught in a tree branch. In his struggle to free it, the cord looped around the robin's neck, bringing a tragic end to his spring idyl.

Tells Liberals How To Win Coming Election

OTTAWA (CP)—A CCF member, Cape Breton South's long-time coal miner Clarie Gillis, kindly told the Liberal party Friday night how to win the forthcoming election—by bringing in a general system of national health insurance.

But Health Minister Martin, knocking down some speculation about Liberal election plans, said he can't accept the tip because the time is not yet ripe, not when defence bills are enormous and health facilities are inadequate to support such a plan.

He put it this way as the Commons discussed estimates for his departmental activities:

"The most dishonest thing that can be done in this particular field in the absence of the preparatory stages, including the building of hospitals, the personnel required, would be to impose a system of this kind. It would both defeat the purpose and not be really in keeping with responsible government.

DEFENCE COSTS HIGH

"This country is committed now to a tremendous expenditure for defence. . . If I were to introduce a proposal now which would cost this country an additional $600,000,000 a year, I should like to know what the judgment of the people of Canada would be.

"I think most people. . . recognize that this is a problem which must be approached as an objective if it is going to be soundly dealt with ultimately. It may be slow. We may be cautious. But it is better to consolidate our gains as we go along than ultimately to have an objective which we suddenly have so created and which is impossible to maintain.

"I for one would not make such a proposal to this Parliament or to my colleagues in the government. That stand I think will commend itself to most people in Canada."

Mr. Martin said the issue will be studied further after the tabulation of results of a current sickness survey aimed at working out cost of the plan. His $600,000,000 estimate was only a rough figure.

He spoke as Stanley Knowles (CCF—Winnipeg North Centre) and Mr. Gillis chided the Liberal party for doing "long-term" studies on health insurance since 1919 and said nothing should prevent its immediate implementation.

Mr. Gillis said the actual cost would be about the same as Canadians now spend on health anyway. The money would simply be rechannelled.

2 Red States Plan Army Of 1,000,000

Agreement Discloses Hope Objective Gained In One Year

BERLIN (AP)—West German sources reported that Red-ruled East Germany and Czechoslovakia have signed an agreement to organize a joint 1,000,000-man army by this time next year.

Details of the reported agreement were disclosed by the publication Archiv, which extracts considerable information from anti-Communist sources in the Soviet-controlled East Zone of Germany.

Archiv said the agreement was reached March 14 in Karlovy Vary, Czechoslovakia, by Willi Stoph, East German interior minister, Gen. Vincent Mueller, a former Nazi who now is chief of staff of the East German Army, and three unnamed representatives of the Czech government. The publication said a Soviet Marshal Govorov also was present.

TERMS OF AGREEMENT

Archiv said the agreement provided for:

1. A goal of a 1,000,000-man force by May, 1954. (The present joint armed strength of the two countries was listed at 680,000, of which East Germany was said to have one-fifth.)

2. Co-ordinated military training, with the exchange of Czech and East German officers in groups of 300 each.

3. Training of East German and Czech officers at the Soviet military academy in Moscow.

4. Co-ordination of both forces in the use of Soviet weapons and ammunition.

Aussies Vote For Senators

MELBOURNE (Reuters)—Australians voted today to refill half the Senate seats in an election which will test whether the country favors sticking with private enterprise or reverting to post-war socialism.

The 5,000,000 electorate must vote—or pay a fine equivalent to $5.60 under the compulsory voting law.

Thirty of the 60 Senate seats were up for renewal plus two more seats vacant through deaths. The lower house is not due for election until next year.

Prime Minister Robert Menzies' coalition government now holds 32 against the Labor Party's 28. Of the seats up for polling today, 16 are coalition and 16 Labor.

The issue today therefore is whether the upper house will have a Labor majority and thus act as a brake on the Liberal-Country coalition or whether it will remain of the same political complexion.

Final results may not be known for two weeks with many overseas votes to come in and a complex system of proportional representation in operation. But trends will enable predictions to be made by late tonight.

N.S. CCF LEADER—Michael McDonald, 43, leader of the two-man CCF representation in the last Nova Scotia legislature, is again leading his party to the polls in the province's election May 26.

of aggression has been committed which might have serious consequences for Thailand and the whole of Southeast Asia. These developments in Southeast Asia must cast doubt on Communist intentions."

The two leaders gave particular emphasis to the Russian peace offensive and concluded that "acts, not words, would be proof of Communist intentions." The invasion of the Indo-China state of Laos by Communist Vietminh forces disputes the honesty of the Red campaign for peace.

TRY TO RELAX TENSION

". . . While every effort should be made to bring about a relaxation of current tensions, the free nations could not afford to diminish their efforts toward the achievement of united strength and ability to meet aggression," the communique said.

St. Laurent and Eisenhower also agreed:

1. North American defence is important to the free world. Joint defences erected in Canada—presumably a reference to Canada's radar screen — under Canada-U.S. arrangements strengthened defences for both countries.

2. There is a need for maintaining the momentum of vigorous support for the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. Both countries will continue to do their "full share" to further NATO objectives.

3. Both countries will concentrate on the development of international trade.

In their joint communique, St. Laurent said he hoped the U.S. will play a role of leadership in the expansion and liberation of world trade. Eisenhower, in reply, said that as an interim step the U.S. administration has recommended to Congress a one-year renewal of the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act and intends to submit to Congress shortly administration proposals regarding customs simplification.

CRITICAL OF CUSTOMS

(Canada and other Western countries have been critical of U.S. customs procedure which allegedly has tended to restrict shipment of goods into the U.S.)

Eisenhower added that he has recommended to Congress the establishment of a commission to study all aspects of American economy so that "future policies will be comprehensive, constructive and consistent."

During a question period after his speech, St. Laurent said:

1. If and when the seaway is built, Canada will propose that an international body be set up to fix shipping tolls. The tolls would be equal for all countries.

2. Canada is ready to ship surplus natural gas into the United States just as soon as the federal power commission gives the go-ahead. An application for such shipment is before the commission.

NO BONES BROKEN

Eleven-year-old Zibie Ellis, of 245 Victoria St., Campbellford, is reported improving in Belleville Hospital where he was taken Wednesday afternoon after he was found lying unconscious beside his smashed bicycle. X-rays showed the boy had suffered no fractures and it is hoped the sight of his injured left eye can be saved. Believed to be the victim of a hit-and-run driver, he is suffering from concussion and bruises.

Role Of Reserve Important One —British Officer

Major A. P. Ward, a British exchange officer attached to the RCEME training school in Kingston, gave the men of the Peterborough unit of the RCEME an insight into some of the changes he has witnessed during the past ten years at their ninth annual dinner birthday celebration Friday night.

Major Ward went on to say that before the second world war in England the territorial army, or the reserve army as we know it, were considered the Saturday night soldiers. But when war came, they made up the bulk of the army in France and proved their worth.

It is rather hard to compare the British reserve army to Canada's said Major Ward, since Canada's units are spread over such a wide area compared to Englands reserve force, which is concentrated mostly around London.

The British REME unit is nearly as large as the Canadian Army as a whole and it is rather hard to get to know the various companies, said Major Ward.

In closing Major Ward stressed what a great importance a reserve army unit is. For foreign powers contemplating war will take into consideration the reserve army as well as the active force. It is one of the biggest safeguards in our defence system.

Howe Threatens Launch Action

OTTAWA (CP)—Trade Minister Howe today threatened to launch a criminal action against Percy Wright, CCF member of Parliament for Melfort in Saskatchewan, for "implying Roy Milner is a thief." Mr. Milner is transport controller and on leave of absence from the board of grain commissioners.

Mr. Howe appeared before the Commons agriculture committee to ask Mr. Wright to withdraw some remarks he made Friday night about Mr. Milner. Mr. Wright declined to withdraw them.

Mr. Wright had described Mr. Milner as like a man raising chickens—"he was interested in the chickens but he was interested in them for what he could get out of them." Mr. Wright's remarks were made during discussion of a request that Mr. Milner's leave of absence be accepted as permanent.

6 Minesweepers To Be Ordered From Shipyards

OTTAWA (CP)—Orders for six more navy minesweepers are expected to be placed shortly in Canadian shipyards.

The ships will replace vessels now being built that are to be turned over to other North Atlantic Treaty Organization countries.

The sweepers will cost roughly $2,300,000 apiece, the current price of late-ordered units in the 14-minesweeper program now under construction.

Deliveries of the new ships to the navy likely will take considerably more than a year. Eight of the sweepers in the present program are still on the stocks and six have been launched.

They are being built on the East and West Coasts, the Great Lakes and the St. Lawrence river. The allocation of the new order to different yards will be made by the Canadian maritime commission, as the warship program does not operate by tender.

PLACED IN TWO MONTHS

The orders likely will be placed within the next couple of months, according to information here.

The ships will be added to a navy-building program that now consists of 52 new vessels including the revolutionary destroyer escorts, harbor craft, patrol ships, diving vessels, a northern patrol ship and auxiliary craft.

Six of the minesweepers have been launched. The remainder are due to be launched this year.

Besides this work, several destroyers, minesweepers and frigates are being modernized in Canada and a new aircraft carrier—the Bonaventure—is under construction in Belfast.

Subversive Acts Prevent Entry

OTTAWA (CP) — Mrs. Monica Felton was refused admission to Canada because of her subversive associations, Immigration Minister Harris told the Commons today.

He said the British writer asked him to reverse a decision refusing to allow her to enter Canada to make a speaking tour but that he had decided "she doesn't have any special claim on Canadian hospitality."

He said the Canadian Immigration Act has long permitted the barring of persons considered subversive or who have subversive associations. He could have admitted her temporarily but didn't see why, when Canada was combatting subversive elements from within, she should allow in those who threatened her from without.

He said Mrs. Felton, who was going to speak under the auspices of the Red-tinged Canadian Peace Congress, went to North Korea in 1951 and that she was dismissed on her return from the municipal planning board for which she was working.

Britain's government had considered placing a charge of treason against her for a broadcast from Korea, but even though this had been decided against, Mrs. Felton still didn't seem to realize the help she had been to the Queen's enemies.

Coronation History To Be Shown In Films

Two outstanding films have been chosen for showing at the annual meeting of the Peterborough Film Council in the Public Library Tuesday night. The films are "Coronation Ceremony" and "Commonwealth and Nations."

The first film describes the ritual of this ceremony and tells of its origin and significance.

"Commonwealth and Nations" is a film story of the growth of the Commonwealth from the time when new ocean routes were charted to the new world, to its present development.

Other films will also be screened at this meeting and the election of officers held.

Crisis Approaching In Festival Plan

KITCHENER (CP) —A crisis in arrangements for the Shakespearian festival at Stratford may come to a head this week-end, it was reported here today.

Tom Patterson, general manager of the festival which will star British-actor Alex Guinness, estimated that $90,000 in additional donations may be needed to meet costs before the event opens in July.

Patterson reported total budget is $259,000. Stratford's 18,000 citizens have donated more than $40,000 while another $40,000 has been donated or pledged from other centres. Another $100,000 is expected from ticket sales leaving $90,000 to be raised to complete financing.

Committee Asks National TV

OTTAWA (CP)—The commons broadcasting committee today urged in a unanimous report development of a national television system as soon as possible in which the CBC and private stations play their part.

The report, tabled in the Commons by W. A. Robsinson (L—Simcoe East), chairman of the committee, said this method can best meet the objective of adequate production of Canadian programs and their country-wide distribution.

The report said:

"The committee noted with approval plans for the development of . . . a national program service serving both CBC stations and the private stations to be established in other areas.

"Through this form of 'partnership' some national program service will be made available to many more Canadians through the privately-owned stations and at the same time privately-owned stations will be assisted in their operations as well as having time for their programming."

Weekend Church Story:

Where St. Paul Wrote His Epistles

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D.

The zeal with which early Christians in various places treasured the letters that St. Paul wrote to them is evident in the way in which the New Testament Epistles have been preserved for us. We even have notes concerning their transmission and the places from which they were sent.

Considering all that has been lost of that ancient world, it is little short of a miracle that we should have these letters. They were written so long ago by an unknown Jew to groups of Christians who, in that vast pagan world, must have seemed unimportant to their contemporaries.

Yet how important and powerful in their growth and influence upon the world, even upon that Roman world, these groups of Christians became! And what an immense influence the Epistles of Paul, which were originally letters of friendly Christian counsel to his fellow-Christians, have had upon world history!

I have remarked upon the care and accuracy with which the Pauline Epistles have been preserved. The only doubt concerns the Epistle to the Hebrews. Not concerning the Epistle itself, but only the question whether Paul was its author.

In my copy of the King James Bible that is at hand as I write, its title reads: "The Epistle of Paul the Apostle to the Hebrews." But from early days in the church, while the Epistle was accepted as genuine, doubt was expressed regarding its authorship and one eminent leader in the early church said that only God knew who wrote it.

I am not a scholar, though I once took a prize for New Testament Greek, but I believe that it is the prevailing opinion among Bibical scholars today that the Epistle to the Hebrews was not among those that Paul wrote.

The epistles in our New Testament are not in the order in which Paul wrote them. The earliest seem to have been I and II Thesalonians. My King James Version says they were written from Athens, but at least two Bible dictionaries say they were written from Corinth. Paul spent considerable periods of time at Ephesus and Corinth, and these cities, with Philippi and Athens, were so closely related to Paul's journeys that he might well have written from any one of them.

We are on surer ground when we consider the so-called "Epistles of the Imprisonment," Ephesians, Colossians, Philemon and Philippians, which he wrote during the two years he was a prisoner in Rome, even though in the comparative freedom of his own house (Act 28:30). Later Epistles were also apparently written from Rome during a second imprisonment.

Curve Lake Indian Recalls 84 Years Spent In Bush

By NICK NICKELS

An old Mississauga Indian, Alfred Coppaway, sat outside his modest home Thursday in the warm May sun. It was his 84th birthday. Blue Buckhorn Lake stretched away to the north and its shores showed a wash of new greenery and there was a fine smell of spring everywhere. Mr. Coppaway sensed this and, though he has been totally blind for the past 15 years and cannot see the new spring, his memory was long and accurate. The lakes and woods provided him with a living for as many years as he can remember.

ONLY CHILD

Mr. Coppaway was born in Hiawatha, son of the late Richard Coppaway and Sarah Spencer, an only child. For all that, he is the sire of a large family, four daughters and one son, 39 great-grandchildren and 36 grandchildren. His son George who was drowned two years ago this summer was Chief of the Reservation for six years and the present Chief, James—said to be the youngest Indian Chief in Canada—is his grandson.

His daughters are Mrs. Percy Nicholls (Luella), Peterborough; Mrs. Wesley Beaver (Clara), Clarkson; Mrs. George Henry Taylor (Esther) and Mrs. George Sunday (Flora), both of Curve Lake. His only son living is Elwood, also of the reservation.

A riverman on lumber drives and tugboats, Alfred Coppaway is a link with the past pioneer lumbering industry of this district. He followed spring log drives without number and recalls one epic occasion when he drove 30,000 logs from the east side of Algonquin Park to Healey Falls; it lasted seven and one-half months and ended at the destination at freeze-up.

Eleven seasons on the J. E. A. Fitzgerald cordwood tug "Ajax"; other seasons with Rathburns, Cavendish Lumber, the Dixon Company and Alfred MacDonald. He knew them all.

NO SCHOOLING

His one regret is that he never learned to read or write. "I could have had captain's papers," he said. He turned toward the noise from the Federal Indian schoolyard and smiled as if to say, 'Those kids are getting something more than they realize now.'

Today he is upright and robust with the stature and weather-lined face of a lumberjack with a thick thatch of white hair. He is reasonably happy but finds his blindness makes him very lonely, that and the missing companionship of his wife, the former Ellen Taylor; she died three years ago.

He has a strong merry laugh and loves people to visit and talk with him. He does most of the talking. His family celebrated his natal day with a quiet party and he looks forward to another party next year.

LOWEST-PRICED V-8 OF ALL!

FORD

GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY OF THE GREATEST NAME IN MOTORING

V-8 type engines set today's performance standard.

In the last five years alone, six manufacturers have switched to V-8 power in their more expensive models. And while other makers are now beginning to recognize the advantages of V-8 Engine design, Ford continues to offer V-8's in all models . . . and Ford alone offers V-8 in the low-price field. No other V-8 engine is so well-tried and proven as Ford's power-packed high-compression Strato-Star V-8. Today, four out of every five V-8's are Ford V-8's . . . for Ford has manufactured more V-8's than all other manufacturers combined.

A V-8 engine means a shorter engine under the hood—more room in the car for passengers—instant response, smooth, dependable power, longer life, economy of operation, flashing performance. That's why Ford is worth more when you buy it—worth more when you sell it.

Yes, Ford has pioneered the development of the V-8 for more than twenty years and has constantly improved it until today V-8 power is the accepted performance standard of the automotive industry.

Coronation Plans?

Unless it has been conferring secretly in some garret, the Coronation Committee of the city of Peterborough has not met this week. True, a meeting was scheduled, but it was postponed. Thus we have a continuing demonstration of the enthusiastic interest of the Committee charged with devising and co-ordinating Peterborough's civic celebration on Tuesday, June second. There has been no meeting of the Committee since we discussed the whole matter a week ago. In all there have been, since the Committee was established, a couple of meetings at which a remarkable amount of nothing was accomplished. May we remind the Committee and their fellow-citizens, that Coronation Day is little more than three weeks away?

* * *

Here, it seems to us, are some of the items the Committee has left undone or undecided. Is it to be a one-day or two-day or three-day celebration? When, in the opinion of the Committee, should decorations be put up—the night before, the day after, or perhaps as early as the Victoria Day holiday? Have merchants and industries been given any co-ordinating advice on decorations? Have private citizens received any helpful encouragement and suggestions so that residential streets will present a gay and pleasing appearance? Have clubs, societies and other public groups been approached, except to be asked to send representatives to the Coronation Committee meetings which have not been held? Is any communal entertainment planned—street dancing, fun fairs, grandstand performances, air force demonstrations, sports? What provision is being made to make the day memorable for children? And is there to be any celebration at all before nightfall, ten o'clock, when many of the children have gone to bed?

* * *

Perhaps the committee will take heart—and action—now that it knows that the entire staff of the Canadian General Electric Company will be on holiday, as well as workers in some other establishments. The CGE company's generous and patriotic grant of the day off with pay may stimulate civic enthusiasm and dry the wet cloth in the hands of the officials who are expected to plan the coronation celebrations. The postponed meeting of the committee is scheduled to be held next Tuesday. We hope that it will be largely attended. It is also to be hoped that everybody attending will bring to it energy, ideas and a real desire to make the celebration in Peterborough worthy of the city and the great occasion. There is still time to do a creditable job if everybody goes at it speedily with a right good will.

Two Billion Pounds Of Canadian Fish

The Minister of Fisheries, the Hon. James Sinclair, spoke in Peterborough this week about fish and fisheries. He told his audience flatly that we should eat more fish. His reasons were economic rather than nutritional or gustatory.

Canadians and Americans are the heaviest eaters in the world. They consume an average of 1,500 pounds of food each year. Yet only fourteen pounds of this are fish. In Europe, people eat less food but more fish—twenty-eight pounds a head. In Norway and Japan the people eat about seventy pounds of fish each, annually.

What has this to do with Canadians eating more fish? Understandably in a maritime country where fish are common and cheap and flesh is dear, people will eat more fish than in a continental country. People en masse eat and drink mostly what is found near home, which they can produce themselves. (Hence Canadians eat wheat bread and drink whisky. Italians eat spaghetti and drink wine.)

Mr. Sinclair's point was that fish are not foreign to Canada. The present commercial catch it about two billion pounds a year, and the fisheries' and canneries' output is valued at two hundred million dollars. Fish is a large economic item in Canada, whether inlanders believe it or not and despite the lack of enthusiastic Canadian palates. There is a large export sale, and two of the greatest fishing grounds in the world lie in Canadian waters—the Grand Banks off Newfoundland, and the North Pacific grounds off B.C. But if Canadian fisheries are really to play their full part in Canadian life, Canadian people will have to eat more fish. That is, the domestic market must grow. Mr. Sinclair said: "If we raise our consumption of fish by a pound per person per year the markt problem of the fishing industry in Canada will be largely solved."

A pound more per person is not much to ask of the average Canadian mouth. Patriotism could demand no smaller sacrifice. But people's eating habits are conservative, slow to change. True, they have changed very greatly in the last two decades, but it is a change more in style than in substance. Instead of salt pork people eat spam—which is reputedly still pork. Instead of dried peas they eat frozen peas—but still peas. Instead of hash they eat potato salad.

We think that what the fishermen and those who worry about them must do is to change the style in which fish reach the market and table. Frozen fish, attractively parcelled; tantalizing varieties of fish; more alluring tins of fish. Changes are now being made, as our food stores show, and we think that people are eating more fish than formerly because of this.

Most of Canada is continental, not maritime. The fisheries are in the main concentrated on the two extreme coasts. Meat, not fish, is still our natural and nearest red-blooded food. To overcome the land barrier to more fish-eating in this country, the speediest and best methods of shipment will have to be employed, as well as the packaging improved. If we in this city could get P.E.I. lobster and Restigouche salmon fresh daily and at reasonable prices, Mr. Sinclair's goal of a pound a year more would soon be realized in these parts.

Another change is desirable. Sporting fishermen speak with drooling tongues of having "a mess of fish." It sounds good in the camp, but when a mess of fish is produced on the table of most city homes, it looks what it sounds—a mess. Our people will have to learn to cook fish better and more tastefully before it is appreciated by the family. To effect this, some indoctrination is needed, some instruction. Inland people are not used to cooking fish well; they will have to be taught. We suggest to Mr. Sinclair that his department might consider putting teams of lovely fish-cookers (young, personable and persuasive) on the road as drummers. Let them ply the highways and byways in inland Canada with their pans, delectable fish and winning ways and teach wives to cook fish and husbands to love it, and children to cry for the tasty morsels.

After all, fish are said to be good brain food. Is this not a basic attraction to Canadians?

Depends Which Side Of The Canadian Face Talks

We hope that President Eisenhower did not see our front page yesterday. There is little reason to think that he did, but he may have seen some Canadian paper yesterday with the same two reports in them.

One report came from Washington, where Prime Minister St. Laurent was engaging in talks with the President. The report stated that the Canadian Prime Minister made a fervent plea against the growth of American protectionism. "Unless the national economies of the free world can be made and kept healthy and productive, communism could win a bloodless victory without any war, hot or cold." Thus Mr. St. Laurent on the need and reasons for the United States removing barriers to trade with Canada and other countries. This aspect of Mr. St. Laurent's mission has been heartily endorsed by all Canada.

The other Canadian Press report in yesterday's paper came from Ottawa. "Cuba Won't Ship Sugar To Canada." Why not? Because special Canadian interests have lobbied the Government at Ottawa for months. They have protested that imports of Cuban sugar were ruining the business of Ontario sugar-beet growers and Canadian refineries. They meant, of course, that they wanted protection against competition, which might interfere with their profits. This insistent lobby finally overcame government resistance. So no sugar will be imported from Cuba this year at all.

We do not say that the Canadian Government has banned the import of sugar from Cuba. Oh, no. Mr. Howe, Minister of Trade, is too smart to be caught in a barefaced act like that. The Department of Trade has been beating the drum for fewer embargoes and lower tariffs against Canadian goods in world markets. It could not be as brassy therefore as to turn around and slap an embargo down on Cuban sugar. A little quiet pressure and under-the-counter dealing must have gone on to persuade the Cuban government to cut off its own export of sugar to Canada. In effect, then, an embargo has been put on Cuban sugar at the very time that Canada in Washington is protesting American embargoes against Canadian goods.

So we hope that President Eisenhower did not see yesterday's Canadian newspaper reports. He would have got a curious picture of Canada talking out of both sides of its mouth in exactly contrary language.

NOTES AND COMMENT

The American Feline Society wants the Eisenhowers to instal a family of cats in the White House. Anybody smell a rat?

It is reported that of the ten butcher shops which specialized in the sale of horsemeat in British Columbia, only one remains. Scarcity of horse meat, no doubt.

The Journal of Samuel Marchbanks

SUNDAY: Found myself among a group of painters, all of whom were keenly interested in what they called Abstracts. An Abstract, I was surprised to find, is simply a picture of something which does not represent it as it appears to be in Nature, but presents certain forms and colours which are inherent in it but which are not apparent to the casual glance. The reason for my surprise is that I have been drawing pictures of this sort for many years, but I have always called them Abjects, because they look so miserable. I am not one of your la-di-dah sketchers, who fusses about catching a likeness; I am content to capture the soul of my subject in the fewest lines possible. When the sketch is finished I know what it means, if no one else does. I draw Abjects all day, but particularly during telephone conversations; I like to dash off an impression of the person on the other end of the line. I never exhibit my stuff; my Abjects are a purely personal form of art.

✧ ✧ ✧

MONDAY: Was talking to my dentist today, but not in the usual unsatisfactory position, with his hands in my mouth, ready to silence me whenever he wants to say something. We met on equal ground. After a while the conversation turned to the movies and I was astonished at the intimate knowledge he displayed of the teeth of a number of celebrated players. "But how do you know her teeth are capped?" I enquired, referring to a Big Name in Hollywood. "Well," said he, "so many movies are dull that I withdraw my attention from the plot and watch the dentition of the actors. It is a fascinating study. The work is often wonderful, but if you watch long enough, you will see certain tricks which the actors play with their tongues which gives away the fact that their teeth have been ground down and fitted with handsome caps." This staggered me. I suppose that bored doctors at the movies pass the time by diagnosing the stars, guessing at their inmost secrets. These professional men have a lot of fun which we of the laity know nothing about.

TUESDAY: I see that there has been a fuss because a woman juror in an Ontario court has obeyed a perfectly natural instinct and phoned one of the lawyers in a case which she was listening to and told him that she thought his address to the court was simply wonderful. She has been accused of showing a partiality unbecoming a juror, but I think this is hypocrisy. Didn't the lawyer want her, and the eleven who sat with her to think that he was simply wonderful? Having achieved his end, is it not rank ingratitude to make the poor woman miserable because she yielded to his charms? Why not face the fact that a trial is, to a striking degree, a popularity contest. The contending counsel do their best to woo both judge and jury, and distract attention from the often unprepossessing characters of their clients. The lawyer with the flashing smile and the ready wit is quite as likely to win as the less attractive lawyer with a good argument. Now that women are on juries this element in the law is strengthened, for women are franker in admitting their reasons for doing things than men are. Both men and women are apt to do something for a man if they like his face, but only women will admit it.

WEDNESDAY: For nearly twelve years the Towers has been visited, once a week by a man who has a cunning way with hens, and who brings me eggs. During all that time I can only recall receiving one egg which was not a beauty; it was a freak egg which any hen might lay if her mind was disturbed, or if she were suffering from cold roosts, or felt the pip coming on. But I find that I am very much a junior among his customers; he has supplied eggs to some lucky families for nearly a quarter of a century. I find such relationships comforting and even inspiring; they supply a stability to life which it sadly needs. I know that, short of the falling of an atomic bomb (which a hen would certainly resent) the eggs will arrive, and they will be good. This is no trifling matter, for eggs are basic; no eggs, no cooking. Nobody has ever found a way to fake an egg, or do without eggs, or produce something by machinery which is better than what the hen produces by trudging patiently around the fowl-yard, pecking short-sightedly at the ground. It was no accident that in the early history of mankind the egg was chosen as a symbol of resurrection and immortality.

THURSDAY: A very large, power-driven roller visited the Towers today to flatten the rolling hill country which I call my lawn. The roller had a boastful look, somehow; it seemed to say, "Show me a lump and I'll flatten it." I wished the roller well, but I was not over-confident, for I know my lawn, and I have proved by excavation that there are rocks as big as Gibraltar not far below its surface. The roller set out confidently, but soon it began to grunt, and now and then I could hear a crash, as though an irresistible force were having a difference of opinion with an immoveable object. After a while the roller went away, with some new dents in it, and when I examined my lawn it had a slightly tamed look, but all its most famous hills and dales were precisely where they had been before. I suppose the lawn and the big roller mean to fight it out all summer, while I pay for their fun.

FRIDAY: Within the past five weeks I have seen an uncommon number of pictures of Royalty, and it is with difficulty that I restrain myself from saying that I have viewed Royalty in every conceivable costume and posture. But this would not be true. One does not see Royalty in its bathing-suit — or at least, only carefully selected Royalty. I have seen Prince Philip in bathing trunks, but if the Queen bathes it is under heavy guard. Such a proceeding with not be without precedent; her illustrious ancestor, George IV, not only bathed with a guard of soldiers on the beach, but with a band playing cheerful airs as he swam. Nor does one see pictures of Royalty eating, drinking or smoking. It is true that a picture of Princess Margaret smoking a cigarette appeared recently in at least one Canadian paper, but by the time the picture was widely distributed the cigarette had been removed from it. Smoking might give offence to some people, but surely even the sternest moralist recognizes the fact that Royalty eats? Yet they are never photographed while doing it, and perhaps with good reason. The noblest and most beautiful of us are not at our best while hoisting a loaded fork.

✧ ✧ ✧

SATURDAY: Upon the whole I disapprove of people who write in books, but occasionally I am moved to do so myself. At present I am busily reading a vast work by a French woman, on the subject of Women in general. It is a remarkable book, but it is full of notions which I am eager to confute, and the only way I can have my say is by writing short letters to the author in the margins. There was a time when I made extensive use of a public library, and I recall that many of the books were full of annotations, in which angry people had quarreled not only with the author, but with one another. The most extraordinary case of writing in a book that I know of took place at Oxford, where a girl undergraduate secured permission to study an unique manuscript in the Bodleian Library and — moved by Heaven knows what elfin spirit — drew a funny face in the margin of it with a pencil! She was fined £250 and expelled from the University. They have a short way with such readers in the Bodleian. I do not suppose that my notes add anything to the book I am at present reading, but they help me to vent my spleen, which is always worth while.

BLOODROOT

When April winds arrive
And the soft rains are here,
Some morning by the roadside
These gypsy folk appear.

We never see their coming,
However sharp our eyes;
Each year as if by magic
They take us by surprise.

Along the ragged woodside
And by the green spring-run,
Their small white heads are nodding
And twinkling in the sun.

They crowd across the meadow
In innocence and mirth,
As if there were no sorrow
In all the lovely earth.

So frail, so unregarded,—
And yet about them clings
That exquisite perfection,
The soul of common things!

Think you the springing pastures
Their starry vigil kept,
To hear along the midnight
Some message, while we slept?

How else should spring requicken
Such glory in the sod?
I guess that trail of beauty
Is where the angel trod.

BLISS CARMAN.

Key To Seaway Impasse

(OTTAWA CITIZEN)

WHEN the matter of the St. Lawrence seaway and power scheme was raised again in the Commons recently, Mr. Rodney Adamson of York West wondered whether the government had set a deadline "beyond which the patience of Canada will not be extended." The Prime Minister simply said, "No." There was not much else he could have said to that particular question. It would matter little whether Canada's patience were exhausted next week, or whether it had already run out months ago; in neither case can the project go ahead without certain definite actions within the United States.

It is not the renewed attempt in Congress to form a belated partnership with Canada on the navigation end that holds up construction. The key to the locked door rests at the moment in the hands of the U.S. Federal Power Commission, which has yet to rule on the State of New York Power Authority's application to develop energy in the International Rapids section of the river in conjunction with Ontario Hydro. Changes in Commission personnel are the probable reason for the latest delay.

After the FPC has made its decision — and assuming this is in favour of the New York body — the key will then in all probability pass to the American lobby groups which are determined to thwart at every turn the combined St. Lawrence development. These railway, port and other interests have lain happily dormant for months on end, for as long as nothing was being done there was nothing they need do. It seems hardly likely that the last word has been heard from them.

On the other hand, the project, both as to navigation and power, has strong supporters within the U.S., including the administration itself. It must be assumed that they, too, are finding their patience strained.

The immediate question is not whether Canada and the U.S. should decide to build the navigation works jointly after all, or whether there should be an all-Canadian canal, or whether (as Mr. Chevrier suggests) there might be two separate canals as at the Soo. The question is whether the river level is to be raised for the production of 2,200,000 horsepower of electric energy. When that is decided, the seaway can follow without impediment.

THE R.C.M.P. ARRIVE IN ENGLAND

"Whatever you do, don't let her know the Mounties haven't 'got their man' on a horse for years."

A-F-I-E-L-D with NICK NICKELS

Things have been so hectic and newsy this past week that I can do little more than leaf through the pages of my fly-book diary for daily entries. Here goes.

SUNDAY: Was quietly doing some preliminary work on our pergola (arbour, bower, patio or what have you) when the vanguard of weekend trout fishermen came to show me their spotted prizes. Morley Ward and Jim Huggins with a basketful of dandies from North Haliburton; they took them all on Half-waves, spinning. A few minutes later Jim and Ted Constable and Don Webb rolled in with two cars, and lots of trout — three lakers — from L'Amble Lake country, east of Bancroft. They didn't leave any for our larder no matter how much I praised their catches. Went to bed dreaming of trout.

MONDAY: My day off, but not from work. Went back again at the trellis affair and dangled from the flimsy rafters while the Canada geese streamed north over the Otonabee water route. Counted 17 separate flocks within 70 minutes, all very low. The honkers flew in straight and crooked V's, double V's, and Lazy-Z formations with flock outriders by the score and some leaders so far ahead they flew within the V-notch of the flock ahead . . . Rev. Charles Richmond of Omemee took along his trout rod while visiting shut-ins, stopped at a likely stream by the road and snaffled a 2½-pound Brown . . . Trent Canal's genial maintenance supervisor Jim McGrath caught a banded tree swallow at the Lock shops in East City.

TUESDAY: Back to work in the city to compile the wanderings of my trout-fishing friends over the weekend; they ranged far afield.

Johnny Russelle, Ken Doughty, Dave Wilson, Dave Foster and some out-of-towners took 58 speckles in two days several air-miles north-east of Kaladar . . . Reports from the Denbigh country weren't so hot . . . Up around Lake St. Peter district were Babe Fontaine and Claire Connelly with fair luck; Art Fraser and Stringer of Bancroft, (less said the better) . . . Ditto for John (Finnigan) Hill and Johnny Young . . . Wally Young and Clarence Hines at Napes Lake, North Hastings; they were satisfied and so was Reg Faryon and son off along Highway 62 . . . Jim Wharry warned me he would have some Moby Dick stories come Tuesday, lakers that they have been fedding oats and hay all winter, but not puffed wheat; must check with him.

Several phone calls that 13 flights of Canada geese had landed from the north on Chemong Lake. Taxied up to give a look and, with Ed Sullivan as canoe bowman, borrowed a boat from the Jimmy Buchanans and tried to get within picture-shooting distance. They showed us their sterns, about 3,000 of them. We paddled three miles, in all, with little results.

To a job in Millbrook in the afternoon and was going to call on my old friend Hughie Blair, but didn't. (Word next day that he died suddenly while at supper the evening before.)

To a great wing-ding dinner at night, the 25th birthday party of Outboard Marine Company. Finished a large meal followed by sea-lampreys, a lecture on them, that is, by Federal fisheries minister Jimmy Sinclair. Tuesday was verily a full day and night double shift.

WEDNESDAY: To Curve Lake Indian reservation to talk with old Alf Coppaway, 84, to watch Mrs. Tom Taylor make birchbark and porcupine quill baskets and to look over the new Council Hall . . . To Buckhorn to chase a party who wasn't there so gabbed with Tommy Mason in his storehouse, a pleasant interlude. . . . Kids came running in the evening to say that a whole lot of people were shooting bows and arrows up on the Park commons. They were 16 archers and archeresses of the Peterborough Archery Club, decked in Sherwood green and all that. They could shoot too and did so until it was too dark to see the targets. It was their first outing of the season, said spokesman Don Wood.

Accomplished little of the trellis work while admiring a beautiful sunset. Blackflies gave me an excuse to quit work.

THURSDAY: Our business office folk cussed me out for all the trouble they went to to clear a Cellulite bait bucket through the customs. A pressed paper affair which says on the lid "actually breathes and keeps bait three to ten times longer without changing water". My confreres suggest that I wear it for a sou'-wester or keep beer cool in it; will report on its ultimate usefulness later in the season.

Looked in at the city liquor store to admire the outdoorsy decor on the otherwise bare walls; mounted fish of all kinds, deer heads, a bear hide and vacationland pictures. They should have some mounted pickerel and bass specimens to round out their attractive display; repeat, attractive.

FRIDAY: Campbellford's correspondent comes up with a story of a beaver jam. Assistant night copper Baird on his nightly prowl came across a full-grown beaver crossing the main traffic intersection against the traffic light that obviously warned "stop", even to a beaver. Another wanderer, mate of the first one, followed; they were directed into the nearby river for their own safety.

SATURDAY: Trees are bursting into foliage all over the country and so are caterpillar nests in wayside plum trees; makes us think of the scourge to come and methods of localizing the pest. . . . Some trout fishermen are still fuzzy about catch limits and, in looking some recent ones over, think they may have erred on the generous side, to themselves; 15 fish or ten pounds, says the law . . . Back to my trellis project until fishermen start calling sometime on Sunday. My diary ends.

Payroll Of Kawartha Area Hundred Million Dollars

Ed. Note: This is the second and concluding part of a survey article on the Kawartha Lakes region, prepared by the Ontario Bureau of Statistics. It is printed here by permission of the Bureau. The article summarizes the economic trends and conditions of four counties of this district.

MANUFACTURING

The Kawartha Lakes Region lies at the eastern end of Canada's most highly industrialized area extending around the end of Lake Ontario, as far as Niagara. One of the examples of the interdependence of the various parts of this area is the existence of McKinnon Industries in St. Catharines (Niagara), a wholly-owned subsidiary of General Motors in Oshawa. Oshawa is linked closer to this likeshore development because of its location and dependence on one major industry, and consequently has grown faster than Peterborough in the period 1939-49. Manufacturing in Peterborough is more diversified resulting in greater stability. The products of both centres are marketed throughout Canada. The two cities have enjoyed above average increases in population and the value of production during the post-war years. Oshawa's increase of 323% was fifth among the larger centres of the Province.

The city of Oshawa is one of the three great automobile centres in Ontario and Canada. The industrial growth of the city reflects the expansion of the industry during the war and post-war periods. In 1949, Oshawa ranked fourth in Ontario and eighth in Canada on the basis of the gross value of manufactured products. One motor company, General Motors, accounts for virtually all the production, although there are approximately fifty manufacturing plants. The products include safety glass, textiles, castings, stampings and leather. Many of these products are used in the fabrication of motor vehicles, and firms supplying them are wholly or partially dependent on the fortunes of the automobile industry.

OSHAWA

There appears to be no geographical reason for Oshawa's development as a manufacturing centre. Windsor and Hamilton are more likely centres. The location of Oshawa on Lake Ontario is of minor importance—there are several ports on the lake with better harbours. Credit must be given to the pioneers of the industry whose initiative and technical skill made development possible. The forerunner was a carriage shop which was converted to manufacture of automobiles in 1915.

Employees in Oshawa's factories total 14,800 of whom 10,100 work for the motor company, and an additional 1,500 for companies supplying parts and materials. The gross value of their production exceeded $157.7 million in 1949, the highest in the Region.

PETERBOROUGH

Peterborough, located on the Otonabee River, is served by both railways and two provincial highways. The settlement began as a milling centre, utilizing the fall of the river for power, and became important as a lumbering town. It enjoyed the railway and canal booms and prospered. Livestock raised on the farms surrounding the centre gave rise to a meat packing plant. The proximity of Peterborough to the popular Kawartha Lakes gave emphasis to the tourist trade and even influenced manufacturing, evidenced by the fact that the city has two canoe companies and Canada's only outboard motor factory.

The Otonabee River, which falls almost 300 feet as it approaches the city, was harnessed as a source of hydro electricity when manufacturing displaced lumbering in importance. This gave the community a head start in industrial development. The main works of Canada's largest manufacturer of electrical apparatus, Canadian General Electric Company is located there. The rapid growth of the electrical apparatus industry over the last decade has been reflected in the above-average intercensal population increase of Peterborough. This remains true even taking into account the increase due to the annexation of adjoining township land by the city.

Diversity of products is characteristic of Peterborough in spite of the large size of the electrical apparatus firm. Products include cereals, meat packing, outboard motors, canoes and boats, clocks, textiles and carpets.

The gross value of the products of Peterborough's one hundred factories exceeded $100 million in 1949. Approximately 9,600 employees were engaged in manufacturing in that year.

OTHER CENTRES

There are other important but much smaller manufacturing centres in the Kawartha Lakes Region. Three of these, Port Hope, Bowmanville, and Cobourg are located on the lake where both railways and the highway pass. These transportation facilities have been valuable assets for industrial development. The famed Eldorado Refinery refines radium in Port Hope. There are a number of small industries, including a sanitary fixtures factory.

Bowmanville's first industry was a lumber mill, but at present it is best known for its woodworking and cabinet factories. Other industries include rubber products and iron castings. Cobourg is the site of the army's new $13 million ordinance depot. The town has been important as a distributing centre since the Loyalist settlers entered Upper Canada. Present industries include plastics, iron castings, small arms, furniture and food concentrates. The G.V.P. exceeded $7.7 million in 1949.

Lindsay, located inland on the Scugog River is served by both railways. The town grew, like Peterborough, as a milling centre for grain and lumber. In recent years a number of industries have established there, notably woodworking and furniture factories. A government-owned munitions plant is located in the town. The G.V.P. in 1949 was approximately seven million dollars.

An interesting feature in the Kawartha Lakes Region is the development of a former war industry site into a manufacturing centre. Ajax is an example of a new and fully planned community building up around a core of industry. Road and rail transportation serve the industries, but harbour facilities are not available. The lake appears to be unimportant except as a source of water. Most of the seventeen firms located there manufacture iron and steel products, but the chemical industry is also represented.

EMPLOYMENT

Separate employment indexes are not available for Oshawa and Peterborough, but the regional employment index for the Kawartha Lakes Region over 1952 facturing employment in the indicates a variation of 12.5% in employment, about double the variation in the Province as a whole in 1952. The average during the latter year was 213.5, or an increase of 113.5% over 1939 which is greater than the provincial increase. The pace of industrial activity in the Region slackened in 1952 as compared to 1951 when the average employment index was 220.8. Employment during the last six months of 1952 exceeded 1951, however, and the present picture looks encouraging.

There were three new industries established in the Region in 1952, two of which located in Oshawa and one in Peterborough. Plant additions were numerous, including a ten million dollar truck assembly line in Oshawa.

MINING

The value of mineral production in the Kawartha Lakes Region in 1951 amounted to $2.7 million almost half of which was attributable to the mining of nepheline syenite in Peterborough county. This material is used extensively in the glass and ceramic industries. The only Canadian producer, American Nepheline Limited is located in Methuen township, Peterborough county. The ore is hauled by truck from the mine to the mill at Lakefield whence it is shipped as glass sand, or further ground for the ceramic trade. The value of nepheline syenite mined increased from $37,426 in 1936 to $292,010 in 1943 and $1,115,000 in 1951. Approximately 115 men are employed in this industry.

Granite and limestone were mined in 1951 to a value of $835,000 in Peterborough and Victoria counties. Sand, gravel and clay products comprise the remaining mineral production in the Kawartha Lakes Region. Preliminary work is being done on a lead-zinc mine in Victoria county.

(This is the second and final instalment of the Ontario Bureau of Statistics' survey of the Kawartha Lakes region).

RAILWAY PROGRESS: The CPR and CNR stations in Peterborough. Two weeks ago on this page were photographs of nearby rural and village stations, showing how little they have changed in the last sixty or seventy years. The above pictures show that even in the city there has been little change, for if you examine them closely you will note that they were not taken this year. At the CPR station you may discern at the left a horse-drawn stage coach. At the CNR station you will see a man in a high collar and old-fashioned bowler hat. These photographs were taken forty years ago, but they could have been taken yesterday, if the bowler and the state coach were removed. Buildings are the same, and the equipment is much the same, now to serve a population of 40,000 as then to serve a population of 20,000. Actually (although the Examiner has no photographs to prove it) the stations have changed little since the 1890's, when they served a population of 10,000.

Peterborough In The Seventies

By "COMMENTATOR"

(Ed. Note: This interesting account of Peterborough in the seventies was written a dozen years ago by a former resident of Peterborough who has died since. We print them almost unedited from the typewritten manuscript. They are personal memoirs, and subject to the writer's prejudices, views and sometimes unprecise memory of the events and people of eighty years ago. The Examiner does not vouch for their accuracy of detail).

NEWSPAPERS AND PRINTERS

Peterborough at this time had three daily papers as well as weeklies. The Examiner and Review were evening papers, the Times a morning paper. All three appeared prosperous. The Stratton family ran the Examiner in my time, they were supporters of the Reform party. Mr. Stratton Sr. was a strong temperance man but the boys supported the Moderation League when they took over. It was said that the Strattons were originally Tories. The Hon. J. R. Stratton was Liberal member of the Legislature for West Peterborough. For a long time he was Provincial Secretary in the Ross Government. J. R. had few enemies; he was not a partison. A Tory would get a fair deal with him. He was a good administrator and progressive.

Ab. Stratton was a younger brother and popular with all classes. Another brother was a lawyer, a leading lawyer and a member of the legal firm of Stratton & Hall. The Review was run by the Whites and R. Romaine was manager. The Whites moved to Montreal and became prominent and famous in Canadian affairs. W. H. Robertson ran the Times, the morning newspaper. Toker and Co. were printers and publishers.

PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS

Dr. Harvey was one of the first doctors in the town and lived to a great age. He had a large practice and was brought in by other doctors in serious cases for consultation. Dr. John O'Sullivan was Liberal member for West Peterborough for a time. He had a large town and country practice, perhaps a hundred or more waiting to see him during his office hours; generally he had an assistant doctor in the dispensary. He had a coachman and grooms and often a change of horses three times a day.

Dr. King was one of the younger doctors, likewise Dr. Sproule. Dr. Kincaid had a large practice and large financial interests and real estate holdings in Peterborough. Dr. Burnham was famous as a surgeon, ditto Dr. Boucher. Dr. Burritt became one of the leading doctors in Canada. He was a great horseman, liked a fast horse, had a large stall, had coachmen, grooms, carriages and vehicles of all kinds.

Dr. Nimmo was the family dentist; his charges were moderate. For a family often for one year he might charge ten dollars or less. Not all doctors were dentists at that time, many were licentiates. David Pentland was well known and had a large practice. Dr. McMurty was the youngest dentist in Peterborough.

COAL AND WOOD

James Stevenson was the leading coal and wood dealer, not many burned coal. Some thought hard coal would not burn; even the railway locomotives burned wood. Green wood, birch and maple, in the winter time could be bought as low as three to four dollars a cord delivered at your door.

A large cord 8 ft. long, 4 feet high and 4 feet wide. Hard coal was as low as $5 a ton, a large ton being 2,240 lbs. In our first coal stoves we burned nut coal. It was not delivered; we had to pick it up with the station waggon, a barrel of two at a time. James Stevenson was also head of the

Your Garden:

Value Of Sludge And Manure For Soil

BY HENRY PREE (NEA)

The annual question as to the value of sewage sludge in the garden or for top-dressing the lawn is near the top of my daily list of garden questions.

Sludge has a little fertilizer value, and because it is about 40% organic it can be classed as a welcome addition to the soil. However, in my opinion, its value is less than a third that of manure.

Sludge is the solid material remaining after sewage has passed through the disposal plant. The process by which sewage becomes sludge is rathed complicated, but it goes something like this:

The sewage is pumped into large tanks and, through bacterial and other processes, is digested into gases and the residue squeezed dry and becoming a solid, nearly half of which is organic. This solid, which we call sludge, contains approximately 2% nitrogen, 1% phosphoric acid and 1% potash.

This analysis indicates that it has little so-called "food value" and that considerable commercial fertilizer should be added to have it qualify as being worth the hauling.

This gardener recommends that it be worked into the soil as soon as possible or added to the compost pile. To be of value the sludge should immediately become a part of the soil and not used for mulching shrub and flower beds or top-dressing the lawn.

Sewage sludge is excellent for building up the vegetable garden soil and should be spread out a couple of inches deep, sprinkled with a complete fertilizer and then thoroughly worked into the top six to eight inches of soil.

Horse manure is the most valuable, as it is quickest to decompose. However, it is rather scarce and cow or other manures are acceptable substitutes.

Hen and poultry manures are rich in plant nutrients but should be mixed with humus and soil because they will damage plants if applied fresh.

Manure, and especially well-rotted cow manure, is highly recommended as the best means of improving unsatisfactory soils in the rose garden. To whatever humus is used, be sure to add some fertilizer at the rate of three to four pounds per 100 square feet.

Incidentally, manure, sludge or humus in any form, worked into the subsoil of a new lawn before the topsoil is applied, not only breaks up the clay soil but provides a better growing medium for the grass roots.

Manure or sludge worked into subsoil breaks up clay and provides good root medium.

Another advantage of applying manure to the subsoil is that the topsoil will smother any weed seeds.

The gardener must remember that the chief benefit of manure is as a soil conditioner and as such must actually be mixed with the soil. Surface dressings are more apt to do harm than good.

Gardening Questions

Q—We plan to fertilize our shade trees. What is the recommended amount?

A—A general rule is to use three pounds of a 5-10-5, 4-12-4 or 6-10-4 fertilizer for each inch of trunk diameter, measured waist high. Be sure to get it deep into the soil, 15 inches or deeper.

Q—Our daughter is to be married in June. What flowers can be depended upon to be in bloom?

A—Among the perennials that should be in bloom are columbine, Canterbury bell, Shasta daisy, delphinium, geum, day lilies, iris, peonies, Oriental poppy, lilies in variety, roses and garden pinks.

Q—Is it possible for the home gardener to propagate rhododendrons from cuttings?

A—While commercial nurserymen do propagate from leaf cuttings, it is a job for the expert—and a greenhouse is necessary to control the temperature and moisture in the air.

Q—Last summer's crop of potatoes were badly infected with scab. What can be done to eliminate this disease?

A—Scab can be licked by a generous application of sulfur and a two-year crop rotation. A single application will last up to four years. Potatoes can't be grown the first season after the treatment, and some other crops, such as corn, should be planted.

Lanky Walt Gerow, who played for and against the Petes in senior ball, and a hockey stalwart with Kingston's OHA senior "B" champs, is umpire-in-chief this year of the newly-formed Belleville and district baseball loop. Teams in are Belleville Regents, Trenton Flyers, Napanee Athletics, Prince Edwards and Belleville Kellehers. An intermediate setup (like the Lakeshore League) but taking in senior players since senior ball is dead in Bella Villa, too. And Kingston. Getting back to Gerow, he's boss umpire in his first try at the guessing game. They have a new umpiring system in that loop whereby the base umpire, not the plate arbiter, is in full command.

Taking a leaf from the senior OLA booklet, the junior "A" team in the OLA are going for imports to build up strong squads, better fan followings and in an effort to get the coveted Minto Cup as Canadian champions. There'll probably be 14 home games for the Peterborough Pats in a grouping made up of Orillia, St. Catharines, Brampton, Dundas, Oakville, Toronto and likely a Mimico-Fergus combined club. Schedule is expected to be drawn up shortly with play due to commence a few weeks hence. The idea of imports also is to build future senior material and to at times help present senior clubs, just as our junior crew did here last summer.

* * * * * *

A List of Champions?

The local Pats now have such imports as the Smith brothers, Roger and Gary, and Ivan Thomas of Oswego, Dave Russell of Long Branch, George Kapasky of Mimico, Gary Feltham, Al McGary and Ray Ward of Huntsville. These chaps along with local stickhandlers like Carl Brioux, Jerry O'Reilly, Bob Allen, Frank Farley, Bob Curtis, Al Foote, Bob McDougall, Bob Howe, Ken Woodgate, Jack Chapman and Pat Brennan, will really be a team. Coach Doug Miller Jr. has the makings of a Minto Cup contender here this year, no fooling, and the club deserves plenty of support from Peterborough and district fans.

Down in St. Catharines, they're thinking in terms of the Mann Cup for their senior Athletics of the OLA. They don't seem to agree with the early-season experts who figure it's Yorks and Petes in the east, and they might have a strong point. St. Kitts will be stronger than in '52—and they gave the Petes a stiff scrap last year in group playoffs. The scribe there is pleased that the CLA has definitely ruled that Mann Cup finals must be staged indoors—they didn't always do that—and he calmly remarks: "Fandom regulars require first chances at Mann Cup playoffs as the natural asset for their steady patronage." Hm, the A's aren't quite in there yet. Too bad we haven't our Centre built as any time the cup finals are in the east we'd never get 'em here in an outdoor bowl. The series didn't draw well last fall in Maple Leaf Gardens. This year they play it out west.

Queen's Cup for Don

One of the greatest basketball players in Canada, and an outstanding footballer, Don Griffin of this city has been awarded the Thomas Jenkins Trophy at Queen's University. It is an annual award "for the graduating athlete who brought most honors to Queen's University by his athletic and scholastic ability." High honor indeed for this fine young athlete, who shone at PCVS ere seeking higher education. Queen's is the loser as Don graduates, and the university also loses nine other ace gridders and cagers this spring, including Jack Sisson, another top-flight Peterborough footballer. He and Don no doubt will be heard of further in athletic circles.

Two good track and field meets run off yester aft by PCVS and Kenner. Boys' winners at the PCVS show were: Senior, Bob Allan; intermediate, Harold Pullyblank; junior, E. English. Girls' senior champion was Maureen Fletcher, Bev Mather and Nancy Rose tying for intermediate honors, and Ann Merrett being the junior victor. Their events were under direction of Miss Audrey Hustwitt, while Zoltan Temesy was in charge of the boys, with other teachers aiding in both meets. Jack Cullis handled the boys' competitions at Kenner, and Miss Ann Morrison the girls' events. Jacqueline LaPointe was the junior girl winner at the southend collegiate, and Carol Berwick intermediate champion. Bob Cardwell led boys in the intermediate division, and Peter Ballantyne took top junior honors. No senior contests there.

SILVERWARE RETURNS—Won by Kitchener in 1918, the Allan Cup, emblematic of senior hockey supremacy in Canada, returned when the Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen defeated Penticton, B.C., 5-0, to take the title series four games to one. George Dudley, secretary-manager of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, presents the trophy to team captain Clare Martin.

Empire Games Cost Vancouver 2 Million

VANCOUVER (CP)—A tentative budget submitted Friday estimated the cost of staging the British Empire Games here next year at $2,241,000.

"This is the closest to the final budget that we can come to right now," budget chairman Ted Wilgress told the BE Games executive, "and there are bound to be changes as time passes."

At a meeting earlier in the day, Stan Smith, general chairman, said more than 600 athletes are expected, the "largest number of British Empire Games history"

Government Tax In Britain Killing Hockey

By ARCH MacKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Declining gate receipts in the English National Hockey League may mean one of two things next winter—lower pay cheques or fewer Canadian players.

Promoters of the six-team league, staffed almost exclusively by Canadians meets shortly to decide which it will be and to conjure up other 1953-54 strategy that may reverse the present turnstile trend.

"You'll see English hockey around next year, all right," assured general manager J. Defferary of Streatham rink here. "But it will have to cost less"

BLAMES GOVERNMENT TAX

Like his colleagues, Defferary puts most of the blame on Britain's 33⅓-per-cent entertainment tax, which hit Streatham as hard as any team. The club reports a 20-per-cent dip in attendance this year at its 3,000-capacity rink, although credited with the most enthusiastic followers in the league and a strong team.

"English hockey," says Defferary, "can cut salaries next year or replace some Canadians with English players."

Either way, the league, best in Britain and rated good senior B by Canadian standards, probably won't duplicate the type of play supplied last winter by the 12 Canadian and two English players on each club.

English players of quality aren't plentiful, and Canadian players willing to play in this country for reduced wages might not be as good as they are now.

Hockey's hopes of tax relief were banished by the new British budget, which confined assistance to bona fide amateur sports and cricket. Accordingly hockey's heads will lay a new plea before treasury boss R. A. Butler.

"We're actually in the same class as cricket, which has professionals," Defferary argues. "Our players are amateurs who receive expenses." Average weekly "expenses'" per player total about $56. This is taxable.

STIFF COMPETITION

Defferary and others are willing to agree that the entertainment tax isn't the only adverse factor involved. Stiff competition has arisen from ice pantomime, new form of the traditional Christmas pantomime shows in London, running from late December to mid-February.

Two London hockey clubs were supplanted by ice pantomime and played off all their away games in the interim, cramming their home fixtures in at the last. Another made a European tour while the circus took over.

George Whiting, Evening Standard columnist, wondered whether some promoters weren't "making up on the tights and spangles what they lost on the puck."

The resultant schedule juggling brought about some mid-week games, which invariably draw fewer patrons than Saturday night contests. Harringay Arena reports that usually full houses of 8,500 Saturdays were down to 5,000 on other week days.

A suggestion that the English League combine with the Scottish loop, still packing in the customers dispute play less sparkling and more rugged than the southern league likes, is regarded as impracticable, financially.

ROARING STUDENTS turned out Friday for annual field meets of Kenner Collegiate, held on the collegiate grounds, and PCVS, held in Exhibition Park. C. Berwick And R. Cardwell Intermediate Victors At Kenner Track And Field

Carol Berwick and Bob Cardwell were the intermediate girl and boy champions at the Kenner Collegiate annual track and field meet Friday on the school's spacious grounds. Jacqueline LaPointe and Peter Ballantyne were the junior victors. There is no senior competition there yet.

In the boys' events, under direction of Jack Cullis, Grades 9B and 10B were form champions, the latter having 62 points and the former 38.

Intermediate runners-up with 17 points, one behind that of Cardwell, were Bill Lawrence and Terry Northrop. While Ballantyne amassed 21 points in junior events, four tied with 10 for second place, John Chesney, Bob Druery, Peter Falkner and Lester Scharf. Miss Ann Morrison was in charge of girls' competitions and Grade 9A was the form winner.

The meet was run off with precision timing, two and three events being staged simultaneously by the various teachers. The competition was quite keen in most cases and good marks were made, several records of Port Hope—by way of comparison—being broken by Kenner contestants.

The day was mostly sunny and the large sward a scene of bustling activity by athletic-minded lads and lasses, as delighted screams or shouts of applause punctuated the program. There were no less than 47 events listed for this ambitious meet by the young southend collegiate, boasting some 320 students. Following are the winners of the girls' events:

Juniors—walking race, Shirley Wylie. 50-yard dash, Sylvia Buckton, standing broad jump, Jacqueline LaPointe; wheelbarrow race, Bev Linsey and Lorna Myles; broad jump, J. LaPointe; softball distance throw, Eleanor Gilders; 75-yard dash, J. LaPointe; high jump, Donna Jarvis; softball speed throw, Lorna Myles and Diane Adams; relay, Grade 9A.

Thorn and Florence Peters; softball distance throw, D. Smith; 100-yard dash, C. Berwick; broad jump, C. Harrison; high jump, C. Harrison; relay, Grade 10C. Winners were decided on points for finishing first, second and third.

Marciano Bets Bring Troubles

CHICAGO (AP)—Sporting bloods with a lot of cash to bet on Rocky Marciano are having their troubles.

Those willing to support Jersey Joe Walcott demand 3½ or 4 to 1 odds before they'll put up their money.

The Marciano backers figure this is giving away a little too much for the May 15 heavyweight title bout at Chicago stadium.

In fact, some so-called wise money—once thought firmly behind Marciano at any odds—has switched to Jersey Joe, figuring this way:

"Sure, Marciano should win. But the odds are so good I can't afford to bet the man. I'm gonna bet the odds."

Whether switches of this nature will force down the price of betting on Marciano remains to be seen. So far there have been no reports of heavy betting one way or the other.

Carter, Araujo Sign For Title Bout

NEW YORK (AP)—The lightweight division shook off a Tom Collins hangover Friday with the official signing of a June 12 title defence for champion Jimmy Carter against Georgie Araujo, another New England challenger, at Madison Square Garden.

Araujo, from Providence, RI, says that any connection between him and Collins is purely geographical. Collins, a Bostonian, was floored 10 times by Carter two weeks ago.

"The difference is I've got a chin," he said, "and I'm a legitimate lightweight. I think I can win it. I've watched Carter every time I had a chance, on TV or in person. I've got a good line on him."

NOT SURPRISED

Araujo said he wasn't surprised at the Collins result in Boston.

"Collins just can't take a punch" he said.

The 22-year-old challenger almost was matched with Carter a year ago. But something—possibly Lauro Salas—came up. Araujo thinks it was all for the best because he's sure he is ready now.

Under terms of the contract, Carter will get 42½ per cent, Araujo 17½ per cent of "everything," including TV.

Red Sox Grab 2-1 Verdict From Yankees; Win 8 Out Of 10 Games

By BEN PHLEGAR, Associated Press Sports Writer

Now that they've got the place to themselves those upstart Red Sox are creating quite a furore up in Boston, and they are giving the rest of the American League fits in the process. Lou Boudreau's youth brigade figured to be at least a year or two away from being troublesome to the pennant contenders. But just look at the kids. They have won eight of their last 10 games and they are only 1½ games out of first place.

Fresh from a highly-successful jaunt through the west, the Sox came home Friday night and to the delight of a fine crowd of 33,055 fans grabbed a 2-1 verdict from New York Yankees, their first success against the world champions in 13 starts

Billy Goodman, one of the few faces Boston fans can recognize in the rejuvenated line-up, belted a foul-line hugging homer over the right field wall with one out in the 11th inning to give Hector (Skinny) Brown the decision over Johnny Sain. Boston's other run also was a homer—Dick Gernert's fifth of the year

Brown, a righthander who came to Boston in the February deal that sent Vern Stephens to Chicago White Sox, handcuffed the Yankees on seven singles

WHIP BROWNS

Cleveland Indians, sandwiched in between the Yankees and the Red Sox, pulled within three percentage points of New York by whipping St. Louis Browns 7-4. Washington rallied in the closing innings to down Philadelphia 10-7 and Chicago turned back Detroit 7-2 in other American league action

A near capacity crowd of 30,293 turned out for Milwaukee's first major league night game and came away happy as the Braves bested Chicago Cubs 2-0 on Johnny Antonelli's four-hit pitching. The St. Louis Cardinals defeated Cincinnati 5-3 in the only other National League game that finished

Philadelphia scored two quick runs against Brooklyn in a battle for first place in the National League but a spring thunderstorm struck as the Dodgers came to bat in the first and washed out the contest. The rain moved on north to the Polo Grounds and also halted the New York-Pittsburgh contest after an inning and a half. It was scoreless.

For the first time this season all games in both leagues were at night.

FOUR-RUN RALLY

A four-run rally in the ninth gave Cleveland its decision over the Browns

Held to three hits over the first seven innings by Philadelphia's little Bobby Shantz, the Senators erupted for five runs in the eighth and added two more in the ninth. Charley Bishop came to Shantz' relief in the eighth with three runs in and two on base but Jim Busby blasted his first pitch for a two-run double that put Washington in front 8-7.

Joe Dobson, the 36-year-old Chicago veteran who specializes in beating Detroit Tigers whipped them for the seventh straight time giving up only five hits.

Say Athletics Want To Shift

BALTIMORE (AP) — Philadelphia Athletics, one of the five teams which voted against the transfer of St. Louis Browns to Baltimore, were reported by the Baltimore Sun today to be interested in making the same shift themselves.

The newspaper said a spokesman for the Athletics had conferred here with mayor Thomas d'Alesandro.

The spokesman "asked if the Athletics would be precluded from Baltimore's plans for getting a major league," the Sun said in a story by political reporter Edward C. Burks.

D'Alesandro could not be reached for comment. Thomas J. O'Donnell, his public relations director and close associate in the attempt to move the Browns here, refused to comment.

Since the Browns - to - Baltimore proposal was rejected by American League club owners last March 17, d'Alesandro has repeatedly declared attempts would be made to clinch the deal for 1954.

Canadian Horses Find Big Money On Tracks In The United States

NEW YORK (CP) — Canadian harness racing drivers, attracted by the big money, are doing right well on U.S. tracks.

At Yonkers Raceway, for instance, there are at least a half-dozen topnotch Canadian drivers, not to mention the swift Canadian trotters and pacers. Most of them are doing fine. All agree that Yonkers and Roosevelt Raceway, two harness tracks in the New York area, are gold mines compared with their home tracks.

"It's like this," said Bill Harvey, whose 10 horses are in the money more often than not. "Around Norwich, Ont., where I come from, harness racing might be described as more of a hobby than a business. The biggest purses are $300 and you can't live on that."

At Yonkers an average card will have races ranging from $2,000 to $4,500.

CHANGES CITIZENSHIP

Harvey, owner of the B and B stables, is so completely sold on the advantages of U.S. competition that he has already taken out his first papers to become a U.S. citizen. He says he may return to Canada occasionally to race but only because Quebec province has turned to night racing with larger purses.

"Canadian owners with good horses would be crazy to stay up north with the kind of money you can get around New York," said Harvey. "Of course, you've got to be pretty sure you have good horses or you're murdered. Quite often Canadians are forced to depart from New York before the season is completed. At least they can eat at home.

DRIVES FOR 6 OWNERS

Top Canadian driver at Yonkers now is Clint Hodgins of Clandeboye, Ont. He has 25 horses and drives for six owners. Other Canadian drivers are Dalton Hodgins, Clint's brother; Cecil Champion of Chesterville, Ont.; Del MacTavish of Lachute, Que.; Phil Dussault of St. Marie, Que.; and Lucienne Dionne of Drummondville, Que.

Dussault, 43-year-old veteran, has been a hockey player, marathon runner and dog sled driver. He's been driving standard-breds for 27 years.

Dionne is a second cousin to Oliva Dionne, father of the quintuplets, but says he isn't too popular with his relatives.

"They think I'm a black sheep because I've only got one kid," he says.

Perhaps the best Canadian horse at Yonkers is M. C. Rose, eight-year-old trotter owned by Garnett Rowntree of Weston, Ont., and driven by Harvey. This is Rowntree's first trip to New York. His brother Vic was here last year but didn't return. He recently lost a finger jacking up a truck.

Big Three Pitchers To Have Short Rest

BROOKLYN (AP)—Come what may, the big three of Philadelphia Phillies—pitchers Robin Roberts, Curt Simmons and Karl Drews—will continue to pitch with two or three days' rest for the remainder of the season. So stated manager Steve O'Neill today.

The portly skipper fairly bristled when it was suggested he might be asking too much of these men. They've pitched in 13 of the Phils' 17 games.

"If I thought they couldn't do it," O'Neill said sharply, "I wouldn't ask them. Besides, it's their own idea. All of them, Roberts, Simmons and Drews, have told me they feel better with three days' rest than with four or five. In fact Roberts and Drews have been after me to pitch with only two days' rest."

gas works and had other interests including a roller skating rink on Water Street. He was Federal member for West Peterborough for many years.

Not many residents had gas, and few shops. Coal oil and candles were generally used for lighting, mostly tallow candles. The main main street was lighted with coal oil lamps, the lights were at the tops of poles. A man with a ladder went around each day and trimmed the lamps and at night, another man would put a match to the wicks. Later on the street lamps were gas ones, then electric light, came in. It was said that Peterborough was one of the first places in Canada or the U.S. to have its streets lighted with electricity.

BATTLE OVER BROADCASTS

WASHINGTON (AP)—The National Association of Broadcasters asked for unrestricted baseball broadcasting Friday, and stirred up some sharp criticism from Senator Ed Johnson (Dem-Colo) and Branch Rickey, general manager of Pittsburgh Pirates

President Harold Fellows of the association wrote Johnson that anything which would "lessen broadcasters' ability to bring major league baseball to the American people would be contrary to the public interest"

Fellows said radio and TV broadcasting of games has "been a major factor in establishing baseball as America's national sport"

Snapped Rickey: "Broadcasting is a by-product of the game itself" He said Fellows hasn't baseball's best interests at heart and that if a "Western melodrama will pay a little more money" a radio or TV station would drop a baseball game immediately and schedule the melodrama

Johnson is chairman in a Senate commerce sub-committee looking into the question of major league baseball broadcasting, which he and organized baseball contend is ruining the minor leagues Rickey was Friday's witness and took the stand when Johnson finished reading Fellows' letter

Johnson, besides being a senator, is president of the Western League

He has introduced a bill into Congress which would allow the major leagues to ban broadcasting or televising of their games into the home territory of a minor league club without its consent

Disallows Protest Over Dodger Win

CINCINNATI (AP) — President Warren Giles of the National League Friday disallowed a protest by St Louis manager Eddie Stanky concerning the 7-3 victory by the Dodgers over the Cards at Brooklyn Wednesday

The St Louis manager was ejected from the game after protesting a decision by umpire Jocko Conlan which ruled obstruction by Cardinal shortstop Solly Hemus and allowed Jackie Robinson to score a run

PERFECT DEBUT—Rookie pitcher Alva "Bobo" Holloman of the St. Louis Browns gives his son, Gary Lee, 6, the ball he used in gaining last out of his historic no-hit victory over Philadelphia, as Mrs. Holloman looks on. Holloman blanked the A's, 6-0, to become the second hurler in baseball history to pitch a no-hitter in his first major league start.

22 Pitchers See Action In International League

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Twenty-two pitchers saw action Friday night in four International Baseball League games and Toronto was the centre of this "parade."

Ten hurlers marched to the mound before Montreal Royals nosed out Toronto Maple Leafs 5-3 to take the three-game series 2-1. Eight pitchers were used at Syracuse as Baltimore Orioles swept a double-header from the Chiefs, 8-6 and 6-3, and in an Ottawa contest, four saw action as Rochester Red Wings downed the Athletics 7-4.

A scheduled Springfield Cubs at Baltimore Orioles encounter was rained out.

The Leafs used six pitchers to the Royals' four before they went down. Montreal outhit them 14-10.

GRABS LEAD

Montreal grabbed a 2-0 lead in the first inning and were never headed, and starter Ed Roebuck, who was relieved in the eighth by Tom Lasorda as Toronto rallied, was credited with the victory. Lasorda was replaced in the same inning by Hamp Coleman after retiring one man, and Coleman was pulled in favor of Ronnie Lee in the final inning.

Vic Lombardi, the first of Toronto's sextette, was the loser. Russ Bauers relieved him in the second and was followed by Phil Haugstad, Bill Voiselle, Ray Shore and Red Fahr.

In the first game at Syracuse, Howie Fox got credit for his first victory in as many starts this season. However, he needed help in the seventh from Vern Taylor and Ken Heintzelman. The Chiefs outhit the Orioles 9-8, but committed one error.

NEEDED HELP

In the second game, Dick Starr pitched five-hit ball, while his mates were pounding Hal Hisner and Art Hartley for 13 hits.

At Ottawa, Reeder needed help from Bob Tiefenauer in the sixth to get credit for his third win of the season. Both hurlers gave up 10 hits, compared with 12 off two Ottawa moundsmen. A's starter Art Ditmar went down for his second defeat. Ed Burtschy came on in the sixth to try and pull the game out of the fire for him.

Marion Thinks Mantle Best Player

ST LOUIS (AP) — With an acknowledging nod to Eddie Stanky —the defender of Stan (The Man) Musial—manager Marty Marion of St Louis Browns still thinks Mickey Mantle is the "greatest player in baseball today"

That's what Marion said last week And he said it again Friday after a subsequent Stanky objection to his placing the slugging New York Yankee youngster ahead of Musial

Naturally, as Musial's manager, Stanky is in support of The Man But he's always held Musial, six-time winner of the National League batting title, in high regard, says Stanky, even as a competitor

Right now he's "amazed at that fellow's statement"

Stanky did not mention Marion by name

"He was a teammate of Musial's for so many years It was all right then, when they were on the same club, to call Stan the best But now that the fellow is in the other league, he forgets all about him"

Answered Marion: "I haven't forgotten Musial But Mantle is the greatest player in the game today"

IV

A cheer rose from the islanders waiting on the quayside when they saw her descend the ladder, followed by Prince Philip, who held her arm to steady her.

As the little boat surged up on the crest of the swell to the quayside, the Princess made ready to jump ashore. But before she could do so the boat was down in the trough of the wave again, with the quayside looming high above.

After two attempts had failed, she tried again.

Philip stood beside her. As the boat rose he signaled to General Browning and at exactly the right moment gave the Princess a little push, which sent her right into the General's waiting arms.

"Your Royal Highness ought to rest for a while," said the island's doctor who had been waiting with the crowds, knowing she might need his kindly aid.

She shook her head. "Give me two aspirins and a glass of water," she said. "I shall be all right." A few moments later she climbed into the horse-drawn carriage which was to bear her round the island, for there are no motor cars on Sark.

The crowd of islanders cheered. The Princess smiled back at them.

They little knew the effort it cost her.

It was only four days after the momentous telephone message to me from Buckingham Palace, announcing the arrival of Princess Elizabeth's baby, that I saw Prince Charles, as he was to be named later.

It was in the afternoon, just as I was getting ready to leave the Palace. As I have explained, I was already living at Nottingham Cottage; my rooms at the Palace had been taken over by Prince Philip so that he could be near his wife at the time of the birth.

But I was still going daily to the Palace to sit with Princess Margaret and discuss whatever subjects came up. The strict schoolroom routine, such as we had known in the past, had been abandoned.

I knew that my real work as Royal Governess at the Palace was over.

But in the new, busy life which Princess Margaret was leading, her mother thought an hour or two of quiet, unrestrained chat on general subjects might soothe her.

On this afternoon I found that she had already gone off to some engagement. I was just putting on my hat and thinking about a small piece of Spode china I had seen that morning in an antique shop off Kensington High Street.

It would go well, I thought, on the low sill of my sitting room. I was already planning its capture when Sister Rowe came into the room.

Sister Rowe is a kindly looking, capable woman who habitually wears the uniform of her profession—white cap, blue cotton dress, and starched apron. I was always particularly impressed by her cuffs, which were starched to the stiffness of steel and sat on her wrists like handcuffs. She had a pleasant, low voice. I could imagine it soothing generations of babies.

"Oh, Miss Crawford, Princess Elizabeth would very much like you to see the baby now," she said. "She asked me particularly to find you."

Like all of us at the time, she called the Prince "The Baby." I had a feeling that to Sister Rowe he would always be just that.

Names, I suspect, do not matter much to her. It is His Majesty the Baby with whom she is concerned. To her, every baby is a king. But the thought that she was dealing here with a real and future king must have added zest to her task.

I quickly abandoned thoughts of my Spode and followed her along the corridor. The baby lay in the large, airy room which had been Prince Philip's dressing room. The blinds were drawn, but it was not too dark to see the baby clothes hung round the fireplace—just as they might be in any other nursery.

The cot stood to the right against the wall. It was an impressive affair, shaped like one of those you see in the illustrations to the stories of Hans Christian Andersen. It was slung on a cream enameled metal frame under a sort of hood from which hung a double curtain of elaborately trimmed cream organdie. It was the same cot that Queen Elizabeth had lain in 22 years before.

The room was very still and smelled of soap. Sister Rowe led the way toward the cot, her apron rustling crisply as she moved. It was clear she thought the baby marvelous.

He lay on one cupped hand, sleeping quietly. The other small curled fist, no bigger than a buttercup is seemed, lay over the coverlet. To me he looked oddly like King George V.

"He's lovely," I said.

"We think so," said Sister Rowe. She stressed the "we" in an oddly moving way.

Could that little golden-haired girl I remembered in so many engaging scenes really have grown up to be the mother of this Royal child?

As I stared down into the cot, memories floated before me.

Soon Sister Rowe brought me back to the present. She whispered, a forefinger to her lips.

"We mustn't disturb him," she said.

Together we tiptoed to the door.

When I got home I sat down with George to write the Princess a note to tell her that I had seen the baby.

"He is a lovely child," I wrote. "You must be very proud of him."

With the note I enclosed a box of peppermint creams, always the Princess's favorite sweet.

✧ ✧ ✧

The next day she sent a note thanking me for the letter. She still found it hard, she said, to believe that the adorable baby was really hers. She had always heard that all mothers felt the same way and was so happy and proud of her new baby son. She was glad, too, to be told from so many quarters that his arrival had given happiness to so many people besides Prince Philip and herself.

Her letter seemed to me to complete fully my years with her. In that time I had watched her grow from childhood to girlhood, become a radiant bride, and now, the fulfillment of every woman, a proud mother.

Princess Elizabeth, before the baby was born, had the same rations as other expectant mothers—seven pints of milk a week from her supplementary ration card, half as much again for her meat ration as the normal book provided, and a bottle of cod liver oil supplied through the Food Office every six weeks.

Friends would send her orange juice, which was then becoming less scarce, and she was lucky to have a constant supply of eggs from the Home Farm at Windsor.

For the first few months she fed the baby herself. She was anxious to give him as good a foundation for health as possible, knowing this to be of great importance.

Even in the Royal Household the question is asked: "Who does the baby look like?" At top, left, is Prince Charles at one year. At right he is shown at the age of four, with his two-year-old sister, Princess Anne. Below, from left to right, are pictures of his mother, Queen Elizabeth, at the age of one; his grandfather, King George VI, at the age of one, and his great-grandfather, King George V, at the age of four.

In the baby's room at Buckingham Palace, Princess Elizabeth looks fondly at her five-week-old son, Prince Charles of Edinburgh. The dark blue eyes are like his mother's.

Christ Church WA Prepare Clothing Bales

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS). — The Woman's Auxiliary of Christ Church was invited to the home of Mrs. Charles West for the monthly meeting on Monday.

The president, Mrs. H. Lawrie, conducted the opening devotional period, and Mrs. A. C. Newman read from the New Testatment.

The minutes and reports were then reviewed. Mrs. W. Wood listed the articles of clothing, now completed for the boys and baby bale. She asked that all work be handed in by the June meeting. Used clothing, with the exception of winter overcoats, would be very welcome for the second-hand bale, she said.

Mrs. J. P. Archer spoke appreciately of the table given by Captain and Mrs. Taylor at the Hastings meeting on St. George's Day.

While Dorcas work was in progress, Mrs. Lawrie read items from the bulletin. Members were reminded of the Bible Society meeting on May 10th.

Mrs. J. McKibbin read and discussed the study book to all assembled.

Tea was served. Appreciation was expressed to both Mrs. C. West and Mrs. E. C. West for their hospitality.

Gets Weekly Payroll

MONTREAL (CP) — A squat, blond man grabbed an envelope containing $1,170 Friday from a hat manufacturing company employee and escaped along downtown streets. Karl Kaufman, owner of the firm, told police the employee, Claire Chulkin, had just returned from a bank with the payroll when the man, indicating he had a gun in his pocket, stopped her inside the company's building.

WMS Will Discuss United Nations

LAKEFIELD (ENS) —Seventeen members and one visitor were present when the Women's Missionary Society of the United Church met at the home of Mrs. P. H. Darling.

The theme of the meeting was "Great Door". Mrs. E. J. Millage was in charge of the devotional period and after giving the scripture reading led in prayer. The concluding chapter of the study book "Along African Trails" was taken by Mrs. J. A. Steed who spent a number of years in Africa where her husband the Rev. J. A. Steed was a missionary. She was assisted by Mrs. Sandy Millage, Mrs. M. Kennedy, Miss Ora Dunford, Mrs. C. S. Tanner and Mrs. H. Kemp.

$50,000 Fire At Planing Mill

TROUT CREEK (CP)—A $50,000 fire Friday night gutted the Trout Creek planing mill in this community 27 miles south of North Bay.

The fire was the second at the mill in the last six years.

A passing trucker noticed the fire in the corrugated iron building and gave the alarm. The volunteer fire department from Powassan, eight miles to the north, responded.

Firefighters said the fact the night was calm kept the damage from going considerably higher. They said a wind would probably have spread the flames to adjacent lumber yards where millions of board feet of softwood lumber was stacked.

A boxcar partly loaded with lumber on a siding caught fire and was reduced to twisted and warped metal shell.

The owner of the mill, fred Becker of Powassan, is on vacation in Florida.

The dispute concerned wages, hours of work and shift premiums.

Locate Boat In Lake, Seeking Bodies

TIMAGAMI (CP)—A diver is to search the bottom of Rabbit lake today for the bodies of four men believed drowned when the lumber tug White Bear blew up and sank in 130 feet of water nine days ago.

Provincial police announced Friday that the location of the sunken tug had been established in the lake some 10 miles west of here and about 65 miles north of North Bay.

Glenn Simms of Lakeland Airways, who flew over the scene Friday, said an oil slick and bubbles were easily visible from the air. It is believed the oil is from the $30,000 diesel-driven tug, owned by the Gillies Lumber Company.

4 GO TO DEATHS

The tug went down while on an 18-mile trip from the Gillies mill to get a log boom in Rabbit lake. She is believed to have dragged down with her a 23-foot steel boat she had been towing and to have carried the four men to their death.

Missing and believed drowned are Leslie Teske, 23, of Blanche, Que.; Fred Kozik, 21, of Ottawa; Lionel Conroy, 18, also of Blanche; and Edward Hamilton, 61, of Timagami. Teske and Conroy were cousins.

Private Groups Do Best Work

TORONTO (CP)—Private groups can deal better with welfare problems than can a government department, Welfare Minister Goodfellow said Friday at the annual meeting of the Ontario Society for Crippled Children.

"The most effective type of welfare work is that carried on by the individual who is interested in those less fortunate than himself," he said.

"The next most effective is the group of persons who band together to carry on collective social welfare work, such as service clubs, churches and private organizations."

Among reports submitted at the meeting was one stating that 42 acres have been purchased for a new children's camp at Lake Sesekinika in the Kirkland Lake district and that money has been earmarked for another in the Niagara area.

Many Considerations In Planning Home Property

A good plan is not arrived at by accident—but evolves slowly only after careful consideration of many basic requirements, large and small. Upon the basic plan of your home, its fundamental proportionment of interior space, its relationship to the building site and a wide variety of other important factors depends its success or failure in providing comfort and long-term satisfaction over the years ahead.

Following are some of the most important basic factors that can make or break the livability of your home. Check them carefully with that plan you have in mind before deciding "that's for me."

First, is the relation of the rooms to each other convenient for the natural flow of living activities? Is the front door convenient to the kitchen? Are living-room and dining-room unfortunately so placed that they will become glorified hallways? (Particularly in one-bath L-shaped houses, living-rooms are very often traffic lanes.) Is sole access to any room through a bedroom? Is the rear or side entrance conveniently located to basement stair?

List the activities that will take place in each area and determine the traffic lanes—with proper forethought even the smallest can be planned to reduce steps.

PROPER PROPORTIONS

Has the interior space been properly proportioned between the various rooms and is each room of a size and shape for convenient and sociable gathering of furniture? Is each room shaped and oriented to admit maximum sunlight? Is the living room long, with a trolley car effect resulting from the necessity of furniture being placed stiffly along opposite walls in parallel lines?

Are bedrooms so planned that beds can be arranged in more than one position (otherwise rooms get tiresome) and so they can get plenty of moving air in summer, but no drafts in the winter? (The ideal proportion for the maximum number of bed arrangements is a room nearly square). Does the kitchen allow a good 4' floor space clearance between oposite equipment?

Does the size and shape of the kitchen offer working convenience? Is it designed to provide for maximum step saving through scientific planning of the three main working areas of (a) refrigerator and preparation centre (b) sink and dishwashing centre, followed by (c) range and serving centre? Has sufficient space been provided to admit all standard makes of ranges and refrigerators? (Minimum overal size for small home kitchens is sixty square feet—ideal for smaller houses, eighty to ninety square feet.)

The cupboards adequate? Is drainboard long enough and is the sink along an exterior wall in order that you won't have to look on to a blank wall when working? Is lighting adequate and are there sufficient convenience outlets for supplementary equipment such as a portable radio, electric fan, toasters, etc.? Have you provided for adequate automatic hot water heating? How about a built-in ventilating fan to keep kitchen air sweet and fresh?

Is there too large a percentage of total area devoted to hall space? (Three to four percent of the total is usually considered allowable for hallways—if over 5 per cent a restudy of the plans is likely in order.) Is the hall narrow, winding, dark? (Straight halls are preferred with a minimum width of three and one-half feet.)

Is the location and size of the dining space adequate to the size and character of the house? In a small house, does it consist of a nook in the kitchen, an alcove off the living room or a separate dinette? In larger houses are there both separate dining room and kitchen nook? (In a house less than 800 sq. ft. in size, a nook in the kitchen is sometimes acceptable. In a house between 800 and 1,000 sq. ft. in size a separate dinette or secluded alcove off the living room is preferred. In a house 1,000 sq. ft. in size a separate dinette or dining room and kitchen nook is desirable.)

Are bathroom facilities in proportion to the size of the house? —and the size of the bedrooms? Are fixtures located properly or is the tub under the window, the toilet against the living room wall, and the lavatory on a wall away from natural light? Is there a stall shower or space for the installation of one? Is there adequate space for utility drawers or cabinets?

Are the bedrooms well separated from the other portions of the house or do any of them open directly off the living room, dining room, or kitchen? Where grouped together are they separated by closet partitions in order to have this added advantage of sound deadening? Is it necessary to walk around the bed to reach the entrance to the room, the closet, or the dresser? Can the bed be made from both sides? Do any windows open over the bed?

ADEQUATE CLOSETS

Is closet and storage space adequate? Is there a coat closet off the entrance? If there is no vestibule, is there a closet in the hallway? Are closets carefully planned, wide and shallow, so that things in them can readily be seen and reached, or are they so-called tunnel-closets, narrow and deep? Is there a linen closet close to the bathroom? Is there additional storage space provided for luggage, sporting equipment and storage of seasonal articles?

Is the garage attached or connected by a breezeway to provide protection going to and from on rainy days? Must guests pass through your kitchen from an attached garage in inclement weather, or is there direct access to the hall? Is it suitably located for easy driving in and out?

Have you made full use of the basement with a recreation room, a properly built dust-proof coal bin, racks for screens and storm sash, etc. (The modern heating system, besides being automatic and giving more economical heat, is easy to keep clean and its attractive appearance opens up many new uses for the basement.)

Is the floor of a material in keeping with the purpose to which certain sections of the basement will be used? Is there a handy work bench, adequately lighted for the man-of-the-house?

Is wiring adequate? Are lighting fixtures placed where they will best meet requirements? Are there sufficient convenience outlets where they may be reached conveniently. Have you made proper provision with gas or electricity for range, refrigerator, hot-water, etc. Make sure your service is sufficient to handle equipment, now and in the future.

Are stairs straight-run for safety —or have they dangerously-steep "winder construction"? Are they provided with good hand-rails? Are the tread and riser proportions conducive to easy and safe ascent and descent? (For comfort and safety it is generally agreed that treads should not be less than 9" to 10" and risers not more than 8".) Does headroom fall below the necessary minimum of 6'8"?

Religion Often Indicates Type Of Mental Disease

LOS ANGELES (AP)—If you have a mental disease or are going to get one the odds are that your religion will indicate the nature of the ailment.

A massive study reported to the American Psychiatric Association today shows that the psychoneuroses are the principal ailments of Jews; that alcoholism and epilepsy are prevalent among Roman Catholics; and that Protestants are burdened with still other mental disorders.

The study was made by a group at Yale University and was reported by Dr. Bertram H. Roberts and Dr. Jerome K. Myers The whole New Haven area was surveyed for mental cases under treatment. The search covered a metropolitan population of 235,000.

The survey bears out previous findings that the total amount of mental trouble in each denomination is about the same. The difference is in the different kinds of mental disease in each.

BROKEN DOWN

Jews had 2½ times as much psychoneurosis percentage-wise as the general population of the area. Roman Catholics comprised 57.5 per cent of the population but they had 68.5 per cent of all the alcoholism and drug cases, and 71.5 per cent of the epilepsy. Schizophrenia, a form of insanity, ran slightly high among Roman Catholics, about average among Jews, and slightly low among Protestants.

The Protestant group ran high in the organic diseases associated with mental trouble, such as migraine and stuttering, and also high in mental troubles connected with age.

Names Boards For Conciliation

TORONTO (CP)—Labor Minister Gregg has established conciliation boards, headed by Eric Taylor, to inquire into wage disputes between the Seafarers International Union (AFL) and the Great Lakes shipping operators.

The union demands a wage increase of $50 a month and a 40-hour week for its 5,000 members on the Great Lakes. Under the 1952 agreement, watchmen receive $220 a month and wheelsmen $230 a month.

Lucien Tremblay, AFL organizer in Montreal, Ill represent the union and Joseph Sedgwick will represent the operators.

Operators this year are negotiating jointly with the exception of Canada Steamship Lines, which is negotiating separately.

A policeman caught him in the palace yard. Davis later was escorted to a police station and sent to an institution for observation.

Davis, 31-year-old son of American band leader Meyer Davis, gave up his U. S. citizenship some time ago to become "a citizen of the world." His residence permit for Britain expired April 28.

Help From Kerr Brought Calves

The gradually extending experience of Dave Kerr of the Empress Hotel as a breeder of Hereford cattle (in Smith township) receives grateful mention in a note from G. A. Brethen, president of Norwood Agricultural Society.

He writes, "we would like to express our sincere thanks to Mr. Dave Kerr for the assistance he has cheerfully given us to put this activity across."

"This activity" is the purchase of a carload of Hereford heifer calves from the McIntyre Ranch in Alberta for a club project among boys and girls in the Norwood district.

Seven or eight years ago William McIntyre died, and the ranch has passed into the hands of Ralph Thrall from whom Mr. Kerr bought quite a number of the animals for his herd of Herefords. When the Norwood bid at the Claresholm sale fell under auction prices, Mr. Brethen solicited the help of several intermediaries in the cattle industry. He supported his own air mail letters and telephone calls to the McIntyre Ranch with this local aid, and after the project appeared to be postponed for this season, word came through that Norwood Fair board were going to get the young heifers.

"There is a great deal of WHR blood in the McIntyre Herefords," Mr. Kerr informed the Examiner today. "Mr. McIntyre used to go down to Wyoming and buy bulls at prices that were exceedingly high for those days."

As a friend of Ralph Thrall, Mr. Kerr reinforced the correspondence from Norwood, now acknowleged by Mr. Brethen.

Building An Outdoor Fireplace

BY MR. FIX (NEA)

Are you an outdoor-fireplace dreamer? If so, you have a lot of company, because you belong to a not-so-exclusive club of home owners who have planned for years to build back-yard barbecue fireplaces and have always fallen back on makeshifts.

You say this is your year? You're going through with it? Don't be hasty now. Maybe there's some little hitch in it you haven't thought of. Maybe you'll need another year or so to think it over.

If not, if you've thought it out carefully, then you have planned the location of the fireplace. Doubtless you agree with your experienced brethren who feel that the barbecue outfit should be placed close to the house, preferably near the kitchen so supplies will be close at hand.

Then, too, you have most likely taken note of the prevailing winds in your locality, and of where the sun's afternoon rays fall. You dislike being blinded by late afternoon sun and would avoid poor smoke dispersal or incorrect drafts.

By this time you have decided upon the type of material you will use in building the fireplace. It could be of cut stone, which looks nice with a frame home, or of brick to match a brick home. There are any number of suitable materials.

You have no doubt made up your mind on the size of barbecue you'll need for your family—to fit its living pattern. Perhaps a smudge pot equipped with a grill, or an area framed with concrete block or stone topped with a grill, would be sufficient. But after cooking and eating out-of-doors becomes a summer habit, these smaller units often prove inadequate.

Of prime importance, no matter what type or size of fireplace you intend to build, is its support and sub-bed. This is true in areas of freezing temperatures in winter, when the ground may heave and destroy good work that hasn't been supported.

You might use either a perimeter foundation carried below the frostline, or a concrete slab. The slab should be somewhat wider than the fireplace and six or more inches thick. It will ride up and down when freezing and thawing raises and lowers the earth.

A sub-bed of cinders or rubble five or more inches thick should be thoroughly tamped down and given time to settle before the slab is poured.

To prevent moisture damage to the fireplace, it is wise to elevate the hearth a few inches above ground level. This would necessitate pouring the slab into a wooden form, of couse. Unless this precaution is taken, frost action on moist masonry may cause cracking. To further offset this possibilty, be sure all joints in the masonry are absolutely tight.

You will gather from this that it is best not to place the fireplace in a low spot where water might drain on it.

Face your barbecue in the direction of the prevailing winds and shield it as much as possible from counter currents to avoid a smoke nuisance and provide proper draft.

Dampers are useless in outdoor fireplaces. Since the chimneys are short, the flue must be ample.

And that's about it. Now it's up to you. Or are you still dreaming?

FIX-IT FORUM

Q—How can dents and scratches be filled in finished furniture?

A—One way is to buy a shellac stick at your paint store in a shade to match the finish. Apply it with a soldering iron just hot enough to melt the stick. Level the shellac off with a spatula or knife.

IN PLANNING THE LOCATION of an outdoor fireplace, take note of prevailing winds and avoid placing it in a sunlit area.

ITU Ordered Bargain Fairly With Publishers

WASHINGTON (AP)—The national labor relations board Friday ordered the International Typographical Union to bargain fairly and in good faith with newspaper publishers.

The board directed the union to post formal notice that:

"We will not refuse, by specific refusal, or by insistence upon a 60-day cancellable contract, or by any other means, to bargain collectively and in good faith with any employer in the newspaper industry" whose workers, or a majority, are represented by the ITU.

The case has been before the board and the federal courts for more than five years.

In 1947, after the Taft-Hartley labor law went into force, the ITU international insisted that ITU locals attempt to negotiate with employers only oral arrangements or a set of working rules that could be cancelled on 60-day notice.

CHARGE EVASION

The American Newspaper Publishers Association charged the union with attempting to evade the law's provisions by this "device" and thus with refusing to bargain in good faith.

This led to a dispute between publishers and the union that has continued to the present and was marked by a strike lasting several years on newspapers in Chicago and elsewhere.

The ITU has previously denied that it had refused to bargain with newspaper publishers by insisting on 60-day cancellable contracts for a time after the Taft-Hartley Act became law.

In a brief filed with the NLRB, the union said it only adopted the short-term contracts for a five-month period between September 1947 and March 1948 and then abandoned the policy.

Building Cost Varies Widely Through U.S.

A recent 70-city survey of building costs by the Federal Housing Administration shows a wide difference in costs for the same house. The one-floor, basementless, frame test house chosen by the FHA is on a 26x34½-foot foundation, has two bedrooms, living room, kitchen, storage room and bath. Heating plant is not included in the estimates nor are sodding, landscaping, driveway, sidewalks or other outdoor improvements. Data used in estimates were what the insuring office would use if application for insurance on this house were received by the FHA.

SKETCH PORTRAYS the type of basic test house described in the Federal Housing Administration's report on its 70-city survey of home-building costs. The house was chosen for its adaptability for all areas.

MAP SHOWS comparative building costs in some of the 70 cities served by FHA insuring offices. Cleveland, Ohio, was the most expensive, with a $9117 estimate and Long Beach, Calif., the lowest, at $6127.

Labor Calls UK Elections Landslide Win

LONDON (AP)—Labor party officials Friday night labelled Labor's landslide victory in local council elections throughout England and Wales a slap at Prime Minister Churchill's Conservative government. Conservatives termed the results misleading.

Final returns from the polling which began Monday and ended Thursday showed:

Labor—Gained 417 seats, lost 54.

Conservatives — Gained 85, lost 335.

Liberals—Gained 9, lost 13.

Independents — Gained 28, lost 130.

Communists — Gained 0, lost seven.

More than 7,000 seats were at stake in the campaign, fought mainly on local issues.

The results do not affect Churchill's government. Such local elections are studied closely for possible trends in voters' thinking, however, and Labor representatives in Parliament are expected to step up demands for a general election.

Labor party headquarters said the results were a criticism of the "conservatism" of the Churchill government.

Dismissing the outcome as misleading, a Conservative party statement said: "In many places the Conservative poll is higher than last year and Labor poll has fallen.

50% Deputy Urged On Linseed Oil

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U. S. agriculture department Friday strongly urged a new 50-per-cent deputy on flaxseed nd linseed oil.

It was the fifth time this week that the administration has taken action to control farm imports. Dairy products, vegetable oils and Uruguayan wool tops are the products affected. In a congressional hearing, however, administration spokesmen have opposed increases at this time in duties on lead, zinc and fuel oil.

Imports of flaxseed and linseed oil have een embargoed since August, 1951. The authority for the embargo expires June 30. Agriculture Secretary Ezra Benson asked President Eisenhower to order the present investigation by the tariff commission to see what should be done.

William McArthur, acting director of the agriculture department's grain branch, told the commission today in a prepared statement that the key to the world trade situation in flaxseed rests mainly with Canada and Argentina. They have large export surpluses available.

"It is strongly urged," he said, "that the maximum protection available . . . be afforded."

The present duty on flaxseed is 50 cents on a 56-pound bushel, and 4½ cents a pound on linseed oil. The additional duty of 50 per cent would apply to foreign flaxseed prices of $3.50 to $3.85 a bushel and foreign oil selling in the neighborhood of 11.50 to 13.12 cents a pound. The mid-April U. S. price for flaxseed was $3.57, the current price for linseed oil about 15 cents a pound.

The New Civilization Or Heaven On Earth

The expression "Heaven on Earth" is sometimes used to describe an unusual or memorable situation or experience.

It may be news to many, that this condition of things will become a permanent state of mankind, when sin and death have no more power to hurt or destroy, and when life will be lived in Hallowed Happiness in Service to God and our fellow-men, on that day when Heaven comes down to earth for ever!

DOUSE SMALL FIRE

City firemen with a small booster hose and hand pumps quickly doused a small fire at the dump on Rogers St. today.

WILDFLOWERS BLOOM

Trilliums and the yellow cowslips are blossoming in the country now, to provide a rural contrast to the urban display of flowering shrubs and early flowers.

NAMED CHAIRMAN

Robertson Davies was named chairman of the Canadian Theatre Conference recently at the annual meeting of the Dominion Drama Festival held in Victoria, B.C. Mrs. L. T. White of Ottawa was elected president of the Festival organization.

FALSE ALARM

Smoke, back-lighted by early morning sun made some Ashburnham residents think there was a chimney fire today at St. Luke's Anglican Church. Firemen were called, but when there, discovered the fire in the furnace had just been stoked up and the sun shining on the smoke gave the impression that the chimney was on fire.

WORKING SPAWN THROUGH

Department of Lands and Forests have completed taking spawn from the muskies in district lakes. A. B. Wheatley, district forester, said he had just completed a visit to the Codrington and Deer Lake hatcheries and found that the eggs were being run through the hatcheries.

FIRE HAZARD HIGH

Bright sunny days this week has resulted in raising the fire hazard throughout the Peterborough-Lindsay-Haliburton area from normal to high. District Forester A. B. Wheatley of Lindsay said the present hot spell means the hazard rating will continue to be high throughout the weekend. Despite the high rating no fires were reported burning in the district today

Spring Flowers Brighten Market

The open market this morning resembled a florists's shop, when local farmers and jobbers flooded the market with an array of spring flowers, and even pine boughs.

Now that the sunny days are here, activity in the closed market hall is slowing up, but a few of the regulars who frequent the market are keeping it going.

Eggs, chickens and a few colorful artificial flowers and some home baked goods made up most of the produce being sold. Grade A eggs medium size 55 cents, medium large 60 cents and extra large 65 cents a dozen.

MANY FLOWERS

Some of the more colorful flowers that were being sold on the market square were: Lupins, Canterbury Bells, Purple Iris, Tulips, Phlox, Bleeding Hearts, Gladiolus bulbs were also offered.

Bags of potatoes ranged from $1.75 to $2.00 for 75 pounds and carrots, potatoes, apples, asparagus, beans and turnips were being sold in bags and four-quart baskets, ranging from 50 cents to 80 cents a bag.

Surprisingly enough there were several truck-loads of cordwood on the market, and their owners were asking $7 a cord, but hope for selling them looked slim, since the summer months are nearly here.

According to the jobbers spring flowers were the biggest seller of the day; and next were potatoes with more than 400 bags sold.

The biggest buy for those who might be interested, on the market this morning was a small cartage trailer, being offered for $30.

No Glow

A bride of only a few weeks moved into her new home recently and discovered to her disappointment that the ceiling lights in two rooms wouldn't go on when she flipped the switch. She telephoned the electrician, explained briefly, and said she wanted it fixed right away. The electrician arrived, removed the glass globes and discovered the simplest of electrical problems — there were no bulbs in the sockets.

Old-Timer's Recollections

First Steam Tractor Built In Peterborough In 1894

The first steam tractor in North America was built in Peterborough in 1894, as related in a letter by John Anderson, Qualicum Beach, B.C., to the Family Herald and Weekly Star.

"I can't remember the builder's name," Mr. Anderson wrote. "I was designed for an ice road, and was built to haul logs for Big Bill Irwin down the Wanapitei River. The manufacturer agreed to have so many thousand feet of logs hauled to the Wanapitei River by the first of February, 1895. As with so many other inventions, it didn't go off like the old timers planned. Big Bill cancelled the contract, and the builder went broke. It is all forgotten now."

(The village of Wanapitei is some miles east of Sudbury. Years ago it was the centre of the lumbering industry in what was then a new section of Ontario.)

"STILL IN BUSH"

"The remains of that engine are in the woods to this day, with the exception of what has been stolen off it. At that time all log hauling in both Canada and the U.S.A. was either by horse or railways.

"I was well acquainted all along the north shore of Georgian Bay from Midland to the Canadian Sault, and on to Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota, all around Lake Superior.

"I have had considerable experience with line freight hauls, such as building the Flin Flon railway, where we hauled from the Pas to Flin Flon. I handled the 82-mile freighting to the Island Falls power plant for Flin Flon and God's Lake, and now they are freighting from Grimshaw, Alberta, away north.

"I never look at those freighting outfits that I don't think of the first tractor built for ice roads. It got a rotten deal and was killed in its infancy. In all the sleighs built in North America, I have never seen as good an outfit as was built for that first steam hauler. It was all solid white oak. The trees were grubbed out by the roots, and the crook in the runners was from the root in the tree, so that it was a natural crook.

HAND MADE

"The runners were all hand made. When they had a big celebration months ago in Saskatoon for the city's 70th birthday they gathered up pioneer material. I think those relics should be preserved by the government or the manufacturers. I am sure they could get some old frontier man in either Sudbury or Wanapitei to show them the exact location of the remains of the Peterborough ice tractor.

"There are two railways down through that country, and I believe the old engine is only five miles from one of them. It could be got out quite easily in the winter."

Union Locals Raise Funds For Strikers

Production Workers At Quaker In Third Week

Officials of Local 293, United Packinghouse Workers of America, report they are highly pleased with the moral and financial support fellow unionists are giving to striking production workers at the local plant of the Quaker Oats Co.

National support was promised at the UPWA District 10 biennial convention in Winnipeg and numerous other CIO-CLL locals in the province have come forward with donations and offers of financial aid.

Donations of $600 from Local 230 at the Outboard Marine and Manufacturing Co. and $200 from Local 4415 of the United Steelworkers of America at Port Hope have been made to the strikers' welfare fund. Other donations have been received from Local 434 of the UPWA at the Ovaltine plant and Local 371 of the Brewery Warehouse Workers in Peterborough as well as personal donations by union officials in Lindsay and Peterborough.

COLLECT IN OSHAWA

Next Friday, 15 women and 13 men from Local 293 will go to Oshawa where they will be assisted by executives and stewards of Local 222 of the United Automobile Workers of America in distributing leaflets and taking up a collecttion among General Motors employees.

A general meeting of Local 293 will be held in the Peterborough Labor Centre hall on Water St. Sunday afternoon when strike procedure will be discussed and a report made by the executive.

A visit is expected Monday by Sam Hughes, UPWA eastern director, who will review the local strike situation.

Festival Raising Music Standards Says Adjudicator

The Peterborough Kiwanis Music Festival is achieving the ultimate purpose of all music festivals—to raise the standard of music, George Heath-Gracie, English musician and adjudicator said in an interview today.

"Through its festival, Peterborough is acting as a very important artistic centre," he said.

Mr. Heath-Gracie, who is one of the two English adjudicators at the Peterborough Festival now being held, is making a return visit to the city in this capacity. He adjudicated at the 1949 festival.

MANY GAIN GROUND

"Peterborough has gained as much musically in four years as many places where we have adjudicated in this country," he said. "It is almost incredible the enormous advances that have been made in some places as the result of successive music festivals."

The adjudicator pointed specifically to Winnipeg in his remarks. "The music festival has made music in Winnipeg."

Mr. Heath-Gracie's remarks about the musical progress of the Peterborough district as shown in festival performances are reflected in the relatively high marks which have been awarded so far in this year's festival sessions.

The adjudicator particularly praised what he called "the very rich part singing" he had heard from school choirs. "This devotion to part singing is extraordinary," he said.

FAVORS CHORAL SOCIETIES

"What I would like to see," he continued, "is the organization of choral societies in this country's communities, so that these youngsters can continue choral work after their school days."

The adjudicator repeated his remarks of praise for the Kiwanis Club that he expressed at the Thursday club luncheon, for their sponsorship of the festival. "They are doing a wonderful work in this festival," he said.

At the club luncheon he told Kiwanians that a festival such as the Peterborough one develops character and individuality in children in this age when these characteristics are too often sacrificed to the concept of mass production.

ORGANIST AT DERBY

Mr. Heath-Gracie is organist and master of the choristers at Derby Cathedral, England. He is an examiner to the Association Board of the Royal School of Church Music, Canterbury, England. Another of his posts is musical advisor to the Derbyshire Education Committee.

Included in his biographical sketch in the international Who's Who is his membership in Peterborough Kiwanis Club — quite probably the only mention of a Peterborough service club in this volume of honor.

Beauty Hint

REGINA (CP)—Women who talk to themselves while applying lipstick get a more beautiful finish, says Ardelle Saunders, travelling expert for a cosmetic firm. "Too often, women forget they are applying lipstick to a living pair of lips," she says.

Old Friends Return

Among the natives of this district who welcomed the warm May sun this past week were the black flies at Apsley and mosquitoes farther south in the county. Natives and visitors to the northern townships found out that the pests had really arrived. Anglers and those who live near streams and marshland near the city found out the skeeters were busy.

Trash In Homes Major Hazard Warns Fire Chief

Rubbish is one of the major fire hazards in homes, Fire Chief Ralph Leonard said today, in connection with the spring clean up campaign sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

By keeping homes free of rubbish, homeowners can eliminate one serious fire hazard, and make their home neater besides.

Seven hazards account for 90 per cent of home fires, the chief said, and rubbish is one.

KEEP OLD ARTICLES

"All of us have a tendency to keep articles that are no longer useful or valuable, such as old mattresses, worn clothing, broken pieces of furniture and toys, magazines and newspaper.

"Such materials are ready to burst into flame at the touch of a spark and sometimes they ignite spontaneously," Chief Leonard said.

While saying it was all right to burn rubbish, the chief warned that citizens should get permission from the fire department.

First phone 5713 for permission, then be careful. Fires burn well when fanned by winds, and sparks can be carried long distances to start fires elsewhere. The best way is to burn trash in a good, stout incinerator."

6½-Pound Rainbow From Shelter Valley

COBOURG (ENS)—The largest rainbow trout ever reported to come out of Shelter Valley creek was caught Friday by Bill Perry of Cobourg.

The fish weighed six and a half pounds and measured 28 and a half inches in length. Bill caught it with a lowly worm on a light leader and line and battled it for three quarters of an hour before landing it.

Examination revealed the hook firmly imbedded in the fish's mouth. Word of the big catch spread around among the sporting fraternity like wildfire and there is every likelihood that a large number will be heading for Shelter Valley this weekend.

Incidentally Bill got it south of the highway. North of the highway the stream is placarded.

Throws Can Into Fire Boy Burned

Paint Remover Explodes Brought To Civic

PORT HOPE—A seven-year-old Canton boy lies in Peterborough Civic Hospital today in fairly good condition, burned about the arms and chest in a freak accident late Thursday.

The lad, Teddy Austin, picked up a can of paint remover and threw it onto the dying embers of a bonfire his father, Howard Austin, had lit.

The can exploded and flew more than 30 feet, and in the flash the boy was seriously burned. Teddy's brother Jack, 9, doused him with water to quench the flaming clothing.

BLOOD PLASMA

Howard Austin drove his son to hospital Thursday night, and the lad was given blood plasma to ease the shock. Doctors believe a skin graft on the boy's left arm may be necessary.

Mr. and Mrs. Austin have three other children, two boys and a girl. Mr. Austin is an interior decorator.

AWARDED TROPHY—Don Griffin of Peterborough has been awarded the Thomas Jenkins Trophy as the graduating athlete who brought most honors to Queen's University by his athletic and scholastic ability, starring in football and basketball. Besides his gridiron prowess he was voted to the intercollegiate all-star basketball team for the past two years. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Griffin, Don was a grid and cage ace for PCVS before going to Queen's.

KOREAN SERVICE MEMENTOS—Prior to their departure from Korea, each member of the 1st Battalion, Royal 22nd Regiment, was presented with a regimental scarf and a silver cigarette case mounted with the traditional golden beaver, emblem of the regiment. Cpl. Oscar Boucher, of Hull, Que., received his mementos of a year in Korea from Maj. Henri Chasse, of Ottawa and Quebec City.

Year In Korea Van Doos Return To Canada Resume Home-Defence Role

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

IN KOREA (CP)—Homeward bound after a year in Korea, the 1st Van Doos are starry-eyed over parachutes.

Old-timers with the 1st battalion, the Royal 22nd Regiment, talk constantly about savoring again the thrill of jumping into space when the unit resimes its home-defence paratroop role. Newcomers want to qualify as jumpers speedily so that they can stay with the battalion with which they fought over here.

The first 50 para-volunteers will be dropped off at Rivers, Man., on the way to Quebec. The army has made special arrangements for them to begin their courses at once. The next 50 of the 172 volunteers are to follow at Rivers at the end of June. The unit sailed from Kure, Japan, May 2.

Lt.-Col. Louis Trudeau of Quebec commanded the battalion here.

TOUGH SLUGGING

The year in Korea was more one of tough slugging than pitched battles. The Van Doos proved outstandingly last September that they could take punishment and still assert mastery over no man's land. They never lost an inch of ground. They had some first-rate patrols. But for the most part it was the wearying, nerve-straining task of sitting and taking it.

Trudeau says the Van Doos' period of real testing was last September, when they held a series of ridges west of Little Gibraltar. The enemy shelled constantly and patrolled intensively—at first.

During September and October the battalion suffered more than 200 casualties, including 29 killed. This was during the enemy's build-up for the Oct. 23 assault on Little Gibraltar, then held by the 1st battalion, the Royal Canadian Regiment.

Says Trudeau: "We avoided more casualties by strict control of daylight movement, by much digging, and by having all work done by night.

"When we finally left that position we were the bosses of no man's land. We were able to patrol at will along our front, and even had some successful daylight lay-up patrols. Those helped us bring down fire on enemy we observed, and got information on which to base fighting patrols at night

"Despite our casualties and although the position was hard to defend the men's morale was high. They felt their responsibilities the more, and carried out their duties the better because of it."

"We learned here," says Trudeau "that to be good in defensive operations the soldier must be a good shot and know his weapon thoroughly.

"It is even more important in this kind of warfare than in the attack. He must know how to fend for himself—more even than in the fluid battle because he lives constantly under trying conditions. There are the lonely outposts at night, the small patrols and ambushes, the strain of sitting out barrages in a trench. He must be prepared to cook his own food, and to sleep in discomfort.

"Korea has given us more confirmation for believing the Canadian a good soldier—he is keen, brave, with a lot of initiative and adaptability."

Last June Van Doos were the first Canadians here to try out armor vests. They were a novelty then, and used only on patrols. Before they left here in April Van Doo companies wore not only the vests but steel helmets all the time in forward areas, so much had the shelling increased.

Like other infantry outfits, roughly one-third of the battalion's time here was in reserve. Its periods in the line were from April 24 (1952) to July 1; Aug. 10-Nov. 1; Dec. 1-Jan. 30, and April 1-20.

During their last reserve period, in February and March, the Van Doos received and quickly came to like their first Katcom (Korea Army troops attached to the Commonwealth division) soldiers.

And when they returned to the line for their last stint, Korean soldiers suffered and died together with them in the common effort.

The reason for the Van Doos going into the line so close to their departure was so that when the 3rd battalion arrived it could send company and platoon leaders forward to see how the position was held, how patrols functioned, and get the "feel" of the set-up from fellow-countrymen of their own language.

That process began the night of April 17 and after two more nights of it the Van Doos were relieved by the newly-arrived 3rd battalion of the Royal Canadian Regiment, then assuming its first assignment.

At the last parade the men were presented with mementoes of their year here—a cigaret case for each soldier and a brooch for his wife or girl friend, both with regimental crsts, and a regimental scarf.

HAVE NEW FLAG

Trudeau says the battalion also is taking home "a lot of bric-a-brac" for the regimental museum—patrol and raid souvenirs, and a new flag. The flag was designed here and made in Japan. It has flown outside battalion headquarters ever since the first model was received last autumn.

"If permitted to do so we would like to fly it in Canada beside the red ensign," says Trudeau. "We wouldn't take it on parade with the regimental or battalion colors. But it would be always outside our headquarters, wherever we are, as a sign that 'the Van Doos are stationed here.'"

The unit has been awarded 16 decorations, including an OBE to Trudeau, and more are pending.

It hopes to march through the streets of Montreal and Quebec, but by the time it reaches the provincial capital it will be only about 100 strong.

Men will be dropping out across the Dominion to begin their leaves, and 220 will stay at home in Montreal.

"I do hope they have a parade arranged for us in Montreal," says Trudeau, "because it will be the last chance for the battalion to put on a good show before we all come together again after our holiday."

Work begins at Valcartier, Que., again early in August.

SURVIVORS COME UP — Survivors of the smashed British railway ferry, the Duke of York, climb down into waiting launches from the U.S. freighter Haiti Victory, which had collided with the English vessel. Upon the collision in pre-dawn North Sea waters, the British ferry broke in two, the foreward half sinking. The Haiti Victory led a "miracle" rescue, taking nearly all to safety. Spokesmen said that three aboard the British ship might have been killed.

Snake Expert Invents Serum

SAIGNELEGIER, Switzerland (AP)—Jack Pontet, a 28-year-old Swiss snake expert who acted as his own guinea-pig Thursday to prove the effectiveness of a snake serum he claims to have invented, said Friday he was "completely satisfied" with the success of his demonstration.

Surrounded by several doctors and a score of three other witnesses, Pontet forced the full venom charge of three vipers into his right forearm. He survived the demonstration without ill effect. This morning, the six small wounds —one for each set of fangs—were barely visible. Doctors maintained an all-night guard and testified that Pontet received no treatment of any kind.

Seventeen days earlier, Pontet was inoculated with his immunization serum, V-13, which had never before been tested on a human being.

Bancroft Regatta To Be Held July 22

BANCROFT (ENS).—By a majority vote Bancroft Lions reversed a decision not to hold the annual regatta this year. The regatta will be held on July 22.

Past president Cecil Wiggins argued that the community had come to regard the regatta as an event to look forward to each year and it would be a great mistake to drop it. Lion Jack Follis considered the regatta, with its complementary dance and boat raffle, one of the club's major money - making projects and thought it essential in view of additional financial commitments. Secretary-treasurer Art Hewitt pointed out that requests for regatta information had already been received from boat racing clubs.

Chairman of the health and welfare committee, Lion Alex Smith, announced that the crippled children's survey was under way and that assistance had been offered to two burned-out families.

The Apsley club, sponsored by Bancroft Lions, will hold their charter night May 13. A large delegation from Bancroft is expected to attend this ceremony.

Commenting on the recent zone meeting in Oshawa, zone chairman Whitney Martin thanked club members for their support in the election for deputy district governor. He spoke highly of the winning candidate, Lion Larry McCarthy, and wished him all success in his year of office.

The club was shown color films of last year's international convention in Mexico City.

Accept Leadership WA Members Told

MILLBROOK (ENS). — The town group of St. Andrew's WA met at the home of Mrs. J. T. Crowley.

Mrs. Chester Fisher, group leader, opened the meeting with a reading and prayer. The secretary, Mrs. B. B. Dawson read six thank-you notes for flowers and baskets of fruit sent to sick and shut-ins.

Mrs. Crowley spoke on "Are You a Leader?" She cited, as examples of people who had unknown powers of leadership until they were suddenly called up to use them, Eleanor Roosevelt and the late King George VI. She advised her audience to be willing to accept the responsibility of leadership because they too might possess abilities of which they were not aware.

Miss Augusta Clarry played a piano solo. Devotions were taken by Mrs. Bruce Ingham.

The treasurer, Mrs. Arthur Fallis, reported a profit of more than $80 from the rummage sale and that there was a satisfactory bank balance.

Mrs. Fisher conducted a short memorial service for Mrs. James Stewart and for Mrs. A. R. Payne's mother, Mrs. Monteith. Mrs. John McKnight gave the scripture reading.

Mrs. H. R. Edmunds, Mrs. Alfred Coulter and Mrs. Herbert Bremner were supper hostesses. Miss Clarry supplied music during the social hour.

The groom of 25 years thanked everyone heartily, and all joined in singing "For Tthey Are Jolly Good Fellows." Lunch was served and dancing was enjoyed.

Mrs. Ferren's mother, Mrs. Richard Fallis, Bethany, was present. Other friends were there from Toronto, Lindsay, Janetville, Pontypool, Bethany, Peterborough and Millbrook.

A Message To CGE Workers And Citizens Of Peterborough

Thursday afternoon, May 7, IUE-CIO received notice from the Ontario Labour Relations Board that our Union's petition for an election at Canadian General Electric was dismissed. The reason was that the petition did not maintain the required 45% of signed membership cards.

When IUE-CIO went before the Labour Board on April 22, the petition carried cards from 47% of the bargaining unit at CGE. The number of cards IUE-CIO presented to the Board was 1,484.

However, slightly over 2% of those signed cards were of no legal validity when considered by the Board because those people were either laid off from the plant or they quit the shop after they had joined IUE-CIO. For that reason, the IUE-CIO application did not meet the required 45%; it was by less than one percentage point that the petition was invalidated.

Following is the exact copy of the Board's telegram to IUE-CIO:

"RE INTERNATIONAL UNION OF ELECTRICAL RADIO AND MACHINE WORKERS CIO AND CANADIAN GENERAL ELECRIC COMPANY LIMITED PETERBOROUGH AND UNITED ELECTRICAL RADIO AND MACHINE WORKERS OF AMERICA AND ITS LOCAL FIVE TWO FOUR STOP THE RECORD IN THIS CASE HAS BEEN ENDORSED AS FOLLOWS QUOTE THE BOARD IS SATISFIED ON AN EXAMINATION OF THE RECORDS OF THE APPLICANT AND THE RECORDS OF THE RESPONDENT THAT LESS THAN FORTY FIVE PERCENTUM OF THE EMPLOYEES IN AN APPROPRIATE BARGAINING UNIT ARE MEMBERS OF THE APPLICANT EVEN IF FOR PRESENT PURPOSES WE ASSUME AND WE EXPRESS NO OPINION THEREON THAT THE RECORDS SUBMITTED BY THE APPLICANT CONSIDERED IN THE LIGHT OF THE EVIDENCE PRESENTED AT THE HEARING DO CONSTITUTE ADEQUATE EVIDENCE OF MEMBERSHIP FOR THE PURPOSES OF THE ACT STOP THE APPLICATION IS DISMISSED STOP DATED MAY SIXTH NINETEEN FIFTY THREE STOP"

That is the Labour Board's decision for the present time. However, CGE workers are still confronted with the same basic issue that has faced them for the past four years—Communist unionism versus democratic trade unionism.

Can this Board decision resolve that issue? Can this Board decision clear the air and provide CGE workers with a strong, effective union devoted to their interests? The answer is obvious that it can not and it has not.

The issue is still the same and it is even more important today than it ever was, — for never before have CGE workers so seriously needed a strong, capable union that can and will fight the company and win the wage increases, contract benefits and improvements in working conditions they deserve. The issue is still there and it can only be resolved by CGE workers themselves.

IUE-CIO was established in 1949 after UE was expelled from CIO and the Canadian Congress of Labour because it was Communist-dominated. When IUE-CIO was chartered by the National CIO-CCL, it was charged with the responsibility of,

"... providing all workers in the electrical, radio and machine industry with a democratic trade union free from the domination of the Communisty Party."

That charge is daily being fulfilled by IUE-CIO, For already more than 320,000 electrical workers have left UE and joined IUE-CIO. There are but a few shops that this Communist cancer within the labour movement still manages to mis-lead along the Red road to ruin. IUE-CIO intends to fulfill the charge that was given it and thereby fulfill our even more important responsibility to all working people everywhere.

Tighten Laws After Bad Fire

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP)—Deaths of eight children in a disastrous fire here April 26 has led two neighboring townships to tighten building restrictions to eliminate fire hazards.

Following an investigation of the fire that took the lives of the five children of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Derry and three of their cousins, Tarentorus township ordered a tightening of building by-laws to ensure dual entrances to all homes. A planning board began study of further safeguards. Where homeowners can't pay to have the work done, the township plans to do it for them, and add the cost to taxes.

Korah Township Thursday night took similar action to eliminate hazards in areas without hydrants and where other fire-fighting facilities are poor.

Cut Information On Stars To Boost Glamor

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Film studio—MGM—has answered a firm no to future requests for stories and pictures about stars and their children. This is the culmination of years of discussion about the loss of glamor in Hollywood.

Over and over again, I have heard this complaint: Movie stars have lost their glamor. The public has learned everything about them, from what they eat for breakfast to how they diaper their children. There is no mystery left in them. The stars have been sold to the public on the idea that they are just like the boy or girl next door.

Stars shouldn't be like anybody next door; they should be exciting, glamorous people. Stars of the past such as Valentino and Garbo were great because there was a mysterious aura about them. Each movie-goer had his own notion of what they were really like.

CLAMP DOWN

So MGM has clamped down on publicity about the families of Esther Williams, Jane Powell, Elizabeth Taylor and others. More studios are following suit.

This runs smack against the policy of the fan mags. They aim to tell all about the stars. It remains to be seen whether the studios will remain firm or give in to magazine pressure.

The fan mags comprise a strange and exacting world. The top magazines are operated on firm scientific principles. Since they rely heavily on newsstand sales, covers are all-important. For some reason, male stars don't sell magazines.

Modern Screen tried an Alan Ladd cover at the peak of his popularity. Sales nose-dived. Only female stars are run on the cover now. Furthermore, only the most recognizable faces are suitable. Eligible are a handful of stars like Esther Williams, Ava Gardner, Rita Hayworth, Marilyn Monroe, Liz Taylor, Jane Powell and Doris Day.

Seven Newspapermen Honored At Dinner

TORONTO (CP)—Seven Canadian newspaper men were honored Friday night for distinguished contributions to their profession in 1952.

The reporters, editorial writers, cartoonists and photographers stood before a dinner gathering of 300 of their fellow-workers from across Canada and accepted $400-prizes awarded by the Toronto Men's Press Club.

The dinner set off a week-end gathering of newspaper men from many parts of Canada who will also attend the Press Club's Byline Ball tonight.

Bruce Hutchison of the Victoria Times, who recently wrote a best-selling biography of Mackenzie King, "The Incredible Canadian," was awarded the prize for editorial writing. His entry of a selection of editorials was mainly concerned with general issues, of which particular aspects were pertinent during the year in British Columbia.

BROKE PETAWAWA STORY

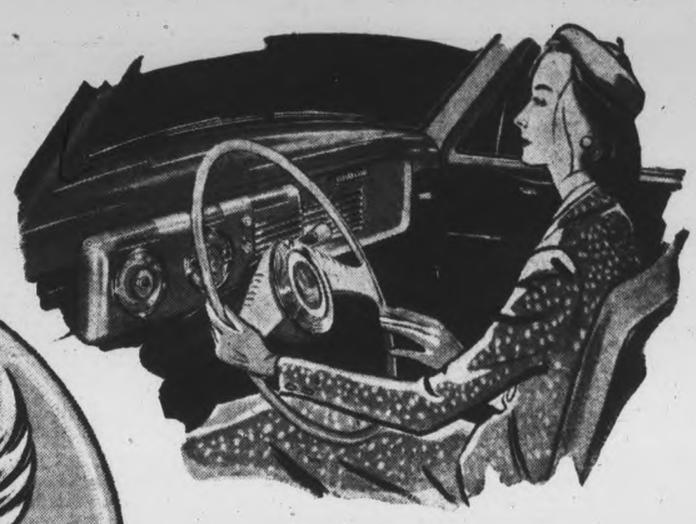
Wilfred List, Globe and Mail labor reporter, won the feature writing award with a series of stories on labor and sociological developments in Quebec, tied into coverage of the Louisville textile strike last October.

The Toronto Daily Star's William Stevenson won the staff corresponding prize for his graphic reporting last June of the Koje Island battle between United States troops and Communist prisoners.



Others who won $400 prizes were: Spot news photography: Russell K. Cooper, Toronto Telegram; feature news photography: Harry Befus, Calgary Herald; cartooning: Robert LaPalme, Montreal Le Devoir.

Miss Plane To Mexico City Mountain Drive Superb

By JEAN E. STENTON

MORELIA—One of the most beautiful trips I had in Mexico came about all because I missed a plane—or rather the plane missed me. On my final return to Mexico City, I had arranged to drive from Patzcuaro to Morelia, an hour's trip, and then fly to the capital.

Sr. Tony Torres, who had done so much to help me in Patzcuaro, was taking me to the airfield. The road was through lovely rolling country with towering volcanic mountains in the background. We allowed a little extra time for a quick peek at the capital of the State of Michoacan.

Morelia is one of the most unspoiled and loveliest of Mexico's Colonial cities. Every public building, church and residence has some interesting architectural details and the place abounds with flowers. The Cathedral, which took a century to build, dominates the landscape. The first college in North America which opened in Patzcuaro, was later transferred to this city where it remains today. It is a delightful city for wandering.

After our brief look around we headed for the airport, confident that this time there was no chance of missing the plane because we were going to be there 25 minutes before takeoff. But once again, matters were taken out of my hands. When we arrived, authorities told us the flight had been cancelled because of bad weather somewhere else; they had no idea when the trip would be rescheduled and all the buses had left.

IN DILEMMA

Ordinarily it wouldn't have mattered. But the following day I had an appointment at 9 a.m. in Mexico City and it was imperative I be there. So I was facing a problem. Then with that wonderful kindness I encountered in all Mexicans, Tony volunteered to drive all the way to Mexico City.

This was no light offer because it was more than 300 miles, mountain driving most of the way. In addition, Tony had to return the same night to Patzcuaro. It took us seven hours to reach Mexico City and after a brief rest, he had to begin the gruelling drive home. But that's what Mexicans are like—grand people.

From a selfish point of view, it was one of the most scenic routes of Mexico and I wouldn't have missed it. Shortly after passing Morelia's famous aqueduct we began climbing into the mountains and never anywhere have I seen anything to compare with the Sierra Madre Mountains of the West.

Mile after mile of hairpin bends and hundreds of blue misted mountain peaks in every direction—each curve presenting a more beautiful view than the last. This symphony of nature reached its crescendo at El Mirador de Mil Cumbres (The View of the Thousand Peaks). It was so impressive that my friend insisted we stop for a few moments there to really appreciate it. Part way along this highway (which is excellent) is a tiny chapel for truck drivers. Here many Mexicans pause to give thanks for a safe trip through the high mountains nearly 10,000 feet above the sea.

EXERCISE VOCAL CHORDS

Mexicans in the towns and along the highways where we whizzed by must have thought a couple of lunatics were on the loose. My companion was very fond of music and all the way to Mexico City we had the radio going and the two of us had a fine time singing the songs along with the orchestra. Believe me, there is nothing to equal the wonderful feeling of sailing along the mountain tops in Michoacan and singing at the top of your lungs. In addition, my friend insisted I try to improve my Spanish by listening to the announcements.

All that alone would have made it a perfect trip. But the cherry on the dessert was an unexpected visit to famous San Jose de Purua, which lies in a beautiful tropical canyon. All over Mexico I had heard of this spot, noted for its beauty and its food, one of the most luxurious of Mexico's resort hotels. But I had passed it by.

A seven-minute ride from the highway and we drew up at the doors of this magnificent spot. Built near an old hacienda, this modern hotel nestles between high mountains and is brilliant with vivid flowers and fountains. Since it is a spa with radium water noted for its beneficial effects, the swimming pool is a popular gathering place. Many movie stars and other luminaries holiday here.

FOOD EXCELLENT

We had dinner, not in the glass-walled dining room, but outside on a balcony overhanging a steep cliff with a gorgeous view of the canyon. The food was all that everyone said it would be and it was one of the best meals I had in Mexico. Along with everyone else, we drank our radium water flavored with lemon juice and it was the most refreshing drink I have had in many a day.

For the next four hours we passed through fine country and as we crossed into Mexico State, the mountains became lower and the scenery changed to a less rugged type. We left Morelia at 11 a.m. and at exactly 6 p.m. we drew up in front of the door of my hotel.

For anyone contemplating visiting Michoacan, I would strongly advise going one way by car or bus, that being the more spectacular route.

Session Has Political Drama

By JOHN LeBLANC

OTTAWA (CP)—The seventh and possibly the last session of Canada's 21st Parliament cut taxes lightly, passed a sheaf of major and minor legislation and produced more political drama than any in recent years. Parliament is expected to prorogue next week with an election coming in August.

Stimulated by the imminence of an election, party members slugged it out almost without interruption for more than five months. Political issues popped up everywhere.

The great and unending furore of the session involved the Currie report critical of administration in the army works service. Progressive Conservatives hammered on its theme month after month, both in the Commons and in a House committee.

The sharpest touch of personal drama came April 30 when Austin E. Dewar, Liberal member for the Saskatchewan riding of Qu'Appelle, resigned his seat following disclosure that he had traded cheques with a contractor doing government work. Denying any profit making or conscious wrong-doing, Mr. Dewar anounced he will run again.

MADE HISTORY

In the waning days of the session, too, three other back-bench Liberals made history for this Parliament. They became the first of Prime Minister St. Laurent's supporters to vote against the government on Opposition non-confidence motions theoretically putting the life of the administration at stake.

John L. MacDougall (Vancouver-Burrard) and A. H. Jeffery (London) bolted on a censure motion against the way the government used its emergency powers John S. Sinott (Springfield) broke away over government policy on wheat prices.

In the tax field, Finance Minister Abbott's budget sliced 11 per cent from the personal income tax, cut corporation taxes and made other lesser reductions. The cuts were estimated at $237,000,000 for the current fiscal year.

The $4,473,000,000 budget also brought in the abolition of the $2.50-a-year radio licence fee. Instead, the CBC will get the estimated $12,000,000-a-year revenue from excise taxes on television and radio receivers.

On the legislative side, Parliament extended the government's broad emergency powers for a year, to May 31, 1954, after a stiff fight in the Commons.

MORE GOV'T AID

More government aid was provided for health, housing, water conservation, gold mining and veterans' dependents.

Plans were anounced for adding $42,000,000 to expand the government's health program during the next five years. Money provided for home-building loans was boosted to $750,000,000 from $450,000,00.

Federal aid for marginal gold mines was raised by about $11,000,000 a year under an enlargement of the complex formula on which it is calculated.

Funds were made available for putting deceased veterans' dependents through university. Also, Parliament extended to the end of the next session the act giving Korean soldiers the same benefits as those of the Second World War. Later, the legislation is expected to be made permanent. Another measure affecting the armed forces was one authorizing Canadian tribunals to try Canadian servicemen charged with offences against the laws of foreign countries.

NATURAL RESOURCES

In natural resources, provision was made for federal contributions up to 37½ per cent of the cost of water-conservation projects undertaken with the provinces and municipalities.

Two major pieces of labor legislation went through. One bars discrimination in employment or union membership against anyone on the ground of race, religion or nationality. It applies to those under federal jurisdiction such as in railways and communications.

Second labor measure was the extension of unemployment insurance to cover persons who become disabled after being put out of work for other reasons. Until now, insurance benefits have been received only when a person was available for work.

Two international treaties were ratified at the session. One, with the United States and Japan, is for regulation of the North Pacific halibut, salmon and herring fishery. The other is a halibut treaty with the U.S. alone.

EXTEND CO-OPERATIVES

Legislation extending the scope of co-operatives was adopted. It will allow the operation of credit unions—now restricted to individual provinces—on a national basis.

One big measure produced more work than any other of the session, but it never did get passed. It was a wholesale overhaul of the Criminal Code, the first in about a half century. It took so much committee study that by the time it came to the Commons there was no time left to deal with it if members were to get to the Coronation.

The session saw the creation of a new portfolio in the cabinet. Ralph O. Campney of Vancouver Centre, who had been Defence Minister Claxton's parliamentary assistant, moved up as associate defence minister. This is the only ministry that carries an associate portfolio.

Standing of the Commons:

Liberals 181 Progressive Conservatives 48; CCF 13; Social Credit 10; Independent Liberal 1; Independent 4; vacant 5; Total 262.

POSSIBLY SLAIN — Police say three young Toronto brothers, who vanished May 1 while on their way to buy some candy, may have been slain. Known shady characters in the area of the boys' home have been questioned. Railway employees have been ordered to check all boxcars between Halifax and Vancouver in case the youngsters have been locked in a car. Missing are Howard Quigley, 7 (left), Paul, 5 (inset as sketched by artist), and Henry, 10.

Asks Special Law

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorney-General Herbert Brownell asked Congress Friday to enact a law which would permit use of wire-tapped evidence in the prosecution of cases involving the national security or defence. "Such legislation is vital for the adequate safeguarding of our country and its way of life," he said in letters to Vice-President Richard Nixon and Joseph Martin, speaker of the House of Representatives.

Honest Driver

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—C. M. Graham, 77, drove through a red light here Friday. He looked around. Not a policeman in sight. So he drove to the police station, and confessed what he had done. Then he insisted that the sergeant hand him a citation, which he said would be the first of his lifetime. In the end he went free, although the sergeant had to take Graham before a forgiving judge before he would leave.

Drama Audience Disagrees With Critical Adjudicator

VICTORIA (CP)—The audience at the Dominion Drama Festival disagreed in part with a "very critical" adjudicator Friday night.

Adjudicator Pierre Lefevre said the London Little Theatre production of "Dark of the Moon" was an attempt to "impress the audience with a bloody good play."

"Drama didn't happen tonight," he said.

Before starting his judging, Mr. Lefevre said he was "going to be unpopular" with both the audience and the cast.

Big disagreement between Mr. Lefevre and the audience was on a witch dance performed in one scene by Joey Harris. During the dance the audience burst into tremendous applause.

DIDN'T BELONG

"Though it was danced beautifully and had terrific entertainment value, it did not belong to the play," Mr. Lefevre said. "We burst out in applause when we shouldn't have."

The play was the sixth of the festival. The last two plays will be shown today. They are "Volpone" by the Player's club Alumni of the University of British Columbia and "Zone" by La Jeune Scene of Montreal.

The winners of the festival awards will be announced after the presentation of "Zone" tonight.

Governor-General Vincent Massey will present the awards Sunday afternoon.

"Dark of the Moon," by Howard Richardson and William Berney, is a fantasy about a "witch boy" who turns human and marries a mountain girl. The girl breaks faith in the boy and he turns back into a witch.

SHARP DISAGREEMENT

Throughout the performance the audience burst into applause. Many of the parts that pleased the audience came in for criticism from Mr. Lefevre.

He said he "swam against the tide of the audience."

He appeared to cut his comments interrupted his critical remarks short when part of the audience with untimely applause.

"I thought the essence and real style of the play was missed," Mr. Lefevre said. The atmosphere needed for the type of play was lacking.

"Instead of jokes and humor being incidental the drama of the 'witch boy' was incidental," he said.

SHARP DISAGREEMENT

"To my mind the style in which the play was presented did not contribute enough to the atmosphere world in which such a story could happen."

Mr. Lefevre said he would not go into details of the actors' individual performances because he "would have a battle on my hands with them later."

"The actors were all good but on the wrong track."

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian Girls in Training movement has a membership of about 32,000 teenage girls, it was reported at the national CGIT staff conference here.

Last year more than 200 new groups were formed across Canada.

Summer camps will be held throughout the country this summer and money will be donated by the girls to a children's camp in Trieste. Last year $2,400 was raised at the Huntsville camp for an apprentice training school in West Germany.

Teachers Assoc. Elects Miss MacMartin

The teachers of J. C. Doyle's Inspectorate assembled at St. Anne's School on Thursday evening for their Spring meeting of the district's Ontario English Catholic Associaton The President, the Rev. J. G. Maskey, presided. The teachers were welcomed to the recently decorated classrooms by the principal, E. J. Boland.

After opening the meeting with prayer, reports were presented by committee convenors J Moher, for the Educational Research Committee, spoke of the Study Clubs that had been organized, and the satisfactory work being done on the study of the Papal Encyclical,—Christian Education of Youth. Sister Regina read the report presented by Sister Clotilde, for the Religious Committee, concerning the Catholic Book Club, which proved to be a source of profit and enjoyment to the members. Miss Brick read a report of the recent Ontario Educational Association Convention in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Seidel and Heribert Michel delighted the audience with a collection of Central European melodies.

The guest speaker, the Rev. C. J. Lavery C.S.B., Registrar of St. Michael's College, Toronto, was introduced by the Rev. J. C. Coughlan. Highlights of his address were:

SHAPES LEADERS

The teacher holds a position of eminence and influence, shaping the future leaders of the world. While teaching is often financially unrewarding, the satisfaction it affords is so great that professors of high scholastic attainment are attracted by it, and held to it, year after year.

The elementary school, especially the junior grades is the foundation of all education. Next to the mother, the first and most influential teacher, the teachers of the junior grades exert most influence over the child, laying the foundation on which all advanced knowledge must be based.

In athletics our schools encourage competition in order to raise standards. Not only the prize-winner, but all who participate benefit from the competition. Likewise in studies, the classroom should develop leaders of high scholastic ability and the entire class will benefit from contact with these higher standards of learning.

A leader needs an integrated personality,—excellence in secular studies, motivated by a love of truth. This Truth, which is Christ, must not only be known, but lived. Lack of sense of purpose is the basic cause of much mental illness. The Living Truth, known and lived in its fulness, will afford the purposefulness that makes life a challenge.

The speaker was thanked by the Rev. L. Leahy. The nominating committee with J. Maloney as convenor presented the following slate of officers which was unanimously accepted:

President: Miss Justina MacMartin; past president: the Rev. J. G. Maskey; first vice-president: Sister Stanislaus; second vice-president: Sister Marion; third vice-presiden: Mr. J. Maloney; secretary: Sister Rosamond; treasurer: Miss Hilda Lynch; councillors: Sister Giovanni, Miss Marion Downer, Reverend J. C. Coughlan, Mr. Boland.

Urges New Canadians Use Language Here

OTTAWA (CP) —The Rev. Donald Ortner of St. Catharines said here this week that new Canadians should learn their religion in the language of their adopted country.

He was addressing the 25th pastoral conference of the Ontario district of the Lutheran Church, held here this week at St. Luke's Church. The conference is held every three years.

In the past, he said, too many new Canadians had retained language ties with homelands, which had presented a difficulty in church administration and pastoral duties. Even today the Lutheran Church in Canada must work in 27 languages.

Longshoremen's Union May Be Booted Out Of AFL

NEW YORK (AP)—Possibility that the strife-torn International Longshoremen's Association may be ousted from the AFL heightened today after metropolitan New York dock workers voted to retain the much condemned "shape-up" hiring system.

There also were predictions of mounting turmoil on the racketsridden waterfront.

The AFL executive council has ordered the longshore union to clear up the piers, and get rid of the "shape-up" practice, or face expulsion from the parent body.

Charges of a frame-up election arose, even before results of the vote Friday showed that New Jersey and New York dock hands had voted 7,000 to 3,920 in favor of the "shape-up." There were 978 voided ballots.

The 35 metropolitan locals form ILA on the U. S. east and gulf coasts.

WIDE OBJECTIONS

The Honest Ballot Association, an independent agency, supervised the poll; but there were wide objections to the way the question was put: "Are you satisfied with the present method of hiring?"

In Washington, AFL President George Meany told a U. S. Senate sub-committee this was a "loaded question." He said ILA members were offered "the system they've got or nothing."

Father John M. Corrigan, a Jesuit priest active in the fight for waterfront reforms, said on a television program, "The Local Scene," that intimidation was used prior to the voting.

"Union lieutenants went along the docks telling the men they better keep what they've got, or they won't have anything," he said. "Most of the men had little chance to know what they were voting for."

Under the shape-up, longshoremen are hired for a day's work by a pier boss who picks them out of the crowd of job hopefuls

SYSTEM ATTACKED

The system has been attacked at state and federal investigations as a breeder of rackets, of kickbacks to curry favor with the bosses, and of loan-sharking.

Joseph P. Ryan, the ILA president and now under indictment for grand larceny of union funds, was reported in favor of retaining the system. He has admitted 30 per cent of the ILA officers and dock bosses have criminal records.

The New York state crime commission has said it will recommend that the state legislature abolish the shape-up.

Says Bribery Of Writers Real Scandal

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—A prominent newspaper man said Friday that bribery of certain newspaper writers "is one of the great shames of American journalism."

Norman E. Isaacs, president of The Associated Press Managing Editors Association and managing editor of the Louisville Times, called on newspapers to clean up moral concepts of right and wrong.

"A great many editors have written reams about the mink coat set," Isaacs said. "Are they not perhaps themselves blinding themselves to the fact that their newspapers are in the squirrel coat class?"

Isaacs addressed the annual conference of news executives, sponsored by the University of Minnesota School of Journalism.

"There are three major fields where bribery is operating and one minor field," Isaacs said.

NAMES MAJOR ONES

He named the major ones as sports, entertainment and women's news, the minor one as politics.

He charged that in some cities sports writers have long been on wrestling and boxing promoters' payrolls.

"In the entertainment field," Isaacs said, "the press agents operate at great high pressure. Nothing is too good for the press."

In women's news "all you have to do is to pay attention to your women's desks — particularly the two weeks before Christmas," he told the newspaper executives.

"The girls themselves use the perfect word for it: Loot." He said that there is always "some petty chiseling" in politics, but added that "on the larger scale, I think political writers have learned to steer clear of any involvements."

Will Suspend UP Service

NEW YORK (AP)—The United Press said today its bureau at Buenos Aires has been notified by the Argentine government that UP service to newspapers in the interior will be cut off May 16.

The service is distributed over government radio facilities to 16 papers.

The UP said the suspension order from the Argentine ministry of communications came as the Argentine Senate ordered an investigation of all foreign news agencies in Argentina.

Previously, two Buenos Aires afternoon newspapers and eight in the interior suspended publication of UP service after Argentina's President Peron's attack on United States news services last Friday.

Peron charged American news agencies and correspondents with "defaming" Argentina by spreading "lies disguised as news," and asked a congressional investigation.

One Buenos Aires morning newspaper also suspended use of The Associated Press service.

New Wage Agreement Ratified By UAW

CHATHAM (CP) — Members of Local 127, United Automobile Workers (CIO-CCL) Friday night ratified a new wage agreement with the International Harvester Company.

The agreement, which climaxes four months' negotiations, gives wage and benefit increases for some 800 employees in the Chatham plant.

Harry Ford, UAW representative, said day-rate workers will receive increases of from nine to 20 cents an hour while piece workers on fixed lines receive a 12-per-cent increase and other piece workers receive a 10-per-cent increase.

The agreement also provides sick and accident benefits of $30 a week for all employees paid less than $42.50 a week and $35 for all employees paid more than that figure. The payments are for 52 weeks.

Austrian Premier

The Moscow Declaration of November 1, 1943, said the Four Great Powers would liberate Austria and grant independence.

Russia postponed discusing the peace treaty long after the war but the four powers divided the country into zones and established an Austrian government in 1945 and authorized free elections in 1946. The four powers retain supervision and control by veto.

In December of 1946 Russia finally agreed to let the Four Power deputies discuss a treaty. They have been discussing it ever since at nearly 300 meetings. The delay springs from two causes, both Russian: (1) Russia would like to retain control of Austrian oil, (2) Russia doesn't like to lose Austria's industries, most of which are in the Soviet zone.

There is a third reason, which Ernest Bevin warned of in the Commons as far back as 1948: that Russia has been holding up an Austrian treaty so as to use it as a bargaining chip in other matters such as Trieste, Germany, and now Korea.

Vienna is called the listening post to the countries behind the iron curtain. But no Austrian, British or American official to whom I have talked pretends to have heard what is behind the new Russian world peace policy, and particularly do they not care to guess how long it may yet be before an Austrian peace treaty is signed.

UNEASY COALITION

And so Dr. Rabb, 63 years old, is looking to four years of government — government by uneasy coalition of a country in uneasy occupation by four outside powers. His task isn't easy. He was an Austrian fascist himself before the war. He is called a reactionary by the extremists in the Socialist Party, and as there is no Communist Party worth mentioning it follows that the Socialists include some fervent laborites.

His task will not be easy domestically, and no better internationally. For the Austrians are getting fed up with occupation, with paying for British occupation troops, with seeing their oil and industry milked by Russians. The French they have never loved, and they don't love the Amercans either, despite the fact that they are on American relief. Austrians, like the rest of us, can tire of charity.

Dr. Raab has the biggest damn ferris wheel in the world in a Vienna park — the Prater — and his people have their music, and their wine (not too good), and their wonderful capital and countryside. They also draw great strength from their religion (Roman Catholic by 95 per cent.), And, besides, Austrians like to be happy.

SERIOUS PROBLEMS

But Dr. Raab has unemployment, Russia, three other great but foreign powers, a tiny country in an Empire's shoes, the Iron Curtain just 40 miles from Vienna, an economy threatened by such things as that a senior civil servant earns about $75 a month and sees tourists spend that in a day of shopping.

I envied him the beauty of his his desk, the crystal chandeliers, city, the lovely Austrian leather on the Persian rugs and the view upon the Emperor's park. But I didn't envy him his coming four years of office.

"Auf Wiedersehen," he said, as, with old world courtesy he walked out with me to the corridor.

"Auf Wiedersehen," I thought. But I hope things will be better with him and his countrymen if we meet again. For it seems certain that Austria cannot go on as she is for long. Things must get either a little better or a very great deal worse.

Lindsay Woman Pays Fine With 100 Pennies

LINDSAY (ENS)—A Lindsay woman, Mrs. Joe Leith, paid her parking fine last night with a smile, and although Chief Hunter later commented on her fine sense of humor, for a short time he failed to be amused. Mrs. Leith was tagged for a meter violation by one of the constables of the town police force. When she found the ticket on her window, she went straight to the station to pay the $1 fine after taking a detour to the bank where she exchanged a $1 bill for 100 pennies, Chief Hunter was happy to see such prompt payment of the fine until he saw the tender being offered to make good the debt. He spent the next few minutes counting the pennies, then stored them away for future reference.

This morning the Chief can again smile about the incident. The town's car safety check is also bringing its quota of smiles. One day during the past week, a Provincial Police officer of the Lindsay detachment was moving. He borrowed a truck and loaded it and was on the way to the new house, when he was caught in a traffic line, with two local constables checking cars at the head of it. After this delay, he continued on his way, but then found he had forgotten something, and started back to his former home to pick it up in his car. On the way he became involved in another "checking" line, and when he arrived back at the new home, he found it was too late to complete the moving that day.

Another incident involved an off-duty constable of the town force and the chief. When P.C. Ross Bailey was stopped by the Chief for a car-check while on his way to a mid-morning shift he was delayed for 10 minutes. PC Bailey apparently was cutting his time rather close, for he arrived 10 minutes later for the shift, and received a smiling chiding from the Chief. To date the check is proving most successful with a great many motorists cooperating and having minor details of safety corrected on their cars, before they are told to do so by the police. Some vehicles have been removed from the road for major repairs but only a few wrecks have been taken completely from the highways and consigned to the scrap heap.

Humane Society Hears Report From Inspector

Monthly executive meeting of Peterborough Humane Society was held in the rooms over "Ethels" Pet Shop Thursday evening. The meeting was well attended. Newly elected president Mrs. R. S. Hamilton presided and a great deal of new business was transacted.

Inspector Mr. Bruce Menzies reported he had given 130 warnings to owners of pets, found homes for 11 cats and numerous kittens, and also found good homes for 13 dogs, mercifully did away with 42 dogs and 28 cats. Picked up off the city streets 13 dogs and 14 cats, these animals were run over by cars and injured. "We keep trying to impress upon the public not to allow their pets to run at large, or allow their pet dog to follow little Johnny or Mary to school", he said.

Mr. Menzies also pointed out that his work has increased in volume during the last year, due of course to the fact the city has grown in population, and nearly every second family has some kind of pet. "So do not call the Inspector unless you know all the facts." He receives many complaints, and when investigated finds a great number to be completely false, or spite cases.

Representatives to organizations were appointed as follows: Mental Health, Mrs. Wm. Cole, and Miss P. Denne; Kennel Club, Miss E. McFadyen; Red Cross, Mrs. C. J. Seymour; Film Council, Miss June N. Fraser; Community Fund and Red Cross, Mrs. R. S. Hamilton; Local Council of Women, Mrs. S. O. Shields.

Life Becomes Less Rugged For Many Farm Women

OTTAWA (CP)—Life is becoming less rugged for many farm women these days.

A Dominion bureau of statistics 1951 census bulletin, issued recently, shows the percentage of Canadian homes with modern plumbing, lighting, cooking and refrigeration facilities rose in the decade between censuses. The sharpest increase was in farm areas.

The proportion of farm homes with inside running water, private bath, or shower, private flush toilet and electric lighting was nearly three times as great in 1951 as in 1941. The percentage with mechanical refrigeration was almost six times as great and the proportion with electric or gas stove nearly double.

In all Canada, 2,523,605 homes or 74 per cent of the 3,409,295 occupied dwellings had inside running water in 1951, as compared with 1,558,586, or 60.5 per cent of the 2,575,744 occupied dwellings in the nine provinces in 1941.

Households with private bath or shower numbered 1,938,095 or 56.8 per cent of the 1951 total, as against 1,169,760 or 45.4 per cent in 1941.

Dwellings with private flush toilet totalled 2,187,025 or 64.1 per cent of the total in 1951 as against 1,342,198, or 52.1 per cent in 1941.

The number of homes with electric lighting was 2,967,035 or 87 per cent of the total in 1951, compared with 1,780,667 or 69.1 per cent in 1941.

Homes with mechanical refrigeration numbered 1,594,860 or 46.8 per cent of the 1951 total, compared with 538,535 or 20.9 per cent in 1941.

In farm areas the proportion of homes with inside running water rose in the decade to 32.9 from 12.2 per cent.

Farm homes with private bath or shower went up to 15.5 from 6.5 per cent; with private flush toilet to 20 from 8.1 per cent, with electric lighting to 56.2 from 20.2 per cent.

Farm houses with mechanical refrigeration rose to 21.9 from 3.6 per cent and with electric or gas stove to 13 from 7.4 per cent.

THIS GIRL won't smell greasy or medicated even though she's coated with oil. Her tanning oil is fragrant with perfume.

Tanning Oil Given Perfume Odor

BY ALICIA HART
NEA BEAUTY EDITOR

When you soak up your sunshine this summer, you needn't smell "medicated" or "greased up" because of your tanning oil. There's one on the market which will wreath you with the scent of a famous French perfume.

The makers claim that this tanning oil screens out harmful rays of the sun while it coaxes a smooth, even tan—all while you enjoy the worldly, sophisticated scent. Not only will you be evenly tanned—your skin will be silkier than ever, say the makers.

The same famous fragrance is available in other summertime products. There's a tube of small, compressed discs which puff into full - size, perfumed washcloths when you wet them—a boon for vacationers who hate bringing home damp washcloths.

Bath oil and dusting powder are the other items that complete the line for girls who love to match up their bath accessories with their perfume and cologne.

Miss Mary Lees Gives Paper On African Life

St. Paul's Auxiliary WMS met Friday afternoon with Mrs. J. H. Eastwood presiding. Devotional period was conducted by Mrs. F. W. Brockley and Mrs. Fred Hills presided at the piano for the hymns.

Miss Mary Lees gave an interesting and informative paper on "African Life—Old and New." In Africa could be seen a civilization which dates back for centuries, a splendid people who, once given the opportunity could take their place with any in the world. "They are a deeply religious people, living in a rich land but who have not shared in the wealth which is rightfully theirs. The old pattern of tribal society, which rigidly controlled family relationships, is being swiftly destroyed. Old tribal loyalties are greatly weakened and new community loyalties have not yet emerged. The Christian church has done much to awaken the African people to their own status as individuals, helping to train them properly to serve their own people," it was pointed out.

The centre of the Old African way of life was in the village. "Remembering the vast continent of Africa, its climate so diversified and its peoples so different in race and culture, we realize that location must necessarily influence the village life," said Miss Lees. "Land is communally owned. Each adult married male has as much land as he adn his family can till and use provided he continues to use it, so no one is landless and no one unemployed, except the utterly shiftless. The crops were owned by groups. Each group had its individual responsibilities. Animals killed by hunters had to be shared. The fishing catch was divided and should men working away from the village in the olden days receive wages, they were divided on his return. In cases of thieving and wrongdoing all claims and quarrels were discussed in council under the chief. The boys and girls enjoy their games and play in a similar manner to the children in other countries. They enjoy rhythmic dances and put all they have into them, dancing for the sheer joy of living.

In the new life modern influences have penetrated into the ordered life and cast iron customs of the tribe, Miss Lees pointed out. In the days of the slave trades the African villager was taken by force and transported to other countries. Today, industry lures him to another part of his own country.

"David Livingston dreamed of the day when commerce and industry would open up the continent with transport and trading so that the light of knowledge, of science, of medicine and above all the light of the gospel could pierce the darkness of superstition and ignorance. In closing Miss Lees said that "A real living daily—practiced Christianity can be the only permanent answer to the confusion of the new Africa."

Barbara Walker Chosen Queen Of PCVS May Ball

The second annual May Ball at PCVS was a lovely event of Friday evening at the school. A May Queen was chosen during the evening and she is Miss Barbara Walker.

Miss Walker was crowned by Miss Lorraine Derry, president of Students' Council, and she was presented with a dozen roses by Principal Mr. C. S. Browne. Two ladies-in-waiting, who were runners-up in the final voting, each received a spray of spring flowers. They are Miss Shirley Peryer and Miss Janet Langley.

For the crowning ceremony the students had secured a model of the Coronation chair used in England, complete with a stone similar to the famous Stone of Scone. Three boys of grade 9 were dressed as page boys and assisted in the crowning ceremony, one reading a scroll which called forward the queen and her attendants. Another carried the tiara on a black cushion.

Chane Carter, chairman of social functions at PCVS this year, was in charge of the dance arrangements. The gymnasium was festive with a ceiling of pastel colored streamers and decorated with flowers, the work of Misses Marilyn Hardwicke and Marg. Dobson, and lighting was arranged by Al Smith. Miss Lorraine Bacon directed the crowning ceremony. Refreshments were convened by Miss Cheryl Wishart, Paul Ward and David Parry.

Teacher advisors assisting in the selection of the May Queen were Miss Burgess, Miss Hicks and Mr. Collingwood.

DOROTHY DIX:

Told To Adopt New Tactics With Husband

DEAR MISS DIX: Our marriage on the whole, has been a satisfactory one, but I am faced with a problem on which I'd like advice. My husband and I get along very well until such time as he forgets to come home from a "few beers with the boys," and the occasions when he doesn't come home to dinner. The latter doesn't happen often—about once in four months—but when it does I get angry and upset, becoming physically ill. I don't mind too much when he stays out late evenings; when he does come home early he goes to bed right after dinner anyway. The real trouble is that when I get angry because he did not come home to dinner, I'm always the one to make up, so if I had been at fault. I can't stand "not speaking" and this state apparently doesn't bother my husband at all. Could I learn to be unconcerned and wait the misunderstanding out? We've been married seven years and have two children.

IRENE

✧ ✧ ✧

TRY OTHER TACTICS

ANSWER: Since you know you are going to be the one to seek reconciliation, why put yourself in the position of having to do it? Instead, learn to accept your husband's defections, save the recriminations, and avoid the periodic emotional strain of waiting vainly for his apologies You admit that he enjoys waiting for you to make the first move after an argument, and is quite happy when the strife is over. You are just a little too anxious to let him have his way. You can certainly never except anyone to "eat crow" when he knows someone else will do it for him Try making no coment when he arrives home after an unexplained delay. The shock will be rather overwhelming for him.

Your entire home life seems to be badly balanced, and I'd suggest your taking some means to insure more time out with your husband. Get a baby sitter once a week and take in a movie together. Then another night invite some friends in for a friendly chat or game of cards.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX. I've ben married to, and love, this Don Juan for thirty-three years. Our children are married and away. I've gone gray while my husband, seven years my senior, uses a color pomade and isn't, in appearance, gray. He makes quite a joke out of my appearance, saying, for instance, that he doesn't like being married to a grandmother, I'm getting tired of being the target of his joking.

AMELIA

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Come back with a comment on his touched-up hair. That should take a little stuffiness out of his stuffed shirt.

Come in for your first wisecrack before he has a chance to set the pace with his brand of fun.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: You probably won't believe this, but I have a crush on my science teacher. I'm only 14 and he's about 40. His personality is wonderful, and he has such a nice way of talking. How can I get some attention from him?

I. S.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Too bad it isn't your English teacher; I'd suggest that you improve your spelling, which might arouse his interest. However, since it's science, I can only recommend hard study and well-prepared homework. You're only one of several girls equally impressed with a teacher's personality, so don't take yourself too seriously.

Of Interest to Women

MOTHER'S SLOGAN: "For the Family!" — One of the most important jobs a mother can start working on when her children are small is encouraging them to think of the family unit.

FOR PARENTS ONLY:

Train Children To Think In Terms Of Entire Family

BY NANCY CLEAVER

Robert C. Hermes, an Audubon lecturer, tells a delightful story about his meeting with a little French Canadian girl in the Gaspe peninsula. He asked her how to reach the next village and while she replied he looked at her earnest little face, her poor, but clean, mended gingham dress. She belonged to a large family and he knew that candy would be a real treat for her. So he took out a handful of toffees and thrust them into her small open fist. He expected her immediately to stuff several candies in hour mouth. But no—she carefully selected one piece and put all the rest in her pocket. Joking, Mr. Hermes asked her in French "Don't you like candy?" Quickly she protested that she loved sweets, but patting the pocket with the toffee in it she explained, "C'est pour la famille!"

MOTHER DOING GOOD JOB

"It's is for the family!"—That little girl's mother was doing a good job in training her daughter not just to think in terms or herself, but to remember the other members in the home circle. Willingness to share an unexpected treat with brothers and sisters is a pretty good test of the family bond. Would your son or daughter, in a similar position, have shown this kind of generosity?

A child is naturally self-centred and acquisitive. If he is an only child he doesn't get much practice in dividing up with other relatives his own age. Even if he belongs to a large family, his parents may sometimes feel quite gloomy about the strength of family affection. "Youngsters do so much scrapping!" one mother of a small family sighed to her friend, who answered comfortingly, "It's their nature — and they likely don't do any more quarreling than we did when we were kids—only we've forgotten our fights!"

BE SOME FRICTION

A certain amount of friction between brothers and sisters seems inevitable. With normal children in an ordinary household, everything certainly is not what Ruskin called "sweetness and light"! Each child struggles for his own share of his parent's affection. Each youngster is jealous of his own rights and keeps a wide-awake eye on his own possessions.

Bickerings and tiffs within the home walls are not all together bad. They give a child experience in give and take, in being a good sport about failure and success. These home battles help to prepare a child to make his own way in the face of opposition in the outside world.

If arguments become too frequent or too heated, parents can always impose a period of separation. One mother of three active small boys used to say firmly to squabblers: "If you can't play happily together, then you'll just have to go to your own rooms and play away from each other!" Another mother on rainy Saturday afternoons always had a "tea party" if her children and their chums had managed to play without hot disputes.

WHEN STRENGH APPARENT

When a member of the family is abused by someone outside the home, or if the household is facing some unexpected crisis, then the strength of the family bond is usually apparent. Parents as a rule can depend on Junior

Readers' Saturday Column by Mary Moore

ATTENTION MRS. E. J W.—the reader who wanted Bread Pretzels:

LETTER: Would this help your correspondent who asks about old-fashioned bread pretzels?

Our dearly loved Martha, who was not "cook" "maid" "nurse" "laundress" but acted in all these capacities plus darning, sewing, supervising homework, in fact shared the home and work and interests with mother and got $3.50 per month for it, also baked our bread. Sometimes she would take a little dab of dough and roll it on the board with her palms until it was about 7 to 10 inches long and at the thickest never more than a pencil size. These "ropes" she would form into shapes to please us: braid 3 together, tie one in a knot, form figures, letters, little men, women, animals, suns, moons, stars, anything we suggested She had a bit of cheesecloth which she dipped in "something" (I fancy it was melted butter) and mopped the forms with it. She sprinkled coarse salt, or poppy seed, caraway grated nutmeg, bits of crushed cinnamon sticks, grated cheese, candied fruits, currants (in modern day jargon everything but the kitchen sink). These were spread on cookie sheets, put on top of the warming oven on top of the range, covered with a clean tea towel and left maybe 10 minutes, then baked. They did not take long to bake and were a beautiful brown. They were very crisp and delicious as they were, or as an accompaniment to soup. I have made them with varying success but they never tasted quite like Martha's. E. C.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Your letter is charming and you certainly gave us a nostalgic picture of the kitchen and beloved friend of your childhood. I do hope Mrs. E. J. W. sees this, and hereby thank you for her, for it.

✧ ✧ ✧

QUESTION: Please give me any information pertaining to underweights—such as diets, menus, etc. Any information will be greatly appreciated. Madelon B.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER:

Suggested Food Intake for Underweight for One Day.

Breakfast: Half grapefruit or 8-oz. glass fresh orange juice; poached egg on buttered whole wheat toast; buttered toast and jam or marmalade; whole milk, coffee with cream and sugar. Eat this plus a cooked or packaged whole whole cereal with cream and brown sugar if you can.

10:30 A.M. Eggnog (1 egg, 8-oz. milk, 2 teaspoons sugar or honey)

Lunch: Cream soup, 2 or 4 slices whole wheat bread in meat or cheese or fish or egg sandwiches, generously buttered; ripe banana, fruit-and-nut cookies, 8 oz whole milk.

3:30 p.m.: Large glass fresh orange juice and crackers.

Dinner: At least 4 ounces meat and the natural fat on it; baked potato with jacket on and butter; creamed green vegetable; green salad with mayonnaise; baked custard, or fruit pie, milk, plus whole wheat bread if you can eat it with this dinner

9:30 p.m.: Cocoa made entirely with whole milk; peanut butter or jam on crackers.

ROUTINE: Drink 10 eight-ounce glasses water per day. Eat regularly. Walr or exercise outside at least one hour per day. Have nine hours sleep per night. If possible eat a well-ripened banana at the end of every meal. Drink one quart of whole milk per day.

While we are all aware that fat people get that way from eating rich calorie-loaded desserts, I cannot recommend this kind of a diet, because by doing so you would have no room for the protective foods. You must eat your fresh fruits and vegetables even though they are comparative low in calories.

AIDS BROWNING

Baste pot roast or meat loaf with a little French dressing, it gives a delightful flavour and seems to help the browning.

To the land of long ago,
And memory paints the scenes of old
In the gold of the twilight glow.
We seem to see in the soft dim light,
A face we loved the best,
We think of her when the sun's last ray
Goes down in the far-off west.
—Fondly remembered by husband Chris and daughters Marilyn and Shirley.

Train Children

to look out for sister Janie if she is being bullied on the way home from school. A threat from an outsider, or anxiety, if it is shared, help to make each member of the family conscious of the home unit. So does regular enjoyment of the radio or some other recreation as a family group.

Some form of Family Council, either a formal or informal one, on major problems and expenditures help the children to think in terms of the good of the whole family, and not just of their own selfish interests. The discussions may not be as efffective as those in "Cheaper by the Dozen", but they do point up the claims of the home on each member's time and thought and energy.

Once in a while mother has made home so pleasant and the bond between the members in the family is so strong, that the sons and daughters, when they reach maturity, are in no hurry to set up their own homes. But parents who are mature people want to see their children accept increasing responsibility for their own lives, and eventually for their own homes. One of the finest tributes to a mother and father came from a man who grew up in a home where there was a particularly warm and loving atmosphere—Albert Switzer said of his parents: "They trained us for freedom."

May Establish WarkworthDairy

WARKWORTH (ENS)—Meeting of the Business Men's Association was held Wednesday evening in the Carlaw Hotel.

It was reported by the committee on garbage collecting that the response was favorable on the part of the householders that had been canvassed.

The committee reporting on the establishment of a local dairy said that it is quite probable such an industry will be opened in the locality in the near future. The Milk Control Board are to get information regarding the necessary steps.

In a reply from a request from the local library it was moved and passed that a sum of money be granted to the Library Board to aid in the purchasing of new books and other materials. It was unanimously approved that the Club vote a sum of money for repairing and improving the playgrounds.

It was voted that a special window be decorated for the Coronation decorations, this window to be on display for a week.

After the business period the Rev. A. L. Sisco was asked to introduce the Rev. J. E. Griffith of Castleton, guest speaker for the evening. Mr. Griffith emphasized the importance and effects of clubs stating that they were based on the ideas of fellowship and sympathy. He said that "these bases coupled with interest and understanding were forces that could rule the world if applied in clubs, homes and churches."

Bruce Birney thanked the speaker.

Duplessis Fears U.S. Sales Of Textiles

QUEBEC (CP)—Premier Duplessis expressed fear Friday that the sale of United States textile products "at sacrifice prices" on the Canadian market may place Quebec's textile industry in a "disastrous situation."

Mr. Duplessis told his weekly press conference Quebec's economic position was probably "unique in America."

"I am not in a position to know if an economic crisis is shaping up, but Quebec's industries, based on development of natural resources, will function in an economy geared for peace or war.

"There is only one cloud that darkens the horizon and that is the textile industry, and industries manufacturing textile products.

FEELS COMPETITION

"The textile industry is feeling the effects of competition on the part of United States producers.

"For instance, oud Canadian market is swamped, not to say infested, with these American products sold at sacrifice prices to the detriment of our textile industry and of our people.

". . . I have serious reasons to believe that if it (this problem) is not solved in the near future, an important industry providing work for a large portion of our people will be irreparably placed in a disastrous situation that will benefit unjust American invasion," Mr. Duplessis said.

Quebec is Canada's biggest producer of textiles and textile products.

TO BUILD REFINERY

Mr. Duplessis made the following announcements:

1. Petrofina, a Belgian oil and gasoline producing firm, has decided to build a refinery in Quebec and set up an oil and gasoline retailing organization throughout Eastern Canada at a cost of $25,000,000. The firm has interests in Western Canada's oil fields.

2. Gaspe Copper Mines Limited, the Noranda Mines subsidiary which will develop copper mines in Holland township, will share the cost of a road from Gaspe Mine to Anse Pleureuse, near the harbor town of Mont Louis. Ore vessels will load there and take the copper to Montreal for refining.

3. No cabinet appointments will be made until by-elections are held in the three constituencies of Montreal Outremont, Portneuf and Matapedia. Mr. Duplessis indicated the by-elections may not be held until September.

Norham WA Invites Group To May Meeting

WARKWORTH (ENS)—Monthly meeting of the Norham WA group of the United Church was held on Thursday afternoon at the Comumnity Centre.

The president, Mrs. A. E. Harwood presided. The scripture lesson was read by Mrs. Knox. Mrs. Russell gave a reading "Faith As Trust". In the absence of Mrs. L. Evans, the Sunshine Convener, Mrs. Windover read two thank you letters. The treasurer, Mrs. Newman, gave the report of the bazaar.

It was moved by Mrs. H. Russell and seconded by Mrs. P. Windover that invitations be extended to the Women's Associations of Morganston and of Oak Heights for the May meeting at the Community Centre.

It was moved by Mrs. H. Evans and seconded by Mrs. Clark that the society supply flowers for St. Paul's Church one Sunday a month.

It was moved by Mrs. Newman and seconded by Mrs. Gummer that $3.00 a month be set aside for the flowers and that Mrs. Russell and Mrs. Windover be appointed for the flower committee.

Mrs. Gummer presided over the following programme: a reading by Mrs. Clark, a vocal duet sung by Mrs. Hatcher and Mrs. Harwood; Mrs. Brenton gave a paper and Mrs. H. Evans conducted a physiology contest which was won by Mrs. Clark and Mrs. Windover.

COME ON! signals PC Bert Howden of the city police, in demonstrating signals for the benefit of many Peterborough drivers who don't seem to understand them. At the first signal (left) drivers on the constable's right should start going. Stop! he signals, centre, and traffic on both his left and right come to a halt. Planning to make a left turn? PC Howden stops oncoming traffic and points the way out for you. Follow his signals at the intersections and traffic will flow much faster.—(Examiner Staff Photos).

Traffic Signals Just Confuse Many Drivers

If you're a signal-wise motorist, then don't bother reading this. According to city police there are a surprisingly large number of motorists in Peterborough who should pay attention to this story, however.

There are those motorists who see a policeman at an intersection and speed on by, regardless of his signal. And regardless of his signal, others will bring their cars to a grinding halt and watch him dazedly.

The pictures accompanying this story indicate the signals which you are most likely to come across when driving on local streets. They're simple and easy to follow, even when seen for the first time.

WHISTLE CODE

Hand signals aren't the only ones a motorist is likely to come across, though. Policemen are armed with whistles, too, and have a definite code to follow while directing traffic.

One long blast, for instance, means to stop. Two short blasts mean go. And a series of short blasts is the signal for a driver to stop daydreaming at the wheel and pay more attention to the officer.

Althoug drivers disobey or misunderstand signals a great deal, pedestrians are even worse in this respect.

They see an officer signal them to stop and then when they think he's not watching, try to sneak across anyway. Sometimes they don't even wait 'til the policeman looks away before they jaywalk.

It would be just as fast and much safer if both drivers and pedestrians would follow the signals of a traffic officer.

He's not there for his health. He's there for yours.

Drunken Engineer Kisses Bishop

People Aggressively Friendly To Six Touring PoWs

(Tenth of Series)

BY PHILIP DEANE

Correspondent of Observer, London

LONDON—Standing under huge slogans proclaiming that Stalin was "immortal," that he would "live for ever," the people at Chita station addressed us with aggressive friendliness. Five gigantic Red Army lieutenants surrounded Bishop Cooper and told him that an old gentleman like him should not smoke. Smoking was bad, they said, but drinking vodka was fine. These same young officers warned me not to try taking any Communist publications into Britain; if I did, I would be arrested on arrival. They listened politely but with incredulous expressions when I told them that the "Daily Worker" was on sale everywhere in Britain, and that at Collet's (well-known London bookshop) you could buy all the Communist publications.

"That was three years ago," they said. "You will find things changed."

When I asked them why their bookstalls had no non-Communist publications on sale they replied: "We don't need them. Our Press tell us the truth."

From the windows of our compartment we watched train after train pass us, going east. There were great numbers of brand-new lorries, bridge sections, field artillery, tractors, pumping-station equipment, coal, oil, reels of wire, steel slats, packing cases. On the cars, in chalk, were marked the destinations of the freight. The field guns were marked "Korea," the tractors were marked "China."

TRAINS IMPRESSIVE

The quantity of rolling stock was impressive. There seemed to be an abundance of locomotives, some reminiscent of Stephenson's Rocket, others huge, powerful brutes that looked capable of moving mountains.

"These," said an engine-driver, showing us a group of big locomotives at a siding near Irkutsk, "are American. They came during the war."

"Are they good?"

"Very good."

Every now and then we passed enormous airfields outside Chita, Irkutsk, Krasnoyarsk, Omsk. There were planes on the fields, but they were too far away to be identified and all bridges were guarded by armed sentries.

After Novosibirsk, and all the way to Moscow, we passed enormous ploughed fields. We saw a number of "Machine and Tractor Stations" with long lines of mechanised agricultural equipment. We saw long belts of trees planted around those fields, and were told they were wind-breaks.

At Krasnoyarsk, Novosibirsk, Omsk, Sverdlovsk, we rolled past huge factories, metallurgical and chemical plants. From Krasnoyarsk westwards one had the impression that there was a lot of heavy industrial developement. In between the towns there was steppe land or forest—chiefly birch trees. Sometimes the train's loudspeakers would play haunting Russian melodies that seemed to blend with the landscape.

ENGINEER DRUNK

An engine-driver came into the compartment I shared with Commissioner Lord, Bishop Cooper and Monseigneur Thomas Quinlan. The engine-driver was very drunk, and very friendly. He sat between the Bishop and the Commissioner and, embracing the latter, kissed him repeatedly all over his head. Then came the Bishop's turn. I climbed on to the top berth, exposing Monseigneur Quinlan, who had been sheltering behind my back.

"Philip, my bhoy," said the Monseigneur, trying to extricate himself from the arms of our guest, "how could you desert me like this after what we have been through together?"

Captain Vyvyan Holt (the British Minister) came in to ask a question. He was immediately seized by the ears and kissed energetically on the top of the head.

"From Russian literature," said Captain Holt, wiping his head, "one gathered that Siberia was full of gloomy, unrecognised prophets. Instead, we find it full of drunken engine-drivers."

Commissioner Lord tried to sneak out of the compartment. Our merry guest stretched a hairy, brawny hand into the corridor and firmly drew the reluctant Commissioner back into his arms. Holding firmly on to the Commissioner with one hand and on to the Bishop with the other, and punctuating his remarks with sonorous, humid kisses, the engine-driver delivered a three-hour speech, the gist of which seemed to be a sort of conjugation:—

"I am a good man;
You are a good man;
He is a good man;
We are all good men, etc."

and

"I love peace;
You love peace;
He loves peace;
We love peace, etc."

Next day he came to apologise. He hoped he had not offended us. He hoped that the Commissioner had not minded being kissed. I assured the engine-driver that Commissioner Lord had enjoyed every embrace. Then we had a long talk.

EARNS 1,200 ROUBLES

He was a Ukrainian who had gone to school for seven years, then to a railway training establishment for three. After two years' apprenticeship he had become a fully-fledged engine-driver. His salary was 1,200 roubles a month. For fuel economy and running on time, he said, he received a monthly bonus of 600 roubles, handed to him at a ceremony with a band playing, red banners, speeches and vodka.

At the end of the day's run he could wash and change at the railwaymen's hostel, where there was also an inexpensive canteen. His working clothes were provided, as was the watch he proudly wore on his wrist. He had been to Siberia on a special one-month assignment for which he had been paid an extra 1,700 roubles, and was now returning to the Ukraine, where his wife—a railway worker earning 700 roubles a month—waited for him.

They had a small four-roomed house.

"Not a wooden one like these," he said, pointing to cabins we were passing, "but built with stones, with a garden in which blossoms are now coming out. I pay 50 roubles a month rent and in ten years the house is mine. If I wanted, I could borrow 10,000 roubles from the Government and have my own house built the way I want. The carpenters and masons would do as I tell them. I'd have to repay the loan in ten years, with no interest. But, of course, I have a high salary. The average salary is 750 roubles a month."

He said that he could buy a working suit, ready-made, for 100 roubles, and that he had bought a Sunday-best for 500.

"I look beautiful in it," he said, smiling reminiscently.

Then he left us.

NO INTERFERENCE

The train stopped at various stations for periods of up to thirty minutes. We were amazed to find that we could walk out into the towns, ask questions, look at prices, without interference from the black-uniformed militia-men. In Tatarskaya I went into a store where shoppers were showing a kind of pass to the saleswoman before buying. Women's sandals, of very poor quality, were between 45-65 roubles. Rough calico dresses for three-year-old girls, in "screaming" colours, 55-70 roubles. Knitted cotton sweaters for women 85 roubles.

At Omsk, in a food store, prices I noted were as follows:—

One egg, 1 rouble 30 kopeks; one kilogram of sugar, 11 roubles 80 kopeks;; one kilogram of veal, 15 roubles; one kilogram of biscuits, 26 roubles 80 kopeks; one kilogram of buter, 28 roubles; one pint of milk, 3 roubles 85 kopeks; one pint of yogurt, 10 roubles 30 kopeks; cigarettes (red packet called Drug), 4 roubles 50 kopeks; one pint ordinary white wine, 11 roubles; one pint and half of champagne, 30 roubles; one ounce of caviar, 7 roubles; one cooked steak, 6 roubles; one plate of Borsht soup, 6 roubles.

At Tumen, shoes were sold on the station. People bought them at a stand without showing any pass. In this case the prices for women's sandals of very cheap quality ranged from 450 roubles; men's shoes, of a quality lower than anything I have seen in Britain, from 465 roubles.

I was desperately in need of paper to make notes, but I found some only at Sverdlovsk, where I bought a drawing album. A pen-holder and nib cost 4 roubles.

SEES BEGGARS

At the first small station after Chita a girl with no arms was begging. A militiaman, pointing to us, told her to leave the station.

At Udiusk, an old blind beggar, kneeling on the platform, was asking God to bless those who were giving him alms. One of the "Commissars" from the wagon-lit car, gave him a rouble.

At Krasnoyarsk a blind beggar, a young man wearing a Red Guardsman's badge, came on to the train guided by a boy of about twelve. He went from compartment to compartment getting alms. The car attendant told him to go to another part of the train because there were some "English Delegates" in the car.

We asked an engineer, returning home after two and a half years in China, why there were beggars. He said everyone could work, even blind people, but there were some who did not want to work, and it was not possible to cierce them. Yet at Tumen two girls of ten were begging. This our engineer friend did not explain.

Beer Floods Highway After Truck Collision

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—A collision of two trucks early Friday sent streams of foaming beer over the highway a few miles east of here.

Provincial police said John Weber of Kitchener, driver of the beer-laden truck, apparently fell asleep at the wheel. His truck crossed the centre line of the highway, police said, and crashed into a tractor-trailer driven by Raymond Dennis of nearby Roseland. The latter truck, owned by Overland Express Company, was loaded with stationary.

Both vehicles went into a ditch.

Damage to the trucks was estimated at $13,000. Both drivers escaped injury.

Warkworth Choristers Sing At Colborne

WARKWORTH (ENS)— The Rev. A. L. Sisco and the choir of St. Paul's United Church in Warkworth took part in the evangelistic service in Colborne United Church on Wednesday evening.

Mr. Sisco read the scripture and led in prayer and the Rev. John Coburn of Toronto was the evangelistic speaker. The choir of St. Paul's sang the anthem.

Colborne United Church Congregation is holding evangelistic services throughout the week with ministers and choirs from the neighbouring pastoral charges assisting in the various services.

Study New Light System

TORONTO (CP) — Mounting of street lights on the walls of buildings lining downtown Yonge street is to be considered by the city's works committee next week. Sponsors of the plan say it would eliminate hydro poles and would serve to dress up the city's main thoroughfare.

Gale Upholds Vote For Beverage Rooms

TORONTO (CP)—Mr. Justice G. A. Gale Friday upheld a vote in favor of men's beverage rooms in the Bruce county village of Teeswater. County judge J. F. P. Birnie's order for a new vote on women's beverage rooms was cancelled.

Voters in the one-hotel village supported men's beverage rooms by a 329-202 majority last September, one more than the required 60 per cent. Polling on women's beverage rooms resulted in 323-212 in favor, four short of the necessary majority.

Operation Helps Child, 3 To Eat For First

KINGSTON (CP)—Rickey Orton, 3, is eating solid foods now—for the first time in his life.

Rickey, who only weighs 26½ pounds, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Orton of Lombardy, 60 miles northeast of here.

He was born with a short oesophagus (gullet) which caused his stomach to be placed above the diaphragm in the chest caviyt. Normally the oesophagus is about nine inches long for a youngster. Rickey's was only six and narrowed considerably at the point closest to the stomach.

The result was a strict liquid diet for Rickey.

Two months ago he underwent surgery. A doctor, who asked that his name be withheld, widened the portion of the tube which had narrowed due to growth failure. The stomach was then raised higher in the chest because the gullet was further shortened by the operation.

It was the first time oesophagoplasty surgery was done in Kingston on a child as young as Rickey.

Good Example

YORKTON, Sask. (CP)—Captain Thomas Benwell, 103, was among 1,300 persons attending a tuberculosis test clinic here.

Will Keep Right To Decide Retirement

OTTAWA (CP)—The Senate Friday affirmed its right—and that of the House of Commons—to say when employees of the two houses should retire.

After two days of study on the question, the Senate gave third and final reading to an amended form of a government measure revising the Superannuation Act.

It inserted in the bill a phrase allowing the Senate and House of Commons, if they wish, to keep their employees beyond the retirement age set by cabinet regulations.

The Senate and House of Commons in the past have decided when their employees should be retired. The government measure would have grouped these employees with the civil service in a new provision allowing the cabinet to set civil service retirement dates.

University Confers 2 Honorary Degrees

SASKATOON (CP)—The University of Saskatchewan Friday conferred honorary doctor of laws degrees on Dr. C. B. Reed of Kingston and Dr. Gerhard Herzberg of Ottawa.

Dr. Herzberg, a director of the division of physics at the national research council, formerly was professor of physics at the University of Saskatchewan. Dr. Reed is professor of bacteriology at Queen's University.

Coldwell Wants Strengthen Ties With Britain

KILLALOE, Ont. (CP)—M. J. Coldwell, CCF leader, Friday night reiterated his party's view that Canadian trade policy should strengthen the country's links with Britain and other sterling-area countries and end its economic dependence on the United States.

He told a CCF nomination meeting for Renfrew South constituency that Canada's economy could be gravely damaged if the U.S. Congress passed certain measures to alter import tariffs.

The United States had violated "the spirit and the letter" of the Geneva trade agreements, of which it was the chief promoter, Mr. Coldwell said in a prepared speech.

It had restricted imports of Canadian cheese, butter and dried milk products and "we can never be certain from day to day that other commodities such as feed grains and oats may not be prohibited from entering the U.S."

Name New Chancellor

TORONTO (CP)—Appointment of Dr. Samuel Beatty as chancellor of the University of Toronto was approved Friday night by the board of governors and the senate. Dr. Beatty succeeds Governor-General Vincent Massey. Dr. Beatty has spent 50 years at the university as a student and teacher.

Cannot Use Secret Order Without Telling Person Held

OTTAWA (CP)—Justice Minister Garson said Friday the government's one secret order-in-council could not be used against any individual who was not first informed that he was breaking a law and what that law involved.

He criticized in the House of Commons a private bill moved by Stanley Knowles (CCF—Winnipeg North Centre) which would eliminate the right of the cabinet to pass any further secret orders than the one now in existence.

Mr. Knowles was supported by Howard Green (PC—Vancouver-Quadra) in his argument that secret cabinet orders in peacetime Canada are alien to the whole Canadian tradition.

Mr. Garson said no Canadian can be convicted under any secret or unpublished order until he has been informed of its contents.

Mr. Knowles sought an amendment to the Regulations Act of 1950 which, he said, allows the cabinet to pass secret orders under any legislation.

Mr. Garson said that provision was made at a time when it was arranged to publish all orders-in-council of a general interest. The provision allowed orders not of general interest not to be published.

But anyone who violated them would have to be informed of their contents before any legal action was taken against him.

Two Senior Grain Officials Defended In Committee

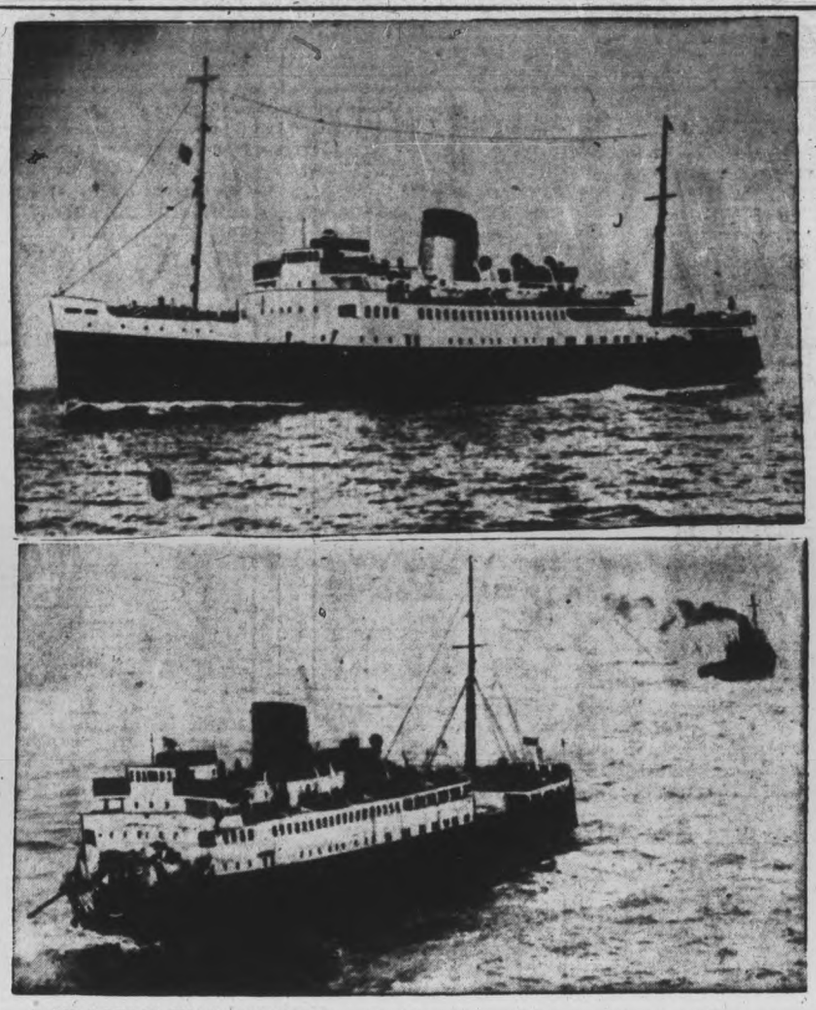
OTTAWA (CP)—Two senior officials of the board of grain commissioners were defended Friday in the Commons agriculture committee against charges by the Interprovincial Farm Union Council and two committee members.

John Rayner of Winnipeg, chief executive officer of the board, described as "malicious and unfounded" a charge by the council that he gave false evidence in a grain dispute between a Saskatchewan farmer and an elevator agent.

A second controversy centred on Roy Milner, transport controller at the trade department and a commissioner of the board on leave of absence. The council asked that his leave be accepted as permanent.

D. G. McKenzie, chief commissioner of the board, defended Mr. Milner against a charge by Hazen Argue (CCF—Assiniboia) and Victor Quelch (SC—Acadia) that the transport controller's sympathies were with the private grain trade and not the grain growers.

Thumping the table, Mr. McKenzie said Mr. Milner has given invaluable service to the board. He never came to a decision that had prejudiced the producers in any way.



Mr. McKenzie said he has the utmost confidence in the judgment, honesty and integrity of Mr. Milner who had the interests of the producers at heart.

Wants School Music On "Must" Basis

TORONTO (CP)—Dr. Edward Johnson said Friday music should be taught in Canadian schools on a "must" basis, the same as arithmetic.

Dr. Johnson, Guelph-born former managing director of the Metropolitan Opera of New York and now chairman of the Royal Conservatory of Music here, told a Rotary Club meeting that, by doing so, the musical taste of the whole country could be raised and "perhaps make our country the greatest musical centre in the world."

"We should develop the same enthusiasm for opera that we now have for hockey," he said.

Order Editor To Disclose Information

VANCOUVER (CP)—Mr. Justice A. M. Manson has ordered Blair Fraser, Ottawa editor of Maclean's Magazine, to disclose information on which he based references to Gordon S. Wismer, former attorney-general of British Columbia, in an article which is the subject of a libel suit.

Mr. Wismer is suing Mr. Fraser and the MacLean-Hunter Publishing Co. Ltd., of Toronto, for unstated damages over an article written by Mr. Fraser and published in the Feb. 15, 1952, issue of Maclean's. The article dealt with the collapse of the B. C. coalition government in January, 1952.

Mr. Fraser is schedul3d to be examined in the east. Trial will not be held before September.

Mr. Justice Manson's order Thursday gave Mr. Fraser a month to "give all the facts on which he based his article: Names, times and places.

"I am not saying that the defendant must disclose the source of his information but he must give all the information on which he based his article."

MONTREAL (CP)—J. A. C. Poole 82, widely known as a department store organizer, died Thursday night after a short illness.

A native of St. Mary's, Ont., he was a nephew of the late Timothy Eaton, founder of the T. Eaton Co., Ltd., and also a nephew of the late J. J. Crabbe, one-time general manager of the Toronto Daily Star.

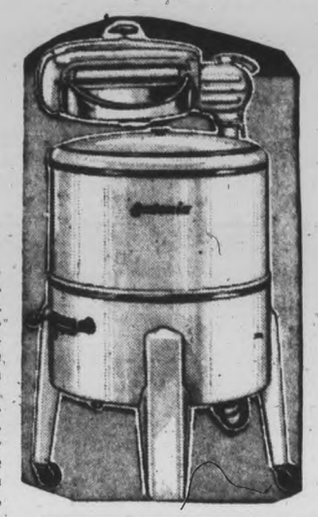
Mr. Poole joined the Eaton company in Toronto in 1888 and rose to the position of general manager. He came to Montreal in 1903 as manager of the W. H. Scroggie department store. In 1915 he was appointed vice-president and general manager of the James A. Ogilvy department store, a position he held until he retired in 1928.

Mau Mau Terrorists Start Full-Scale War In Kenya

NAIROBI, Kenya (Reuters)—Senior army and police officers said Friday night Mau Mau terrorists have launched "full-scale war" against security forces in the Aberdare mountains and Nyeri reserve north of here.

They said the Mau Mau has started a new phase of open warfare which, if continued, will give troops a better chance of eliminating the terrorism. Hitherto, Mau Mau gangs have used night-time hit-and-run tactics.

One officer said: "The once-secret society of witchcraft and superstition has come into the open and thrown down the gauntlet of battle."



Since Thursday morning, in attacks on Kikuyu home guard posts and police and military patrols, the Mau Mau have lost more than 60 men killed or wounded.

Sixteen terrorists were killed when a band of 120 attacked Othaya police camp in Nyeri reserve Friday. Many others were wounded.

The same gang later attacked a Kikuyu home guard post five miles away, killing 15 defenders. They lost another four killed, including their leader, Njau Wakwonya, and two wounded.

Another 20 Mau Mau were killed or wounded Thursday night when a band of 250 ambushed a 13-man army patrol, but was driven off by the African Askaris.

Fluorine Experiments Proving Successful

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian experiments with fluorine in drinking water promise to mark an important event in dentistry and public health generally, Health Minister Martin said Friday night in the House of Commons.

He said the experiments have shown that the use of fluorine reduces tooth decay to a marked extent.

The "fluoridization" of water was conducted at Brantford with federal financial aid.

Over a period, Mr. Martin said, Brantford children were found to have 68 per cent less tooth decay than those at Sarnia, where simultaneous studies were made.

Like To Sell Jets But No Order Yet

OTTAWA (CP)—Defence production officials said Friday Canada would like to sell CF-100 jet fighters to the United States but there is no sign yet that the U.S. is interested.

They were commenting on a story in the Toronto Star which said a $400,000,000 order for the CF-100s might emerge from a visit of U.S. officers to the A. V. Roe plant at Malton, Ont., Friday.

Officials here said they have received nothing yet to substantiate this.

Stock Market Prices Falter On Toronto Stock Exchange

By HARRY KINGDON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Stock market prices faltered this week on the Toronto stock exchange after climbing above the lows of the recent "peace scare" decline.

But the week gave no real sign of a continued climb or fall.

The so-called "peace scare" decline started late in March when some Communist governments showed a more conciliatory attitude toward the West. Prices started climbing last week, continued slowly upward until last Thursday, and then slipped back.

Some observers suggested that this week's faltering pointed to a continued drop as prices were adjusted to the changed conditions of possible peace. Others observed that most sections on the exchange's indexes were slightly higher for the week despite the late losses.

SIGNS OF IMPROVEMENT

Looking beyond the immediate market, many observers saw signs of improvement in liquors, papers and golds. They said that with the Canadian dollar now worth about the same price as the United States dollar, these industries should receive more for their exports.

The gold producer, for instance, now might receive the full official price of $35 for a refined ounce of gold. When the Canadian dollar was at a premium, he received $35 minus the discount on U.S. funds.

This week, eight out of 13 senior gold stocks showed gains, three showed losses and two were unchanged. Among 10 random-selected pulp and paper securities, six gained, one lost and three were unchanged. Three liquor securities with large dealings in the United States also gained on the week.

Prices in Montreal and Toronto gained slowly and steadily for the first three days of the week, but a mild decline set in Thursday. The losses continued in both centres Friday.

GENERAL ADVANCE

The week started in New York with a general advance that slowed slightly Tuesday and Wednesday. Prices slipped Thursday but a late rally lifted the list Friday.

From Friday to Friday, the Toronto exchange's indexes showed industrials up 1.76 at 310.14, golds up .82 at 79.85, base metals up .69 at 158.18 and western oils down .61 at 113.71.

In the Montreal averages, banks were up .19 at 32.41, utilities up .3 at 93.2, industrials up 9 at 189.1, combined down .6 at 157.1, papers up 4.76 at 657.66 and golds down 2.26 at 60.45.

On the New York market, The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was up 80 cents at $109.80.

The rock taken out at the mine for a couple of days will be dumped in the park to extend the elevated area.

Suez Crisis Serious London Says

Current Situation Much Worse Than Other Incidents

LONDON (CP)—The menacing words of Egypt's Premier Gen. Mohammed Naguib cast a further chill today over Anglo-Egyptian relations. In London, a serious view is taken of the situation.

Britain's current anxiety is understood to go beyond anything previously experienced in the long-drawn conflict over the canal zone question.

Barring a last-minute compromise, it seems apparent there, Sir Winston Churchill's government may be forced to the point of choosing between unqualified evacuation of the canal zone and an attempt to impose its will by force.

It is believed that, having given way on the Sudan, the government is reluctant to make a second surrender over the canal zone.

STATED BLUNTLY

Egypt's position has been stated bluntly. Speaking in Cairo Sunday at a ceremony for Egypt's unknown soldier, Naguib described Britain as "the enemy."

"We are nearing a great battle," he said. "Every Egyptian should be ready for the supreme sacrifice."

The speech came four days after the apparent breakdown of Anglo-Egyptian negotiations in Cairo. Britain's last word was that evacuation of the base would be acceptable only if Egypt guarantees its efficient maintenance in an emergency.

CONDUCTED QUIETLY

The Cairo negotiations, which started April 27, have been conducted quietly. But the foreign office has never been in doubt about the seriousness of the stakes. In the last five weeks, it is understood, there have been 22 unreported "incidents" in Egypt in a seemingly deliberate pattern of violence, occasionally involving loss of life.

As far as Egypt is concerned, some British officials feel Naguib is not completely master in his own house. The real power seems to be vested in two army factions, and the man to watch, it is said, may be Col. Gamal Nasser, described as Naguib's principal lieutenant in the Cairo negotiations. Nasser is said to be anti-British.

55 Left Homeless

ST. ROMAIN DE FRONTENAC, Que. (CP)—More than 55 persons were left homeless Sunday night by a fire which destroyed 14 buildings and damaged three others in this little village 60 miles from Sherbrooke. Damage was estimated at $100,000. No one was injured. The fire was believed to have been started by a short-circuit in a building owned by Joseph Belanger. A high wind fanned the flames and they spread rapidly.

U.S. Tornado Toll 9 Dead, 100 Injured

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—Swirling black tornado funnels blasted a path of destruction across parts of five Midwest states and Arkansas during the weekend, leaving nine persons dead, more than 100 injured and widespread property damage.

Areas hit were southern Minnesota, western Wisconsin, southeastern Nebraska, Northcentral Iowa, westcentral Arkansas and southeastern Kansas.

Property damage is expected to total several million dollars.

Six of the Minnesota victims died when the tarpaper and clapboard house in which a migrant worker and his family were quartered on a truck farm near Hollandale was destroyed.

Bodies of the six were hurled 75 feet on to a road Sunday night when the funnel hit the flimsy structure that had housed prisoners of war during the Second World War. Neighbors said the house appeared to "explode from within."

OTHER VICTIMS

The other Minnesota victims were Otto Jeche, about 60, crushed to death when his barn caved in on his farm near Wykoff and the two-year-old daughter of Mrs. Dorothy MacDonald, 29, of rural Rochester, Minn.

The youngster was killed and her mother and Franklin Steele, 23, Rochester, were critically hurt when Steele's car was lifted off the road and tossed into a creek.

The Wisconsin victim was fatally injured when a barn was blown down. Several others were reported injured when high winds not definitely identified as tornadoes hit the western part of Wisconsin.

The first of the week-end tornadoes hit Saturday night at Hebron, a community of 2,000 in southeastern Nebraska. Observers said it was a "miracle" that no one was killed as the storm wrecked two-thirds of the town's buildings. Sixty-nine persons were injured, at least 18 of them seriously.

DAMAGE NEARLY 2 MILLION

Mayor Ralph Hawkins estimated damage at least $1,500,000.

Outside of town, eight farm homes were destroyed and 11 others extensively damaged. At least 80 other farm buildings were shattered and seven damaged.

At least five persons were injured and several farms were damaged late Sunday when a tornado cut a path 35 miles long in north-central Iowa.

Five farms were damaged by another tornado in the northeastern part of the state.

Several small twisters hit southeastern Kansas towns early Sunday, damaging farms and summer homes. There were no casualties.

Ships Rescue 16 Crewmen In Lifeboats

Fierce Gale Rips Hatch Covers Off, Freighter Goes Down

GRAND MARAIS, Minn. — (AP)—A Great Lakes freighter Henry Steinbrenner, laden with iron ore, went down off Isle Royale in Lake Superior early today. At noon the coast guard station here had rescueship reports that 16 of the 31 men aboard had been picked up and one body recovered.

Other reports said as many as 22 men had been saved and that another body had been sighted. One rescue vessel, the Clemson reported it had seven crew members aboard, none in bad condition and expected to land them as Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.

Commander Donald Call of the Grand Marais coast guard station said the ore boat, Joseph Thompson, also reported it had saved seven men and that several were in need of medical attention.

The William Sykes, another vessel at the scene, reported it had "several" survivors.

Some of those rescued were pulled from the paralyzingly cold water wearing life jackets.

Winds 55 to 60 miles an hour buffeted the Isle Royale area Sunday night and early today. Heavy seas prevailed today as rescue boats headed for the scene, making slow progress as they bucked extremely rough water.

LOCALE OF SINKING

The Steinbrenner was reported sunk about 15 miles off the southeast shore of Isle Royale, about midway between Isle Royale light station and Passage Island at the northeast tip of the island. The light station is located at the tip of the arm forming Siskiwell Bay.

A report from the Clemson heard at 7:25 a. m. EDT said the Steinbrenner had radioed its hatches had blown off in strong wind and

Child Suffocates In Ice Box

TORONTO (CP)—Nancy Clayton, 3½, of suburban North York was found dead Sunday in an ice box.

The tiny, blond girl was reported missing by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Clayton, Saturday evening. Mr. Clayton is a police constable with the Toronto force.

Police said the youngster apparently wandered down the street from her home and began playing around an ice box standing in front of the home of J. D. Barker.

The ice box was to be shipped to Mr. Barker's summer cottage in Northern Ontario and was awaiting pickup by a trucker.

The little girl apparently locked herself in the ice box. Truck driver Thomas Batt picked up the box and returned to his home in east-end Toronto.

Mr. Barker told police he heard of the search for the girl and decided to check the ice box with Mr. Batt. They opened the box Sunday morning and found the suffocated child inside.

Will Defend Suez If Egypt Attacks—Churchill

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Churchill said today he is in favor of a high-level conference of the world's leading powers in the immediate future. Churchill said such a parley should not be hampered by any long agenda, but be carried out in an atmosphere of informality and privacy and even seclusion. Churchill did not say specifically whether he thought Premier Malenkov, President Eisenhower and he should get together. He said simply he believes a "conference at the highest level of the leading powers" ought to be held without any great delay.

The Prime Minister made these other major points as he opened a two-day debate in the House of Commons on foreign affairs:

1. Britain will defend her Suez canal bases if Egypt attacks them. He offered to renew talks at any time with Egypt over the future of the canal zone and said it would be "still better" if Egypt were to agree to the United States joining the talks.

2. A "sympathetic and patient examination" should be given to the Communist compromise truce proposals in Korea.

3. The position of the anti-Communist forces in Indo-China is not as serious now as it appeared recently. There is some question whether the Communist-directed military offensive there actually is being inspired from Moscow.

STAND BY OBLIGATIONS

4. Britain will stand by her obligations to Western Germany regardless of a strong British desire to reach a friendly settlement with the Soviet Union.

5. A piece meal solution of problems with Russia was better than no settlement at all. This could be interpreted as mild criticism of President Eisenhower's recent all inclusive peace plan.

Churchill said that a conference of the leading powers might not come to any hard agreement but at least it would lead to a better understanding among them.

The prime minister reviewed what he called the "change in attitude and, we all hope, mood" that has taken place in Soviet Russia and the Kremlin itself since the death of Stalin.

He appealed for caution in "doing or saying" anything that might give the Soviet leaders ground for suspicion.

"It would be a mistake to assume that nothing could be settled unless or until everything is settled."

REQUIRES EXAMINATION

Discussing the Korean war, Churchill said the Red proposal for a truce in Korea "requires sympathetic and patient examination."

Blizzards Hit Prairies After Heat Wave

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ontario sweltered in temperatures in the high 80s during the weekend while blizzards swept across some parts of the prairies. Toronto and Ottawa touched 88 degrees Sunday, equalling the Toronto record for May 10 set in 1896. But Saskatchewan, which had a scorching heat wave last week, shivered in near-winter conditions. Four inches of snow were dumped in the Saskatoon area.

Quebec also enjoyed summer weather with the mercury in the high 80s, but by nightfall the temperatures skidded and the weatherman was forecasting drops of as much as 50 degrees and freezing conditions.

TEMPERATURES HIGH

The Maritimes had warm weather. Fredericton recorded a high of 87 degrees, the highest in history for early May. Forecast for today was cloudy with temperatures remaining high.

Northern Ontario had a heat wave, but, like Quebec, temperatures fell steadily during the night with threats of occasional snowflurries and drizzle today.

The cold air pushed southwards and at North Bay the mercury dropped 20 degrees in an hour. There were some cold spots. Porquis Junction had 39 degrees, although Earlton 50 miles south had 81.

Warm weather was expected to continue in southern and central Ontario.

RAIN HELPS

Sunday rain relieved parched ground in Manitoba and rain or snow with cold winds were forecast. The weatherman predicted

Light Coaches To Aid TV

LONDON. — The ancient carriages that will move through London June 2 in the Coronation procession were unlimbered Sunday and pulled from Buckingham Palace to Westminster Abbey and back again in a rehearsal that drew thousands of spectators from their Sunday morning sleep.

The two-century old golden coach of state in which Queen Elizabeth will ride with the Duke of Edinburgh was the major attraction. Drawn by four Windsor Grays the state coach left the palace at 6:30 a.m. with two soldiers occupying the places of the Queen and her husband.

A concession to modernity was apparent, the soldier stand-ins' unsmiling faces were lit by rose colored fluorescent tubes installed inside the coach to assure enough illumination to make the Queen visible on television screens even if Coronation day is overcast.

Similar lighting run by batteries under the seats was also tried out in the carriages of other dignitaries including that of Prime Minister Churchill.

Lake Disasters On Superior Over 13 Years

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The sinking of the freighter Henry Steinbrenner in Lake Superior today with a possible loss of 27 to 38 lives recalls the following Great Lakes disasters since 1940 in which 10 or more lives were lost:

Nov. 11, 1940—William B. Davock in Lake Michigan, 33 lost; Anna C. Minch in Lake Michigan, 22 lost.

Sept. 22, 1942—Pleasure launch Wa-Wi-Net in Georgian Bay, 25 lost.

Dec. 2, 1942—Tug Admiral in Lake Erie, 14 lost; barge Cleveco in Lake Erie, 18 lost.

April 27, 1944—Pleasure craft Olga in Lake Erie, 17 lost.

June 4, 1947—Freighter Emperor in Lake Superior, 10 lost.

Sept. 24, 1947—Freighter Milverton exploded and burned after collision with oil tanker Translake in St. Lawrence river, 12 lost.

Sept. 17, 1949—Passenger ship Noronic burned at dock in Toronto, 119 dead.

Dec. 18, 1950—Tug Sachem in Fort Erie, 11 lost.

Oct. 29, 1951—Freighter Penobscot and oil barge collided in Buffalo harbor, 10 lost.

Would Increase Blind Pensions

OTTAWA (CP)—Stanley Knowles (CCF—Winnipeg North Centre) today proposed a motion in the Commons that the government consider increasing old age and blind pensions "commensurate with the cost of living." He made it plain the increase should be to $60 from $40 a month.

In a subsequent vote, the non-confidence motion was defeated by 69 to 30. The Progressive Conservative and Social Credit members supported the CCF motion.

Health Minister Martin, only Liberal to speak on the motion, rejected it on grounds that it would impose additional taxes on Canadians and would not be in the interests of pensioners to tie a pension to the cost of living.

Mr. Knowles said the amount of the present pension was unchanged from the figure set by the government previous to the last election in 1949. With the increase in cost of living and a soaring productive capacity, the government should take steps to increase the blind and old age pension to $60 a month.

He said the gross national product increased by 50 per cent since 1949. Some of that increase should estimated it would cost an additional $200,000,000 a year to the $400,000,000 being spent by the provincial and federal governments. be passed to the pensioners.

Settlement Wiped Out Blame Careless Smoker

SUDBURY (CP)—Fire believed started by a carelessly-flipped cigarette wiped out a small settlement, a $40,000 sawmill and raced over 2,200 acres of timber land near here Sunday night. Thirteen persons were left homeless. The blaze started late Sunday in the Markstay area about 20 miles east of here and spread rapidly through the Murphy and Sequin lumber mills and other buildings. Seven homes and 800 chickens were destroyed.

The Ontario department of lands and forests said the fire may have been caused by a cigarette tossed from a car.

MANY BLAZES

It was one of scores of forest blazes sweeping Northern Ontario and parts of northwest Quebec in the wake of one of the worst spring heat waves in years. The other fires—at least 60 of them—were burning in tinder-dry forests but only five were out of control

More than 120 men, using bulldozers, trucks and water pumps, brought the Markstay fire under control early today. Most of the residents of the lumbering community, including five children, lost all their belongings.

Families were moved out last night when the flames threatened the community. The houses were owned by the lumber company.

Gerald Munroe, in charge of the firefighters, said the blaze "can be considered under control."

Plan Citizenship Day

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent today announced that Friday, May 15, will be observed across Canada as Citizenship Day.

The day has been set aside, he said, for the observance of the people of Canada "and particularly younger Canadians."

Bombers Pound Supply Centre

SEOUL (AP)—Driving rain and fog halted most air and ground action today after 39 B-29 Superforts smashed with 500-pound bombs a huge 1,000-building Communist supply centre deep in northwest Korea.

Allied infantry huddled in bunkers as spring rains pelted the muddy 155-mile battlefront.

The B-29s hurled 390 tons of bombs at the 375-acre Red supply area at Yangsi Sunday.

A thick cloud layer hid results of the radar-controlled drops Red night fighters were in the skies, but did not bother the superforts.

$50,000 Equipment Stolen At Midland

MIDLAND (CP)—More than $50,000 worth of Leica camera bodies and lenses were stolen Sunday night from the company's Canadian assembly plant in this Georgian Bay town.

Police said they believe the parts were stolen by a gang with "international connections" because the equipment is of little use without the other parts of the camera. The headquarters of the Leica plant is in Germany.

The loot was part of a shipment which was to go to New York today.

'Dead Woman' Very Much Alive

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—A 70-year-old woman, who lay in a morgue for almost 17 hours waiting to be embalmed, surprised employees of a funeral home Sunday night when she emerged from a stupor and declared, "No, I am not dead."

W. L. Murdaugh of the Murdaugh funeral home said the woman, Julia Stallings, revived when an apprentice embalmer turned on a light. When the woman raised her arm and placed it over her eyes, the apprentice turned to his cousin and said, "This woman is not dead."

The woman opened her eyes. "No, I am not dead," she said.

Guy H. Patterson, in charge of the Negro branch of the Fulton county alms house, said the woman had been a resident of the institution for a little more than 2½ years.

He said she had been ill for several months and that he called the funeral home when she "passed out" Saturday night and he was unable to "tell that she was breathing."

Seven US Civilians Freed, Reach Moscow

MOSCOW (AP)—Seven United States civilians freed from interment by the North Koreans arrived in Moscow today aboard the trans-Siberian express.

U. S. Ambassador Charles E. Bohlen headed a group of Americans who greeted the liberated persons at the railway station. Bohlen told them a special American plane was waiting at Moscow's Vnukova airport to fly them home.

The seven Americans had been seized at the outbreak of the Korean war nearly three years ago. They included five Methodist missionaries, a Roman Catholic Maryknoll priest and a former state department employee.

The Americans were the third group of foreigners released by the North Koreans after Russian intercession. Fourteen French civilians, six Britons and an Irish priest already have been repatriated via Moscow.

Control Of 29 Councils Election Gain Labor Claims

LONDON (Reuters)—The Labor party today claimed it gained control of 29 councils from the Conservatives in last week's municipal elections. It admitted losing its majorities in six other councils.

The advance was far from a landslide—the Conservatives and Independents still dominate more than 75 per cent of the country's 1,800 regional administrations—but Labor is strongly entrenched in the larger cities.

Labor now claims control of 359 councils of all kinds in England, Scotland and Wales, compared with 336 before the elections began a week ago in villages and cities.

With some results still to come, Labor has chalked up a net gain of 552 seats out of a total of about 8,000 contested. It captured 688 seats previously held by anti-Socialists, and lost 136.

Cities and towns where Labor has ousted Conservatives from control include Manchester, Leeds, Grimsby, Nottingham, Odlham, Plymouth, Dewsbury and Dukinfield.

It now dominates 19 out of the total of 28 London boroughs.

Last year, when local elections were on a larger scale and included the county councils of Britain, Socialists won 66 councils from Conservatives and gained more than 1,800 seats out of 30,000 contested.

Run Over By 2 Trains Man Badly Hurt

CALGARY (CP)—Arno Ralph Metcalf, 37, of Wingham, Ont., was in serious condition in hospital here Sunday night, 20 hours after his right arm was amputated and his legs broken in several places in a railway accident in which two and possibly three trains ran over him.

Metcalf was found late Saturday lying between the CPR tracks in East Calgary shortly after two trains had passed over the spot.

Metcalf's right arm was amputated at the shoulder and his legs were badly fractured.

Police said it is believed he was knocked down and run over by a locomotive and that another train later backed over him. There was a possibility a third train had passed over him.

Tornado Batters Hebron

HEBRON, Neb. (AP)—Volunteer workers streamed into Hebron Sunday to help this stricken city in the staggering task of recovering from a tornado which damaged two-thirds of its buildings and injured scores. The list of injured in Saturday night's tornado — those in hospital or treated for injuries—stood at 69. At least 18 of these were reported injured seriously some critically.

Egypt Threatens To Fight Dulles Hopes To Mediate

CAIRO (CP)—State Secretary John Foster Dulles arrived by plane here today on the first stop of a 12-country fact-finding tour of the Middle East while Anglo-Egyptian tension mounted over the deadlocked Anglo-Egyptian talks on the future of the Suez canal zone.

Dulles said he hoped his visit would "help clear up some misunderstandings" but he did not mention the Suez dispute. The crucial talks on British evacuation of the canal zone—Egypt's major demand—were recessed Wednesday without a resumption date.

Egypt's Premier Mohamed Naguib, in a speech Sunday, charged that Britain was trying "to impose a disguised occupation on Egypt" and warned that his country is ready to pay "with the hot blood of her sons" for independence.

The "occupation" charge referred to Britain's desires to keep a sizable corps of technicians at the big military facilities she has built in the canal zone after she withdraws her troops. Unless this is permitted, Britain says, she won't take her troops out.

Naguib was supported by a declaration Saturday by the eight-country Arab League voicing "absolute support" for the Egyptian demand for British withdrawal.

Meanwhile, the independent newspaper Al Ahram said that appropriations have been earmarked for a "possible war of independence" if Britain refuses to evacuate the Suez canal.

"Plans for the struggle were drawn up at several meetings in recent days," it said.

"Camps, set up by the army, are training volunteers in almost every Egyptian city and town. . . . The coming days will bring to light certain carefully organized steps which will be put into operation as soon as the battle begins."

In a brief airport statement on his arrival, Dulles was full of praise for the Egyptian strongman premier who forced King Farouk to abdicate. The secretary said the United States government regards Naguib as "one of the outstanding Free world leaders of the post-war period."

In his speech Sunday—possibly intended for Dulles—Naguib said: "We have washed our hands of Anglo-Egyptian negotiations on the Suez canal." He referred to Britain as "the enmy."

"We are nearing a great battle and every Egyptian should be ready for the supreme sacrifice," Naguib said in a speech delivered from a high dais facing the grave of Egypt's unknown soldier.

Ask Reds Advance Final PoW Plan

PANMUNJOM (AP) — Allied truce delegates today asked the Communists to advance a plan for final determination of the fate of war prisoners refusing to return to Red rule.

At today's 53-minute meeting, the United Nations command said an eight-point Communist proposal for prisoner exchange still left the threat of indefinite captivity hanging over 48,500 North Korean and Chinese Reds.

Coronation Fever Gripping Japanese

TOKYO (Reuters)—The Shinjuku burlesque house is packing them in these days with a show billed as "special Coronation striptease"—latest symptom of a public fever which has gripped Japan over Britain's forthcoming Coronation.

Every clothing store in the country is piled with garments involving pictures of the Queen and the June 2 ceremony. There are dozens of different blouses and scarfs designed in red, white and blue.

Men's outfitters report a royal blue necktie with the design of a crown worked into it is the current best-seller.

Newspapers are full of stories from London on preparations for the Coronation. Almost every day the Tokyo press carries large pictures of the Queen.

Rain Forecasts Expected Cut Bush Fires

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Forecasts of rain today cheered crews battling bush fires at scattered points across Canada.

A Canadian Press survey showed upwards of 100 outbreaks altogether in British Columbia, Alberta, Manitoba, Ontario, Quebec and New Brunswick, most of them under control.

Two of Ontario's 74 forest fires were reported out of hand early today. One was a 5,000-acre blaze in the Black Sturgeon district near Port Arthur. Two hundred bush workers and forest rangers were fighting it.

The other was spotted along the Ottawa river about 30 miles northeast of North Bay late Sunday. Whipped by a stiff west wind, it jumped the river and had burned a mile into Quebec province territory by nightfall. Aircraft from Trout Lake began moving men and equipment to the scene. More men were dispatched by boat up the Ottawa river from Mattawa, Ont.

UNDER CONTROL

Rain squalls and the efforts of 1,100 firefighters brought all Manitoba fires under control Sunday. Earlier in the weekend 30 fires burned on a 300-mile front from Manitoba through Northwestern Ontario with 15 out of control.

A fire in the Badger area of southeastern Manitoba burned out 20,000 acres and forced temporary abandonment of the town. One man was killed Friday when trapped by a fire he volunteered to fight and another was severely injured in the same blaze.

Light rain and cooler weather improved the fire picture in the Sioux Lookout section of Ontario. Two fires were burning, both under control.

Flames still were uncontrolled in rich timber country in Mathieu township, 65 miles northwest of Fort Frances, Sunday but some rain had fallen there and in Dance township, 30 miles to the north, where firefighters tried to save an Indian school and a summer resort.

24 FIRES IN B.C.

A total of 24 fires, none large, burned Saturday in British Columbia, which has listed 63 fires so far this year. Nearly half the province's fires have been in the interior Kamloops forest district. Sunshine was forecast for today in most of the interior and along the southern coast.

Alberta reported a small fire in the Lac la Biche area and two near High Prairie, all under control.

At least nine fires burned Sunday night in heavily wooded stretches of the Ottawa valley watershed north and northwest of Ottawa. Two large fires roared out of control before high winds north of Fort Coulonge, 60 miles northwest of Ottawa, and four or five smaller blazes also were reported from that district.

Another fire swept a mile-square area near Botschatel, five miles from Quebec City.

DANGER GROWING

More than 20 fires have been reported in Quebec province since April 7. Officials believe the warm weather of the last few days may increase the danger of further outbreaks.

In New Brunswick, where forests have been drying out rapidly, three small fires burned today in the central and eastern sections, bringing the year's total to five. Temperatures were in the 60s throughout the province Sunday.

Nova Scotia has had three small fires so far this season. Officials there describe the forests as "dry as dust."

Hear Discussion On Hot Issue

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House of Representatives ways and means committee turned its reciprocal trade hearings today to a hotly controversial proposal to limit imports of all petroleum products.

The proposal has been denounced by Eisenhower administration officials as a move that could impair national security. It has been championed by advocates of more protection against cheap competition for the domestic oil and coal industries.

The plan by representative Richard M. Simpson (Rep. Pa.) would hold imports of all petroleum products to 10 per cent of domestic demand. Imports of residual fuel oil would be limited to five per cent.

These provisions are part of a general bill aimed at increasing protection for U. S. industries, through higher tariffs and import quotas, against injury from cheaper foreign goods. The bill would extend the Reciprocal Trade Act for a year beyond June 12.

Howe Admits His Mistake In Threatening Criminal Suit

OTTAWA (CP)—Trade Minister Howe threatened Saturday in the Commons agriculture committee to take criminal action against a member of Parliament. Later he said he had made a mistake. The tempest revolved about remarks in a Commons committee by Percy Wright (CCF-Melfort) which Mr. Howe interpreted as imputing transport controller Roy Milner was "a thief," and whether or not Mr. Wright should withdraw them.

Mr. Wright declined to withdraw his statement when asked to by Mr. Howe. The minister said he would take criminal action.

Tempers cooled after the luncheon recess of the committee and Mr. Howe said he was mistaken in suggesting that the immunity of members of Parliament from prosecution or their statements did not extend to parliamentary committees as well as the Commons.

WRIGHT'S CHARGE

Mr. Wright had described Mr. Milner's attitude towards the grain producers as that of a man raising chickens—"he was interested in the chickens but. . . for what he could get out of them." Mr. Milner is on loan to the government from the board of grain commissioners, a semi-government body.

Mr. Howe said the member implied Mr. Milner "is a thief." He demanded a withdrawal. Mr. Wright said he would not withdraw.

Mr. Wright said he had qualified his "chickens" remarks later by adding that he was not suggesting Mr. Milner has any financial interest in the grain trade.

"I want that statement withdrawn," Mr. Howe said.

"I'm not going to," replied Mr. Wright.

ADMITS MISTAKE

"Well, all right then there will be a criminal action for it," Mr. Howe said.

The committee adjourned for lunch at that point. But when it met again Mr. Howe said he had been wrong in suggesting parliamentary immunity did not extend to parliamentary committees.

Mr. Wright, also conciliatory, said he would look over the record of his statements and if any action was needed on his part he would raise the matter in the Commons.

"There is no reason known to me at present to assume that it might not form the basis of agreement, provided always it is put forward by the Communists in a spirit of sincerity."

He pointed out that the United States had borne 19-20ths of the cost of the Korean fighting in men and money and said:

"The matter is not one which we have either the right or the responsibility to decide, but it is our duty, without separating ourselves from our great ally, to express our opinion frankly and plainly to them as occasion offers."

The Communist compromise proposal on Korea calls for establishment of a committee of five neutral nations to handle the problem of war-prisoner repatriation. The Allies oppose the forced repatriation of Chinese and North Korean prisoners now in the hands of the United Nations.

Churchill described the conclusion of a Korean truce as the "immediate aim of British diplomacy.

"I should be very content with even a truce and a cease fire for the moment. . . .

"Terrible injuries have been done each other by the North and South Koreans. But even if both sides only stood still where they were now and ceased fire and tried to replace foreign troops by Korean forces—even if only that happened—time might once again prove to be a healer."

Churchill warned against drawing hasty conclusions about the motivation of the Communist-directed military actions in Indo-China.

Referring to the expansion of the Communist-directed military offensive in Indo-China, Churchill said he was informed that the position of the anti-Communist forces there now was less severe than was assumed at one time.

"In my opinion the sudden advance of elements of the Vietminh forces toward the Siamese frontier ought not to lead us to conclude that it is a Soviet-inspired move inconsistent with the new attitude of the Soviet government.

"This may, unhappily, prove to be the case, but also it might well have arisen from local circumstances and impulses and from plans made months ago."

Churchill referred to Premier Naguib's speech in Cairo Sunday in which the Egyptian leader described Britain as the "enemy" and hinted that action might be taken to drive Britain from the Suez canal zone.

The British prime minister offered to renew at any time Anglo-Egyptian negotiations on the future of the zone. He said that it would be "still better" if Egypt agreed to permit the U. S. to join any new talks.

He said Britain must insure that the base will be maintained in good condition so that "in the event of a third world war. it could function effectively."

He emphasized that if British troops in the canal zone are the object of renewed attacks by saboteurs or by the Egyptian Army—which he said is being trained by former Nazi officers—"we should have no choice but to defend ourselves."

Art Enthusiasts

Uraniums Climbing On Trendless Market

TORONTO (CP) — Uraniums climbed slowly away from a generally trendless stock market today.

Volume for the first three hours totalled 1,717,000 shares. Baska traded more than 86,000 shares for a moderate gain.

Beaverlodge, Radiore, Acadia-Uranium and Nesbitt-Labine led uranium stocks with gains ranging to about 15 cents.

Refining oils and manufacturing companies drew mild industrial support. Papers, constructions, steels and banks eased.

Base metal leaders were up but other issues slipped. Tungsten gained, Cassiar and United Asbestos were weak.

Western oil changes were small. Federated Petroleum and Peace River added pennies but Britalta, Home Oil and Souris turned downward.

Senior golds were mixed. Bralorne, Giant Yellowknife and Teck Hughes strengthened while Lake Shore, Malartic and Wright-Hargreaves weakened.

Wild Disorder In Iranian Parliament

By MARC PURDUE

TEHRAN (AP)—The first session of the Iranian Parliament since early March broke up in wild disorder Sunday within five minutes of being called to order.

Amid the clamorous shouting of deputies and spectators, a new deputy whose credentials were rejected by Prime Minister Mossadegh's opponents was booted out the door.

Guards forced spectators out but a 15-minute brawl ensued in the entrance hall between the pro- and anti-Mossadegh groups. The session—long delayed by a walkdrawal of Mossadegh's opponents from Tehran, preventing a quorum—had been expected to consider two major issues.

One was a measure interpreting the constitution to deprive the Shah of any claim to active command of the armed forces. This was the measure the opposition effectively blocked by preventing a quorum. The second was the proposed removal of parliamentary immunity from deputy Muzzafar Baghaie, the Labor party leader whom the police accuse of inspiring and directing a plot to kidnap and murder national police chief Mahmood Afshartus as the first step to wrecking the Mossadegh government.

Mehdi Mir-Ashrafi, an anti-Mossadegh stalwart, turned his wrath on Ali Roohi, a new deputy. In last year's elections, Baghaie was elected deputy for both Tehran and Kerman. While he was absent at The Hague with Mossadegh, the credentials committee ruled that he should represent Tehran. Two weeks ago, the committee ruled that Roohi, whom Baghaie defeated in the Kerman election, was entitled to that seat.

In the midst of Sunday's uproar, Mir-Ashrafi whirled on Roohi, demanded to know by what right he was on the floor. Mir-Ashrafi pulled Rooni to his feet and forced him toward the exit with pushes, blows and kicks. No one came to Roohi's assistance as Mir-Ashrafi, with a final kick, sent him sprawling at the door.

Land Available Beside Arena For Recreation

COBOURG (ENS) — A large tract of land which belongs to the recreational centre and adjoins the building should be used for outdoor recreational purposes, it was proposed at the regular meeting of the recreational centre board.

The suggestion was endorsed by Roy Dodge, chairman of the recreational commission, as being an excellent way to make more people aware of what the recreational centre had to offer and would provide room for many varieties of sports.

Manager Ross Drew reported that the wrestling matches were drawing poor crowds and he was going to try it for one more evening and if the customers still didn't turn out in sufficient numbers to make it pay, wrestling would be off the list.

The board discussed the need for eavestroughing, some automatic equipment to permit more convenient and reliable operation of the small and large refrigerating units and other necessities. In line with the ruling that expenses are to first receive approval by the town council, the board will refer these items to the council for its consideration.

NO TV AERIALS

Like any large roof surface, the roof of the centre gets the odd leak now and then and the board passed a ruling that during the trade fair of this month, no television aerials will be allowed on the roof or guyed thereto.

The canteen committee reported a profit of $1,100 for four months' operation. When it was rented out to a private operator, the recreational centre's take was $600. One problem of the board is that the centre has a $10,000 floor but due to the winter skating and the summer skating school, plus the time required to dry it out in the spring, the floor is put to little use.

THE 28½ INCH RAINBOW TROUT caught last week by Bill Perry, of Cobourg, in Shelter Valley Creek is believed to be the largest rainbow to come out of these waters. Some of the old timers have been searching back in their memories and they think that this is the largest one caught so far in Shelter Valley Creek. Bill Perry is shown above with the big trout, which weighed 6½ pounds.

Landing Plane On Carrier Can Be Tricky Business

By DAVE MCINTOSH

ABOARD HMCS MAGNIFICENT (CP)—Landing a plane on the deck of an aircraft carrier can be a bit tricky.

This Canadian carrier, Coronation bound, is a 17,700-ton, anti-submarine weapon. It takes some 1,100 men to keep her in operation. Some 700 run the ship and the other 400 fly, control and service the 26 Avenger sub hunters and Sea Fury fighters.

The fog and murk finally cleared enough late Saturday, after persisting since the Magnificent's departure from Halifax Thursday, to permit eight Avengers to get off for a few minutes.

The Avenger's job is to hunt out enemy subs and kill them with rockets or, failing that, to summon ships to do the job. The Furies, one of the fastest propeller aircraft in the world, fly cover for the slower Avengers and the carrier.

HIGH LANDING SPEED

The Sea Fury has a landing speed of around 105 miles an hour and the carrier's flight deck is only 700 feet long. At that, a landing uses up only 200 or 300 feet of the flight deck, for the other aircraft are parked at the bow.

The pilot takes direction from the batsman who stands at the aft port corner of the deck and signals with two colored paddles. On the final approach to the flight deck, the plane's speed is only four or five miles an hour above stalling speed, the point at which it can suddenly flip over and fall into the sea.

The Magnificent's accident rate is around one for every 80 landings, which Cmdr. A. H. Abrams describes as "reasonably low."

Cmdr Abrams, an Englishman on loan from the Royal Navy, is the ship's air commander.

Canada's navy pilots will convert to jet aircraft when the new carrier Bonaventure, being built at Belfast, is delivered in 1955. She is roughly the same size as the Magnificent.

SYSTEM FOR STOPPING

Once a carrier aircraft touches down, a hook extending from the tail grabs one of 10 cables strung across the deck. If the plane floats too high and misses all the wires, it smashes into a cable barrier, about 15 feet high. This can make a mess of the aircraft and it isn't comfortable for the plane crew either. (Furies carry only a pilot, Avengers a pilot and two observers.)

Hazards of carrier landings are almost countless for the deck crews as well as the plane crews. The plane may fall short, overshoot, smash into parked aircraft and catch fire, swing over one side or the other, or rip into the island on the starboard side.

The Magnificent is the only Commonwealth carrier to carry out night landings with Avengers. At night, the batsman wears a fluorescent suit.

Two Drivers Hurt In Trent R. Crash

TRENT RIVER (ENS) — One man suffered a slight concussion, another slight knee injuries, when the cars they were driving collided Sunday afternoon on Highway 30 just north of here.

Carl Pettifer of Campbellford, suffered a minor concussion and head injuries, and was taken to Campbellford hospital. Keith Trussler, of Dayton, Ont., was the other driver. None of their passengers was hurt.

Pettifer's car spun partly into a bog hole on the east side of the road, with both left doors badly damaged. Estimates of damage was $400. Trussler's car came to rest on the east side of the highway with its grill, hood and front fenders damaged to the extent of $175.

Trussler was driving south on Highway 30, he told police, and swung west to avoid the Pettifer car emerging from a sideroad on the west side of the highway. Trussler's car hit the other auto full on the left side.

Passeengers in the Trussler car, a convertible, were Joyce Petch and her sister Donna Ruth Petch of Dayton; in the Pettifer car, Cleo Morton of Peterborough, was a passenger.

OPP Constable George Rose of Campbellford investigated.

Neither the driver nor his passenger, Vincent Reeves, Toronto, were injured. Damage to the truck amounted to about $50.

Provincial Constable Archie Eady investigated.

Damage Totals $200 In Saturday Crash

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS) — About $200 damage was done about 5.30 p.m. Saturday when a car driven by Kenneth Ellis, 22, of Oshawa, and one driven by Douglas Jones, 46, of RR 1, Marmora, collided at the road leading to the Building Products Co. and Highway 7, just east of Havelock. The right front fender of the Jones car and the left side of the other car were damaged.

OPP Archie Eady of the Campbellford detachment investigated. No charges have been laid.

Car Hit From Behind On Highway, Damaged

COBOURG (ENS) — A car driven by William Lowell, of 592 Douglas St., Peterborough, was badly smashed in the rear when it was struck on Saturday night by Howard Johns, of RR 4, Cobourg.

Both cars were proceeding south and police said that Johns' car came over a rise and struck the Peterborough car. Damage to both vehicles was extensive but nobody was hurt. Constables Gene Butler and Tom Shaw investigated.

Tree Planting Wins Praise

"This is an excellent undertaking and certainly the largest of its kind that we know of in Canada."

This is the informed estimate of last week's tree-planting project at Nassau by the Lakefield High School 4-H Forestry Club, in a complimentary letter from James D. Moore, Ottawa, secretary-manager of the Canadian Council on 4-H Clubs.

"I have been reading in the Examiner about this project with a great deal of interest," Mr. Moore wrote at the weekend. "Mr. Paterson and Ken Best together with the leaders and 4-H members are to be complimented on this worth while endeavor."

The commendation of Mr. Moore is expressly what the Examiner has been suggesting in news reports of the Lakefield Forestry Club enterprise in undertaking the planting of 150,000 red pines at the rate of 15,000 a year for ten years on the C.G.E. Company's property at Nassau. This year's quota was set out last week, and it is to be hoped that the Lakefield 4-H Club boys and girls see themselves in Mr. Moore's tribute.

C.G.E. authorities were an important link in this success, providing the land and also paying for the trees. The promoters have been mentioned before, and they probably have all been pleased with their joint work.

Mr. Moore has enquired about obtaining pictures taken by the Examiner which he wishes to use in a 4-H leaders' handbook. So, approval from that source is passed along to the Lakefield Club members, and especially to those of the 50 tree planters whose industry and enthusiasm did not wilt or slacken during the planting of the 15,000 trees.

Canadian Entry Awarded Top Drama Festival Prize

VICTORIA (CP)—An entry Canadian to the core has run away with the top prize of the Dominion Drama Festival.

The Montreal La Jeune Scene theatre group took the award Saturday night with its presentation in French of a play called "Zone" and Governor-General Vincent Massey presented the winners Sunday with drama's Calvert Cup.

"Zone" was one of three presentations adjudicator Pierre Lefevre considered the best of a festival in which "we didn't see a single shabby play." It was written by a young Canadian playwright, Marcel Dube of Montreal, and has a Canadian setting.

The other two plays which drew raves from Mr. Lefevre were "The Madwoman of Chaillot" by the Ottawa Little Theatre Saturday Players and "The Family Reunion" by the University of Toronto Alumnae Dramatic Club.

BEST ACTOR

Best actor, winner of the Henry Osborne Trophy, was Robert Rivard, who portrayed Passe-Partout in the winning play, which he also directed.

Three actor and actress awards went to members of the Ottawa group for parts they played in Jean Giraudoux' "Madwoman."

The Nella Jeffries Challenge Trophy for the best actress was awarded to Andree Cunningham for her portrayal of Mme. Constance and plaques for the best supporting actor and actress went to Ruth Addleman, who played Irma, and Bruce Swerdfager, who played the ragpicker.

Herbert Whittaker was awarded the Louis Jouvet Trophy for his direction of "The Family Reunion," a T. S. Eliot play which also won the award for the best English-language presentation and the Martha Allen Trophy for the best visual presentation.

"Le Bourgeois Gentilhomme" by Les Etudiants de l'Universite de Saint-Joseph of St. Joseph, N. B., was awarded the festival trophy for the best French-language play excluding the winner.

"Gentilhomme" was the only other presentation in French, but Mr. Lefevre said the presentation was by no means made because it was the only other play in the running. "Anyone who saw that play will agree it was worth seeing," he said.

BEST PLAY

Author Dube of "Zone," who also acted in the play he wrote especially for the festival, saw it honored also as the best play presented by a Canadian.

"Zone," last of the eight plays presented during the week-long festival, is a modern drama depicting the tragedy of a gang of youths caught smuggling American cigarettes in Montreal.

A customs inspector is murdered and the leader of the youths confesses. Later, he escapes and asks his girl to run away with him. She refuses and he is killed in a gunfight with police.

Director Robert Rivard said the play will be seen next Sunday on the CBC Montreal-Toronto television network and that a Quebec company will film it later this year.

Cast members included Dube, Rivard, Monique Miller, Gay Godin, Hubert Loiselle, Raymond Levesque, Jean-Louis Paris, Yves Letourneau and Jean Duceppe.

Can Peterborough Streets And Roads Be Safe?

Last year there were more motor accidents in this district than ever before. The increase was general throughout the area. In the city itself there were 352 reported accidents in which three persons were killed and ninety injured, but not fatally. In 1951 there were 267 accidents in the city, fatally injuring two persons, and injuring eighty-three others. In the county, inclusive of the city, there were 666 motor accidents last year, compared with 595 in 1951. All the neighbouring counties showed similar increases. Here is the 1952 record, set against the 1951 figures, given in brackets: Hastings 833 (829), Northumberland 361 (308), Durham 475 (417), Victoria 337 (283), Haliburton 139 (116).

• • •

This is an alarming record. In the five counties of Durham, Northumberland, Victoria, Peterborough and Haliburton there were 1978 reported accidents last year, an increase over 1951 of fifteen per cent. This is worse than the average increase in motor accidents generally across the Province, which was 6.5 per cent.

• • •

These statistics give special purpose to the "Safety Month" campaign now in progress throughout Canada. If by naming May a "safety month" our people can be persuaded to take greater thought for the conditions of their cars, and greater care in driving them, we have no regret that May has been tagged with such an unlovely name. The number of accidents locally gives special point to the police plan which began this morning. City police have started to check the condition of all cars using Peterborough streets, to ensure that they are mechanically safe for driving. They are checking brakes, windshield wipers, lights, steering system and other parts of the vehicle which, if not in good order, would make it dangerous.

• • •

The condition of the car or truck is only part of the problem of how better to ensure safety on streets and highways. Another, and more important, is the condition of the driver. If the driver is unskilled, reckless, in physically improper state for driving (sleepy, poor in vision, drunk or only slightly tiddly because of a few drinks), accidents will happen no matter how excellent the mechanical condition of the vehicle he is driving. Provincial statistics show that far more accidents have occurred when the driver was handling his car improperly than when the car was not in proper road condition.

• • •

Can our streets and highways ever be made safe? No. As long as there are freely moving objects, two will occasionally try to occupy the same space. Accidents will happen, but their incidence can be minimized as well as their effects. A safety campaign during this month, and a lively concern for road safety during all twelve months of the year, should help to reduce the appalling number of accidents in this Province: 893 killed and 16,300 injured last year alone. More people are killed and injured on the roads of Ontario every year than the total of Canadians killed and injured in the entire Korean war.

Do All Governments Profit From Thirst?

We have heard and read occasional complaints about the exceedingly high levy and margin of profit tacked onto liquor by governments in Canada, and on one of these occasions, Scotch was the liquor mentioned. Aparrently it is a trait common to all governments and liquor dealers, for we read recently that the export price of a case of Scotch to the United States was $12.07, whereas the cheapest brand of Scotch obtainable in New York was tagged with a retail price of $4.48. We can recall a ship captain buying a case of Scotch out of bond in Quebec for about $16; the liquor was in forty-ounce bottles, which retailed then at between six and seven dollars.

The U.S. Export price was revealed when a complaint about it was heard in the British House of Commons. Richard Stokes, a Labour member, declared that Scotch whisky was being sold too cheaply to the United States. He said that the price was only twenty-five per cent. above the prewar figure of $7.30, but that despite stiff competition from American whiskies, exports of Scotch had trebled. He said the Government would hear more about the matter.

We assume Canada purchases Scotch at approximately the same price, and it retails in Ontario for $60.60 for a case of twelve twenty-six ounce bottles. That seems a profitable item of trade, and we are told it is a steady selling line. As for government profiteering, it is obvious, but we may expect it to continue. As long as a high level of prosperity prevails, the demand will be high. As long as the demand is high, the governments will not reduce prices. Consumers could force a reduction, as they did in the case of cigarettes, but it seems highly unlikely that they will do so. "Rolling your own," in the case of liquor, is expensive, uncertain and distressingly illegal if the home manufacturer is detected.

Nervous Peron

A couple of weeks ago the Argentine police arrested two leading members of the Radical Opposition, for attending a national convention of the Party at which President Peron was criticized for his handling of the fracas and bombings the week before. This included burning down the Radical Party headquarters in Buenos Aires by a Peronista gang.

A close observer of the Latin American scene has written this in a despatch to the Examiner: "It is a measure of the extent to which the state of affairs in Argentina has deteriorated that nobody has expressed the least surprise that the Argentine Government has arrested two members of the Opposition for complying with their constitutional duty of opposing the Government. Previous Argentine regimes have tried by various means to render the opposition ineffective, but only a few years ago no one could have imagined official opposition being a criminal offence. Following President Peron's astonishing encouragement to his supporters to tie his opponents up with baling wire, beat them and hang them from trees, the arrest of two perfectly respectable and law-abiding politicians is, to say the least of it, disquieting."

The situation is reminiscent of the first days of the Hitler regime, when Hindenburg was still alive, and Von Papen was vice-chancellor, hardly in opposition to Hitler, but still sufficiently critical to be put under house arrest.

There has been no spontaneity in the recent outburst of violence and arson in Buenos Aires; only a small number of people took part, and there was almost a total lack of official interference. "It is now realized that the real rulers of the city, if need be, are a well-organized strong-arm gang," a resident of the city writes. Peronista thugs?

President Peron is growing nervous about the extent of genuine popular support his regime has. On May Day, which formerly he had used to stage demonstrations of the workers' loyalty, all police leave was cancelled, and civil servants were not given their normal holiday. They were told to stand by in case they were needed as special constables in the event of trouble. Apparently President Peron feared that the May Day demonstration this year would be used to show disaffection, rather than loyalty to the regime.

If the disaffected can in any way help to restore some freedom of speech and thought in Argentina, we wish them well. Freer people the world over cannot forget what the Peron regime has done to muzzle the press in that country.

University Renamed

Karl Marx, the German socialist who lived most of his adult life in London, was born on May 5th, 1818. The Communist government of East Germany has created special honours to mark the 135th anniversary of the great white father of Communism. The ancient Saxonian city of Chemnitz (population 250,000) is being renamed next Sunday as Karl Marx Stadt. Perhaps the ghost of Karl Marx would appreciate the honour but Chemnitz should be revolted. It loses its historic identity for a person who at no time—his birth, his boyhood, his Prussian working days—had any connection with the place.

A greater distortion of history is also occurring on Sunday. The famous and venerable University of Leipsig is being renamed Karl Marx University. Founded in 1409 as a result of a secession from the University of Prague, Leipsig University is the second oldest and third largest university in all Germany. Why rename it Karl Marx University? Marx never lived in Saxony, never studied or taught at Leipsig. The East German Communists have merely seized the historic university for their own propaganda purposes, destroying its fame and name in the process. It is a great pity that Leipsig University is thus to lose its past; as ridiculous and wrenching an act as to rename the University of Oxford Gladstone University.

These nominal honours to Karl Marx will be as transitory as the Communist East German Government. History will have its revenge, and we look forward to the time that Karl Marx Stadt will again become Chemnitz and Karl Marx University the University of Leipsig.

Musical Notes

By PETER PIPER

AND ALL the daughters of music shall be brought low", said the Preacher, thus describing in graphic terms one of the commonest afflictions of old age: yet his words might apply almost as justly to the abrupt cessation in musical activities that takes place in this country when the warmer weather approaches. When the fishing season starts and large numbers of townsfolk seek the "simple life" in their lakeside cottages and others go further afield there is bound to be less interest in attending concerts in stuffy halls. But there is still a potential audience even during the dog-days, and there are increasing signs that this is being recognized. Even the delights of the Thousand Lakes and the Kawarthas are apt to pall if taken neat over a period of several weeks, and the voluntary exile from civilization is apt to crave for the delights of the winter season. The summer theatre movement has proved conclusively that audiences can be lured indoors even on the most oppressive evenings provided that the fare is good and attractive. The Stratford Festival, which is opening this year with such great expectations, shows that the theatrical world is alive to the possibilites of summer Shakespeare.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE MUSICAL WORLD is proceeding more cautiously. Yet there is a tendency for concerts to take place later in the season than heretofore. This is partly owing to the congestion that sometimes occurs at the height of the season. There are as yet no summer festivals of music in Canada such as are common in the United States, but it only remains for someone with sufficient foresight and faith to be the first in the field. There are, however, one or two excellent summer schools. The Conservatory Summer School is being held again this summer after a lapse of a year due to the turmoil of reorganization. I doubt whether Toronto in July is quite the ideal venue, but there are compensations in being situated in a large city, and the earnest devotee is too tough a bird to be frightened away by heat, humidity and dust. For the weaker vessel the Montreal Bach choir offers "Summer Holiday Music Making" in idyllic surroundings at Otter Lake, Huberdeau, P.Q. from the 10th to the 23rd of August. This is a smaller and more intimate affair than the Toronto School. Its range is more limited, and there are no "big names" associated with it, but the programme is attractive and so is the view of the site on the prospectus.

Actually it is possible to attend both, as there is an interval of twelve days between the end of the Toronto Summer School and the Otter Lake Music Making. For those few who plan to visit Britain this summer there are a number of very attractive Summer Schools, mostly in the lovely English countryside: no less than nine are advertised in the April edition of the London Musical Times, and if any of my readers is interested I would be glad to forward particulars.

I DO NOT MAKE a custom, nor is it the scope of this column, of advertising forthcoming events in the district. If, however, anything of unusual interest is brought to my notice I sometimes relax this rule. Such an event is the Coronation Festival Service, to be held in the Kingston Community Centre on the Sunday preceding the Coronation. A wide selection of music is to be sung by a choir of over 1,000 voices drawn from throughout the Anglican diocese, which includes Kingston, Brockville and Belleville as well as many smaller places. It is not often that one gets an opportunity of hearing a choir of such dimensions. The music has been well chosen to illustrate four centuries of English Church Music and culminates with an anthem by Healey Willan. Peterborough, too, is planning a service the same evening at which massed choirs of different denominations will unite in singing, but as it is confined to the city itself the number of choristers will be somewhat less.

✧ ✧ ✧

STILL SPEAKING of the Coronation I have just received a copy of the music for the actual ceremony. There is litle doubt that the most spectacular part of the music will be Sir William Walton's new Te Deum. It is laid out most spaciously and splendidly for two choirs, two semi-choruses, boys' voices, organ and military brass. It will need a big and decisive beat from the conductor to bring it off, especially if the semi-choruses are placed (for echo effect) in remote parts of the building, as the whole thing is designed to go with the precision of clockwork. It is quite a change from the rough-hewn grandeur of Vaughan Williams' setting which was sung at the last Coronation, and the well-known Stanford setting in B flat, which was sung at the Coronation of Edward VII; yet each in their own way is equally effective in that they have a feeling of the pomp and pageantry of the occasion, together with more than a reminder of its passing nature.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE NEWS came through last week of the appointment of Boyd Neel as Dean of the Faculty of Music in the Toronto Conservatory. Dr. Neel has carved a considerable reputation for himself by the creation of the small orchestra that bears his name. This orchestra, that gave a memorable concert in Peterborough last fall in the course of its first Canadian and American tour, is synonymous with a high degree of perfection and refinement coupled with a minimum of exhibitionism. Dr. Neel's acceptance of the Toronto position, which would appear to indicate the severance of his connection with his orchestra, denotes his faith in the future development of Canadian music. His advent should stimulate the growth of orchestral music for we are still painfully overpopulated with pianists and under-populated with violinists, oboists, horn players and other instrumental musicians. His appointment will also help to close the gap between the academic and the performing sides of music. It is an unusual appointment in many ways, but it is often these that have proved most fruitful.

✧ ✧ ✧

NOT being a handy man myself I gasp with envy at my more capable brethren when I see the results of their prowess in "fixing up" basements, tuning up engines, and so on. It was with considerable scepticism that I read the title of a recent book, "You can mak a 'Stradivarius' violin". Complete directions, with eight plans are given, so that presumably any proficient amateur carpenter could produce from them a playable instrument, even though it would never deceive an expert on old violins! There are so many violins bearing the label "Antonius Stradivarius Cremonensis Fecit" that one is tempted to derive the word "fake" from the last word of the inscription.'

The Greatest Show Of The Century

By JOHN GALE

SOME of London's most famous streets are flanked by high terraces of wood and steel. With the completion of most of the stands along the five-mile Coronation route there is a feeling of expectation. The British public have realised quite suddenly that there are only three weeks left to the great day.

As a spectacle, the Coronation will be without equal. The Queen's golden coach, the gleaming Sovereign's Escort of the Household Cavalry, mounted on black chargers, the liveried footmen, the members of the Queen's Bodyguard of the Yeomen of the Guard in their ancient costumes, the tall guardsmen marching in bearskins and scarlet tunics, all will have a splendid, yet unreal quality. It seems incongruous that the twentieth century can produce this magnificence. It is a show that will make any Hollywood extravaganza seem dowdy. Yet, despite the air of fantasy, it has a very real purpose. And it is backed by the resources of the Kingdom.

The total cost of the Coronation to the State will be about two million pounds. This will include the movement of troops and the provision of their ceremonial equipment; the erection of the stands to hold a hundred thousand people; the elaborate decorations, in the streets, in Westminster Abbey itself, and on well-known monuments—some of the cost will, of course, be offset by the sale of seats, and much of the material used for seating and decoration will be dismantled or melted down for future use. Yet no true estimate of the whole cost can be made, for the services of the thirty thousand officers and men taking part — the figure includes forty-six bands — will, in effect, be obtained free. There will be fifteen thousand policemen lining the route to assist the military. And when the Queen, escorted by the two-mile-long cavalcade, has returned to Bucking Palace, there will be a big fly-past by the Royal Air Force.

June 2, Coronation Day, will be a public holiday in Britain. The population of London will be swelled by visitors from the provinces and overesas. Special trains will be run to the capital, where the big hotels have long been fully booked; six — and possibly eight — hotel ships will be moored in the Thames.

To help the police control the millions of people attempting to view the procession, wooden barriers nine feet high are being put up across some of the main roads leading to the route. When as many people as can see the procession with safety have been admitted, the gates of these barriers will be closed. On the route itself crush barriers have been erected to regulate the crowd, prevent pressure, and to form corridors to assist those people who need to get to particular points. The Coronation area will be closed to general traffic at midnight. The organisation of this gigantic occasion is of a bewildering complexity. The whole of London is now moving with increasing rapidity towards the climax.

✧ ✧ ✧

CELEBRATIONS will be held in all parts of Britain. The Scout movement will light a chain of giant beacons throughout the country on Coronation night as its contribution to the general rejoicing. Towns and villages are spending sums ranging from thousands to less than a hundred pounds to provide children with Coronation mugs, a bewildering array of souvenirs, or even, in some instances, a box of chocolates. There will be massed physical training displays, pageants, festivals and dancing by floodlight taking place during the Coronation period, which lasts from the end of May to the end of July. The Ministry of Food has arranged for a bonus issue of sugar and fats, involving the extra import of forty-nine thousand tons of sugar and seven thousand of oil. Despite rationing, permission has been given for "responsible bodies which have made a custom of ox-roasting at Coronations" to do so again this year — provided the cooked meat is given away free. Public houses will be open all day on June 2, and the brewers are brewing ale of treble strength.

During the Coronation period the Queen will hold State banquets at Buckingham Palace, and she will make Coronation visits to Scotland, Northern Ireland and Wales. On June 15 she will attend the Coronation Naval Review at Spithead, which will comprise nine seven-mile lines of ships. Among countries sending warship are the United States, Russia, Spain, France, The Netherlands, Sweden, Norway, Portugal, Siam, Denmark, Italy, Greece, Brazil, Belgium, Turkey and the Dominican Republic. Two hundred and six ships of the Royal Navy and Commonwealth Navies and three hundred naval aircraft will take part.

From June 5 until July 4 the public will be able to view Westminster Abbey in its Coronation setting. A Coronation river pageant will be held on the Thames on July 22. In addition to the craft in the process-Navy, the Army, the Royal Air Force, the Merchant Navy and fishing fleets will participate; military bands will play.

After dark during the Coronation period, most of London's famous buildings will be floodlit, the leafy squares will be hung with lanterns and there will be illuminations and decorations along the banks of the Thames.

✧ ✧ ✧

SIR WINSTON CHURCHILL, the Prime Minister, is to broadcast on Coronation night, at the climax of a programme of homage. He will be followed by the Queen herself. Two of the most important B.B.C. programmes will be round-the-world features, bigger and wider in scope than anything previously attempted. After the Queen has spoken, there will be a programme entitled "Coronation Day Across the World." Listeners will hear a description of the scenes outside the Palace, where crowds will be waiting for the Queen to appear. The programme will then revisit deserted Westminster Abbey. Next it will turn to the gaiety of Piccadilly Circus and to a street party in the East End of London. Visits will follow to the carnival of floodlit Edinburgh Castle; to Ben Nevis (highest mountain in Britain), where the local provost will be waiting to light a bonfire; to Ulster; to a party in Britain's largest steel works in Wales, and the Bredon Hill in Worcestershire for bonfires and dancing.

From Liverpool a mass salute by ships' sirens will be heard. The scene will then shift to the Channel Isles and to Plymouth Hoe, where there will be sailors dancing. There will be visits to Paris and Holland, to British servicemen in Germany, to Greece, Yugoslavia, Belgium, Scandinavia, Canada, the United States, Cape Town, Nairobi and the Gold Coast, to Pakistan, Ceylon and India, to Commonwealth forces in Malaya and to Chinese in Hong Kong. There will be traditional greetings from the Rhodesians on what is described as "the last remaining talking drum in Central Africa," besides music from places ranging from Korea to Gibraltar (this will include a special Coronation calypso (topical folk-song) from the West Indies).

The Coronation, including the actual crowning, will be seen by millions on television screens in Britain, Western Europe, Canada and the United States. Never before will so many people in different parts of the world have seen and heard so splendid and historic a ceremony

Bigger Universe

(NEW YORK TIMES)

ABOUT twenty years ago the late Sir Arthur Eddington assured astronomers and cosmologists that, in accordance with the calculations of Abbe G. Lemaitre, the universe is doubling its radius every 1,400 million years or so and that the age of the earth, as determined by the spontaneous transmutation of uranium into several kinds of radium and finally into lead, must be about 3,500 million years. If the earth was not actually older than the universe, it was pretty nearly as old, an aburdity which was enough to make any physicist toss in his sleep.

The astronomers and cosmologists have been breathing a little more easily since last September when Dr. Walter Baade of the California Institute of Technology told the International Astronomical Union at Rome that with the 200-inch telescope of Palomar he had remeasured the distance of the great spiral nebula in Andromeda and found that the previously accepted determinations were wrong by a factor of two. The distance of this particular nebula has long served as a yardstick by which all other distances beyond the Milky Way are measured. Now come Dr. Henri Mineur of the Institut d'Astrophysique and Dr. A. D. Thackeray of the Radcliffe Observatory at Pretoria with independent determinations that confirm Dr. Baade's.'

If there is rejoicing at these findings it is because the observable universe, in terms of the range of the 200-inch telescope of Palomar, is pushed out to 2,000 million light-years—double what it was supposed to be. All heavenly bodies beyond the Milky Way are twice as far way and twice as large as we thought they were up to last September. Instead of being an anomaly, because it was so much bigger than other galaxies, the dimensions of the Milky Way by comparison are now more modest. The relativists find that the universe is blowing up at only half the rate once accepted. Since the rate of expansion is known it is possible to travel back in time mathematically and to state that the universe had its beginning 4,000 million years ago instead of only 2,000 million years. Though the agreement of the newly determined age of the universe with that of the earth is close — uncomfortably close to a mathematician — it means much that an awkward discrepancy has been removed. No wonder the cosmologists are happy.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

A certain man had two sons: and the younger of them said to his father, Father, give me the portion of goods that falleth to me. And he divided unto them his living. And not many days after the younger son gathered all together, and took his journey into a far country, and there wasted his substance with riotous living.

And when he spent all, there arose a mighty famine in that land; and he began to be in want. And he went and joined himself to a citizen of that country; and he sent him into his fields to feed swine. And he would fain have filled his belly with husks that the swine did eat: and no man gave unto him.

And when he came to himself, he said, How many hired servants of my father's have bread enough and to spare, and I perish with hunger! . . . And he arose, and came to his father. But when he was yet a great way off, his father saw him, and had compassion, and ran, and fell on his neck, and kissed him. And the son said unto him, Father, I have sinned against heaven, and in they sight, and am no more worthy to be called thy son. But the father said to his servants, Bring forth the best robe, and put it on him; and put a ring on his hand, and shoes on his feet: and bring hither the fatted calf, and kill it; and let us eat, and be merry: for this my son was dead, and is alive again; he was lost, and is found. (Luke 15:11 ,20-24.)

Then Judas, which had betrayed him, when he saw that he was condemned, repented himself, and brought again the thirty pieces of silver to the chief priests and elders, saying, I have sinned in that I betrayed the innocent blood. And they said, What is that to us? see thou to that. And he cast down the pieces of silver in the temple, and departed and went and hanged himself. (Matt. 27:3-5).

Letter To The Editor

CAPARISONED PARADE

Sir: Right beneath your editorial ,"What Are Peterborough's Coronation Plans?" is a hint in "Notes and Comments",—horses and horsemen-ship! Just shunt the cars off the street for a day, and have horses and riders decked in scarlet and gold,—(horse races too?). Have perhaps a play in duplicate of the real. There are horses still around Peterborough. Horse-men too—and women.

Busy Queen Takes Time To Check On Race Horse

By STERLING SLAPPEY

NEWMARKET, England (AP)—In the space of four days early next month the Queen will be crowned and her favorite horse, Aureole, will run in the Derby.

With a deal like the Coronation in the works, you wouldn't think the Queen had time for something as simple as a horse race but she takes the time.

Her trainer, Capt. C. C. Boyd-Rochfort, is pleased that the Queen keeps a close check on him these days while he gets Aureole ready for Britain's biggest race, the Derby at Epsom June 6.

"She's the ideal owner," the trainer says. "She is very wise about horses and her knowledge is genuine.

HAS OWN IDEAS

"The Queen doesn't mind at all disagreeing with me when she thinks I've been mistaken about a horse. She will tell me, 'Captain, you should not have run the horse over six furlongs. That's too far for him right now. Five furlongs would have been far enough.'

"Of course she can't come up here from Buckingham Palace or Windsor Castle as often these days as she used to come, or as much as she would like to come, but still one of her favorite things is to drive up early in the morning and watch her horses work."

The Queen personally owns 10 horses—Aureole, Choir Boy and eight unraced two-year-olds. They are in the care of Capt. Boyd-Rochfort in this community which is composed principally of 2,000 horses, 3,000 horsemen and horsewomen, seven race tracks, a few stores and a lot of pubs.

In addition the Queen leases other horses from the national stud and they also race under her colors which, appropriately enough, are royal purple with gold braid, scarlet sleeves, a cap of black and gold.

Aureole is the stable star and a great many people would like to see him win the Derby, especially since this is a Coronation year. But, Aureole doesn't rate as favorite, mostly because of another sensational three - year old named Nearula.

Late in April Nearula, owned by William Humble, won the 2,000 Guineas classic race and Aureole finished an improving fifth. That and other results make Nearula the 11 to 4 pick to win the Derby and make it a doubleheader in classic races. Aureole is bracketed with Premonition as second choice at 100-9.

$500 Reward In Search For 3 Brothers

TORONTO (CP)—A $500 reward for information leading to the whereabouts of three Toronto youngsters missing 10 days was announced Saturday.

No trace has been found of the three Quigley brothers, the oldest 10, since they walked from their east-central home to a neighborhood store to buy candy.

Puzzled police have run out of clues in the round-the-clock search for Henry, 10, Howard, 7, and Paul 5.

FEAR WORST

Said a weary policeman Saturday: "We're all scared something has happened to the poor kids or they'd be back by now. . . Even the crackpot calls have petered out."

Police have been patiently tracing every tip, no matter how slight, in the search for the boys. On Saturday 215 Boy Scouts and 36 police officers combed downtown Toronto and the waterfront. Amateur radio "hams" operating walkie-talkies and radio equipped cars co-ordinated the search.

$100,000 Theft

MONTREAL (CP)—Police said Sunday thieves broke into a prominent east-end tailor's shop Saturday night and escaped with an estimated $100,000 in clothing material. The burglary is believed to be one of the biggest in the city's history. Owner Michel Tamilia said thieves smashed a hole in the wall at the rear of his shop to gain entrance.

6 Die In Flaming Car

EAST ALTON, Ill. (AP)—Six persons burned to death near here Sunday night when fire swept their automobile after a two-car crash.

Madison county coroner Ben F. Staten said the bodies—two men, two women, a boy and a girl—were burned beyond recognition. Police said the six were riding in a small car that was struck from behind and turned over.

Beautiful Alameda Park Once Used By Inquisition

MEXICO CITY—The beautiful Alameda Park which today is a popular place for families to wander and which has excellent band concerts, has little to remind the visitor that it was once the hateful site for the burning of victims of the Inquisition's vengeance.

This is the most popular of the inner city parks and it faces busy Juarez avenue. It is noted for its noble trees, tiled fountains and many lovely flowers and walks. Its expression of the southern love of color and picturesque costumes of the people who gather there, are of unfailing interest to the stranger.

At the time of the Conquest, the west half of the Alameda was a big Aztec market which supplied Montezuma's capital. With the advent of the Dominicans with the Inquisition in 1571, this half was converted into the Plaza del Quemadero (Burning Place) because of a large stone platform where victims of the Holy Office were burned or strangled. In the 18th century succeeding viceroys improved it as a pleasure park.

In the early mornings students go there to study. During the day it is full of all classes of people and in the evenings the park benches serve as a trysting place for romantic couples.

JUAREZ MONUMENT

The semi-circle of white marble fronting on the avenue is a monument to Benito Juarez, the great Mexican patriot and president who instituted the Reform Laws. It was erected in 1910 to commemorate the first centennial of Mexican Independence.

The whole of the area around the Alameda is redolent of Mexico City's history. The Avenida Hidalgo behind it was the scene of many battles between the Aztecs and the Spaniards. Nearby is the Church of San Hipolito dedicated to the 600 Spaniards who were killed on July 1, 1520 in an Aztec attack. A tablet on the atrium wall gives an account of that terrible night. Beneath a carved eagle with an Indian in its talons is the following inscription:

"So many Spaniards were killed on this spot by the Aztecs on July 1, 1520—called for that reason the Sad Night—that after triumphantly re-entering the city the following year, the victors decided to build a chapel here in honor of San Hipolito, because the city was regained on that saint's day."

When this church was completed it was on the Tacuba causeway, one of the three great causeways which connected Tenochtitlan with the mainland. For many years after its erection and on the anniversary of the Spanish victory, the city's coat-of-arms were conveyed at the head of a splendid procession to the church where a special mass was said for those who fell in the great battles for the recapture of the metropolis.

CEMETERY FOR HEROES

The Cemetery of San Fernando, sometimes called "the Cemetery of the Illustrious Men," is where some of Mexico's greatest heroes are buried. It stands behind the Plaza of Guerrero. Here you will find the tombs of Juarez, Guerrero, Zaragoza and others.

The most noteworthy mausoleum is that of ex-president Benito Juarez. The sarcophagus, surmounted by a recumbent figure of the Indian patriot, whose head is lying in the lap of a weeping woman symbolic of the nation is the work of J. and M. Islas. Nearby is the tomb of the noted General Vincente Guerrero who was shot in Oaxaca. There is the grave of General Ignacio Zaragoza who helped defeat the French at Puebla; a monument to Ignacio Comonfort, president of Mexico in 1885 who was killed in the fighting of 1863.

To the left of the entrance of this pantheon is a small court with a red sandstone sarcophagus with M.M. on the end. There is a significant absence of name and date on this tomb, which covers the remains of General Miguel Miramon who was executed with the Emperor Maximilian in 1867 at the Hill of the Bells in Queretaro. In the cemetery proper is the grave of General T. Mejia, who was also shot with Maximilian and Miramon.

WHY NOT NATIONAL SHRINE?

This little pantheon could be one of the most beautiful spots in Mexico City. Only a block from one of the busy streets, it has a lovely patio behind the high walls, filled with flowers. It is like stepping into another world of peace and quiet away from the modern bustle so nearby. But only a minimum amount of care is given the graveyard with its famous occupants. Although these men are greatly revered by the people of all Mexico, few visit the pantheon or take an interest in making it a national shrine.

Of the 1200 bodies or more interred here, many are deposited in niches in the walls after the style of Camp Santo at Genoa, Italy. It has been closed to public burials since 1872.

In a small cemetery at the Shrine of Guadalupe, one of Mexico's greatest traitors, Santa Anna, lies in a grave that receives absolutely no care. When I asked the caretaker where to find it he looked at me in disgust and asked why I was interested in seeing the grave of such a man. He finally led me to the spot, pointing at it contemptuously. All the other graves around are well kept, but his was untouched. This traitor's grave and those of the greatest of Mexicans appear to receive about the same amount of care, an ironic situation.

Portland cement was invented by an English bricklayer, Joseph Aspdin, in 1824.

Demote Sergeant For Assault In Windsor

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—The police commission Saturday demoted patrol sergeant Al Robinson guilty of common assault against John Westfall, 17, and demoted him to acting sergeant for a probationary period of six months.

Constable Fred Sullivan, similarly charged, was acquitted.

Judge Archibald Cochrane of Brampton, chairman of the commission, said the charge against Sullivan was dismissed because "we are of the opinion you struck Westfall in self-defence and there was some provocation." The single blow struck by Sullivan opened a cut over Westfall's eye.

SHOWN LENIENCY

Westfall was arrested Jan. 1 on a drunk driving charge. He subsequently pleaded guilty and served 14 days. Charges against the two policemen were laid by the commission April 27 after Westfall complained he had been struck while being arrested.

Judge Cochrane said leniency was being shown Robinson because of his excellent 11-year record with the police department.

Composer Dies

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Frank A. Panella, 75-year-old Pittsburgh band leader and composer, who wrote "The Old Gray Mare," died Sunday in his sleep. Panella, in poor health several months, also composed the famed "On the Square March" and hundreds of other numbers.

Locked In Vault

EAST ALTON, Ill. (CP)—Ann Linkogle, pretty blonde 18-year-old bank bookkeeper, was freed from a vault in the Illinois State Bank Saturday night after being imprisoned for more than eight hours. She was locked in when she didn't hear fellow employees tell her they were closing up. She pushed an alarm bell, the ventilation system was turned on, and workmen spent hours drilling a hole through 20-inch-thick concrete to release the time lock.

Ghost Town Becomes Community For Pensioners

By JAMES HUTCHESON

RYDERWOOD, Wash. (AP) — This former lumber town is being snatched back from the ghosts for an unusual experiment in business and living.

It has been sold, lock, stock and rain barrel, and the new owners plan a community of pensioners. The town's 400 homes will be sold only to elderly persons on pensions ranging from $130 to $250 a month.

LOGGING TOWN

Ryderwood, 75 miles from Portland, Ore., was laid out as a logging town by the Long-Bell Lumber Company in 1923. Company officials estimate their firm put $1,500,000 into the town. But as the timber was worked out of the surrounding hills, the community shrank. Last summer the town was put up for sale.

John N. Ritter, a Seattle real estate broker, told Harry H. Kem, a Beverly Hills, Calif., real estate operator, about it. Kem envisioned a community for pensioners, and the purchase was completed in April in the name of Senior Estates, Inc., for an unannounced price.

The Ryderwood purchasers have provided for down payments of $200 to $300 and payment scales of $20, $25, and $30 a month. This, they say, puts the project in the reach of the pensioners while proving a sound financial investment for the sponsors.

Applications for reserving houses are now being accepted. Selection of applications will be on a "first come, first served" basis, the company said.

The somewhat run-down town will be refurnished at a cost of about $170,000, officials said.

The price tags attached to the houses are $2,500 for four rooms, $3,000 for five rooms and $3,500 for six rooms.

It is hoped that some industry, where older folks could do light work, may be attracted to two shop buildings in town.

"My, What a busy Laundry!"

YOU can't judge a book by its cover but you can get a pretty good idea of how busy a hospital is from its laundry. And hospital laundries everywhere are busy today!

Patients are discharged sooner today, thanks to the wonders of modern medical care and the scientific facilities now available in our hospitals. These shorter periods of hospitalization, strangely enough, add to the hospitals' daily cost of providing care.

Shorter hospital stays mean that the hospital is treating more acutely ill patients—and serving more patients means more laundry, more special diets, more facilities, more staff of all kinds, more equipment, more bookkeeping . . . more everything!

While the daily cost of providing care is higher than a decade ago, we should remember that the shorter stay makes today's hospital bill little, if any, more than it used to be. And your chances for recovery are now so much greater!

Petes Beat West Yorkers By 16-13 To Open Play In Chippy Senior OLA Tilt

Taking up in Orillia on Saturday night where they left off here last fall, the Petes' lacrossers yanked out a close win over Toronto West Yorks, 16-13, to open the OLA senior "A" season. The crowd in the classy Orillia arena was swelled by a goodly number of fans from Peterborough, impatient to see the Mann Cup champions in action once more. Mimico opens against the Petes here Thursday.

The old rivalry between Yorks and Bob Thorpe's team was apparent early, it turning out to be a chippy game with plenty of slashing, elbowing and tripping. Fights threatened several times, and Yorks were given eight of 14 penalties by Referees Piper Bain and Lou Vipond who were in lenient mood. Goalie George Johnston, of Yorks, was cut once, Jerry Fitzgerald received a nasty cut on the mouth and Harry Wipper got a gash on the cheek.

BOYS GO WELL

Bob Thorpe sat it out to give younger players like Bev Groves, Roger Smith and Red Robinson a chance, and the boys went well. The whole team clicked good for an opening game, though none of the players on either team naturally was in peak condition. Despite this, some exciting lacrosse was served up and it was a tight fit all the way, Yorks driving in the final minutes to close the gap considerably. The goaltending was pretty much on a par between the top netters of the league.

Ike Hildebrand was high man on the Petes' scoring totem pole, the rugged little AHL ace smashing in on five goals in a dandy showing, as well as picking up an assist. Curly Mason was hot, too, to score three and aid on another. Don Ashbee was his usual hustling self and he cashed in on two goals and an assist. Veteran Dootch Vitarelli hit his stride early for two markers, singles going to Nip O'Hearn (who also had an assist), Harry Wipper —who got two assists as well— Lou Nickle, a grand solo, and Roger Smith, who had another one called back on him. Big Ross Powless led the assist department with four fine build-up plays, and Jerry Fitzgerald was as heady as ever to start three scoring sorties.

TEATRO SHONE

Leo Teatro was hotter than a giant firecracker for Yorks as he blazed in five goals and helped on three more. He was definitely the big gun for the McPhail men, and several of his goals were picture plays. Don McPhail scored three and aided on another, while Jim McNulty was a third star for them with two goals and an assist. Ken Croft clicked for two and Joe McNulty one. Tony D'Amico and Jack Kapasky earned an assist apiece.

It was 2-2 in the tight first frame, and each side scored four next heat. The Petes had a 5-3 bulge in the third and outscored the home squad by 5-4 in the nip-and-tuck fourth chukker. Teams:

Petes: Goal, Wootton; defence, Nickle and O'Hearn; centre, Mason; wings, Powless and Smith; rover, Slater; alternates, Ashbee, Fitzgerald, Vitarelli, Wipper, Hildebrand, Groves and B. Robinson.

'B' Cricketers Take Win Against Grove

Peterborough - Whitaker "B" cricketers defeated Lakefield Grove by 111-92 in an exhibition match Saturday at the Oval to start their season. It was featured by splendid batting by G. Smith, who scored 75 runs and took three wickets for 12 runs.

The school batted first to get 46 for the first wicket, W. Rashleigh scoring 38, but later wickets fell quickly until the arrival of D. Hibbard, who scored 14 not out and the total was 92.

On the Club going to bat, G. Smith proceeded to score 75, including two sixes and six fours. Never in trouble, he scored freely and of the other 11 bats, only Frank Dyer with 10 got double figures. The eighth wicket fell in 84 and the match was won before another wicket fell. It was a great showing for a newcomer. The team goes to Toronto next Saturday to play Parkdale "B," while the "A" team takes on Toronto St. Simon's in the Oval.

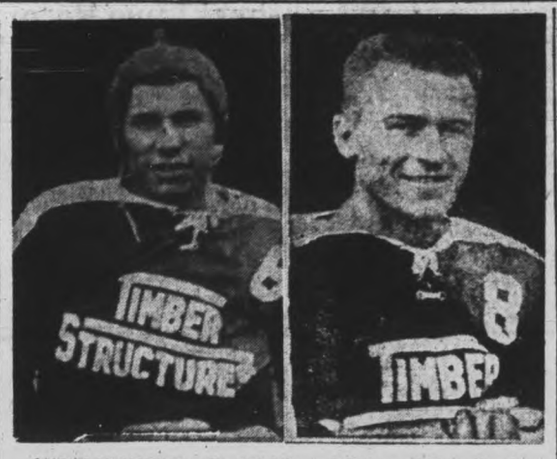
Athletics Whip Brampton 22-9

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Indian game of baggataway —that's lacrosse to you—made its 1953 debut during the week-end as the 1953 senior Ontario Lacrosse Association campaign began rolling.



St. Catharines Athletics played on home grounds and handily defeated Brampton Excelsiors 22-9.

St. Catharines Athletics put on a great display of power in a game that was never really in doubt. Athletics rolled to quarter leads of 6-3, 12-4 and 19-7.

Jim McMahon was top scorer for St. Catharines with six goals and two assists. Bill Bradshaw tallied three, Max Wolley, Doug Smith and Ted Howe each scored twice and Jim Bradshaw, Bob Melville, Gerry Davies, Gerry McTaggart, John Dewar and Bill Nelson scored singles.

Chuck Simpson led Brampton scoring with four, Nick Ferri collected three and Pete Bradkin and Jack Bionda scored once.

HIGH ON POLE—Ike Hildebrand, left, and Ross Powless were high on the scoring totem pole for the Petes in their 16-13 OLA senior win over Toronto on Saturday in Orillia. Ike led the winners in sniping with five goals, while big Ross was tops in assists, helping on four tallies. The Petes open at home Thursday against Mimico.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

That's one that won't have to be won later in the OLA season. Meaning the Petes' 16-13 senior lacrosse victory over Toronto West Yorks in Orillia on Saturday night. If they can do as well against Mimico Mounties here Thursday, they'll be off to a fine start in defence of their twice-won Mann Cup. Quite a few local fans made the jaunt and they weren't disappointed in the 1953 edition of Petes' gutted-stick performers. Bob Thorpe didn't play but eventually was chased from his bench for meandering out on the field when Harry Wipper was cut down. Tall Harry got a gash on the cheek, while Jerry Fitzgerald was cut on the lip and lost part of a tooth. Goalie Johnston of Yorks was cut once, also, in a rugged tussle.

* * * * * *

The keen rivals of a year ago laid on the gad with gusto, and neither referee, Piper Bain or Lou Vipond, leaned too hard on the whistles. They evidently felt that the fellows might as well get in shape early for the gruelling grind ahead. That stiff scrap should start rounding the players into condition in a hurry. At that, the Yorkers drew eight of the 14 penalties, but Ross Powless had to sit out a major for accidentally cutting George Johnston down in a corner scramble. It cost the Petes a couple of markers. Russ Slater and Jim McNulty almost came to blows a couple of times, and Don McPhail failed to draw the cool Curly Mason into a penalty by continuously knocking Curly's stick out of his hand. Petty stuff.

* * * * * *

A Grand Sight Again

It was sure good to see those Petes in lacrosse action again. Ike Hildebrand, as hard as nails after a starry AHL season, banged in no less than five goals and helped on another. Curly Mason, Don Ashbee (a great guy for fighting after loose balls), free-wheeling Harry Wipper, rugged Jerry Fitzgerald, cagey Dootch Vitarelli, strong Nip O'Hearn, the flashy Lou Nickle, and those colorful Indians, Rog Smith and big Ross Powless — yes, these players and the others give early indication that the Petes are still the championship OLA club to beat. Goalie Moon Wootton is still tops in the net, though George Johnston is a smart hombre, also, between the pipes.

* * * * * *

It won't be any cake-walk at all for the Thorpe team, and we figure this early that both the Yorks and St. Kitts will be mighty hard to beat ere schedule's end. Maybe other clubs, too. That Leo Teatro was strictly dynamite for the Torontos on Saturday eve. Only scored five goals and assisted on three more! But the score ended up with the champs in front, even if some of the guys were a bit weak in the knees near the finish and going about in puffs and short pants. They'll drill nightly this week till the Thursday opener in Miller Bowl, when an official opening ceremony, etc., will usher in senior lacrosse to Peterborough for the season.

St. Kitts Have Power

Down in Rex Stimers' "banana belt" of St. Catharines on Saturday p.m., the Athletics trimmed Brampton Excelsiors 22-9 to start off their OLA senior season. For the first time in St. Kitt's history, the lacrosse match was staged indoors, in the sumptuous hockey arena where Toronto Leafs train. And the tilt drew more than 2,000 customers. A dozen of the Athletics were in on the scoring barrage with Jim McMahon leading the hit parade with six tallies and two assists. Young Jim Bradshaw clicked for three. A clean contest under the watchful eyes of Referees Joe Murphy and Mickey McDonald. St. Kitts used their second string goalie and still romped to victory. They'll bear watching.

Cricket and soccer matches around the area Saturday as summer weather prevailed. In soccer, UEW won over Batawa 3-2 here, while the local Merchants took a 5-4 league fray in Picton. Merchants play Scots-Canadians a local loop tilt at 6.30 Wednesday eve at King Edward. Kingston Uniteds play the Merchants here next Saturday. In cricket, our "A" team dropped a decision to Parkdale in Toronto, while the local "B" bunch defeated Lakefield Grove here in a keen exhibition game. G. Smith was the batting star for the "B" cricketers with 75 runs. There are 14 clubs in the Toronto Council, eight of them running "A" and "B" teams just like the Peterborough-Whitaker Club does, and there should be considerable interest by cricket followers when play opens May 16. Toronto St. Simons play our "A" entry here Saturday as the "B" locals trek to Parkdale.

86 Bowling Teams In Annual Tourney

TORONTO (CP) — Eighty-six bowling teams from outside Toronto invaded local alleys Saturday for the final day of the 27th annual Canadian Bowling Association's annual tournament. They didn't take home any of the top honors, however.

Only outside team to come close to the Toronto leaders was a Brantford team with a 3,685 total. Led by J. Tucker, the team came up with a brilliant 938 count, made up of 362, 247, and 329 single games, to gain fourth place in the tournament.

The team of Bertulli and Cepettli of Copper Cliff, Ont., topped the open doubles title seekers with 1,629, to put them in second place behind the champion pair of Reilly and Smith of Toronto.

BREAKS SHOTPUT RECORD

FRESNO, Calif. (AP)—Muscular Parry O'Brien of the University of Southern California Saturday night set a world record for the shotput of 59 feet ¾ inch, in the 27th annual west coast relays. The listed record of 58 feet 10½ inches was established by Jim Fuchs of Yale in 1950.

Batawa Loses To UEW In Keen Game

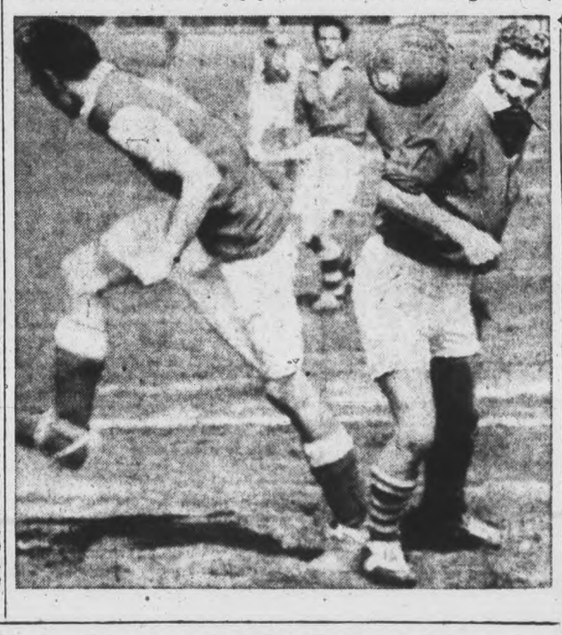
It simply doesn't pay to touch the ball with one's hand when within the penalty shot area in soccer. At least Batawa realizes that, for they lost the league leadership of the Eastern Ontario Football League Saturday on two penalty shots. Peterborough's UEW took full advantage of both opportunities to win 3-2 over the shoemen and take the lead with two wins and no losses. Batawa, prior to the game, led the league with two wins and no losses, but slipped back a notch after the loss.

Actually the UEW lads carried play into the Batawa zone throughout the game, but the Bata eleven rallied time after time to ward off UE scoring thrusts. Bata had their best during the first when with the wind and sun at their backs they pressed UE back, but in the second half the stronger UE entry with the wind and sun to advantage never gave Batawa an idle moment.

Newcomer this season, Brian Hoyle, kept the Batawa team hopping in the first quarter. Several times he dangled through from well out to test the Bata goalie. Finally, Hoyle went to work, again alone, and this time successfully. Beating the Bata fullback neatly, Hoyle with a 30-foot kick easily sank the first goal.

TIED THE SCORE

Fighting for the tying goal, Bata pressed the UE back three times, each time coming closer to knotting the score. Then the always dangerous Walter Hrywanski was Johnny-on-the-spot for Batawa. Taking a passout, he quickly tied the score from close in front.



In the second half the UE helped by the wind, never actually were threatened too seriously by Batawa, who helped the UE cause with hand balls within the penalty shot area.

Bill Holroyd was the first to take advantage of the hand ball penalty. Taking the penalty shot, Holroyd's kick was stopped by the Bata goalie, but the rebound came out, Holroyd went in and so did the ball, to put Peterborough up 2-1.

Still attempting to punch holes in the defence, Hrywanski several times broke away on neat solo efforts. He didn't score until minutes later when on a corner kick near the UE goal, he bounced the ball into the webbing with his head.

But the Batawa lads still wanted to play soccer with their hands, especially within the penalty area. As UE pressed, the Batawa crew touched the ball within that area. Bob Croll took the free shot, beating the goalie neatly with a well-placed kick into the left-hand corner for the winning tally.

SOCCER CAN BE THRILLING—Peterborough UEW and Batawa provided a handful of fans with some thrilling soccer Saturday at Morrow Park while UE won 3-2. Using their heads and their feet, of course, both teams kept a fast pace in spite of the heat. Both goalies had some anxious moments such as in the top photo when Bob Strong (centre) attempted to bounce the ball in with his head, but the Batawa goalie's fist rebounded the ball out of danger. No one was more surprised than the Bata player (lower photo) when he turned his head to find the ball perched on his shoulder. Brian Hoyle (left) turns his back on this play, but was one of UE's best performers throughout the game.—(Examiner Staff Photo).

Barrie Gives Flyers Welcome

BARRIE (CP)—More than 7,500 citizens Saturday welcomed home Barrie Flyers, Canadian junior hockey champions.

The Flyers won the Memorial Cup with a 6-1 victory over St. Boniface Canadiens Wednesday night in Winnipeg to take the final series 4-1.

They were met at Allandale station Saturday and paraded through town to Queens Park for a civic reception by mayor J. W. Hart.

Coach Hap Emms took advantage of the meeting to deny reports that he intends to leave Barrie.

"I like Barrie, I have no intention of ever leaving Barrie and I have no intention of compfetely retiring from hockey," he said.

Internal Problem Faces CAHA Session

By W. R. WHEATLEY

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association opened its annual meeting today at this border point on a happy international note but with an internal problem still demanding immediate attention.

Representatives of the International Ice Hockey Federation and the United States amateur body and the president of the Japanese Hockey Union were on hand.

So were five representatives of Quebec province who didn't know early today whether they were in or out of the deliberations.

Members of the suspended Quebec Amateur Hockey Association met at least half a dozen times, both in Toronto and Niagara Falls during the weekend, preparing and revising their formal application for reinstatement.

Information from a western delegate was to the effect that the draft application, as first submitted, was not to the liking of the CAHA officers.

SEEK RE-ADMISSION

The CAHA's big Quebec branch was suspended last February for defying the parent body by issuing a playing certificate to a junior player. Each side maintained it was correct in its interpretation of the CAHA regulations involved.

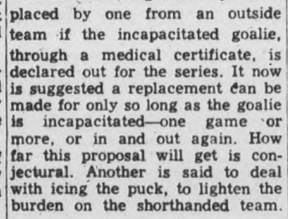
The QAHA now seeks readmission. It still maintains it acted correctly. Its application for reinstatement therefore hinges on wording of its apology for flouting an edict of the CAHA—not on the principle involved in issuance of the certificate, at least so far as the QAHA is concerned. A western informant said common ground probably could be reached.

The Quebec issue has become the dominant question. The whole matter, along with what the QAHA finally puts into words in its application, is expected to go before the CAHA resolutions committee at the opening of today's sessions. If it is not acceptable and if further talks get nowhere, the QAHA can prepare to leave for home. If it is acceptable, the question will be submitted to a special general meeting by the resolutions committee.

Immediate action is necessary if QAHA delegates are to take their places, or be elected to places, on functioning committees or the parent body.

While the meetings are under way today, there will be considerable speculation about what the Quebec Senior Hockey League will do. The league, one of those involved under the general QAHA suspension before it resigned from the QAHA, meets tonight to consider turning professional.

SEVERAL CHANGES



Several changes are reported in resolutions regarding rules. One is said to deal with replacement of goalkeepers in playoffs. As regulations stand, a goalie may be replaced by one from an outside team if the incapacitated goalie, through a medical certificate, is declared out for the series. It now is suggested a replacement can be made for only so long as the goalie is incapacitated—one game or more, or in and out again. How far this proposal will get is conjectural. Another is said to deal with icing the puck, to lighten the burden on the shorthanded team.

Tommy Lockhart of New York, president of the U. S. Amateur body, was an arrival Sunday.

The Japanese visitors at the pre-session meetings were Prince Tsuneyoshi and his wife. The prince, on his wap to Europe, said he is hopeful of arranging exhibition games in Japan with a Canadian team.

DO YOU OWN A CAR?

When the man who developed Bardahl Rad Conditioner brought his car to a garage for repairs, the garage owner phoned to ask him what on earth had he put in his radiator. He said that when they drained his radiator the water was so thick with dirt it would hardly pour. The Bardahl Rad Conditioner had removed rust, scale and dirt untouched by a popular brand chemical cleaner. The garage owner immediately placed an order for their own use. Since then hundreds of thousands of car owners in Canada and the United States have used Bardahl Rad Conditioner. If you own a car you should try it too . . . if your car is new it will keep your radiator in permanently new condition . . . if you have been running your car for a few years you'll be amazed at the dirt, rust and scale it will remove. Bardahl Rad Conditioner keeps radiators clean . . . eliminates rust formation which can insulate a motor causing harmful overheating . . . and it also lubricates and stops squeaky water pumps. Bardahl Rad Conditioner costs only 89c. Ask for it at your Service Station.

Senators Dump Athletics Twice; Dodgers Take Lead

By JOE REICHLER, Associated Press Sports Writer

If anybody has put the rabbit into the baseballs, it's news to the Philadelhpia Athletics and Phillies. While nearly every other club was blasting the ball out of the park Sunday, the two Philadelphia clubs were held to only two extra base hits in three games. And they were measly two-baggers by Athletics Eddie Joost and Eddie McGhee. Washington Senators dumped the Athletics in both ends of a double-header, 8-0 and 6-2, while Brooklyn Dodgers wrested the National League lead from the Phillies with a 5-0 triumph.

Bob Porterfield permitted the Athletics only one hit in the opener, a seventh-inning single by Joost. That gave manager Jimmy Dykes' light-hitting crew the unenviable distinction of being handcuffed with no hits, two hits and one hit in a space of four games.

28 HOME RUNS

A total of 28 home runs was hit Sunday. They included two each by Cleveland's Al Rosen and Cincinnati's Andy Seminick, a grand slammer by the Indians' Ray Boone and three pinch-hit homers by Bobby Hofman of New York Giants, Del Wilber of Boston Red Sox and Grant Dunlap of St. Louis Cards. Even the pitchers partook of the home run festival, Washington's Porterfield and Cleveland's Dave Hoskins joining in.

Four Cleveland homers accounted for all but one of the dozen runs the Indians tallied in the final two innings to rout St. Louis Browns 12-3. Rosen snapped Virgil Trucks' seven-inning shutout skein with his first round-tripper in the eighth. Hoskins, Boone and Rosen again homered in the eight-run ninth.

The victory boosted the Indians into the American League lead by two percentage points over the Yankees despite New York's half-game margin in games won and lost.

14 SAFETIES

The Yankees collected 14 safeties to down the Red Sox, 7-4. Vic Raschi relieved starter Allie Reynolds for New York and was credited with the victory. There were two Boston homers, one by catcher Sammy White, the other by pinch hitter Wilber.

Detroit shortstop Harvey Kuenn hit his first major league home run to help the Tigers defeat Chicago 8-6 in the first game of their doubleheader. The White Sox took the second game 10-5.

The circuit clout also played a prominent role in the Giants' sweep of two games from Pittsburgh, 4-0 and 3-2. Don Mueller hit a solo homer and Davey Williams hit a three-runner off Murry Dickson to account for the Giants' first game runs as Sal Maglie spun a three-hit shutout. Hofman's pinch-hit homer in the ninth snapped a 2-2 tie.

DRIVES IN RUNS

Roy Campanella drove in all Brooklyn's runs with a homer and double off Karl Drews of Philadelphia. Meantime, young Billy Loes blanked the Phils on six singles.

Cincinnati got only five hits off Vinegar Bend Mizell of the Cardinals but three were home runs and the Redlegs won the opener, 4-2. The Redlegs also won the nightcap, 5-2, as Bob Borkowski chipped in with a homer.

Bubba Church and Kenny Raffensberger went the distance for the winners, marking the first time this season that a Cincinnati pitcher had gone the route in a winning effort. Cardinals homer hitters were Steve Bilko, Peanuts Lowrey and Grant Dunlap.

Max Surkont and Don Liddle pitched Milwaukee Braves to a double win over Chicago Cubs, 6-2 and 4-1. Roy Smalley and Preston Ward homered for Chicago and Johnny Logan hit one for Milwaukee.

Changes Stance Campanella Hitting Hard

BROOKLYN (AP)—The secret is out—Roy Campanella's sensational long-range clubbing is due to a change in his batting stance.

The slugging Brooklyn catcher was miffed Sunday when he learned his secret was no more after he had rapped his fourth homer in three games and added a pair of doubles to drive in all the Dodgers' runs in their 5-0 triumph over Philadelphia Phillies.

"Who told you?" he demanded heatedly when asked whether it was true he had moved in closer to the plate this season to correct a weakness against curve balls.

"Charlie Dressen, your manager," he was told.

CHANGES MIND

Campy started to say something, then thought better of it and smiled instead.

"Well," he remarked, "I should have known somebody would give me away. I just hope the pitchers don't find out, though."

Earlier, Campanella had shrugged off his tremendous hitting with the usual non-informative remark, "I'm swinging the same as last year. Except that this year I'm connecting."

Whatever the reason, Campanella has been hitting at a murderous clip. In 21 games, the bulky backstop has walloped 10 home runs and has driven in 38 runs to top the majors in both departments.

Yesterday's Stars

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pitching: Bob Porterfield, Washington Senators, held the Philadelphia Athletics to one hit and faced only 27 men in blanking them 8-0 in first game.

Batting: Roy Campanella, Dodgers, drove in all of Brooklyn's runs with homer and double in 5-0 triumph over Philadelphia Phillies.

Stewart Wins $26,300 Tourney

ARDMORE, Okla. (AP)—Earl Stewart, Jr., hit the biggest jackpot of his young professional career Sunday by winning the $26,300 Ardmore open golf tournament, with a two-over par 282. He did it with a final round 37-37—74, one over par.

Stewart's steady performance over the tough 6,483-yard Dornick Hills Country Club course netted him $6,900 of sponsor Waco Turner's money and vaulted him into the top position as the year's leading money winner.

The hard-hitting Texan boosted his year's earnings to $10,850 to surpass Lloyd Mangrum, Niles, Ill. veteran, who finished farther down the list in this extravaganza of greenbacks.

Jerry Barber, LaCanada, Calif., took down second money with a 285 on a final round 72. Ed Oliver of Palm Springs, Calif., tied for third place with Jimmie Gaunft of Oklahoma City, each with 286.

Marciano Looks Normal Training For Big Fight

By JACK HAND

HOLLAND, Mich. (AP)—Rocky Marciano looks the same as usual—strong, dangerous, determined and—easy to hit.

The much-publicized nose still is in the same place. It hasn't bled for weeks. Nobody can hit it—or even see it—behind a two-pronged mask that adds a grotesque touch to the training scene.

When Rocky defends his heavyweight title against Jersey Joe Walcott at Chicago Stadium Friday night, he can be expected to fight the same type of pressure fight that finally wore down the old gent last September.

Spar mates Billy Noble and Willie Wilson have felt Rocky apply the pressure. They hit the champion but he hits back more often.

NOBLE IN TROUBLE

"He had me in trouble with the big gloves four or five times," said Noble after Sunday's workout. "I think he'll knock Joe out again—wear him down just like last time."

Rocky figures the same way although the memory of that first round knockdown still is green.

At the breakfast table in the rustic lodge near the gym he was talking about that knockdown—first of his career.

"I always wondered what other fellows were thinking about when I had dumped them," he said. "Now I know. I don't even remember getting hit but there I was on the deck. I said to myself 'You'd better get this guy before this happens again. It could happen.' Up to that time I never honestly thought it was possible."

In case it slips your mind, Rocky took a four-count knockdown from Walcott in the first round but got up and knocked him out in the 13th.

TO FOLLOW PATTERN

Marciano expects Walcott to fight like he did last time although he has been hearing plenty about Jersey Joe reverting to his old stop-and-go boxing routine.

"He might try it a couple of rounds," said Rocky. "But one punch can change any battle plan. I'll be after him and he'll be after me. I don't think it will go the distance. But, if it does, I still think I can win a decision."

Trainer Charlie Goldman thinks the Rock has improved as much as 30 per cent since last September when he knocked out Walcott with one punch.

Aussies Down Cricket Champs

LONDON (Reuters)—The touring Australians Saturday blew apart the county cricket champions, Surrey, dismissing them for 58 runs before lunch in the first day of play.

With eight fielders behind the batsman, 19-year-old Ron Archer took six Surrey wickets for 6 runs.

At close of play, the Australians had replied with 250 for nine.

Close-of-play scores in first-class matches:

Surrey 58, Australian tourists 250 for nine.

Hampshire 153, Middlesex 129 for one.

Warwickshire 403, Lancashire five for no wicket.

Leicestershire 243, Gloucestershire 72 for one.

Glamorgan 378 for five declared, Worchestershire 45 for no wicket.

Kent 416 for three vs. Nottinghamshire.

Somerset 127, Sussex 164 for two.

Yorkshire 366 for seven vs. Essex.

Trusting Captures $30,000 Handicap

SAN BRUNO, Calif. (AP)—Taking command in the home stretch, the favored Trusting with Wee Willie Shoemaker aboard Saturday won the $30,000 Tanforan Handicap by a length.

The big gelding, carrying top weight of 130 pounds, streaked over the 1½-mile distance in 1.50 2-5. Home Free was second and Alberta Ranches' Indian Hemp, second choice in the betting, third.

It was Shoemaker's 151st winner of the season and his 92nd of the Tanforan meeting, which closed Saturday.

Wings, Chiefs Divide Doubleheader

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A glance at the International baseball league standing, following a heavy weekend schedule, shows four clubs in a close fight for first place—only 20 points separating them.

Rochester Red Wings are on top, followed by Montreal Royals and Buffalo Bisons, tied for second spot, and Toronto Maple Leafs.

The other four teams in the loop are not too far away. Baltimore Orioles are a game behind in fifth place; Syracuse Chiefs are next, down 1½ games; Ottawa Athletics are two games back in seventh place and the tail-end Springfield Cubs are down 3½ games.

Rochester and Syracuse split a Sunday doubleheader at Syracuse, the Chiefs copping the first game 4-3 and the Wings holding off the home club for a 4-2 nightcap victory.

GOES ALL WAY

Duke Markell went all the way for his fourth straight victory in the opener. He gave up seven hits. In the second game, Ed Mierkowicz hit a three-run homer to decide the contest.

The Wings lost the first game of the Syracuse series Saturday, a 9-1 setback. Marvin Williams pitched five-hit ball for the Chiefs.

Ottawa came out on top of their three-game weekend series with Montreal. In the Sunday doubleheader, the Royals won the opener 6-0, behind the two-hit hurling of veteran Ken Lehman, who chalked up his fourth victory against no losses. Ottawa took the nightcap pitching duel between left-handers Vince Gohl of Ottawa and Bob Ludwick of Montreal, 2-1.

Ottawa won the Saturday game, in Ottawa, 4-2 behind the four-hit pitching of Hrabscak.

SWEEPS TWIN BILL

Buffalo swept a home double bill from the Maple Leafs, 7-3 and 1-0. Home run clouts by Emil Rastaino, Ken Chapman and Hal Daugherty played a leading role as rookie Frank Lary gained credit for his third victory against one defeat in the opener. Veteran John Weiss, making his first start of the year, reeled off a one-hitter to complete the double. Lou Morton's clean single in the second was the only Toronto hit.

The Leafs won the Saturday encounter 11-3, outhitting the Bisons 9-8. Don Johnson went the route for Toronto.

Merchants Victors Over Picton, 5 to 4

Peterborough Merchants defeated Picton on Saturday in an Eastern Soccer League match in Picton, 5-4. Harold Payne, local pivot, annexed three goals, with W. Downer and L. Payne counting one each for the victors. The game was scheduled for 6.30, which caused the Merchants the delay all afternoon, as they had expected a kickoff at three.

Heron, centre forward with the Picton aggregation, was the leading marksman for the losers, scoring three goals. They have an excellent field and the team is an asset to the league.

The local Merchants play the Scots-Canadians in a local league match this evening at 6.30 at King Edward Park.

Slammin' Sammy Snead, Takes Greenbrier Open

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va. (AP)—Sam Snead brought an end to Ben Hogan's all-conquering 1953 golf trail Sunday in winning his third consecutive Greenbrier Open.

Hogan, winner of his first two tournaments this year, faltered in the second half of the 72-hole tournament to finish third. Jack Burke Jr., hurtled past him for second place money of $1,000 with a 64 on the last round, still three strokes back of Snead, who took away $2,000.

Hogan wound up tied for third with Clayton Heafner of Charlotte, N.C.

Snead's last round was 68 and he wound up with 268, 12 strokes ahead of the par-70 Old White course.

Rindone Registers An Upset Victory

BOSTON (AP)—Joe Rindone of Boston registered an upset victory over French middleweight Pierre Langlois with a split decision in their 10-round bout Saturday night at Boston Garden. Rindone weighed 161½, and Langlois 160.

Starting as a 10-to-7 favorite, Langlois who had won his four previous American starts, soon convinced the slim 2,429 crowd that he had little defence for the Bostonian's accurate left jabs and stinging straight rights to the head.

Both the judges voted in Rindone's favor by a single point and referee Joe Zapustas credited each with 96. Under the Massachusetts boxing commission's scoring system, winners of rounds get 10 points and losers nine or less. Each gets 10 for even rounds.

George Blanda Signs With Tiger-Cats

HAMILTON (CP)—Coach Carl Voyles of Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Big Four Football League announced Saturday that George Blanda, 25-year-old first-string quarterback for Chicago Bears of the National Football League, has signed a contract with the Tiger-Cats.

However, George Halas, coach of the Chicago club, said Sunday night Blanda is not entitled to sign such a contract.

"He can't do it," said Halas. "The boy has a reserve option clause in his contract that gives us choice of his services for the following season. And that means 1953."

Said Voyles:

"The Bears' option clause doesn't mean a thing up here."

3 Clubs Veto Pro-Suggestion

KITCHENER (CP)—A suggestion put forward by Montreal that junior A hockey clubs in Ontario and Quebec desert the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association and become outright professional leagues is being vetoed by three Western Ontario hockey clubs.

Representatives of Guelph Biltmores, Galt Black Hawks and Kitchener-Waterloo Greenshirts all oppose the idea.

President Walter Weber of the has no interest in any such move. He said, however, that he thought the interlocking junior series, started as an experiment last winter, might be continued.

Guelph Biltmore's business manager, Roy Mason, said he thought it would be foolish for the junior A teams to turn professional.

"It would mean that players would have to move up to regular pro teams or get out when they were over age, and you know how many go into pro—not a third of them," he said.

Tin Miners Don't Get Pimples

Because Cornish tin miners appeared to avoid skin blemishes, British chemists suggested the use of tin in treating Boils, Acne Pimples.

Now convenient, tasteless tablets containing 42.5% metallic tin are available under the brand name 'Tinoxid". Rapid, satisfactory results are claimed for this inexpensive treatment.

Tinoxid Tablets are sold without prescription at all drug stores, 75c.

Churches Have Role With UN In World Peace

OMEMEE (ENS)—The United Nations and Christian Missions was the theme for the May WMS meeting at Trinity United Church Thursday evening, with Mrs. L. Casey's group in charge of the program.

Business, which preceded the group's program, included an announcement by the president, Mrs T. A. McConnell, of the sectional rally to be held in Queen Street United Church, Lindsay, on Friday, at which Miss Christina Baxter from India will be the speaker. Mrs. H. Graham was appointed as a delegate. Supply secretary Mrs. S. H. Moyer reminded the members that the bale would be packed June 1st and sewing and other articles should be in before that date.

Scripture was read by Mrs. D. Hicks. Miss M. Faulkner led in prayer, and Mrs. W D. Weir gave a monologue, with piano accompaniment by Mrs. Casey. Owing to the illness of Miss Christina Connell, the topic of United Nations and Christian Missions, which she had prepared, was read by Mrs. Casey.

In her treatment of the subject, Miss Connell prefaced her remarks with a reference to a recent radio speech by United States President Eisenhower in which he expressed the belief that by continuing to spend drastic amounts on armaments we cannot accomplish lasting peace, while millions are hungry, sick and destitute. 'The lot of these people," he declared, "must be improved not just by gifts but by helping them to help themselves."

The function of UN, she said, was not alone to arbitrate the many problems arising from the present fighting, but they had special agencies for relief and rehabilitation of people left in the path of war, and also for underprivileged in poor and backward countries They believe that starving ailing children are the seedbed for still more horrible wars, and that providing for their health and well-being is the surest way to a better world. Hence the United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund.

There are also agencies to take care of clothing, food and medicine for adults. Then there is the Food and Agriculture section concerned with increasing the world's food supply. By training native instructors they hope to improve farm methods. A representative of this organization who had visited backward countries was quoted as saying, "It may be possible eventually to feed the undernourished half of the earth without wrecking the economy of the rest of us, simply by helping people to help themselves." There is also the technical assistance program for improvement of a country's economy—its industries, housing, roads, employment, etc.

From these examples, said Miss Connell, we cannot help but feel that this great democratic constructive effort is the very stuff of which peace can be made.

Christian missions have a necessary and definite contribution to offer in co-operation with the UN program Lack of funds has made it impossible for the church to give the necessary economic aid. It has been difficult to teach people who are hungry, cold and ill, and to speak convincingly of faith. Now, the church must feel she is not alone in her attempt to uplift oppressed and illiterate people in the far corners of the earth.

The work of reconstruction and rehabilitation, as outlined and carried out by UN, is great indeed, but it is the responsibility of the church to see that the spiritual side of this rebuilding is not neglected. These two forces for world good must work together if either is to echieve its goal. G. Murray states, "There are but two main tests of the social order, national or international. These are, first, how far it protects the weak, reduces human suffering, and promotes good will; and secondly, what heights it reaches, or is capable of reaching, in the things of the intellect and spirit."

We should then, said Miss Connell, as members of the Woman's Missionary Society, support United Nations in whatever way we can, by our prayers, an understanding of their methods, and by some really constructive planning of the way in which the church may contribute its share of this great reconstruction program. For, truly a "great and effectual door is opened" in the extension of our work.

Lunch was served by the group.

Old Soldiers Lay Siege To Lapointe

OTTAWA (CP)—Old soldiers of the line, now members of Parliament, laid siege to Veterans Minister Lapointe Saturday in a concerted campaign to have the government do better by the aged and needy ex-servicemen who need federal help to make ends meet.

They took over the evening hours of the first Saturday sitting of this session of Parliament as representatives of all four political parties in the House united in telling the government that it should:

1. Increase the war veterans allowances, paid to aged and needy overseas veterans and widows of their comrades, to $60 from $50 a month for single recipients and to $120 from $90 for married recipients.

MORE EARNING CHANCES

2. Clear the way for those recipients to earn more outside income without having their allowances cut for doing so. They said single recipients should be able to have a total income of $1,200 a year, including allowance, married recipients $2,000 instead of the current $720 and $1,200.

3. Make a veterans committee of the Commons a permanent institution so veterans can always count on a parliamentary forum.

Mr. Lapointe was still listening when the House called it quits at 10 p.m. His rebuttal is due today when, the House was told, the dinner hour will be cut in a new move to try to speed prorogation.

The fellowships have been awarded to five graduates of the University of Toronto; two each from the Universities of Montreal and Saskatchewan; and one each from Dalhousie University, Halifax; McGill University, Montreal; and the Universities of Manitoba, Alberta and British Columbia.

The foundation was endowed in 1951 by R. S. McLaughlin of Oshawa. Its purpose is to enable young physicians and surgeons who have completed their post-graduate interneship and have been selected for permanen5 clinical appointments in a Canadian university to study in Europe for a year.

Adam And Fallen Man Lesson Sermon Subject

"Adam and Fallen Man" was the subject of the Lesson Sermon which was read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, throughout the world including First Church of Christ, Scientist, Peterborough, on Sunday. The Golden Text was "Awake thou that sleepest, and arise from the dead, and Christ shall give thee light."—Ephesians 5:14).

Selections from the Bible included the following from Genesis 1:26, Genesis 2:6, 7. "And God said Let us make man in our image, after our likeness: and let them have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over the cattle, and over all of the earth, and over every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth. But there went up a mist from the earth, and watered the whole face of the ground. And the Lord God formed man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living soul."

Correlative citations from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, included the following from page 502. "Spiritually followed, the book of Genesis is the history of the untrue image of God, named a sinful mortal. This deflection of being, rightly viewed, serves to suggest the proper reflection of God and the spiritual actuality of man, as given in the first chapter of Genesis."

Historical Sidelights Neglected By Citizens

JORDAN, Ont. (CP)—Lieutenant-Governor Breithaupt of Ontario said Saturday he believes Canadians have not paid enough attention to "historical highlights" of the country.

The lieutenant-governor officially opened the Jordan Historical Museum of the Twenty. He said:

"I am pleased to see such a good start being made in the province of Ontario and I hope that it may be the beginnings of larger things in that connection."

The museum's name recalls the pioneer beginnings of "The Twenty," the name given in the late 1790s to this area 20 miles from the United States border.

Fire Police Chief At Alexandria

ALEXANDRIA (CP) — Police Chief L. P. Roy of Alexandria was dismissed from his post at a special meeting of the town's police commission Saturday.

Magistrate Leopold Lalonde, a commission member, said the chief was fired for "irregularities" in carrying out his duties. He did not elaborate.

Mr. Roy had been chief nly since last March 2 in this town 20 miles north of Cornwall.

CHILDREN MISS CORONATION?—It is not known yet what role the Royal Children will play at the Coronation. Indications are neither will be in Westminster Abbey. Princess Anne is much too young. As for Charles, though it was originally thought he would be, expectations have been revised. Some say it would be an added strain on the young Queen if her son happened to cry out "Mummy" at a critical moment.

LOVES ANIMALS—Prince Charles, five in November, loves animals. When not playing with his white rabbit, "Harvey," he can often be found with a glove puppet shaped like a rabbit. To Charles it matters little that his mother will be crowned Queen of the United Kingdom and Commonwealth. What interests him, chiefly, is the prospect of mounted soldiers, gilded coaches and marching bandsmen.

Royal Children Be Absent From Coronation Ceremony

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Prince Charles looks forward eagerly to the colorful parades he will see Coronation Day.

Charles speaks frequently of "Mummy's Coronation" but doesn't know what it really means. For this alert four-year-old, living in the shadow of the crown that will one day be his, kings and queens are just people he sees in picture books.

A Buckingham Palace spokesman says Charles knows his mother is called Queen, but accepts this as other children take for granted their mother's name.

WILL SOON LEARN

Enlightenment may be forthcoming soon. The friendly, inquisitive Charles, five in November, is approaching the age when his mother first asked: "Why do the people wave to me?"

The Queen announced recently that the royal children would not go to Westminster Abbey for the Coronation.

much in evidence. They will certainly appear on the palace balcony when their mother returns from the Abbey. They have appeared there on many occasions and always treat it as a huge joke, waving frantically, giggling and thoroughly enjoying this taste of grown-up activities.

Before appearing on the balcony, Charles will be given a private view of his mother, wearing the crown that some day will be his own. Charles likes to see his mother "all dressed up."

Even in the last-minute Coronation whirl, the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh try to spend much time with the children. Charles and Princess Anne go downstairs daily after breakfast to romp and play games with their parents as long as possible. The Queen likes sharing her children's interests, and, with her husband, reads bedtime stories, teaches them nursery rhymes and is duly impressed when Charles shows with his plastic bricks that A stands for Anne and C for Charles!

LOVES ANIMALS

Their son loves animals. When not playing with his white rabbit, "Harvey," he can often be found with a glove puppet shaped like a rabbit.

This feeling for animals and creatures that move sometimes lands him in trouble. At Balmoral Castle he broke away and ran to the salmon fishing river that runs through the grounds. He wanted to "watch the fishes" and kicked and screamed when pulled back to safety. He just missed a spanking.

Charles is also fond of clambing. He scrambles in garden seats and through first-floor windows. Up to a point, the royal couple encourage this. They remember the long hours of standing he will endure. At the age of seven, the Queen used to remain standing for part of her studies, training herself for things to come.

Chinese Asks Law Relaxed

TORONTO (CP)—Foon Sien, national president of the Chinese Benevolent Association, said Saturday he hopes Ottawa will relax immigration regulations to allow 6,000 wives and families of Chinese-Canadians to enter Canada.

Speaking at a banquet in his honor held by the Chinese-Canadian Citizens Association of Toronto, Mr. Sien said many of them now in Hong Kong will never be able to qualify for entry, but a slight relaxation of regulations would bring happiness to them.

Report Winnie In Perfect Health

KINGSVILLE, Ont. (CP)—Winnie, the crippled Canada goose who was flown home from Connecticut in a passenger plane, is in "perfect health" but shows no inclination to fly again.

Officials of the Jack Miner bird sanctuary in this town about 25 miles southeast of Windsor said Sunday the bird has gained weight and is apparently satisfied with life in his private, 50-foot-square coop which is equipped with a pool.

Winnie caused a ruffle on international waters last month when a dispute arose as to what to do with him after he was found stranded near Greenwich, Conn. Canadian interests finally won out and the bird was flown here.

More Missionaries

WINNIPEG (CP)—Need for more workers for Canadian Indian missions was stressed at the provincial synod of the Anglican diocese of Rupert's Land here. A committee member said "Either we act now most vigorously or we shall extinguish the torch handed to us by the early missionaries."

Shattered So Often, Dreams Of Freedom Finally Come True For Men

(Final article of series)
By PHILIP DEANE
(Correspondent of Observer, London)

LONDON — Sverdlovsk had a huge station building. It is an important junction. On the square outside the station, long queues of people were waiting with bundles, suitcases, baskets. Some were sleeping on the concrete sidewalk. The station had two floors. On the ground floor there was a waiting room. Commissioner Lord and I were sickened by the smell when we entered. Children in dirty clothes, some barefoot, excreta on their legs, were playing among the helpless bodies of the drunks. The smell of cheap spirits, vomit, and dirty nappies that were being dried was overpowering. An old gipsy woman, sitting on the floor, was examining her jacket for insects. We went out. Over the door of the waiting room we had left there was a sign: "Waiting room, second class." Beside it, over another door, was another sign: "Restaurant, first class." In that restaurant there were tables covered with white linen, expensive silver, wine glasses and good china. Smartly uniformed waitresses served men and women in rich clothes, jewellery and too much scent. Outside a man with no legs, and with a medal on his chest, was dragging himself along on a sort of leather pad. He was not begging. We went back to the platform. Under a sign marked: "No quarrelling" two of the numberless drunks one saw everywhere were vigorosuly and unsuccessfully trying to hit each other. A militiaman looked on tolerantly. The train conductor told us to get on, and we went apprehensively to the restaurant car to resume with the cashier the feud we had started on April 15. He had approached us that day during supper.

"You," he said in a loud, accusing voice, "are not fulfilling the plan."

There was one of those awful silences. Every diner paused and looked at us. A young mother raised her child above her head and pointed to us. To be accused of not fulfilling the plan is a terlowered our eyes before all those rible stigma in Russia. We accusing glances.

NOT EATING ENOUGH

"You," continued the restaurant-car cashier, "are not fulfilling the eating norm set for you prisoners. You must recuperate. You must eat much. You must eat 420 roubles-worth a day, and you are nowhere near that figure. Why?"

"Everything," we answered sheepishly, "is very expensive and as we might have to pay for it we cannot afford these things."

One of the diners intervened.

"You see," he explained to the cashier, gesturing broadly, "they are afraid they might have to reimburse the Soviet Government."

We looked at that man gratefully. It was nice to get some moral support.

"I don't know about that," said the cashier. "Intourist says they must recuperate and they will not eat. Is our cooking not good?" —the cook glared at us from the service hatch. "Is the comrade waitress not attending them properly?" The comrade waitress appeared mortally offended. "And," added the cashier gesturing dramatically and looking around the car for approval, "I put it to you, comrades, are not our Soviet products the best in the world?"

With this last tirade, he swung the audience to his side. A censorious murmur arose from the other tables.

"I," said the cashier, setting his jaw grimly, "will see that you fulfil your plan"—turning to his staff, he ordered: "Serve."

As we ploughed through course after course, as we drank bottle after bottle of champagne, the glares on the faces of our fellow diners disappeared, to be replaced by encouraging smiles. Like spectators at a rugger (Rugby, football) match, they egged us on, sending an occasional gift bottle to show their appreciation of our efforts. With perspiration pouring from our foreheads we persevered, feeling that Anglo-Soviet relations were at stake. That night, our two compartments were every bit as noisy as the neighboring ones. If our drunken engine-driver friend had passed our door, he would have been made to pay.

The next morning, of course, we could not eat, and at lunch we had another lecture. Sitting at our table, we could not grasp the reality of this opera-bouffe train which flashed past the Siberian forests, its loudspeakers playing oompah-pah music and its occupants conjugating Russian verbs at the slightest provocation:—

"I love peace
You love peace
He loves peace,
We love peace."

And when I told a lady engineer that Stalin's pamphlet on "Dialectical Materialism" could not really be considered to be philosophical writing, tears came to her eyes, and she said: "You must not speak like that about him. It is wicked."

RAF PLANE WAITS

At last we reached Moscow, dazed, overfed, amazed at the freedom with which we had been allowed to investigate everything, and there on the station, too poignantly British for words, a group of truly friendly people, smiling, trying hard and unsuccessfully to control their emotions, just took us over. We felt that this was very near to freedom. The next day, having been feted by the Ambassador as we had never been feted before, we were driven to the airport.

There, amid the Soviet planes, a silver bird with the red, white and blue roundels which had marked the wings of the "Few" (the RAF planes which won the Battle of Britain) was waiting for us. Nursed by the crew, the doctor and the sister, airborne at last in this English-built machine, we began to understand that the dreams we had seen shattered so often had at last come true.

In the plane, two minutes before its doors opened to let us out into the world we had left so long ago, I looked at the six people with whom I had shared this experience. In spite of their memories, which I shall have to stamp out before I can ever feel at peace, I felt, looking at these six men, that to have known them had made even the nightmare of captivity worth while.

What is nickel plating?

"Nickel plating means putting a coating of nickel on the surface of some other metal by means of electricity. The things to be nickel plated, such as alarm clock cases, tea kettles or car bumpers are placed in a tank containing a solution of nickel salts. When an electric current is turned on, a layer of nickel is deposited on the surface of the metal articles in the tank. The longer they are left in the tank the thicker the nickel plating becomes."

"Why do they use nickel plating?"

"It gives a handsome, silvery surface, and it also keeps things from rusting, because nickel resists rust—even in salt water."

"Is that nickel plating on our car grille?"

"Yes, those parts are given a plating of nickel, finished off with a thin coat of chromium. Almost anywhere you go you'll find things plated with nickel to help keep them from rusting and to make them bright and attractive."

"The Romance of Nickel" a 72 page book, fully illustrated, will be sent free on request to anyone interested.
